in the life that Dr. Staley lived, but can and will profit by knowing from many angles that which entered into this life to make it one of such beauty, blessedness and bounty. All readers of THE SUN who saw his face in last week's issue, will look upon it again in this issue with profound respect and highest esteem and will remark about it to their children and members of their household, and will tell this week, as they did last week, and as they will in the weeks to follow, something of the achievements, experiences and victories of this man of God. J. O. A.

THERE WAS A MAN SENT FROM GOD.

This writer heard Dr. W. W. Staley preach a sermon once, using as his text John 1:6: "There was a man sent from God, whose name was John." It is not recalled now where the sermon was preached, nor under what conditions, nor when. This much is recalled, however, that like all of Dr. Staley's preaching, it was an unfolding of the text and a very plain, simple exposition of what this Scripture really signified. That sermon brought to the mind of the writer, as nothing else ever did, the same, simple and secure philosophy on which the preacher's character and conduct and life were built. We did not take notes and have no written memorandum of the sermon. We never took notes when Dr. Staley preached, since his outline and presentation were so clear, plain and proof positive, that notes were superfluous. The mind simply received the word of truth that this man propounded, and kept it to live by.

The simple fact on which Dr. Staley based and preached that sermon, was that when God was ready to do a work in the world, he did not call together an assembly, a parliament or a congress, nor did he make laws, lay down principles, nor propound theories. He called a man to do the work and entrusted that man with doing it. This was the way of God in all ages and through all time. Mankind in his weakness and ignorance called together congresses, parliaments and legislatures. This was and is the way of man. On the other hand, God called a man and sent him forth to do his work. This explains the philosophy of history as no human philosophy can explain it.

God wanted a nation of people whom he might call his own, and use as his chosen people through the ages, the mightiest single stream of influence ever flowing down through the channels of time or the chronicles of history. And yet, to found such a people and give them a beginning, he called Abraham, a man so faithful that you could trace his journeys and his pilgrimages, said Dr. Staley, by the altars he built to Jehovah God. And then when he wanted to weld that people into a nation and call them out from bondage, he did not summon a parliament or have a congress elected. He called a man named Moses, and then waited forty years for his training before he sent him about his task. And so, through sacred and secular history, when God wants a great work done, he calls and sends a man.

This writer knew when he heard that sermon from Dr. Staley, and the thought comes to him today with added force, that this preacher was giving to us who heard him, the philosophy and the faith, the foundation and the structure of his own life.

The writer has heard Dr. Staley say more than once that he could not remember the time when he did not feel called of God to preach the gospel. That call came early in life, and never until his dying day departed from him as the deepest conviction of his life. There are preachers, who, in a bid for popular favor or applause, will say that the preacher must forget some times that he is a preacher. Dr. Staley was not that kind. He never forgot that he was a preacher, and he ever and always acted the part. No one who looked upon him thoughtfully or conversed with him in the briefest intercourse, could overlook the fact or forget that here was a preacher. Of that fact, Dr. Staley was not ashamed. He was willing for every one he met and all the world to know that he was a preacher. He did not use this as a pretense or cloak, or as a bid for personal favor or solicitude. He used it as a simple fact of his life and being—very much as one feels the Apostle Paul felt and used it in Romans 1:16: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ." And certainly no one ever accused Dr. Staley of seeking honor or fame or glory save that about which Paul spoke in Galatians 6:14: "God forbid I should glory, save in the cross."

In brief, Dr. Staley felt all through the years that he himself was a God-sent man, sent into the world to be a preacher of the Word, sent into the world on a mission for his Lord and Master. Believing that he could serve with simple humility, he realized always that his ministry was to the poor and the needy as well as to the rich and the great. The fact is, so far as his own attitude and conduct were concerned, he knew neither rich nor poor, Jew nor Gentile, Greek nor Barbarian, black or white. There is no explanation of this man's life, save in the fact of his everlasting conviction that he was a man sent from God, to do the will of God here and now on earth with and among his fellowmen. This was his fundamental philosophy. This was the secret of his life, as it was the power and force of his labors and his influence. When he made mistakes, he attributed those mistakes to his own weaknesses as a human being. When he served and was successful and victorious in his service, he attributed to God the power that enabled him to achieve, to do, to succeed.

One never heard this man boast of his own goodness nor intimate that he was infallible, or that he was, on any account, more pious than others, or "holier-than-thou," "better than you and other folks," or that he walked daily in the glaring light of the glory of God. Nothing was further from his life and work. He realized the frailties and the weaknesses of human nature, and of his own life and the limitations thereof, because he was human. On the other hand, he realized the power of God unto salvation of men, and lived daily in the full consciousness that God had seen fit to humble him and yet exalt him by allowing him to be among the number "sent of God."

And thus his consciousness of being God-sent gave him a faith that never wavered, a courage that could not be conquered, a hope that was never dimmed. He believed in God, both in the wisdom of God to do his work, and the way of God as the only way. While sin and error might seem for a season to abound and be victorious, this man, conscious of being sent of God, realized that God would and must win out, and that we mortals need not be in a fret nor a flurry about it. God was patient, therefore, the man of God must be patient. God was persistent in the right, therefore, the man of God must persist and be ever on the side of right. That the Incarnate Son of God, when on earth, went about doing good, therefore, every man sent of God should go about seeking to do good, to have faith in the good and the ultimate triumph of the good.

This is why all who knew Dr. Staley intimately—and there were hundreds of us—can say truthfully now, in the light of his long life: "There was a man sent of God, whose name was William Wesley Staley." One feels if this man of God conversed, as no doubt he often did, with his own soul, he could say:

"Thou on the Lord rely,
So safe shalt thou go on;
Fix on his work thy steadfast eye;
So shall thy work be done."

THE HIGHEST TRIBUTE.

Now that Dr. W. W. Staley has gone from us, hundreds in our Christian Churches will be wondering how the work he loved so well, and served so wisely, can and will go on. A mighty man, a great leader is gone, and we, all of us, feel that there is no one to take his place. This line is written to say to every one who may chance to read it, that the highest tribute of praise we, who love him, can pay to his memory, is not in the flowers, fragrant and beautiful as they were, at his burial; not in the splendid, sincere speeches we now make about him; not in the lines, however pointed and eloquent, we can write of him; not the pictures, mental and imaginary, that we may draw of him; not the high praise from our lips that we may pronounce upon his name. In none of these will be found the highest tribute to this man. The very highest tribute we, any, or all of us, can pay him, and the highest and holiest esteem in which we may revere and honor him, will be in our effort to carry on the work he began so well, and has now laid down; take up the tasks and burdens that bore upon him and carry these with courage and with faith in the God he served so well. Every man and woman, young and old, in the Christian Church has now the opportunity of paying to Dr. Staley's memory the highest possible tribute of praise and gratitude. That can be done by seeking to carry to greater perfection, power and influence, the institutions, enterprises, interests which were so near and dear to his heart and which he loved so well, and labored so faithfully to build up on earth. He loved Elon College with a passionate fondness and devotion, and through his long life showed that love in a more unselfish and devoted manner than any man of all our acquaintance or company. He loved the College, he believed in it and had an undying faith in its power for good and for continued and ultimate victory. He who now helps to make Elon better and stronger will be paying highest tribute to Dr. Staley's memory.

He loved the mission work of the church, and realized that the church could not grow strong except as it became a missionary-minded church. On this account, he labored faithfully, wisely and unselfishly, as a member of the Mission Board of the church, and never missed a meeting of that board, having traveled all day and until 2:00 A. M. of the night within less than a month before his death, and when he was already very feeble, that he might be present and answer to the roll-call in the annual meeting of the Mission Board, of which and of whose Executive Committee he was a member. It was in this board that he did some of the most valuable work of his life—on two instances, in particular, taking $1,000.00 each time from his earnings and savings account, that he might save two struggling churches from going under the hammer, and being lost to the Christians and to the kingdom. When others failed, we could always rely upon the counsel and contribution of Dr. Staley.

When this writer started out as Mission Secretary, even the day before he was to begin his active work as Mission Secretary, and without solicitation, the first pledge coming in to Missions was from Dr. W. W. Staley, in the sum of $1,000.00, to be paid in five annual installments, which payments he met promptly and without fail. He loved and labored for our Mission cause.

He loved THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and plead with his brethren and acquaintances everywhere, in the pages of THE SUN, on the conference floor, and in church that the people subscribe for and read THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

He loved the Christian Orphanage, and besides making his personal donations, encouraged the people to give to this benevolence and charity.

He loved the conferences of the Convention, and while he was president of the Convention visited the conferences time and again without any expense to the Convention, even of his own travel and expenses.

He loved the Southern Convention, and served it through a period as president, guiding it in the way of wisdom, stability and strength.

If we wish to pay tribute to the name and memory of Dr. Staley, we, all of us, have the opportunity, and that is by carrying on to greater perfection, in so far as our means, might and wisdom will allow us to do so, the work he loved and for which he labored and in whose behalf he laid down his life. The highest tribute, let us repeat, we can pay to this man of God, is to take up with new courage, fresh faith, and increased determination, the work which he has now laid down, relying always for strength, wisdom and guidance upon the God who was his stay, support and guide at all times. J. O. A.

DR. STALEY—A FRIEND.

Dr. W. W. Staley has been an institution in my life. When I was but a little tot I attended the Suffolk Sunday School where my father was superintendent and Dr. Staley was pastor. Next I remember him as the president of Elon College, and though still a child, I learned to love him for his genial spirit and winning manner. In later years, after I had entered the work of our church, his counsel has been a light unto my feet, and I am a better man for having known him. After my father's illness, his visits became more frequent, and even more welcome, until affliction knocked, too, at his door. I have missed him greatly.

If my services have been at all worth while, Dr. Staley has helped to make them so. Not only I, but THE CHRISTIAN SUN, has lost a faithful friend. Yet he is not lost, for his spirit still will guide.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

Tributes of Love from Some of Those Who Knew Him Best.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

[In the place of the message of the late Dr. W. W. Staley, who for many years furnished the Suffolk Letter for THE SUN, at the request of many people I am furnishing a copy of the prayer used by me at the funeral service of my distinguished friend and brother in the ministry. It seems fitting that a prayer may occupy this space.—I. W. JOHNSON.]

Our Father in heaven, thou hast the words of eternal life. Thy Providence has called us into this house. We bow at thine altar and say: "The Lord gave, the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." Thou hast already said: "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you." We have come to weep together. Jesus wept.

But we are not rebellious. In our hearts we say: "Thy will be done." We humbly submit to thy will. He was thine. Thou gavest him to us. He gave himself to us and for us. His work was done. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord—their works do follow them."

He went about doing good. He sought to cheer the discouraged, to guide the erring, to raise the fallen and to save the lost. In thy name he went to the cottage of the poor as well as to the palace of the rich. He sought the needy, the afflicted, and the distressed. He recognized no barriers between races, creeds or classes in his ministry. In homes and in hospitals he knelt by the bed of friend and stranger, Jew and Gentile, white and colored, Protestant and Catholic, saint and sinner, and prayed for them in their sickness and sorrow. He loved people. He loved thee. He loved the work of thy ministry.

Thou hast called him to thyself. He has answered the last call, in submission. He knew the voice of the Father. Through these years he has said: "Here am I; send me." In thy name he toiled. In thy name he prayed. In thy name he has gone home to "be with Christ, which is far better."

We thank thee for his friendly spirit; for his warm heart; for his wise counsel; for his sincerity of motive; for his far-seeing vision; for his Christian character and for his ministry.

As we stand in this place where he so often stood to pray for others in their sorrow, we lift our hearts to thee in behalf of his inner family circle, in their bereavement. Comfort their hearts. Enrich their lives by the memory of his wise counsel, his earnest prayers and his devoted affection. Bless the dear relatives in their sorrow.

Bless this church and congregation to which he so freely has given himself, his heart and his life. May the church grow in those graces which enriched his own life. May it carry on in the work of thy kingdom. May his mantle fall upon the pastor and a double portion of his spirit increase and multiply his usefulness in his ministry.

Be gracious to this city, its churches of various creeds, its faithful ministers—the objects of his love and fraternal devotion. Remember his prayers for these thy people, and lead us in spiritual unity and fellowship.

Remember, O Lord, his brethren in the ministry of the fellowship to which he has given these years of his life. Carry on the institutions in which he had such deep and abiding interest. May his life be an increasing inspiration to them.

We thank thee for the affection of his large circle of acquaintances and friends. We thank thee for the courtesy and respect of the business men and women, the schools and others who paused in their work because of this service. We thank thee for the beautiful flowers so rich in their fragrance and beauty, and so suggestive of his own beautiful life. We thank thee for all whose hearts and hands have helped to express an appreciation of him, and to render assistance and comfort to his family.

We offer this service in the name of Jesus. In that name which is above every other name on earth. In that name which was so sweet and precious to him. We do not know how to order our words before thee. We have lost a friend. A voice we loved is stilled. We would not call him back to us. We would rather go to him, in thine own good time. Be thou our constant friend. Speak thou to our hearts, in this hour. Grant us thy blessing. Accept our thanks for him. Forgive our sins. Strengthen our purpose to consecrate anew our service to thee. And we make our prayer in his holy name. Amen.

DR. STALEY AS PRESIDENT OF THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

It is very difficult to evaluate the life of a man in his own generation. When time has made it possible to view the achievements of Dr. Staley in a true perspective, his contribution to the kingdom in what he did as president of the Southern Christian Convention will probably be reckoned as the most fruitful service of his life.

The two most notable forms of service that any man can render are, influencing aright and deeply the lives of others, and building an organization through which men may smoothly and efficiently express the highest ideals of their lives in service to their fellowman. Dr. Staley rendered this latter form of service to the Christian Church in the South in his long term of service as president of the Southern Christian Convention.

The Southern Christian Convention was organized in response to the felt need of some means whereby the Christian Church as a whole in the South might function as a unit in serving the purposes of the kingdom outside the bounds of the individual congregation. At the time Dr. Staley became President of the Convention that body was just beginning to find itself. To perfect a scheme of organization, and work out methods of handling the interest of so large a body required wisdom and vision of the highest rank.

It is not the contention of this article that the Southern Christian Convention as it exists today represents the genius of Dr. Staley, or any other one individual. But it probably owes more to the ability of Dr. Staley than to any other one person. He was gifted with a sensitive appreciation of spiritual needs. He had an unusual ability to foresee the practical workings of plans and methods. He seemed to be able to foresee the human reactions to corporate activities. All these he brought into play in his administration of the affairs of the Convention. He could trace the successive steps that would lead to the far distant goal. He had the faith and patience to build for the future and await results. And only the distant future can measure the full worth of the service which Dr. Staley gave to and through the Southern Christian Convention.

STANLEY C. HARRELL.

DR. W. W. STALEY'S RELATION TO ELON COLLEGE.

It becomes the sad duty of the Christian Church to chronicle the death of one of its most valuable and beloved ministers. Dr. Staley was a man of rare gifts and unusual accomplishments. His genial spirit and affectionate disposition endeared him to everyone. His common sense and flawless judgment have made a priceless contribution not only to his church, but to his day and generation. He was a man of wide vision and great courage. Faith for him was both a driving force and a guiding factor. He possessed in remarkable degree, the ability to understand the needs of his church. He was interested in the development and in the enrichment of the spiritual life of his people—he made a definite contribution to the expanding life of the church of which he was a part.

Early in his ministry, he sensed the need of a trained leadership for the church. He knew that this could hardly be accomplished without an institution of higher learning for the Christians. Consequently, he used the force of his influence and personality to induce the church to found Elon College. He was a member of the extraordinary session of the Southern Christian Convention, held in Old Providence Church in 1887, when definite steps were taken for the founding of Elon College. He was elected as one of the first trustees of the college, and remained a member of the board until his death. So far as the records show, he was never absent from a meeting of the board. He was present at the last meeting, held September 17th, and as usual, rendered valuable service in the discussions and otherwise guided in the decisions of the board.

In 1894, Dr. W. S. Long, first president of the college, submitted his resignation. The college was in serious financial straits, creditors were threatening foreclosure. By vote of the members of the faculty of Elon College at that time, the Board of Trustees was requested to elect Dr. W. W. Staley, pastor of the Suffolk Church, as president of the college. Dr. Staley was requested, by the same faculty, to give favorable consideration to the request in case the board should elect, which request was conveyed by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, then secretary to the faculty. Dr. Staley accepted this responsibility on the condition that he be allowed to remain pastor of the Suffolk Church, and became non-resident president, serving without salary. Conditions were agreeable to the board, and Dr. Staley entered upon the presidency of the college. He immediately arranged to borrow funds and paid off all claims against the college. He served as president eleven years.

In 1905, Dr. E. L. Moffitt was elected to succeed Dr. Staley. Dr. Staley turned over the affairs of the college to Dr. Moffitt, with all financial obligations paid—a most unusual accomplishment, and one that deserves never to be forgotten by the Christian Church.

During Dr. Staley's administration, he induced the churches of the Southern Christian Convention to make annual donations to the college through their local conferences. His plan was to have every church make a definite contribution to the cause of education by contributing to their educational institution—a feasible plan, and a sane policy, which has never been improved upon.

Dr. Staley never asked anybody else to do what he, himself, was not willing to do. In requesting others to contribute to the support of the college, he always gave freely and generously out of his own savings. Years ago, when Dr. Harper, who was then president of the college, undertook to raise the standardization fund, Dr. Staley led the way with a contribution of $5,000 in cash. Others of his friends like Col. E. E. Holland and Col. J. E. West, followed him in gifts of like amounts, and many others throughout the church gave liberally and generously to the college. This was the first definite step taken to make the college an accredited institution of higher learning.

Last year, when Elon suffered severe financial reverses, Dr. Staley again came forward with a gift of $1,000. He asked the trustees to join him in a like amount—some did—but most of us could not. Nevertheless, he gave. On his last visit to the college, just a few weeks before his death, in conversation with the writer, he expressed his hope for the continued progress of the college, urging me not to be discouraged, but to be faithful to my task, assuring me that, as he had always stood by the college, he expected to stand by to the end.

In the death of Dr. Staley, the college loses one of its staunchest friends, and most liberal supporters. It now remains for us who are still blessed with life and ability to consecrate ourselves and our possessions to the completion of the task so finely begun by those who have gone before us.

We shall miss Dr. Staley—we will miss him in our homes, in our worship, in our sick rooms, in our hospitals, in our conference meetings, in other reason than the fact that in a difficult situation, he preserved and expressed in such a splendid way, the Spirit of Jesus Christ. So long as I live I shall thank God for my intimate and inspiring association with him.

H. S. HARDCASTLE.

MY PASTOR—DR. WILLIAM W. STALEY.

John was thinking of such saints as my pastor, Dr. William W. Staley, when he wrote, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." The growth, influence and leadership of the Suffolk Christian Church under his pastorate mark him as one of the outstanding pastors of this generation.

He was a great preacher. He lived the gospel that he preached. He had no fads in the pulpit. Fully recognizing the responsibility of the minister to his Lord and Master, with a great analytical mind, keen intellect, good commonsense, and a strong passion for souls, and in deepest humility, he preached the Word of God.

When I think of the loyalty and love of my loss in the death of my pastor for about two-thirds of my life. People of all sects, creeds and races, mourn with me in the loss of such a pastor and citizen of our beloved city.

JUNIUS E. WEST.

AN INFLUENCE THAT CANNOT DIE.

What the sun is to the solar system, Dr. Staley has been to the Southern Christian Convention. Incidentally, there are seven planets and seven conferences. To them he has been a center of influence. His business judgment and practical suggestions have brought system and order into their organized activities.

Thousands he has drawn to a life of righteousness, holding them to their place of service and pouring into their lives the light of truth and the warmth of Christian love.

It is when the sun shines on the clouds that we see the beauty of the rainbow and remember God's promise. It is when the light shining from some sainted loved one falls upon our tears that we see character pictured in all its loveliness and realize the worth of such a life. It is the setting sun that throws his rays across the sky and paints them in glory. What means this beauty of the setting sun? It means this: that while the sun is below our horizon he still shines upon sky and cloud and these reflect his light to us. So like the Christian life. Lost to vision, a memory dear, still shining above our horizon, lighting the clouds that pass over our lives, and in that light we live a more beautiful life and walk with God toward eternal dawn.

Dr. Staley has left a rich legacy to us. Its value cannot be estimated in years, but in character and service it will live on in the church he loved, in the homes he brightened, the hearts cheered and the lives made better.

J. U. NEWMAN.

BELOVED OF ALL CREEDS.

Dr. Staley and I came to Suffolk the same year. I became a member of the Christian Church under his pastorate. My life has been touched by his intimate ways and my long and close association with him has been to me a benediction. I loved him, his church membership loved him, and he was "beloved of all creeds" in Suffolk. No man has lived here who ever made a deeper impression upon his local church, upon his denomination, upon this community, and though he has passed, he will always live in the hearts of his people.

He was a friend to many and served the lowly with as much tenderness and solicitude as he ministered to those in exalted positions. He was an exemplary Christian, and by his good works spread the gospel of Christ and the spirit of universal brotherhood. He was a great man, a great preacher, and a master leader. I deeply mourn his death; I revere his memory.

E. E. HOLLAND.

A TRIBUTE.

I have been intimately associated with Dr. W. W. Staley from his college days until the time of his death, and although my long illness has unfitted me for writing at length, however, I wish to say that his integrity was flawless, and his character above reproach. He was pure gold. It was my privilege, fifty years ago, to present Dr. Staley's name to the Suffolk Christian Church for consideration as its pastor, and I am glad that in that church I could work with him as my pastor for many years. In my affliction, I shall miss his visits and his wise counsel, and the clasp of his hand in a friendship that never failed.

MY ASSOCIATE IN THE PASTORATE.

There are many fine things that I might say about Dr. Staley. There are many ways in which I think he was a great man. But to me there is no greater evidence of his fine spirit or of his true greatness, than his attitude toward me, his associate in the pastorate of the Suffolk Christian Church. As pastor-emeritus of the church in which he had served and sacrificed for forty-one years, and the prestige and power of which was the fruitage of his work, and a monument to his ability, so much depended upon his attitude toward me. He could have been very unpleasant about the matter. He could have made it very difficult for me.

I am glad of this opportunity of bearing witness, with gratitude, to Dr. Staley's graciousness and goodness toward me. His attitude was as cordial and sincere as any man could have desired. His actions were always above suspicion. His affection for me was evident. His fellowship with me through all these nine years has been warm and friendly, and it has been an inspiration to me. His influence has been a blessing. His memory will be a benediction.

He had many other claims to greatness. But, so far as I am concerned, he is great if for no pastor for his members, I am reminded of the love of God for his children. Dr. Staley exalted the virtues of his members and was charitable as to all their faults. Their joys were his joys, and their sorrows his sorrows.

His long pastorate will always be remembered by the unbroken unity of the church and the spirit of friendliness and brotherly love which prevailed among its membership. The church never had discord, friction or factions.

He had the broad vision to grasp the entire work of the Kingdom of God. With him every enterprise of the denomination was of first importance. He loved them all, and contributed most liberally to all. In this respect the denomination has never had his equal.

My pastor was an optimist. He had faith in God and faith in mankind. He believed that right would triumph in the end. In the panic of 1893, he never doubted the ability of his church to complete and pay for the new church. In the present depression, he never doubted that the church would meet its financial obligations as to its present plant. He died in the belief that Elon College would survive its financial difficulties and that there was a brighter day ahead for all the institutions of the Christian Church.

He believed that the young people were growing better, that the world was growing better, and there would be no backward step in temperance and national prohibition.

When I think of the life of Dr. Staley in this community, I am reminded of the Master, who went about doing good. I feel a deep personal

Great and glorious God, author of the spiritual Kingdom, and of the outward physical church which was given to be the agency through which man might work to bring thy Kingdom into power, make thy servants valiant both in purpose and in application to the task. THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

By B. H. BRUNER.

There have been endless discussions about the Holy Spirit and the Gift of the Holy Spirit, and most of them have ended in confusion. There are a thousand things about this great subject which we will never know. But what the Gift of the Holy Spirit enabled the first Christians to do is not a matter of speculation but of historic fact. We are convinced that if that marvelous gift of God was ever available for men, it is still available.

What was and is the Gift of the Holy Spirit? My answer to this question may not be your answer. But it has been helpful to me in trying to interpret and understand the power of early Christianity. For me, the gift of the Holy Spirit was and is the fire of God kindled in the hearts of men. That gift has been coming to the world for a long time, and it will continue to come so long as God can find human hearts which are willing enough and obedient enough to have his fire kindled within them.

The fire which was kindled in the hearts of men at Pentecost, call it what you will, has never gone out. It still burns in the hearts of thousands of loyal followers of Jesus Christ in every land. It still sends men and women to the uttermost parts of the earth to preach the gospel. It will continue to burn until the kingdoms of this earth become the kingdoms of Christ and his God.

This Gift of the Holy Spirit kindled four fires in the hearts of the early Christians. First, the fire of great conviction about Jesus and his power to save. They believed something definite about Jesus. They believed that in his name, and in his name alone, there was salvation for all men. Second, the fire of a great passion—a passion to tell the story of Jesus. In the beginning the gospel was a big news story. There was nothing drab or uninteresting about it. It was full of human interest. It was a story told with all the power of impassioned souls. No wonder it soon spread like fire through the empire. Third, the fire of a great devotion and loyalty for Jesus and the Christian community. The devotion and loyalty of the early Christians, under all kinds of conditions and circumstances, stand out in almost every chapter in Acts. Fourth, the fire of courage and adventure which enabled the early church to face the pagan world and challenge its practices in the name of Jesus Christ, and to venture out to the ends of it search to preach the gospel.

The modern church needs what this early church possessed. We have had plenty of fire in the modern church, but it has been the wrong kind of fire. It has been the fire of institutionalized religion kindled upon the altars of our churches by the hands of men. It has been the fire we have tried to kindle through drives and campaigns. We are just beginning to realize that most of this fire has been kindled in vain. The modern church needs some prophet with the courage and vision of a Malachi to stand in its midst and say what he said to the religious leaders of his age. We have tried to keep the spiritual life of the church alive and to win the world for Christ on fire which has come from headquarters rather than from heaven. What we need is the fire of God kindled in the hearts of men and women. The spiritual life of the church will never be deeper or richer than that of its individual members.

The modern church needs the fire of a great conviction about Jesus and the power of the gospel to save both men and nations. We need the fire of a great passion to preach the gospel. The revival which the church needs will only come through a crusade of great gospel preaching. We need the fire of a great devotion and loyalty to Christ and his church. Because men have set their affection on other things than the church, their affection for the church has grown cold. Paul described many modern church members in these words, "Lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God; holding a form of godliness, but having denied the power thereof." And we need the fire of courage and adventure. The paganism of the twentieth century needs to be challenged in the name of Jesus Christ by a courageous and daring church. We need more of the spirit of adventure in our religion. Jesus found his followers one morning in a mood of discouragement and despair because they had fished all night without results. He told them to be a little more venturesome, to push out from the shore into deep water. The result was marvelous. The church has stayed too close to the shore. Too many of its leaders have been afraid to face the storms and dangers of the open sea. So long as the church continues to put most of its time and energy into the guarding of the coast lines of our present denominational order, the results in real spiritual progress and conquest will be small, and it will not challenge the best of the young leadership of this age for its work. Youth does not want coast-guard duty. It wants adventure. When the church gets out of some of its snug harbors, out upon the open sea where humanity is battling for its life against the terrific forces of our present civilization and braving the storms which are sweeping across our world, it will again become a conquering and victorious church and will not lack for leaders.—In the Christian Evangelist.

Come and work with me."

NORFOLK SOCIETY HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The following interesting item comes from Mrs. O. S. Mills, Norfolk, Va.:

"We are drawing near the end of the most successful year in its history of our Woman's Missionary Society. From the standpoint of attendance and interest it has been wonderful, and we have met all our obligations.

"At the beginning of the year we started a little friendly contest (lasting six months). One side was Red or Indian, the other was yellow, or Japanese, representing our home and foreign work. Each captain had a poster and used red or yellow stars for attendance. We closed the contest in March with a luncheon given by both sides. The losing side was to pay the Literature Fund, which was $2.50. A member from the winning side, however, volunteered to pay this and all ended happily. After the contest closed, the interest and attendance continued, so we felt it was a real success.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS.

Mrs. L. A. McCauley was hostess to the Ladies' Missionary Society of Union Ridge, N. C., Wednesday evening, October 10th, at eight o'clock.

The new officers for the year served in their respective offices. Mrs. L. L. Hooper had charge of a missionary program, which followed the business session. Mrs. Jasper Garrison led the discussion of the Bible lesson, which was taken from the Book of Romans.

Refreshments were served by Miss Annie Sue McCauley, at the close of the meeting.

DR. STALEY—A MAN OF INFLUENCE.

That Dr. W. W. Staley was widely known throughout the country is a well-known fact. Whether in circles local or far remote, and whatever the contacts he made in circles high or low, Dr. Staley, by his sheer presence commanded an influence that was remarkable and far reaching. How did he do it? It was not the result of a studied or conscious effort on his part. He did not put himself forward. He did not seek office nor places of importance through which to wield his influence, yet his great usefulness often placed him there.

He was placed in high office and he sat in the seat of high council only because he was needed there. He did not shirk duty wherever it might call him, whether on pastoral duty in the humblest home or in the council of the sages.

He was to a high degree unselfish and sought the good of others rather than his own good. He was cheerfully liberal with his means, yet himself lived the simple life. He had an intense interest in and love for all humanity. His broad human sympathies led him humbly and judiciously to overleap denominational bounds as but few persons ever dare to undertake. In sickness, sorrow, joy and need all were privileged to share his ministries and his love. In this he was unselfish and without personal design; and better still he was rarely, if ever, misunderstood in these services. He was easily approached and his pleasing personality coupled with an unassuming dignity gave assurance that however humble or important the plea or the need, one would be given kindly consideration. He was courteous himself and never unmindful of even the smallest courtesies shown him.

He loved children and youth, and was at home with them even as he was with the prominent or wealthy. His humor and friendliness won him many hearts and ears. He had a commonsense philosophy of life that even the simplest could understand and derive benefit therefrom. His preaching, though without any attempt at eloquence, was the plain but forceful gospel message. In brief, he had the mind of Christ.

Had there been many Dr. Staleys, his influence could not have towered and spread afar as it did; but there was but one Dr. Staley. Dr. Staley's body is dead, but his influence will still go marching on.

W. M. JAY.

DR. W. W. STALEY—A FRIEND.

"A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly." Surely, Dr. Staley's list of friends was larger than that of most people, because he showed himself friendly to all classes and conditions. He was friendly towards the young. Any group of young people was made happier by his presence. He ever kept a youthful outlook on life. His sacrificial service to Elon College proved his interest and faith in young life.

He was a friend to the suffering and sorrowing. Many a sick room has been blessed when his kindly face appeared and his friendly shadow fell upon it. He felt a special calling to minister to the sick and sorrowing. He was a friend to the poor and needy. Those who were unfortunate felt that in him they had one who would lend a listening ear and a sympathetic heart.

In the course of his long life, many are those who have been helped by his friendly aid. A successful business woman, upon hearing of his death, said he was the one who made it possible for her to go to college, when every other source of help had failed. He was also a friend to those who were "well off in this world's goods."

He often helped them by his wise counsel and friendly interest.

He was a friend to God. He walked with him. He talked with him. He lived close to him and God revealed himself to him, and he in turn, translated God to others by his honest, upright, four-square Christian life, his devotion to duty, his love to his fellows.

Dr. Staley was my friend. My own life has been made poorer by his going, but richer because he lived and touched and inspired my life. I loved him because he was lovable. I trusted him because he was a true man. When the days were dark and the heart sad his hand-shake was a little warmer. God used him in many ways to comfort hungry hearts. A good man, a great man, a friend has gone to his reward.

C. H. ROWLAND.

DR. STALEY—MY INTIMATE FRIEND.

I moved to Suffolk in December, 1898. Dr. Staley was boarding at the "Beale House," at that time, and suggested that I engage board and room at the same place. We ate at the same table for about three years. Afterwards he had a room at my home for about three and a half years. He offered me the use of his library without cost. Naturally, we were together quite often in our work. This association developed a strong friendship which has never been marred by a single misunderstanding for over thirty years. We had many similar tastes. We have fished together, traveled many miles together, prayed together, worked together and counselled with each other many, many times. I think I knew him better than any other man knew him; and I think he knew me, in the same manner, and to the same extent. He said I visited him twenty-nine times within thirty-one days when he was in the hospital last summer. We were intimate. We knew each other. We trusted each other. We believed in each other.

Dr. Staley was not biased by his friendship. He appreciated friendship, but it did not warp his judgment or lower his standard of sincerity. He could be as fair to one who opposed him as to one who stood with him. He appreciated sincerity, industry and integrity.

He helped me much as a young minister. I owe much to him. He taught me many things by precept and example. He helped me as a preacher. He helped me as a pastor. He helped me as a man. He helped me as a friend. What would I have been without him! I thank God for those precious years of fellowship. I have lost a friend.

He was so approachable that few persons have measured his greatness. We are too near him to measure him yet. He was, in my opinion, the greatest man of my acquaintance. In this opinion I am not influenced by friendship or prejudice. I knew him. I loved him. He was a great man. He was a faithful friend.

I. W. JOHNSON.

HE MADE OUR WAYS PLAINER.

We shall miss Dr. Staley. Our church gatherings were always lighted up and the ways made plainer as he moved among us. His movement among us will be that of a gracious Christian personality exemplifying the power of simplicity as the grace of God to all our souls. His preaching, his personal social relations, his wide contacts were all stamped with this indelible quality. He was the great pastor—the great shepherd of his people. His interest in people was wide.

Some months ago, when it was announced that a meeting of our Christian folks was to be held in Raleigh, a colored man called me to ask whether Dr. Staley was to be here. When he was told that Dr. Staley would be present, he said: "I want to see him; he was the friend of my family, near Suffolk." When I told Dr. Staley about it, he went to see the colored man. Afterward, the colored man said to me: "Dr. Staley is loved by our colored folks." What a fine testimony representing the best of our Southern spirit.

A short time ago he was in Raleigh, and when I took him to the train we met Bishop Cheshire of the Episcopal Church. Together they discussed common interests and it was the same simplicity drawing from the well of a long experience that made the meeting significant. He had never before known Bishop Cheshire and desired to meet him.

In the church, in the homes of all, in social relations, he will be longest remembered for his unassuming simplicity. He was a great soul in the midst of much of our flair for display. Several of our families in Raleigh will cherish long his gracious ministry among us.

J. EDWARD KIRBYE.

DR. STALEY—FRIEND OF ALL.

Having known Dr. Staley for fifty years, eaten at the same table with him for six years, shared his study and been with him to the haunts of poverty and sin, I speak from personal knowledge.

A Friend to the Poor.

Before Suffolk had a city doctor, King's Daughters, or any organized charity, Dr. Staley knew the homes of poverty and suffering, and ministered to the needs of body and spirit, often paying for the burial when death came.

A Friend to the Rich.

No clan, creed or race divided his ministry. While giving his time to the poor, he gathered about him the rich. To these he was a friend, true and faithful, sympathizing with them in their sorrows, warning them of error, rebuking their sins, and giving wise counsel in difficulty.

A Friend to the Unfortunate Woman.

A quiet visit by night to a "foundling home" in a distant city, bearing on his arm a basket containing a little unwelcome life, and returning to guide a victim of shame and sorrow into a new life, tells a story of loving ministry of which the world knows not.

A Friend to the "Shipwrecked."

The drunkards, the bums, and the down-and-outs were his friends. Drunk or sober, revengeful or penitent, they went to his study for sympathy and help and always received it. He gave them his time as freely as he would the Governor of Virginia. For fifty years he lived by the side of, and on, the street, and was a friend to man.

"He was a man, taken for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again."

N. G. NEWMAN.

MY FRIEND, DR. STALEY—A MAN OF GOD.

The word reaches me of the passing of my long-time friend and brother, Dr. W. W. Staley, of Suffolk, Va. Our acquaintance began through the medium of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and THE Herald of Gospel Liberty, and we corresponded together on subjects of mutual interest. It was many years ago when we met at the convention at Burlington, and when I made my initial visit to Elon College. He was then president of the Elon Board of Trustees; Bro. W. S. Long presided over the college. He was then the faithful and efficient pastor at Suffolk, where he served the double score of years, winning the confidence and love of the entire community and of their friends far and wide in all parts of the country. From that early period it was our lot to meet frequently at conferences and conventions, where

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP AT ROSEMONT.

Nearly 200 young people from the Congregational-Christian Churches in Norfolk, Portsmouth and Newport News met at Rosemont Christian Church, Norfolk County, Sunday, October 9th, at 3:30 for the regular fall rally of the Eastern District of the Youth Fellowship, with C. E. Warrington, president of the Youth Fellowship of the Eastern Virginia Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches, presiding.

The principal address was delivered by the Rev. P. Houlder Brown, formerly a prominent worker in the churches of Chicago and now acting as supply pastor of the First Christian Church, Berkley. The theme of his address was, "The Challenge of Christian Living."

Roy Nichols, popular local baritone soloist, won much favorable comment and applause for the two vocal solos. The song service for the meeting was led by Rev. O. D. Poythress, of the South Norfolk Christian Church.

Mrs. W. B. Williams and Miss June Joy Hyatte, of Newport News, presented a one-act play, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" which also won the approval and applause of the delegates.

During the business session for the following officers were elected for the coming year: Miss Alma Rountree, of Christian Temple, district chairman; W. B. Williams, of Newport News, vice-chairman; Miss Mary Halstead, of Rosemont, secretary; and Robert Shaw, of the Congregational Church, Portsmouth, treasurer. Other matters of routine business were considered.

The address of special interest on "Tithing" was made by William Smith, of Liberty Spring, near Suffolk. Watson B. Cobb, of the Christian Temple, led the devotional service. Addresses of greeting from Aubrey C. Todd and Lanson Granger, who are studying for the ministry at Elon College, were read by Misses Dora Martin and Frances Tarkenton, and Mrs. C. E. Warrington read a special address prepared by Miss Lottie M. Cross, of Suffolk.

PLAYING THE GAME.

Life is a game with a glorious prize,
If we can only play it right.
It is give and take, build and break,
And often it ends in a fight;
But he surely wins who honestly tries
Regardless of wealth or fame,
He can never despair who plays it fair,
How are you playing the game?

Do you wilt and whine, if you fail to win
In the manner you think your due?
Do you sneer at the man in case he can,
And does, do better than you?
Do you take your rebuffs with a knowing grin?
Do you laugh though you pull up lame?
Does your faith hold true when the whole world's blue?
How are you playing the game?

Get into the think of it—wade in boys:
Whatever your cherished goal:
Brace up your will till your pulses thrill,
And you dare—to your very soul!
Do something more than make a noise;
Let your purpose leap into flame
As you pledge with a cry: "I will do or die."
Then you will be playing the game.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR OCTOBER 23, 1932.

"What attempts have been made to solve the liquor problem, and with what results?"—Matt. 7:16-20.

Christian Endeavorers should look up the history of this question in the local community, their State, our nation, and other nations. This will make interesting reading and research, and will prove to be profitable. Do not be afraid to look for the real facts. Seek for the reasons why changes were made.

A man in a little town in California told me that in "the good old days," about which we hear so much when election day came the leaders of both political parties had barrels of liquor on the street corner to be given to any who would vote their way, and that the town was full of drunken men. He opposed a change, but lived to repent and, like a real man, went to those whom he had slandered and begged pardon. He says that if such conditions existed now he would not travel on the streets where automobiles would be too dangerous.

The first attempt to change this condition was by getting people to sign pledges, to use no strong drinks as beverages. This step was accomplished with much education as to the results of using alcohol.

The second step was local option—each vicinity voting dry or wet as it chose. This kept people voting on the matter, for the side that lost would bring it up again soon, and made it impossible to keep a community really dry for it was not far to a wet community—and liquids will "run."

The third step was state control or prohibition. This was difficult of enforcement for the reason just given.

The final step was national prohibition. The good people of the nation decided that since liquors do so much harm and so little good, that since some people are so weak that they cannot resist the temptation to drink, that the thing to do was to make the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes illegal.

Among the results of this last step should be considered (a) the removal of saloons and advertisements of alcoholic drinks from the public places; (b) the greatly decreased consumption of liquors as shown by official records; (c) the rapidly decreasing number of people who have to take cure for alcohol or die from its results; (d) the great decline in poverty caused by alcohol; (e) the removal of drunks from the streets of our towns and the safety with which women and children may travel those streets at all times.

Nobody claims that the work is completed, that a perfect solution of the problem has been found. But it is easy to see that conditions are far better even with poorly enforced prohibition than back in the days of unregulated liquor. Our task is to conserve the good results and move forward towards sobriety.

APPLE'S CHAPEL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

On Sunday, October 2nd, at 3:00 P. M., the newly organized Christian Endeavor Society of Apple's Chapel, held its regular semi-monthly meeting. There was an unusually large attendance.

We are happy to say that our Society is progressing very nicely, and the young people of the community readily respond to every request.

Those taking part in the last program were: Mozelle Andrews, Mamertus Summers, Hillery Michael, Gertrude Boone, Dollie Payne, and Morris McIntyre. There were many good things brought out on the topic: "How the Teaching of Jesus Changes Business."

The next meeting will be held at the church, Sunday, October 16th, at 7:00 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited to attend, and we especially extend this invitation to the older people of the community. Come out and enjoy a good program with us.

HOPEWELL CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

At the annual meeting of the Hopewell Christian Church, October 5, 1932, the following officers were elected to serve for the new conference year:

Clerk, Mrs. G. A. Robertson; treasurer, F. W. Lowe; financial secretary, J. L. Edwards; pianist, Miss Mary Lilly Nash; assistant pianist, Miss Cleo Watson; president of missionary society, Mrs. J. H. Harrison; treasurer of poor fund, Mr. G. A. Robertson; ushers, W. W. Lowe, Charlie Garrett, J. R. Everett, R. B. White. Deacons are, F. W. Lowe, J. W. Pruitt, G. A. Robertson, W. A. Warner, D. D. Nash, J. D. Witcher.

Sunday School superintendent, Rev. D. D. Nash.

The conference was presided over by the pastor, Rev. T. N. Lowe, and the reports from the various departments of the church were most encouraging. The delegates elected to represent the church at the annual session of the Eastern Virginia Conference, which meets November 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, are Mr. Willard Scher, Mr. D. D. Nash, Jr., Mrs. J. H. Harrison; alternates, Mrs. F. W. Lowe, Mrs. G. A. Robertson, Mr. Colman.

MRS. G. A. ROBERTSON, Secy.

Hopewell, Va.

IN NEW ENGLAND.

York and Cumberland Conference met Friday, September 30th, and continued through Sunday, October 2nd, at South Bewick, Me. It was the best conference for several years, and was very well attended. It was more like, and has always been more like, the Virginia and North Carolina Conference than any other of our Northeast gatherings, in the large proportion of laity to clergy and in the family spirit. Meals are served free of charge as you do, and it is an annual old-home season.

The church at South Bewick is a country church, but a center for many miles. Zebulon Knight Hall is next to the church, a practically new building, in memory of Elder Knight, who labored over forty years in that section. His daughter is the organist.

The pastor at Freedom, N. H., was ordained Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Thomas R. Francis and sister, Mrs. Anne Dievendorf, leave Seattle on October 5th, on the Steamer Heije Maru, for South Japan. Mrs. Dievendorf was student at Asbury College during part of her furlough. They are children of the late Rev. Edwin Francis, of New England and New York State ministries.

Rockingham Conference meets at Rye, N. H., October 4th. This is the home of the eldest daughter of Rev. Harry J. Rhodes, who was in Japan with his father and mother when a girl. Mrs. Lizzie Marden is an active missionary and church worker.

THE CHRISTIAN AND LAW OBSERVANCE.

LESSON V—OCTOBER 30, 1932.
(World's Temperance Lesson.)

GOLDEN TEXT: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Galatians 6:7.

LESSON TEXT: Romans 13:1-7; Galatians 6:1-10.

There are a great many people who think that the liquor problem should be returned to the States. There are others who say that even the State has no right to say whether a man shall or shall not take a drink, claiming that it is a personal matter. And yet here is the International Uniform Lesson Committee saying that the liquor problem is a world-problem. In other words this committee dares to say that the goal of those who are concerned about the so-called "temperance movement" is not a dry America, but a dry world. Instead of retrenching in America, instead of taking a step backward, which any form of legalization of the liquor traffic would be, they dare to go forward, they dare to set as their goal, international, or world prohibition. And they are right.

Liquor is not an individual or a local matter. It is in its ultimate analysis not even a national question. It is a world question. Intoxicating liquors are the enemy of the human race. They are a denial of the Kingdom of God. It is inevitable that eventually we shall have world-wide prohibition. Not in the near future. But a thousand years with God are as but a day or as a watch in the night when it is past. And if any one doubts that liquor presents an international problem, let him be reminded that an association of liquor dealers frankly stated that they must not allow prohibition to become a success in America, and pledged both their efforts and their money to help the liquor interests in America. We folks in America ought to realize that what we think is the decisive battle in this warfare is after all only a skirmish in the great campaign against the liquor traffic as such. Let us not be weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. If we faint not—there's the rub! There are so many good folks who have been so misled by what they have seen in the subsidized wet press and by what they have heard in the form of general statements that could not be verified, that they have actually become faint. Like John Paul Jones, those of us who believe in the ultimate triumph of right ought to say: "We haven't begun the fight yet."

Law Observance.

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers." Observe the law. Recognize the authority of government. Obey the statutes of the land. Every man has a right to work for the change of the law of the land. A man is perfectly within his rights when he seeks the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. But he has no right to disregard it, to break it, or to flaunt it. The tragedy of this whole situation is the fact that so many good and substantial people have so brazenly and flippantly flaunted the prohibition laws. And personal indulgence and personal profit have been dominant motives. If self-respecting citizens had spent one-half the energy in practicing and teaching law observance as they have in getting the Eighteenth Amendment, we would not have the present situation.

"And they that resist shall receive to themselves greater damnation." "For rulers are not a terror to god works, but to evil." One hardly dares to think of what will come to America if we turn over the control of liquor to any agency. The only way to control liquor is to control it at its source. And to admit that the racketeers in America are more powerful than the national government is to abdicate to the powers of evil all along the line. One reason we hear so much from the liquor interests and those who drink liquor is the fact that the law has hurt them.

"Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake." We ought to develop a conscience in this matter. There are some people who are not afraid of the wrath of the powers that be. But they can be handled if on the part of others we can develop a social conscience against drinking. One of the most helpful signs of the times is the intelligent and persistent way in which the temperance agencies are going about this very thing.

Sowing and Reaping.

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked; whatsoever a man (or a nation) soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption." Before one in any way lends his vote or his voice to the liquor traffic, he ought to take the long look ahead to see something of the fruitage of the thing for which he is voting. And the easiest way to see the fruitage of what will develop is simply to study the history of the liquor traffic and see what has always been the fruitage of it. Let no man be deceived here. The trouble is not prohibition, or where liquor is sold, or by whom it is sold; the trouble is the liquor itself. And just so far as we sow the seeds of this evil, we shall reap a corresponding harvest.

Fainting Not.

"And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." This is no time to become faint-hearted or to become discouraged. One wonders if after all, what we hear now is not so much signs of a growth in sentiment for liquor as the death rattle of the liquor interests themselves. The Eighteenth Amendment will never be repealed. Now, as never before, we need to put forth more effort.

Helping the Other Fellow.

"As we have, therefore, opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them that are of the household of faith." How will the highest interests of men and women, boys and girls be served? Let every man answer that question before God before he votes.

Can a man do better with his life than Jesus did with his? Can he do better than give his life for others in service, in helpfulness, and in prayer.—Vernon Bullock.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

"REJOICE WITH ME."

"He calleth together his friends and neighbors and sayeth unto them rejoice with me"—Luke 15:6.

How often do we do this very thing, and over most trivial circumstances! Some honor conferred, increase of pay, graduation from school, new automobile, marriage, birth, achievement, heir to a legacy, and many other little turns of life's gifts, and we throw a party and invite our friends to rejoice with us.

The words of Jesus here picture something else—life's deepest and most lasting blessings—and in this instance he illustrates the joy of becoming a part of the redemptive force of the world. He who accepts Jesus and receives salvation is a force, out of use, brought into service; he is a power, wandering aimlessly, saved from waste and for good. This is life's greatest gift.

What a rejoicing this should be, both on the part of him who is saved and upon the part of his friends; And yet, who ever heard of one gathering his friends in a party to rejoice with him because he has found Jesus a Saviour to his soul?

We wonder if we cannot from now on devise some attractive way of emphasizing in our circles the coming of Jesus into our lives. Try it out.

Prayer—O Lord, we believe this morning we should be living witnesses of Christ in the heart. We pray thee to make us so. We come to thee laying ourselves on the altar unreservedly for this blessing. If this is right, may we so call the attention of our friends to thy salvation, that they may know that we live with Jesus and that we are whole soul for him, now and forever.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

A DOUBLE REJOICING.

"Doth not leave the ninety and nine, . . . and go after that which is lose until he find it: And when he hath found it, he . . . rejoiceth . . . and calleth together his friends . . . saying, rejoice with me."—Luke 15:4-6.

The salvation of the lost is due to, first, a search for them (having found), one becomes a restoring, constructive force in other lives.

Slavation comes as a result of a quest for it. Salvation, carried on, is a redemptive fellowship of the Christian spirit. God might save the world with his loving stroke of forgiveness and the bestowment of the new birth. But should it all stop there, that life would die like the un-nurtured and uncared-for grafted tree. Redemption is carried on by the nurture of fellowship through the gift of the Holy Spirit.

This nurture is the high function of the church. No movement can flourish without impassioned souls in, and the constant nurture of, its principles. It is this fellowship that has given power to the value of Pasteur in medicine, to Horace Mann in education, to William Booth in the Salvation Army, to Luther in the Reformation, to Washington in the government of our country, to Lincoln in slavery, etc., and to that innumerable host who have shared their spirit and purpose.

What is true of these great men and their movements is true of the church and salvation in the Lord. The only final and valid basis for the greatest rejoicing is Jesus—God—whether it be an individual or the church, or whether it be a country.

Prayer—O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name to us this day, that thou art so much to us and to the world. Give us a passion for thy cause that we may seek continually its greatest blessing; and give us such outlook of its glory that we may count our lives, like Paul, as nothing that we may reach the end of our course with joy. In Christ's name we ask it.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

SERVING OR SLAVING?

"And he said to his Father, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends."—Luke 15:29.

In this parable of the prodigal son, the Father gave a great party of rejoicing because of the salvation of a lost child. The brother at home was furious because of his own selfishness, envy, and jealousy. His words were, "I serve thee." He must have meant, "I slave for thee." It appears that his motive in life was subjective. He worked for what he could get out of it personally, and not for the good he could be to others. Had it been the latter, he would have delighted in being a party to the rejoicing over the salvation of the lost brother.

Service is the watch-word of every true child of God, in which one forgets self—counts his life as nothing, that he may attain happiness for others. Our relationship with God is a partnership; it is labor with love.

True children of the Father's home have the saving outlook. There are multitudes of them like the "elder brother," not that they are harsh or bitter, but that they are self-centered, envious and jealous, plodding their tasks for the church rather than propelling a real experience of fellowship with the Father. Their lives are filled with selfish desires rather than being replenished and sustained by the joy of communion. They know no ecstasy. That propelling force for God is genuine emotion of love, and it must go forward like an automobile, by a series of heart-felt explosions of progress.

Prayer—Our Father, send thou thy Holy Spirit upon us this day that our every thought and action may be fired into living happiness unto the light and glory of thy kingdom.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE RICHEST FELLOWSHIP.

"God is faithful, through whom ye were called in the fellowship of His Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord."—I. Cor. 1:9.

Emerson has drawn a classic picture of the tragedy of substituting expensive care over important details for the greater soulful fellowship. In a letter to his wife he is quoted as saying:

"I pray you, O excellent wife, not to cumber yourself and me to get a rich dinner for this man or this woman who has alighted at our gate, nor a bed-chamber made ready at too great a cost. These things, if they are curious in, they can get for a dollar at any village. But let this stranger, if he will, in your looks, in your accent and behaviour, read your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he cannot buy at any price in village or city, and which he may well travel fifty miles and dine sparsely and sleep hard in order to behold."

There is a way to receive guests and slave to do for them something big, and then they go away without a blessing; and there is a way to entertain them with our genuine exuberant soulful personality, which shares of human affections and makes their hearts glad.

This is a type of our fellowship with God the Father, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Prayer—O Lord, Master of all good, and the blesser of every life, give unto us the true fellowship of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the true light of his word. Make our lives thine in this light forever.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

SNEERING AT JESUS.

"The Pharisees, who were covetous (Moffatt says, 'who were fond of money'), heard these things, and they derided him."—Luke 16:14.

Here we have a story of a class of people whose chief aim in life was to get gain, sneering at Jesus because he taught that there was no monetary exchange for the soul—"what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul." Jesus had said that a man cannot serve God and money, too. No wonder they sneered. Such always do. There are lots of these Pharisees today, are there not? They think they can serve both, and they who undertake to teach to the contrary, are laughed at.

This spirit has been one of the chief oppositions to Jesus from the beginning and it exists in amazing proportions today. It is seen in a certain atmosphere about things; in the begging of questions; in the sticking out of the tongue; in the wink of the eye; in the shrug of the shoulder; in the "wise guy" attitude. When taking Jesus seriously interferes with profit, what is the answer? Occasionally we hear Godly preachers called "sentimentalist," "idealist," "visionary," "impracticable," as if they taught pernicious perversions of values. Lovers of Christ and devout souls often meet the same attitude.

Some one has said, H. E. Fosdick, I think: "God and Jesus are one of the facts of the universe as truly as the elements of chemistry; the experience of religion is as genuine as the experiences of heat and cold." And how true!

Prayer—Say the Lord's Prayer.

SATURDAY.

STORED STRENGTH.

"The God of Israel, he giveth strength and power unto his people."—Read Psalm 68:28-35.

The most tremendous storage plant for electricity in the world is that of the Rocky River storage of the Connecticut Light and Power Company. It furnishes 32,160 horsepower steadily for 1,116 hours without charging. Then it needs for complete charging 3,105 hours.

The process goes on all the time, and it is managed thus: When there is superabundant power on the system, the surplus is used to pump water from the Housatonic River into the reservoir. When the power of the system begins to fall off, water is allowed to fall from the reservoir and turn a great generator, thus supplying the system with electric power until it has all it needs.

Much like that is the life of a wise Christian. He keeps his reservoirs of power well filled by frequent prayer, study of God's word, communion with other Christians, and worship. As the pressure of worldly demands relaxes, he uses his time and strength to replenish his divine resources. Then he is ready for the unexpected demands of MINISTERING ANGELS.

By REV. JOHN G. TRUITT.

"And the angels ministered unto Him."—
Mark 1:13.

We have talked too much about angels, and thought too little. We have made the subject of angels a joke instead of a joy. In the materialistic motif of our age we have disregarded angels. But when we return to the Book we shall return to the realm where angels are real, living, obedient servants and messengers of God.

We have all too often overlooked angels, but the Bible has not. From chapter to chapter and book to book, there they are. We may not believe in them but Moses, Abraham, Isaiah, and the other priests and prophets of Israel, along with Jesus, his disciples, and Paul, and they, who, under divine guidance wrote the Bible, believed in angels. It may be all too true that they have gone from our pulpits and from our pews, and from our modern age in general; but if we look at God through the pages of his revealed Word, or at Jesus through the Gospels thereof, we shall still see them there.

There are angels. Angels who announce things—they announced the birth of Jesus; angels who sing—they sang of his realm and reign of peace on earth; and angels who serve—they ministered unto him from the crib to the cross, and still do his bidding. Jesus knew angels. They ministered unto him, both at the River Jordan when he was baptized by John, and at the brook of Kidron when he was baptized with sin, and sorrow, and the suffering of the world. Luke says of that Garden of Gethsemane experience, "And there appeared an angel unto him, strengthening him."

Jesus who knew about angels made some significant statements concerning them. On one occasion he said: "Take heed that ye despise not one of the little ones; for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven." We may not be able to read the full meaning of that sentence. But some things seemed quite clear to Jesus: that there were angels, that these children had angels in heaven; that they were in God's presence, and control and that to bless and protect the children. It would seem that in the divine economy of God angels are allotted to each person who is an innocent child, or who loves and serves God—"The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them." We may have our doubts about angels, but not about Jesus.

On another occasion Jesus said in speaking of Lazarus: "He died, and was carried by angels into Abraham's bosom." We may not be able to read the full meaning of this sentence, but it is quite clear that angels attended the death of Lazarus; that they carried him to the realm beyond; and that it was the normal and expected thing in Jesus' mind. More than once in the life of Jesus we are told that angels ministered unto him. And the time he suffered in the Garden a special phrase that does not occur in other places, is used: "And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him. Direct from heaven, though legions of angels might have been called to his side came God's messenger. Direct, in an hour so great, came God's messenger with strength for the world's Saviour.

We read in our Scripture lesson of the temptation of Jesus. Let us confine our meditation to the fact that "angels ministered unto him." There are two things that stand out. First, that even Jesus Christ needed help from heaven. Jesus was the most perfect man on earth. He had all the strength that comes from a pure heart and a clean conscience. He had all the strength that might come to one who followed implicitly the line of loving service, and daring duty. He had all the strength that would come from perfect control of his physical body, appetites, and desires. Yet Jesus came more than once to the place where he needs must have heavenly help.

We may have been reared in a Christian home; had the advantages of praying parents; trained in church and Sunday School; and benefited by keeping good company, and yet, there will come times of real testings, when we shall need heavenly help. I like to think that Jesus meant something very definite when he said: "These little ones, for I say unto you that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven." An angel, or angels, for each child. Angels to watch over us all along life's journey. Angels to carry us to heaven when we die: "And it came to pass . . . that the beggar died, and was carried by angels into Abraham's bosom." From birth to death angel-helped. It is a blessed thought, and Jesus is author of both stories indicating it.

And surely we, like Jesus, will need help from heaven. We shall need an angel of goodness on the one hand, and an angel of mercy on the other to follow us all the days of our lives that we may dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

One morning my little girl had slipped out onto the front porch with a piece of bread in her hand, and a great Dane dog came up on the porch to share it with her. The big Dane was simply frightening her into spasms. I tore down the stairway and ran out to help her, for she was screaming and calling for her father. For once I must have been an angel. At any rate her little cry was heard; her plea was answered; and help was forthcoming. A few mornings later when I came down first to the kitchen, I heard some strange unearthly noise outside my back door. I can hear that choking voice now—old, pitiful, and well-nigh helpless. "Oh! God, have mercy; have mercy; have mercy . . . Oh! God, have mercy!" By that time I was looking out for the cause of so great distress. In the second back yard from ours was a poor old eighty-year-old lady down flat of her back in the lawn with that self-same great Dane dog on top of her, tugging at her clothing, trying to assist her to her feet. But the dog was new, and strange to her, and she thought he was going to begin eating on her. Again there was a cry for help going up to God, and again I was commissioned to go for God to render help. From the cradle to the grave that help is needed. Is it not a wonderful thing to know that: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them?"

The second thing I wanted to say is: Jesus found heaven's help when he had been especially yielding to God's wish and not his own. It was so in the wilderness experience. It was so in the Garden experience. At the Jordan when Jesus was baptized, he might have felt himself ready to begin his ministry. But God was not ready. So Mark says, "He was driven by the Spirit;" Matthew says, "He was led by the Spirit;" and Luke says, "He being filled with the Spirit went in the Spirit into the wilderness." Why did the angels minister to Jesus? Why, because he was Spirit-driven; he was Spirit-led; he was Spirit-filled; and in the Spirit he went to do not his own will, but the will of his Father in heaven. Why are not our prayers God-heard? Why, because our programs and plans are not God-made. We have wanted our way, forgetting that He is the way. We have not learned perhaps that his way is best for us, and that what may seem like adversity is a blessing in disguise. The Spirit-driven paths of the Son of God were hard ones, but no glory has been so great as his. And we, too, will learn that "the way of the Cross leads home," to happiness, peace, and comfort—and that angels walk that way!

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The Orphanage family felt grieved last week when the news came that our beloved friend, Dr. W. W. Staley, had passed away.

In his going the Christian Orphanage has lost a most devoted friend. When Dr. Staley was in town, and had the time, he always came to the Orphanage to see the little children. He enjoyed talking to them and when he came all the children on the campus would gather around him and catch every word he had to say. No child escaped his notice.

Since the boyhood days of the writer, he has known Dr. Staley, and to know him was to love him. He was so kind and considerate. He has often advised with us in our work here, and has helped solve some of our problems. His life has been a benediction to us and his influence has made me a better man. We will miss his visits to the Orphanage. The children will no longer hear his voice and the fine things he had to say to them, but the sweet memory of him will live in their hearts and minds forever.

GIVING SUCH AS WE HAVE.

As Peter and John gave such as they had to the needy when they entered the beautiful temple, we of the mountains, give our bit to help God's children.

When those dear children came from Christian-Orphanage to our mountains and beautifully pictured the Cross of Christ to us, and how they were holding up the Cross that is so despised in the world, there came into our hearts a greater desire to bear our own share of the Cross.

To help make the cross of those children lighter, we send to the dear boys and girls some nice vegetables. Mr. Walter Edwards and family send one bushel of Irish potatoes, Mrs. Wash Edwards sends a nice quantity of dried fruit, Mr. Porter Moore and Mr. Russell Meredith send a bushel of Irish potatoes, Mr. Andrew Horton and family send two bushels of apples and one bushel of Irish potatoes, Mr. Hascal and Clyde Meredith send a bag of cabbage, Mr. W. C. Strickland and family send a bag of cabbage, Mrs. Will Ayers and family send a bushel of Irish potatoes.

We have no money to give, but such as we have we give freely to those we love. A challenge comes to each of you to give "such as you have," in His name and to extend His work in the world today.

THE GREAT AMERICAN SIN.

"Let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay, that ye fall not under judgment."—James 5:12-20.

Swearing has been called "the great American sin," because the use of profane language is held to be more common in the United States than elsewhere in the world. However that may be, swearing is a great sin at all times and everywhere, and constitutes a very real danger for the people who practice it.

Swearing testifies to callousness regarding the sacred things. It will be said that the swearer "means nothing by it," but that is precisely the trouble. God's name, and Christ's, should mean something to a speaker. No one swears that he does not offend God. No one swears that he does not lower his reputation and besmirch his character. It is a sin of the tongue, but it is more: it is a sin of the soul.

Prayer—Holy Spirit of the living God, may our words be offered at thy throne from hour to hour as acceptable sacrifice, and grant that we may dwell with thee forever.—Amen.

generally we were entertained in the same home and slept peacefully in the same bed. In all our intercourse, since our tastes were similar, and our desires for the welfare of the church were current on similar lines, we never had a word of disagreement or discontent. Only this last winter we met again at the conference in Washington, and then we were hoping to meet many times more. But, alas, Providence otherwise disposes. But his memory can never forsake my sympathetic and loving heart. But I shall miss his friendship and friendly counsel more than I can express.

He was a noble soul, broad-minded and zealous in every good work. He was an able preacher and a devoted pastor. His mind was active in all measures that promised to forward every Christian enterprise. And we are well advised, while his seat is empty here, that he has a wide sphere awaiting him in the better and eternal world.

MARTYN SUMMEBRELL.

A FRIEND.

I join with innumerable other admirers of the late Rev. W. W. Staley, in honoring his memory. I feel that a very wonderful, yea, remarkable, personality has passed beyond; but he made such an impress that his good influence will long be the guide of many.

The character of many people is all that could be desired possibly, but their ability to project into other lives their lofty ideals is often lacking. Not so with Dr. Staley, who seemed to be able to share his with others in a manner of life that at times I could hardly understand.

I think the willingness of the people to follow him, almost blindly, was a tribute that no words of mine could indicate. However, they did it in response to a gentle appeal, supported always by his own consecration to that effort.

It always seemed to me that as a minister of the gospel, he dedicated his labors solely each day to such work. He seemed to regard the simple preaching of the gospel and the exemplifying of that gospel each day in living and creating a spiritual atmosphere for those about him, as his chief aim. It was because he actually went about each day doing good to his fellowman, as taught by the humble Nazarene, that he gained such a rare hold on the hearts and minds of the people. I regard such a life as a benediction to any community.

I was never privileged to be one of his parishioners in the strict sense, yet the light of his life has directed me and his wisdom and great spiritual leadership have been a blessing to me.

A STUDENT'S APPRECIATION.

When stills the activities of those we have known, there comes over us a feeling which cannot be easily described; but when our hero lays down his mantle of life for a crown of glory, we are left in a daze of mysterious admiration, for our heroes instil in us ideals which cannot be lowered even by death. In reality, it seems to make them more real.

Dr. W. W. Staley was president of Elon College while I was a student. I was then in the most strategic stage of life, and like most young people, consciously or unconsciously, I was choosing my heroes by the ideals they set in their particular fields of service, which could be transferred to my life.

I admired Dr. Staley as a college president, because his ideals were practical. Well I remember, in a chapel talk, he said that the way for a student to begin to make progress was not by buying a new pair of shoes, but to polish up his old ones. That made a wonderful impression on me. It left a feeling not to pine because my abilities might not be as great as some of my fellow students; but, if I expected to succeed, I would have to improve my own talents.

Therefore, Staley, as a college president, was, to me, what Washington was to the American Colonists, or what General Lee was, and is, to the Confederate soldiers.

FROM A DISTINGUISHED EDUCATOR ABOUT A GOOD MAN.

As a native of Nansemond, born about two miles from Holy Neck Church, I naturally looked in THE CHRISTIAN SUN for the letter from Suffolk. I was not personally acquainted with Dr. Staley, but through THE CHRISTIAN SUN I felt that I had come to know him. Please let me join his many friends in lamenting our loss at his passing from us. It is not surprising that you say in your editorial you have never quoted any man so often.

OBITUARIES

LIFE.

Mrs. Maggie S. Life, widow of Frank Life, was born May 13, 1860, and died September 22, 1932, aged 72 years 4 months and 9 days. Sister Life lived for a long time near Mt. Olivet (R) Church and was a faithful member there. Her home was the preacher's home whenever he came to that community, and no home ever extended a more hospitable hand than that one.

In recent years she was a great sufferer, being confined to her bed all the time, and yet always cheerful.

A son and daughter recently died, and her home was broken up. She was then taken to a home for the afflicted in Richmond, Va., where she died. Surviving her are two sons.

Funeral services were held in Elkton, Va., September 24, 1932, and burial in the cemetery at McGaheysville.

A. W. ANDES.

DOFFLEMYRE.

David Dofflemyre was born June 8, 1889, and died August 22, 1932, at the age of 43 years, 2 months and 14 days. Bro. Dofflemyre lived near Newport, and was a member of our church there—a good man, and highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves to mourn his loss his widow and three children. They have the deepest sympathy of the people of the community.

Funeral services were held August 25, 1932, at the late home, and interment was in the family cemetery nearby.

A. W. ANDES.

BARKER.

Mrs. Mary Stinson Barker died September 15, 1932, aged 62 years, 2 months and 5 days. She was married to C. M. Barker, February 23, 1892. Surviving are her husband, three sons, two daughters and eleven grandchildren.

She had formerly been a member of the Pleasant Ridge Christian Church, but was buried at Park's Cross Roads, where she had expected to transfer her membership, but was postponed on account of her not being able to get to church.

Oats Conquer Gasoline.—

In the old Turkish Capital of Adrianople, if press dispatches are true, the use of the automobile has been banned. Only horse-drawn vehicles are allowed within the city limits, though automobiles are still permitted for long distance rides. In this burst of patriotism and economy, two aims are foremost: to replace imported cars with home manufactured carriages, and to sell home-grown oats rather than imported gasoline.

Tokyo Becomes Second Largest Capital City.—

Recently, due to the absorption of eighty-one suburban burroughs and villages, Tokyo has become the second largest capital in the world, with a population of 5,311,000. This is exceeded only by Greater London, which boasts a total of 8,202,818 people. Berlin, which was formerly second capital in size, now ranks third with a population reported in 1931 as 4,297,000. The Japanese capital has outlined a program of improvement extending over fifteen years, during which time it is planned to spend $430,000,000.

Georgia Uses Jobless to Aid Public Health.—

Fifteen or more Georgia towns and cities are using the unemployed on drainage projects in an effort to stamp out malaria, according to statements from the health department of that State. We are told that as a result of that plan, "many miles of drain ditches have been constructed and hundreds of men have earned bread for their families." In one county seat alone, 50,000 man hours were afforded in this manner to those who would have otherwise been idle. The annual death rate from malaria in Georgia is estimated at around 400, while there are probably as many as 270,000 persons who are affected by the disease each year. Drainage of stagnant pools is a part of the Board of Health's plan to rid the State of this scourge.

Postal Deposits Slowing Up.—

Increasing confidence on the part of the public is shown by the slowing up of postal deposits. The total deposits for the month of September amounted to $854,767,262, or an increase of only $9,913,492 over the figures for August. A year ago the September increase was around $43 millions, and customers were clamoring for a raise in the deposit limit of $2,500. Instead of being worried at this decrease, Uncle Sam is just delighted, for his customers are not less thrifty than formerly, but just less frightened. The large increases of a year ago were the repercussions from the numerous commercial failures, and were greatest where such failures were most numerous. The September figures are only about a third of the average for the previous six months, and are most encouraging.

Norman Thomas Attacks Church.—

The Christian Evangelist quotes Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency, as saying: "The church sits idly by, and watches the capitalistic system negate every ideal of the Christian religion. We have, instead of the Christian religion, a religion of nationalism, allied with capitalism. The church has never been on the side of the right in a major incident." This is rather strong language, but our contemporary concludes: "This is the attitude of socialism and communism everywhere. It is an old misrepresentation which those who know nothing of spiritual processes and obligations make if engaged in some wild-eyed, crack-brained campaign."

Bishop Cannon Will Not Vote for Roosevelt.—

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., has not definitely stated he would vote for re-election of President Hoover, but he recently declared that "it is utterly impossible for me to vote for Roosevelt." Mr. Cannon, as do many others, seems to think that the President greatly weakened his position when he failed to back the dry forces. He terms Mr. Hoover's attitude as "illogical and impractical," and adds: "If I vote for Mr. Hoover it will have to be with the understanding I disagree with the statements made in his acceptance speech, and because I believe he is sincere and will have more sympathy with prohibition enforcement than any other candidate who has a chance." Despite the President's acceptance speech, the Bishop thinks that under his administration prohibition has been given in the persons of Amos W. Woodcock and James W. Doran, two of the best enforcement officials ever appointed.

Virginia Methodists Meet in Richmond.—

The Capital City of Virginia has, during the past week, been host to hundreds attending the State conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Many of the pulpits of the city of all denominations were filled by visiting ministers last Sunday. Centenary Methodist Church was the entertaining church, and the annual memorial service was held at that church on Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. J. N. Latham, of Lynchburg, was the speaker. The meetings of the session were presided over by Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon. During the conference, Methodists of Virginia were urged to vote, in the coming election, for candidates favoring prohibition, and to vigorously oppose those seeking repeal or modification of the present dry laws. Bishop Mouzon scathingly denounced "the association of millionaires who would transfer their tax burdens to the shoulders of the poor, through the legalizing of beer." He also lamented the practice of drinking followed by society women.

The Great Danger.—

"The great danger," says The Watchman-Examiner, New York, "in repealing or modifying the Eighteenth Amendment is the attempt that would be made by the makers and sellers of intoxicating liquor to exploit the young people—particularly girls—with the same methods used in cigarette advertising. There are 50,000,000 young people under twenty-one in this country, among whom the liquor dealers would launch their drive for trade. It would be a drive by every modern device of advertising and publicity; there would be newspaper, billboard, and radio appeals for the non-drinker to drink, and for the drinker to drink more and more liquor every year, so as to insure more production, consumption and profits. Had you thought of that? How would such advertising sound over the radio?" Facts and figures of government "control" in Canada bear out the contention that there would be a great increase in the use of alcoholic liquors under such conditions as exist there.

Anti-Saloon League to Meet.—

The National Anti-Saloon League will meet in convention at Washington, D. C., December 15th to 18th. The executive committee of the League has issued the convention call, and all State superintendents as well as other officials throughout the United States have been notified. The convention is called for the special purpose of making a definite, nation-wide appraisal of election returns and to formulate the program of the League in opposition to modification or repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. In calling the convention, Dr. F. Scott McBride, the general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, said: "The political situation involving prohibition has made it desirable for us to determine the exact attitude of the next Congress, which will then have been elected, and to outline our dry legislative program. . . . We expect the aggressive fight made by the dries in the present senatorial and congressional campaigns will keep the Eighteenth Amendment from being changed by the next Congress. In 1934, when the issue will have become more clearly defined, we look for a campaign and election that will decisively stop the present depression-prompted drive of the wets to regain legalized liquor." Since the passing of the Eighteenth Amendment, the dries have to a great extent been resting on their oars. The action of the two major political parties, has at last awakened them from their lethargy. Educating people to do right has always been the most effective means, and if the dry forces and the church have been at last awakened to the absolute necessity of an educative program, the present drift toward repeal may prove to have been a blessing.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Georgia Congregational Conference meets at Duncan's Creek, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 1st and 2nd.

Rev. John F. Blackburn, of Atlanta, has been asked by the church at Moss Bluff, Fla., to supply their pulpit this fall. He is to spend the winter in Oxford, not far away.

The church at Holly Hill, Fla., under the leadership of the pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Keller, held a rally supper on the evening of the 20th, at which Superintendent Gillette was the speaker. The following Sunday was Rally Day with a most interesting program.

Rev. Edwin C. Gillette, D. D., superintendent of Florida and close friend of the pastor-at-large, will preach the Sunday morning sermon at the South Georgia Association, October 30th, at Pearson. This will be the beginning of other visits it is hoped he will be able to make to our churches in the largest State east of the Mississippi River.

Cheering news comes from Piedmont College at Demorest, Ga. The enrollment is approximately 30 per cent larger than for last year, and more than 130 freshmen have entered. During the summer, four members of the Piedmont faculty were studying toward advanced degrees—Prof. Ensminger at Emory University; Coach Forester at the University of Alabama; Margaret Newman at Nashville Conservatory; and Henkel Smith at Columbia University.

Rev. John F. Blackburn, Atlanta, recently lost his good wife. All who have known them through the years offer sympathy. Mr. Blackburn is touring toward Florida by visiting his many friends in the churches of middle and south Georgia. They all love and gladly welcome him to his old place among them. He will spend October 28th to 30th at the meeting of the South Georgia Association at Pearson, then on to "The playground of the World"—Florida—where he will spend the winter months.

Rev. E. B. White, of Windsor, Va., writes: "It is a pleasure to be able to say that we had a good day Sunday. Bro. J. M. Darden was with us at Eure and Damascus. His stirring message was enjoyed by each congregation. We wish to express our profound appreciation of the loyal support of practically all of our parishioners. This can be said of all five churches. May the loving heavenly Father help us, one and all, to live nearer and do more for the building up of the Kingdom of the blessed, glorified, everlasting Christ, the King of Righteousness."

Rev. H. C. Caviness, who the past two weeks conducted an evangelistic meeting with Palm Street Church, Greensboro, visited Elon College Wednesday, October 19th, and to the edification of the faculty and student body, conducted the chapel service. Bro. Caviness held up Jesus Christ as a model for every youth, declaring that if one had in one's life the high objective of the Christ, one could not go astray. Bro. Caviness has a daughter at Elon and feels deeply interested in the college and in the great, good work it is doing. He is giving his time now to evangelism, and is greatly enjoying the opportunity thus afforded him in his chosen field of service.

The coin card still does its good work. "A Friend," who had received one, in sending its contents ($1.00) for Missions, says: "My coin card is full again, so I am sending you a dollar bill." That friend did not stop the use of the coin card when it was filled once, nor throw it away. A pastor told the writer that his church treasurer, after many cards were filled, pulled the dimes out and sent the money in and saved the cards to use again. Why not? It is one of the most convenient and easy methods of practicing self-denial in behalf of Missions and the work of the Kingdom, that we know.

The Young People's Bible Class of Union Christian Church, Union Ridge, N. C., met at the home of Miss Mary Beth Garrison, Monday evening, October 10th, at 8 o'clock, and organized for the year. Miss Garrison acted as chairman for the meeting, during the election of officers. The following officers were elected: Louis H. Graham, president; Elmer Kirkham, vice-president; Miss Sarah Ila Graham, secretary and treasurer. Several committees were appointed by the president. Games were played by the members of the class and everyone took an active part. Certain talented members added spice to the program with their selections. Delicious refreshments were served, consisting of punch and cake.

Mr. Arthur Swartz, graduate of Vanderbilt University, has accepted a unanimous call to the church at Albemarle, N. C. He succeeds Rev. Geo. Penn, who recently took up work in Chicago Seminary. Mr. Swartz will take up his work November 1st. In this field he will become associated with Rev. W. T. Scott, pastor of Trinity Parish, and will give two Sunday mornings a month and some week-day service to Salisbury United Church. Mr. Swartz has served as a S. S. S. worker for four years, and comes well equipped for this important work. He is favorably known as a good preacher and an efficient leader of young people. But he is also in great favor with older people, who sound his praises. A great work is expected of him in this enlarged field.

It will be gratifying to SUN readers to know that the "Suffolk Letter," appearing for many years, is not to be discontinued because of the death of Dr. W. W. Staley. He had made this department of THE SUN such an institution that it would have been a loss, indeed, for the "Letters" to discontinue. Dr. I. W. Johnson, of Suffolk, who was so intimate with Dr. Staley and who is so well acquainted with our work in Eastern Virginia, has kindly consented to continue them. In answer to our request, Dr. Johnson very kindly writes: "I know I am not equal to the task and opportunity offered me in your suggestion, but I am willing, for the sake of my great friend and my Master and his cause, to render whatever service I may in that field. I would prefer the title of 'Suffolk Letter,' although I should cover items from Eastern Virginia in the Letter. I will enter upon this work with a prayer and an effort to help others."

The Haw River Christian Church, on October 16th, celebrated the 37th anniversary of its organization. The exercises were exceedingly agreeable and appropriate. A history of the church was given by one of its charter members, and since then a very active and loyal supporter of the church, Miss Emma Thomas. THE CHRISTIAN SUN will carry this sketch in a very early issue. Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, visiting the church for the first time, delivered a great sermon at the 11 o'clock hour, on "The Character and Founding of the First Church." The famous Higgins' sisters of Pleasant Ridge Church, delighted the audience with their gospel singing. Rev. G. C. Crutchfield is the beloved pastor of the church. A bountiful luncheon was served in the basement of the church, and there were fitting programs put on in the afternoon and evening to the delight of all who gathered for the day.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT—DR. STALEY.

Whereas, in the Providence of God, our brother in the ministry, Dr. W. W. Staley, departed this life on Sunday evening, October 9, 1932, at Robert E. Lee Cottage, Virginia Beach, Va., at the ripe age of 83 years, seven months and fifteen days, and

Whereas, he has been a faithful minister of the Eastern Virginia Ministerial Association of Christian and Congregational Ministers since its organization, and

Whereas, his association with us has made such a spiritual contribution to the fellowship and work of this Association; therefore, be it resolved:

That this Association bow in humble submission to God in this dispensation of his love and wisdom, and return thanks to him for his long life and faithful ministry.

That we commend his brotherly spirit, his wise counsel, far-sighted vision, his high ideals of ministerial ethics, his unquestioned Christian character, his precepts, and his example to our brotherhood.

That we record our sincere appreciation of him, in this brief way, acknowledge our debt of gratitude for his many years of distinguished service.

That we suggest that some one be selected, in the near future, to write a history of his life and work for the purpose of extending his influence and helping others to understand the value of his great life.

That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the records of this Association, and a copy sent to Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun for the family of our deceased brother. That a copy be sent to THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for publication.

E. B. WHITE, Sec'y.

EURE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Eure Christian Church held its last quarterly conference on October 8th. Our pastor, the Rev. E. B. White, of Windsor, Va., presided, and made a splendid talk on the principles and government of our denomination. Bro. T. A. Eure commended him for making such an excellent talk. A fine spirit was manifested by all present.

The work of our church continues to progress nicely under the intelligent, capable and energetic leadership of Bro. White. He realizes the responsibility connected with the eternal destiny of those under his charge. In everything good he has been our leader and enjoys the confidence, affection and esteem of the people in this community. He is a missionary-spirited pastor, a strong preacher of the truth and fearless champion of every righteous cause. We are very proud of our faithful pastor and his splendid family.

Our deacons are men of character, and loyal to the pastor and church.

We have a large congregation at every service.

J. H. LILLY, Sec'y.

NOTICE.

ARE YOU THANKFUL?!

I have never had an occasion to feel more thankful for my health than a few days ago, when I was called into a home where there are five children helpless and four of them speechless from some malady resembling infantile paralysis, but does not come on until about the ninth or tenth year of age. There have been ten children, including twin sisters, born into this home; seven girls and three boys. Six of the girls are older than the oldest boy; the two youngest children are boys. The oldest daughter is nearing her twenty-sixth birthday. The twin sisters are next in order of birth, and have passed their twenty-second birthday. Both are paralytics.

The next girl in order of birth, I believe, is not a paralytic, but had the misfortune to lose a leg on account of the accidental explosion of a shot-gun.

Neither of the boys, so far, show any symptoms of paralysis, but the youngest girl, who is nearly three years younger than the oldest boy is developing the affliction.

This family can be found in Nash County, N. C., about three miles north of Middlesex. I am spending a part of this week soliciting help for them, in money, or in garments that have been outgrown by the children of my friends.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

APPRAISING THE CHURCH.

Holding the church up to ridicule and unfair appraisal seems to be a favorite sport of certain writers and publishers in our day. It is easy to point out and specify the weaknesses and the mistakes of the church. This because the real is so far below the ideal, the work so far short of the worship. A recent writer in appraising the church, proves to his own satisfaction that the church is no longer needed, having served its purpose, other agencies and institutions having come in which do so much more efficiently and universally that which the church formerly did. Lecture halls on engaging topics of the day, are thronged with eager listeners; why, then, go to or longer sustain the church, whose pews are practically empty on Sunday and at other times of worship, save when some popular lecture is put on?

Benevolent societies and fraternal orders have long since surpassed the church in caring for the orphan and the aged and the decrepit; why look to the church or help the church in its benevolences, since the church does so little in that line and the benevolent societies are already doing most of the work anyway?

Years ago it was the work of the church to educate, many colleges and universities having been founded and fostered by the Church, why look to the church or expect the church to educate, when it is itself in a state of intellectual inertia, while the State has far out-distanced the church, in the fields of higher education? And thus the church is appraised as an impotent and rather helpless institution, having spent its force, lived out its day, and, thus having made its contribution, may now resign its work to more effectual agencies and quietly pass out of the picture.

But in all these appraisals of the church, that for which the church was founded, and that which is today vital in the church, is left out or given little consideration. These appraisals of the church do not tell us of any rival or successors that the church has in holding up the Christ as the Redeemer and Saviour of a lost world, and of making his name known to the uttermost parts. True, the church has rivals, let us say, in all the lines of its endeavor except one, and that one is Missions. These writers who would ridicule the church and have it pass out of the picture as obsolete, forget, or ignore, the vital fact that every missionary, in every part of the world, preaching the gospel of the Son of God, and every advocate of the saving grace and redeeming love of God throughout the earth, are sent out by the church, sustained and supported by the church. If the world has out-distanced the church in supporting and carrying forward the benevolent products of the gospel, it has never rivaled the church, nor sought to do so, in supporting the gospel and winning souls to Christ through the gospel.

The church is in a struggle for its life. It always has been, it will ever be, we presume, until the Church Militant shall become the Church Triumphant. The Lord Christ anticipated that when he said, "I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." He knew that the gates of hell, the organized and the unorganized forces of evil, in all their subtlety and strength would be trying to destroy the church, and that the church would come to grips with these evils. We hear much of "depression," "hard times," no money. And yet, the spirit of benevolence has never been so strong and effectual as it is today. There is more benevolent work going on than ever, larger sums are given for benevolence than ever. Who has heard of purely benevolent institutions closing up, going out of business, turning the objects of their benevolence and charity out now to a cold and hungry world? You won't find them. On the other hand, you will find missionaries being called home by the hundreds, the support of the gospel of the Son of God being curtailed everywhere, salaries of faithful pastors and preachers reduced, the number of those going out as ambassadors for Christ, and advocates of his saving grace, being detained at home and helpless because of lack of support. The church was founded for one work, that of making our Lord known to those who do not know him, revealing to the world that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God, and any appraisal of the church that leaves this fundamental fact out is a false appraisal; and any conduct or attitude in the church that forgets that for which the church was founded, helps to paralyze the efforts of the church and must, indeed, grieve the very heart of our Lord who is Founder and Head of the church.

SONS.

Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, author of "The Good Earth," and "The Young Revolutionist," which have made her famous in the literary world, and the first of which won the Pulitzer prize for the best novel for the past year, is now the author of "Sons," a sequel to "The Good Earth." This book, like its predecessors, deals with Chinese life and character. While Mrs. Buck was born in West Virginia, she went, when quite young, as a daughter of a missionary to China and has lived there all her life, except the four years she spent in Randolph-Macon College, and so she writes as one familiar with her country and her people. Mrs. Buck has been teaching at the University of Nanking and also at the Government University, and now resides in Nanking, from which Chinese city she delineates the Chinese character in a way and manner to be understood and appreciated by all who read the English language. It is said that George Elliott revolutionized fiction writing in a novel by taking as her character Adam Bede, an humble and untutored character and making him the hero of her great book. Up to that period in romance writing, it was deemed that only the lives of the great were worthy of delineation even in fiction.

Mrs. Buck has made a similar venture in her interpretation of Chinese life as it is lived today. She has made a notable contribution to the literature of all time, in that she has contributed to the English speaking people, and the outside world, books of fiction and romance which delineate the aspirations, experiences, ambitions and achievements of the ordinary, commonplace, everyday people of China. Mrs. Buck is in no sense a missionary, nor does she at any place reveal her attitude to the missionary idea or motive, and yet she has made a great contribution, not only to fiction and romance, but to mission literature, because of her keen insight into Chinese life, which insight reveals the necessity for a higher standard of morals than their religion can give, and higher ideals in life than her sacred teachings have emphasized. "Sons" is a sequel to "The Good Earth," the characters being the children and wives of Wang Lung, who was the hero of "The Good Earth"—such a hero as he was. These three sons, with their wives, concubines, more or less sordid passions and dispositions, because of the society of which they are a part, fill up the nearly 500 pages of this book with thrilling revelations of character, experience and life in China. Mrs. Buck has accomplished what heretofore has seemed to be impossible, viz.: She has interested the American reader, thrilled him in fact, with accounts of Chinese life, customs, conduct and traditions.

The book is published by the John Day Company of New York, and the price is $2.50. The book, of course, like "The Good Earth," will have wide reading and will not be a disappointment, since the style, as well as the treatment of the novelist, is unique, simple, candid and refreshing.

REV. G. R. UNDERWOOD PASSES.

Another one of our faithful soldiers of the Cross and Christian ministers has laid down the burden and gone to a rich reward. Rev. G. R. Underwood died at his home at Goldston early Monday morning, October 17th, in the 81st year of his life. The funeral services were held at the Sanford Christian Church, Tuesday, October 18th, beginning at 2:00 P. M., the interment being in the Shallow Well Church Cemetery. For forty-five years this man of God went out as an ambassador for Christ and stood firmly for his convictions in advocating the cause of righteousness in and through the church. He served churches and was widely known in the Eastern and Western North Carolina Conferences, and was faithful and true to the church, and to the work of the Kingdom. He is survived by his wife and two children, Mrs. G. G. Hill, of Greensboro, and Bro. Earl Underwood, of Sanford. A great throng gathered in and about the Christian Church of Sanford, Tuesday afternoon, during the funeral services, and the abundant and beautiful flowers they brought gave expression of love and esteem for this man of God. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Fred Wright, pastor of the Sanford Christian Church, who was assisted by Rev. T. E. White, of Sanford, a former pastor, Rev. M. D. McLamb, a Methodist minister of Goldston, C. H. Rowland, D. D., of Greensboro. Some words of eulogy and appreciation were spoken by others present.

For the past five years, because of his feeble health, Bro. Underwood had not been actively engaged in the ministry, but, though weak in body, he made it a rule to attend the annual sessions of his conference, taking a deep interest in the issues and events of the conference, lending his voice and vote in advocacy of that which he believed was right and of supreme moment. A faithful soldier of the cross, a faithful minister of the gospel, a loving and loyal son of his Lord thus passes from his earthly to his heavenly home. J. O. A.

DR. JOHN R. MOTT AND THE WET PRESS.

The wet press seems to be grabbing at every straw that floats to try to make the public believe that the tide has turned from prohibition toward the legalized sale of beer. Unless every statement made about prohibition is couched in the most exacting and specific terms of definition, it is distorted by the wet press and handed out as a ray of hope for booze. Last June that world figure and Christian statesman, John R. Mott, gave an interview to representatives of the Associated Press in London. That interview was taken up and so distorted and reported by the wet press as to lead many to believe that Dr. Mott had turned his back on prohibition and the dry cause. This has provoked from Dr. Mott a succinct and clear-cut statement of what he did say, and is as follows:

"I am not in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, because, with all its limitations and certain disappointing circumstances in connection with its working, I believe its good results far transcend those which have been unfavorable. At the same time I would welcome a nation-wide, thorough-going reconsideration of prohibition as a policy on two conditions:

"1. That such reconsideration be in the form of a popular vote in the various States, and in no way related to any political campaign.

"2. That it be in the form of a clear-cut expression of choice between (a) the present plan of nation-wide prohibition, and (b) a definite or concrete alternate plan.

"I emphatically oppose a referendum in the form of a choice between (a) the present plan, and, (b) its rejection without concrete substitute."

With this statement of Dr. Mott's, we believe every dry can agree. We believe that the prohibition forces desire nothing more than a clear-cut, definite decision by the majority of the American people, provided the people may express themselves solely on the topic of prohibition which would be in no way related to any political campaign or for any political propaganda or aggrandizement. THE PLAGUE OF WAR.

It is a strange spectacle to behold nations still fighting, and nations still organizing armies and building more and larger battleships and developing larger and faster airplanes in the face of all the writing, conferences, conventions and popular protests against war. After outlawing war we still persist in warlike activities. Is there not some remedy that will cure the world of fear and pugnacity?

The natural and usual answer is that an application of the Gospel to the affairs of the world at large would settle the matter. Probably that is true, but it is very difficult to get the world to see national and international problems in that light. Many Christian people will tell you that armies and navies are necessary. There is a great amount of fighting fervor in youth, the youth who has not seen war, but who feels that self preservation is the first law of nature and that a life of sacrifice is a weak and foolish life. They cannot understand Gandhi. They think he is foolish to starve himself for a principle! Strange, indeed, that Christianity has made so small a dent in war consciousness. Some people tell us it is because the church sanctioned the World War. Perhaps so, and if it be so, we ought to try to improve our present actions by the lessons we have learned in the past. It is hard to tell what Christians want in regard to war or peace. They often talk peace and vote for armaments. It is a rather mixed affair.

What is needed is a fair and honest analysis of each Christian's ideas on the subject of peace and war. Not what other Christians think, but what we, you and I, think. Do we really believe that Jesus Christ taught brotherhood and peace? Do we want peace? Are we convinced that another general war among the large nations is possible, and if it came, would it ruin civilization? Are we convinced that war is the worst possible calamity that could possibly come to the earth? It takes a mighty lot of conviction to stir us up to action.

If we are convinced that we ought to have a peaceful world without war then we ought to do something about it. We ought to study the question with some care. We ought to preach about it and teach peace in our Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies. Somehow or other, the church ought to take some positive steps and not drift along as we did before. Let us check up on ourselves and see if we agree with those who are asking for total disarmament. Let us see if there isn't something we can do to prevent war before it overtakes us.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

A PERSONAL WORD.

For more than forty years the "Suffolk Letter" has appeared in THE SUN, over the signature of Dr. W. W. Staley. These letters have been read by thousands with pleasure and profit. The writer was wise in the selection of themes, apt in illustration, clear and concise in expression, spiritual in tone and illuminating in his philosophy. He saw sermons in stones, temples in timber and glory in the commonplace.

If the "Suffolk Letters" were bound in book form, they would comprise at least ten volumes of more than two hundred and fifty pages each. They were usually written hurriedly, for the writer was a very busy man. But they represent as much literary work and merit as the average man could produce in a life-time.

I have consented to furnish a message each week for THE SUN. I appreciate the honor and opportunity. If I may seem to touch the hem of the garment of my dear friend, Dr. Staley, in this effort, I shall be fully compensated. He is away. But he seems so near. It would be presumption for me to expect to approach his standard of interest and excellence as a writer. I covet the prayers and patience of those who read THE SUN. Suggestions and criticisms will be appreciated.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held at Waverly, Va., November 2-4, 1932. Many churches are in the valley of despondency. Two depressions are upon them—the one financial—the other spiritual. The financial depression makes a demand that gifts shall be less, salaries reduced and appropriations curtailed. The spiritual depression magnifies a gnat until it appears to be as large as a camel. In such times many people cannot see clearly or think spiritually.

The financial calls for conference and convention purposes are not too large for the ability of the churches. In many churches the gasoline tax paid by members amounts to more than the sum paid for missions and the support of church institutions. People who "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel" may be lacking in spirituality and vision. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing." (Mal. 3:10.)

This is not a time to go backward. It is the time to move forward. The task may seem hard. It should not be easy. It should be a challenge. Every church should meet the conference apportionments in full. All delegates and pastors should attend every session of conference, if possible.

Committee reports and addresses should be prepared before the conference is called to order. All standing committees were appointed a year ago. Committees have been requested to have all reports typewritten and supply the secretary with two copies. Church reports should be carefully and accurately written.

The conference should be spiritual. The church must have dollars, but the kingdom must have people and the power of God, if it grows. A conference should be more than a business meeting. It should be a power plant. It may be a mount of transfiguration. It should be holy ground.

I. W. JOHNSON.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

Sunday evening, September 11th, the Christian Endeavor Society of Timber Ridge visited our societies and rendered a most interesting and helpful program. There were more than eighty of the visitors, who came on invitation of our intermediate and senior societies.

They used the Christian Endeavor topic of the day, and the program included hymns, prayers, talks, readings, story telling and special music. One thing especially noticeable was the happy selection of music appropriate to the topic. Nothing, we think, adds more to the interest of a meeting than a proper musical setting.

If my memory serves me correctly, this society at the last session of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor convention, reported a membership of seventy-seven, with an average attendance of 70 per cent. This is an enviable record, and one hard to beat. We are glad to extend to them an invitation to visit us at any time.

As we begin our fall and winter work and review the work of the summer we find at least some encouraging features. Our Sunday School attendance in almost every instance was greater than that of the corresponding Sunday the previous year. For two summers past we have united with other churches of the city in union evening services during the month of August. For some reason such services were not held the past summer. Some of our churches suspended evening services during August. While our attendance was not so large as we desired, yet we held the regular services all summer, calling in one or two for special reasons.

We very much appreciate the faithfulness of those who attended the services of the church during the summer, or who in any way helped the church to continue its work. Now that vacation is over we hope to redouble our efforts to make this the best year ever. Let every one feel that "I am only one, but I am one; I cannot do everything, but I can do something; what I can do, I ought to do, and by the grace of God, I will do."

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

ALABAMA LETTER.

I thought you might be interested to know about our conference which convened at Antioch Church, near Roanoke, Ala., October 11th and 12th. Almost all our churches were represented. Conference apportionments were poor, but some better than last year. Rev. C. W. Carter was elected president; Rev. J. P. Bean, vice-president; Rev. G. H. Veazey, secretary; J. W. Payne, treasurer.

The East Alabama Association of Congregational Churches, composed of seven churches, six of which had previously voted to unite with our body, Lanett and Langdale Christian Churches, were also received at this session. The deliberations of the day were interesting and to the point. The young people, led by Miss Marguerite Davison, met at 4:30 P. M., in the woods nearby, around a bonfire where they played some games and had reports of the young people's work of the year. We then enjoyed a picnic lunch with plenty of good coffee, and then back to the church to resume the work of the conference.

The Glee Club, with most of the faculty of Southern Union College, was present. The conference was favored with music for the evening by the Glee Club. Rev. G. H. Veazey delivered an address in interest of the college. Dr. Frank E. Jenkins delivered the annual address that was an inspiration to all, followed by communion service administered by Revs. E. H. Sperow and J. D. Dollar.

Conference resumed business at 9:30 the second day, with a continuation of regular business routine. Among the outstanding reports was the report on education which was ably discussed by Dr. Frank E. Jenkins. Rev. Simon A. Bennett preached a very inspiring sermon at 11 o'clock. Another sumptuous lunch was spread on a long table in the church yard.

Interest was manifested until all the work was finished about 3:30 P. M. Dr. F. P. Enslinger was a great inspiration throughout the entire session, and had charge of the closing service. The next session will meet with the church at New Hope.

We received the news of the death of Dr. Staley which cast a shadow over the entire congregation. We then stood with bowed heads in a few moments of silent prayer which was conducted by Rev. J. H. Dollar, thanking God for the life of such a great man, and invoked God's blessing upon the bereaved.

REPORTER.

DR. WILLIAM WESLEY STALEY.

The many tributes to the memory of Dr. Staley by others have been beautiful in the expression of devoted souls who knew him through the years and found him tried and true to "the end of a perfect day," to the end of a life of sterling integrity, self-sacrificing service, unflinching devotion to duty, Christian stewardship, and loyalty to the Kingdom of God. He, to me, was an ideal and a reality whose life it has been my desire to emulate in all the graces of Christian character. His name and influence are immortal.

The Christian Church was greatly enriched by his influence while he lived, and is greatly impoverished by his going from us. Words are inadequate to express the appreciation of the multitude of his host of friends in private and public life. His was a life of high ideals, great faith, optimistic spirit, sacrificial service, loving friendship, wise counsel, trustworthy judgment, child-like tenderness, Christ-like spirit, which won the confidence, esteem and appreciation of small and great, and made him a trusted friend and companion of all who knew him best.

In his coronation, the Christian Church has lost its wisest counsellor, its greatest benefactor, its most devoted friend; humanity has been impoverished of the blessings of his radiant Christian influence; and great and small, rich and poor, high and lowly, in church and state, shall feel keenly with increasing appreciation the greatness of his life and character. His life was a beautiful exemplification of what the Christian religion can do for mankind. Words are inadequate to express my personal appreciation for the great life he lived, but these lines merely suggest what I would like to say in memory of one whom I loved as a father and appreciated beyond measure.

A LOVE THAT ENDURED.

"Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

In the death of Dr. W. W. Staley, a prince has fallen. He was a prince in faith, in hope, and love. His was a faith that would not let go; a hope that anchored fast; a love that endured.

It is good to have known him; to have labored with him, and to have had him as a friend and Christian brother.

Truly, a prince and a great man has passed from time to eternity—from labor to reward.

P. H. FLEMING.

THE CHURCH'S RESPONSIBILITY TO THE COLLEGE.

The Christian Church in the South has a total membership of more than 32,000. These members distribute themselves in local churches ranging in membership from 25 to 1,600. The church is much stronger, numerically, than in 1890 when Elon College was founded. The church has supported, guided and directed the college, and as a result, the college has increased in efficiency, prestige and influence. The college, in turn, has served the church by returning to her, young men and young women, trained for the privileges of the pulpit and the responsibilities of the pew.

For nearly a half century, Elon College and the Christian Church have marched through the years at a steady rate of progress as they have served each other—each contributing what she had to give. This spirit of mutual helpfulness must continue so long as there is a consciousness of mutual dependence. Manifestly, the college is dependent upon the church for support and help, and likewise, the church is dependent upon the college for trained leadership and continued progress. Of course, in the highest and truest sense, both are dependent upon God.

These local churches of ours, have grouped themselves into what we call conferences—the conferences go to make up our convention. The convention has its institutions and departments for propaganda and support of her institutions and undertakings.

Long years ago, Dr. W. W. Staley, now of sainted memory, advanced the idea of all local churches in the convention making a definite contribution through conferences, and through the convention, for the support of the college, thereby offering to every individual member the opportunity of sharing in the support of his college, making it possible for him to give, however small or large, without embarrassment or intimidation.

As we have watched our college grow, we have rejoiced and felt that we have had a part in her growth. The college has become accustomed to looking to the convention for a substantial contribution in the late fall.

On Wednesday of next week, with the Eastern Virginia Conference, our several conferences will begin to convene in annual session. Every local church is requested to send a certain definite amount to the conference—we call this amount the church's "apportionment." No church is assessed, but every one is "apportioned," and is thereby requested to contribute. We have but a few more weeks to get our "apportionment" in hand, ready to turn over to the conference treasurer at the proper time.

These are unusual days—to find money that we can spare for a cause like this is almost out of the question. This year our giving must, of necessity, bear a tinge of sacrifice. Let the loyal hearts and generous souls of our church not withhold that which belongeth to God. If we will give as we ought, we have his promise that we will be prospered as we deserve, according to his will.

While you are finding it difficult to get money for the necessities and comforts of life, while you are finding it difficult to get the sufficient funds for local expenses and for conference "apportionments," won't you please bear in mind that your college is in even more difficult straits, financially, than perhaps you could possibly be. We need your interest, your sympathy, your prayers, but we also need your gifts.

No one perhaps is able to give largely, but everyone can give something. This is an appeal to the local churches of Virginia and North Carolina to put forth every possible effort to raise your "apportionment" in full.

If every church in the convention would send up to the annual conference the full amount asked for, the college would be greatly assisted and with other assistance, we would be able to balance our budget with comparative ease.

The college is a faithful servant of the church and has been for more than forty years—she is only asking the church to make it possible that she may continue to serve as her founders purposed that she should. If every member of the Christian Church in the South would give only ten cents a month to the college, the college could continue in her program of service. Of course, all will not give ten cents a month, and there are many, many of us, who can give infinitely more. Let every man do his duty to the full measure of his ability and all will be well with his church and with her necessary institutions.

It is my hope and prayer that every conference may have a most satisfactory and profitable session, and that the blessings of God upon our church may continue in abundance.

L. E. SMITH.

THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD.

The seven wonders of the ancient world were the Pyramids of Egypt, the Pharos lighthouse at the entrance of the harbor of the city of Alexandria, the hanging gardens of Babylon, the statue of Jupiter by Phidias, the mausoleum of Artemisia, the Colossus of Rhodes and the temple of Diana in Ephesus.

An interesting comparison is found in the replies received by a magazine that asked the opinion of scientists as to the seven wonders of the modern world. Nearly seven hundred replied, and the seven items mentioned and the order as to relative importance are as follows: Wireless telegraphy, the telephone, the aeroplane, radium, antiseptics, antitoxins, spectrum analysis and the X-ray.

Not one of this last list is a work of art, while practically all the wonders of the ancient world were, their utilitarian purposes being incidental.

These ancient wonders were products of the hand tool age, and the modern wonders are all related to the machine age into which the world passed something like a century ago. It is not difficult to think of many other inventions of productions of modern life that might well be listed in addition to the seven named, a number that matches the list selected by Antipater many centuries ago.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Great and glorious God, author of the spiritual Kingdom, and of the outward physical church which was given to be the agency through which man might work to bring thy Kingdom into power, make thy servants valiant both in purpose and in application to the task. Thy Kingdom is sure, and the church is sure because Jesus gave himself to be its foundation. We thank thee for the joy of Jesus' comradeship and for the blessedness of toil even as he toiled. All glory be thine.

THE WOMAN'S CONFERENCE.

The Woman's Conference on Missions at Monticello Church, Guilford County, Friday, October 21st, was a joy. Our Christian women from the missionary societies were there, radiant, happy, triumphant. We simply have to acknowledge that women know how to put on and carry through a missionary conference. The one regret, if there is any to be expressed, is that the men of the church were not there to see how the women do their work in the name and for the sake of the Lord.

Their meeting in annual session reminds one over and over, of the woman who came with the alabaster box of ointment and poured out a love offering on her Lord. The women at a missionary conference are doing just that, pouring out a love offering on their Lord. It matters little, seemingly, who speaks, or who does not speak, the spirit of the occasion sweeps one on to visions and dreams and higher ground.

The theme of the conference this year was "Onward and Upward," and after Mrs. Dale O. Sander, of Reidsville, had led in a most gracious and reverential worship period, she called on the great gathering to sing "Higher Ground"—"Lord plant my feet on higher ground." One realized that the one desire of the vast throng was expressed in that song and in the theme, "Onward and Upward," and as Mrs. Sander said in her Scripture text, "Looking unto to Jesus to lead and to sustain." All the exercises of the day were characterized by a beautiful spirit in reverence and worship. The seven district leaders who have charge of the work in the societies, were recognized, stood in line before the audience and made reports for the year that were encouraging, filled with hope and enthusiasm. The various secretaries of the departments—Literature, Cradle Roll, Spiritual Life, Life Memberships, Young People's—were present with their reports, giving just the information necessary to instruct and enlighten the women of the conference. Mrs. W. R. Sellars, treasurer, in making her annual report, showed the total offerings through the societies the past year to be $3,428.28. This was a considerable decrease from the total of $5,000.00 collected the previous year, but there was no note of discouragement, either from the courageous treasurer or others of the conference.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, the gracious and competent president, declared she had served in official capacity for twenty-one years now and should be left free to work in the ranks henceforth. The conference mind was otherwise, however, and she with the other officers, was retained, the women feeling that the tried and true should be trusted to lead them when wise and experienced leadership was so necessary. Her message to the conference was accorded a standing vote of approval and appreciation, since it was a ringing challenge to go onward and upward in the service which our women are rendering in their societies.

The morning service closed with a great address by Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, on "The Missionary Spirit." Dr. Smith realizes that a church without the true, vigorous, expressive missionary spirit is a dead church and is hopeless, so far as growth or power is concerned. The missionary spirit has three elements: Love, service and sacrifice, and means giving the message of our Lord and his redeeming grace and saving power to lost souls.

In the afternoon, Mrs. L. E. Smith presented the home study book on "The American Indian." This was done with a personal and intimate touch that must have constrained all present to desire to know more about the American Indian, since Mrs. Smith had taught and lived for a year among the Apaches in New Mexico, and personally knew one of the great men who is co-author of the study book on "The American Indian." It was a clear, convincing presentation of the great theme and one which will make the study of the American Indian more interesting in the societies in the coming months.

Rev. Stanley C. Harrell gave an address on "China, the Cradle of Conflict," emphasizing the necessity for using the study book on China, and the importance of learning about the Chinese at this time. The future centuries of China hinge on the pivot of the present which will either turn unmistakably to the Christian religion or to the Russian Sovietism. The women will be studying a real problem of world-wide issue and importance in the foreign book on China this year.

The Mission Secretary closed the speaking with some information for the conference as to polity, procedure and clearness of thinking in the matter of missions.

The conference is to meet next year with Turner's Chapel in Lee County, near Sanford, N. C.

A great luncheon of Brunswick stew and "accessories" was served on the church grounds by the Reidsville and Monticello Societies, who entertained jointly. Thus a great conference and a glorious day passed into history, but will live in the memory and in the activities of hundreds who gathered from far and near for the joyous occasion.

AUTUMN IN THE HILLS.

When I see the first turning leaves of Autumn and hear the school-bell ring out, breaking the silence which has settled over these hills, I start looking backward. For it was at this time of year that our little church and school had its beginning here.

A little more than ten years ago, the first Christian missionary, Miss Iola Hedgepeth, came over the old Elk Trail that silently winds its way among the hills. I saw her come, and yet I saw not what her coming meant to these rugged blue peaks that shut me in.

She was ushered in after the custom of our hills in olden times. That is, I was on the trail and when I heard a car, of course, I gave it the road before it came into view, and then climbed the nearest hill. There I lay flat upon the ground that I might look without being seen. But when the sun hung low I had to come down from my perch and meet the lady who was to lead the armies of mountain children toward the light and life.

I can never forget that handful of ragged, puzzled children gathered in that log cabin where Miss Hedgepeth began what is now our Elk Spur Church and school. We had never heard of a Christian missionary, nor had we ever had anyone just sit and tell us in simple language of the life of Christ. We had a vague idea about the story, of course, but the fact that Christ had died for me, or was anything to me at all, had never dawned upon me.

We only had a small Testament in my mountain home, and no whole Bible. Miss Hedgepeth was very much impressed when she saw the tear-filled eyes as she read Bible stories to us kids. She was impressed again when we begged her never to leave us, and I saw then a light in her eyes that has lasted down through these years. She, of course, has had many disappointments, and she says she has made many a blunder because she didn't know. However, she is back in the school of which she is the founder, and again she is teaching mountain children to read and write. One can see at a glance that the same light is in her eyes, and one can see more—that she has grown to be a part of these hills—they are life to her.

I shall not try to offer any great words of praise to this, my teacher. I simply say that I have found for her a motto in the lines that follow:

"I'd seek the task which calls for high endeavor,
I'd feel the thrill of battle in my veins;
I'd fight my battles valiantly, and never Desert the hills to walk on common plains."

HOLY NECK SOCIETY HAS GOOD YEAR.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Holy Neck Church has just closed a most successful year in spite of hearing "depression" on every hand. They tried to think "Press On," instead of "Depression," and the thought surely helps a lot towards a better outlook. The spiritual life superintendent conducts the devotionals at each meeting and this has proved to be very helpful.

They used "Christ Comes to the Village," as their study book, and their pastor, Dr. N. G. Newman, taught the lessons. A splendid attendance is reported at every meeting.

In December they gave a progressive tea in the homes of their members in Holland and a nice social time was enjoyed and a neat sum realized.

They observed their sixteenth anniversary in January, and each one invited a guest. A simple, but appetizing, menu was served and a splendid program enjoyed, besides plenty of games and stunts.

In March they held their annual Dollar Day, this taking the place of the Hen Party of former years.

Another social event of this society was the "Mock Street Fair and Crazy Tea," which was held in May.

A public Thanksgiving service was held in November, and a nice offering was received. World's day of prayer was observed jointly with the Holland Societies, February 12th.

In summing up their year's work, they did not lose any members and received two new ones and while they may not have been as successful in raising dollars and cents as in the past, they feel that they have advanced more spiritually, for their attendance was good and the interest and enthusiasm fine.

Mrs. June O. Davidson is secretary of this society, and sends us the above information.

PALM STREET MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Palm Street Church Missionary Society of Greensboro, N. C., closed the year of 1932, with a very good report, considering our number on roll. There are seventeen members on roll at present, a gain of some and a loss of some of our members, making a total of about the same membership as for the year 1931. There was an average attendance of thirteen members at each meeting.

The society sent $17.00 to the Mission Board, this being more than our apportionment. We hope to do even better in 1933.

At our last meeting, Rev. J. L. Neese spoke very complimentary of the retiring officers, and of the service rendered by them, with Mrs. J. E. Smith, the retiring president, and Mrs. W. E. Hinshaw, the retiring vice-president, responding. Mrs. Smith has been president for the past three years, and has been absent only once.

The officers for the year 1933, are as follows:

President, Miss Ophelia Morris; vice-president, Mrs. D. A. Murchison; secretary, Mrs. S. C. Brady; assistant secretary, Mrs. J. E. Ritter; treasurer, Mrs. O. D. Taylor; secretary of literature, Mrs. D. A. Murchison.

OPHELIA MORRIS, Pres.

The doctor was making his usual night round of the hospital. In the dim light he saw a Hindu patient sitting up in bed with hands clasped in prayer over a small book. The physician, Dr. Edward W. Wilder, of the Albert Victor hospital, Madura, India, drew nearer quietly to see what volume was claiming such devout attention so late at night. It was the Gospel of Mark.

A CONSOLATION WITHIN.

By H. H. SMITH.

The best men have had their traducers and George Washington was no exception. Happy the man who can meet his adversaries with such words as Washington met his. When a scurrilous attack was made upon him by his enemies, writing to Henry Lee, he said: "But in what will this abuse terminate? For the result, as it respects myself, I care not; for I have a consolation within that no earthly efforts can deprive me of, and that is, that neither ambition nor interested motives have influenced my conduct. The arrows of malevolence, therefore, however barbed and well pointed, never can reach the most vulnerable part of me; though whilst I am up as a mark they will be continually aimed."

It is this "consolation within" that brings true blessedness to life. Describing the changed and exalted state of one who has been truly converted, William James, the noted psychologist, says: "A self hitherto divided, and consciously wrong, inferior, and unhappy, becomes unified and consciously right, superior, and happy, in consequence of its firmer hold upon religious realities." To have the assurance within that one's motives are pure and his conduct upright is enough to make one feel "superior and happy." The word of God bears abundant testimony to this truth. "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile." With no thought of boasting of his spiritual attainments, when he was old and gray-headed, Samuel called Israel to witness that, though he had walked before them since childhood, no one could accuse him of oppressing the poor, or defrauding anyone, or accepting a bribe. While we do not hear his voice, his words have a ring such as only an approving conscience can give. When some one threatened to reveal something dark in Spurgeon's life, the great preacher replied: "You may write my life on the skies; I have nothing to conceal." When Paul was accused of defiling the temple by taking a Gentile within its sacred precincts, he replied that he was innocent of the charge, and that he "exercised himself to have always a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man." To the Corinthians he declared that it was a source of joy to him that by the grace of God he had lived consistently as a follower of Jesus Christ. "For our rejoicing in this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not in fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God we have conducted ourselves in the world and more abundantly toward you."

The testimony of a good conscience gives courage as well as comfort. Miss Slattery, a worker among young people, related the following incident: "I shall never forget a brown-eyed, frank little fellow of twelve years who was discussing with a group of other boys one who had been found guilty of stealing. The boys were expressing opinions freely. 'Besides stealing, he lied. He was always a coward,' said one. 'He was all the time afraid somebody would find out and tell on him. I know a fellow he gave ten cents not to tell where he had seen him.' Then the brown-eyed boy threw his head back proudly: 'Well,' he said, 'I'm glad of one thing: there can't anybody find out and tell anything on me, and I wouldn't pay anybody ten cents, for there's nothing to find out that everybody don't know.' I can never forget the fine challenge in his face, the glorious courage that shone out in his eyes."

Deal sincerely and kindly with every man.

THE CRUX OF THE LIQUOR PROBLEM.

The present crisis in dealing with the liquor problem is a clear summons to the churches to take up anew their basic educational task.

If all the opponents of prohibition were criminals, or self-seeking brewers and distillers, the problem would be simple. Then all that would be necessary would be to insist on effective enforcement of the law and severe punishment for its violators. But it is plain as daylight that there are today many respected citizens who honestly do not believe in the law. The crux of the problem is whether we can persuade such people to take a different view. We certainly shall not do so either by denouncing or coercing them. We can do so only by real education. If we can present facts convincing enough and reasons cogent enough to make them realize that the traffic in intoxicants—like the traffic in narcotics—is so grave a menace that it really cannot be controlled—that it must be abolished in the interest of human welfare—then and then only can we have the intelligent respect for the law and the supporting public opinion that are essential to full success.

In the welter of argument, pro and con, often carried on with far more heat than light, hosts of men and women have become confused about the issue and do not see clearly the fundamental reasons which led to the adoption of prohibition, first in local communities, then in state areas, finally in the nation. To recall the people to these basic considerations is the primary contribution of Christian agencies to the solution of this age-old question.

We are persuaded that this educational task can really be achieved; persuaded that certain things are so clear that when once men face them they will recognize them as conclusive. Among these facts, so solidly grounded that we believe they can be brought home to any except the most prejudiced minds, are the following:

1. That alcohol is a narcotic poison, harmful to the human system. The ultimate issue is not this or that method of control but the nature of alcohol itself.

2. That the liquor traffic has always been a terrific social problem, insusceptible of any "control" adequate to prevent the gravest ills to society. Certainly the situation before prohibition came was intolerable, and cried aloud for a more radical remedy than any that had yet been discovered. One can only view with abhorrence anything like a return to the old condition which prevailed when the organized liquor traffic dominated our politics and was the ally of all the worst influences in society.

Against such considerations, so far as we can see, one and only one argument can be brought—viz.: that "society has no right to interfere with my personal liberty." But surely this argument proves too much! For society, with the approval of all, is constantly exercising exactly that kind of right. It determines, for example, the purity of the water that I drink, it inspects the milk that I buy, it tells me where I may erect a building and where I may not, where I may or may not park my automobile.

The final appeal, in the case of prohibition as in the case of other special problems, has to be that of the Christian religion, which impels us to seek not our private "right" but the common good. The crux of our problem is, first, to show that prohibition is really in the interest of the common good, and, second, to induce men willingly to put that common good above other considerations.—Federal Council Bulletin.

It takes the ploughshare of drudgery to turn over the furrow of success.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUTH AND PROHIBITION.

It is an interesting thing to know that the movement, "Allied Youth," has enrolled more than a half million young people and has formed over 450 local councils. They are all working for the elimination of liquor. What a force this represents! It should encourage church leaders and all who are interested in driving drink from the world. We suggest that Sunday School workers and all leaders of young people, who wish to do something definite, send for helpful printed matter for circulation among youth, to Nettie Allen Thomas, secretary of Allied Youth, 419 Fourth Ave., Room 1307, New York City.

Political writers are saying that here are enough new voters this year to swing the election. They may defeat the Eighteenth Amendment. They have never seen a saloon, never seen a "drunk," and know nothing of the evils of the saloon. Many of them have the idea that conditions would be improved if the saloon was re-instated and "supervised."

The Church and Sunday School should return to temperance teaching. One of the members of the Temperance Committee of the Southern Christian Convention is Miss Ida S. Robinson. Write to her for suggestions as to what you can do to help the cause. Address her at 35 Plandome Court, Manhasset, L. I., N. Y. Her home is Southern Pines, N. C., but at present she is in New York State.

LISTEN, YOUNG MEN.

Jesus did his work while a young man. He died on the cross at thirty-three. His apostles were young men. His followers must have been composed mostly of the young, for Paul writing to the Corinthians thirty years after the resurrection of Jesus says that he was seen by more than five hundred at one time, most of whom were still alive after thirty years. So those five hundred must have been a youthful gathering at the time of the resurrection of Jesus.

John Wesley, when a student at Oxford, formed the Holy Club. It was quite a while before he "found himself," but his life purposes were fixed early in life. Martin Luther was only twenty-seven when he climbed the Holy Stairs at Rome and while there learned that "the just shall live by faith." George Whitfield at twenty was stirring England with the passion of eloquence.

Young man, do not wait until you are forty and fat to do something worth while for God. Gird on your armor early in life and know that the Christian religion was a youth movement, and must ever remain so if it fulfills the mission of its youthful founder. It is little short of a tragedy when the church of God is taken over by elderly and official persons and ceases to be a crusading power upon the earth. But even more tragic than this is to find young men entering the ministry without the spirit of such leaders as Luther, Wesley and Whitfield.—Christian Advocate.

My idea is this: Ever onward. If God had intended that man should go backward, he would have given him an eye in the back of his head.—Victor Hugo.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR OCTOBER 30, 1932.

"What shall our group do about Prohibition?" I. Cor. 10:31-33; Luke 12:6ff.

The following classes of people may be found today, so far as their attitudes toward liquor are concerned:

(a) Those who are eternal foes of liquor and the liquor business and believe that prohibition, if it is given another ten years' chance, will prove itself very effective.

(b) Those who are foes of liquor and the liquor business who believe that federal prohibition produces as many evils as it cures.

(c) Those who want liquor and want to sell liquor. Those are the people who are financing the wet drives which have frightened the political parties and misled so many dries.

(d) Those who oppose federal prohibition on the ground of States rights, regardless of whether they are for or against alcohol.

(e) Those who are political dries or wets—who vote according to the party platform or according to what seems to be the majority will.

The Christian's Choice.

It seems clear that the Christian must take his stand against alcohol; he cannot belong to the third group. If this is so, the following duties seem to belong to members of the Christian Endeavor Societies:

(a) To pledge themselves as individuals to abstain from the use of alcohol.

(b) To make an intelligent campaign to win other young people to total abstinence.

(c) To speak confidently and courageously in behalf of the dry cause whenever opportunity offers. It is popular to be a wet today; it is Christian to be a dry.

(d) To help other young people to study the history of the fight against alcohol in the United States.

(e) To vote in such a way that whatever happens to federal prohibition the change (if any) will certainly be in behalf of more temperance and less liquor. The Republican platform insists that the gains of prohibition must not be lost. Powerful newspapers make fun of this and say there are no gains. That is sheer deception, falsehood. It would be well to spend an entire evening reading to your group the article by Whiting Williams in the June Survey Graphic in which it is clearly set forth that the laboring classes are much more free from drink than they ever were before. The millionaire class is the great law-breaker; this is the company that Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., keeps, and he is naturally disgusted with their law-breaking. But if he had close acquaintance with mill and mining towns, he would probably take back his words in behalf of repeal.

(f) To support in the elections men who will see that anti-liquor legislation is enforced.

(g) To take the leadership in ridding school and community parties of the hip flask and of drinking.

(h) To show something of the enthusiasm that the dry young people of twenty years ago displayed in working against the saloons.

On Whose Side Are We?

Consider such points as these:

(a) The real wets—those who are financing the drive to get rid of the Eighteenth Amendment—are cruel, selfish men, whose sole aim is to make money. They have always fought all kinds of laws for regulation, before and after they were enacted. Are we willing to be their allies?

(b) The constitutionalists—those who want rigid enforcement as long as the Amendment is in the Constitution—are patriots devoted to their nation. Certainly we cannot be less than that.

(c) The people who are absolute teetotalers—abstainers from drink—are self-controlled citizens who know what is good for their bodies and minds and are determined to follow the right. We must belong to this group.

(d) The leaders who want to protect their neighbors from the ravages of drink have been called reformers, and more lately they have been called "bigots." They are usually people who try to obey the Golden Rule. This is in accord with the teachings of Jesus. We belong to that company.

(e) The people who are willing to work and sacrifice for their convictions even though both the convictions and they themselves become unpopular, are following in the train of Jesus and Paul. To be disciples we must share their courageous stand.

The Coming Election.

Note the following considerations for voters:

(a) The liquor issue is not the only one before the American people. The wets and the rich people have tried to make it that. Mr. Ras-kob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said just before his convention met in Chicago: "I doubt if anyone can name any more important issue. What greater economic question is there?" This millionaire shouts for beer when people are starving for bread. In voting, the citizen should consider the prohibition planks but also also the planks that deal with the economic issue. And he should vote for men who are friends of law and order even more than for platforms. (This may be debated by some members of this group.)

(b) Who owns the Republican and Democratic parties and the independent parties? This question should be asked both regarding local and national "bosses."

(c) When the wets are crossing party lines to defeat every friend of anti-liquor legislation, should not the dries also forget their party alignments and support those men who are most loyal to the cause of temperance?

Gains of Prohibition.

The gains of prohibition must be conserved: any change must be in the behalf of more control rather than less. Whiting Williams, who knows as much about American labor as any man, says: "Prohibition has taken the weight of the liquor traffic" largely off of the laboring class, who were compelled "daily to choose between booze and shoes." They ask for bread—shall we give them whiskey?

THE SIZE OF YOUR BIBLE.

"The word of our God shall stand forever."—Isa. 40:8.

How big is your Bible? Just as big as that part into which you have personally entered, and that is all. Let us not deceive ourselves! Simply to announce that we "believe the Bible from cover to cover," is not enough. Some—not all—who use that expression really know little about the book concerning which they speak.

The Bible is absolutely incomparable. There is nothing like it; there never will be. Do you really know your Bible? Are you growing increasingly to know it? Have you given time to it, and thought, and prayer? Is the study of the Bible a lifelong occupation with you?—Clarence A. Barbour.

THE CHRISTIAN AND WORLD PEACE.

LESSON SIX—NOVEMBER 6, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the sons of God."—Matt. 5:9.

LESSON TEXT: Psalm 72:9-17; Eph. 2:13-19.

There are those who think that those who are working for world peace are idealists—impractical, visionary folks who mean all right, but who are not to be taken very seriously. As a matter of fact those who are working for world peace are the realists. They have seen that in a world that has been brought so close together by modern means of communication, it is absolutely imperative that people shall learn how to get along harmoniously together. They have set out to help to bring about such a world. If none of us liveth to himself, we have got to learn how to get along together.

It needs to be said, too, that those who are working for world peace are sound in their method when they demand increasing disarmament both on land and on sea. History bears abundant testimony to the fact that the way to develop the spirit of peace does not come by preparing for war. One of the most striking evidences of the stupidity of so-called civilized, to say nothing of Christianized nations, is the amazing amount of money that they spend for wars, past, present and future, in spite of the fact that war does not settle matters.

Of course, there is a frank recognition on the part of those who are working for peace that mere disarmament will not solve the matter. In the final analysis the cause of wars lies in the spirit of distrust, jealousy and superiority and greed, and exploitation, and revenge in the human heart. The only ultimate and absolute guarantee against war and of peace is the spirit of Christ in the human heart. It is this fact that the Psalmist and the evangelist stress in the lesson for today.

The Psalmist, for instance, depicts in striking and graphic language the reign of Christ. He is to extend his reign universally—"all kings shall fall down before him; all nations shall serve him." His enemies shall lick the dust, an expression suggesting Christ's triumph and the utter defeat of all those forces of evil which at times seem to be in the ascendancy. (By the way, we may lose some of the gains of prohibition temporarily, and that because of our carelessness, but eventually we shall win—that is one of the enemies that shall lick the dust. The same thing is true of war.) Under Christ's beneficent rule the poor shall be cared for, and the underprivileged shall find a friend. Life will take on a new value. The land shall bear abundantly. Men shall be blessed in him. And all nations shall call him blessed.

The evangelist emphasizes the fact that Christ unites men in that he reveals a common Father of all men, and in that his spirit makes for peace and good will. He is our peace—he reconciles men to God, and man to man. Those who have the spirit of Christ in their hearts will find a way out of their difficulties without resorting to war. Christ has broken down the wall of partition. He has made it possible for men to have direct access to God. He has brought those who felt that they were strangers and foreigners into the household of God, and made them to feel at home. They are fellow-citizens with the saints. As children of one Father, dwelling, as it were, in one household, they shall live in peace. Eventually Christ's spirit shall dominate all men and all nations in all their relationships with each other. It will not come soon, but it will come. And it is given to all of us to work and to pray and to sacrifice for its coming.

MINDING ONE'S OWN BUSINESS.

It was Plato, the great philosopher, who first advanced the idea of "minding one's own business." He stated that there were three classes of men whose duties were to perform the tasks of this world. First, the farmer, who must be obedient to nature; second, the warrior, who must be brave; and lastly, the leader or ruler, who must have wisdom. But each must work at his own task so that society might be an ordered and harmonious whole, which is for the common good of humanity. If any one of these three should interfere with the business of the other, then he has overstepped his bounds and has meddled with the affairs of the community, which is dangerous for the common good.

The world is growing more complex every day. There are new problems to be solved and new disputes to be settled. What should be our attitude toward all this great advancement in the world? Here is the answer: We should ever be willing and glad to aid or help someone else, provided by so doing we shall not injure or harm the other fellow. We should have the spirit of Christ in our hearts as was so well portrayed in his parable of the Good Samaritan. The Golden Rule will give us a guide by which our lives should be governed. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Would you want someone else to meddle in your business? Why, then, meddle in someone else's business?

One time a man was asked why he always attended to someone else's business while his own went undone. His reply was, "I have no business to mind, and if I had any to mind, I have no mind to mind it with."

That is just the case. Those who know so much about others are always the ones who do not know much about themselves. All parts of our body work together, yet each part performs its own function. With the love and help of God in our souls, we too, can perform our duties in this life without interfering with the duties of our fellowmen. Let us so live that when the innumerable caravan moves to that mysterious realm we may be one of the number.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO PRAYER.

"Because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she worry me."—Luke 18:5.

This is a story of Jesus in which a Judge renders a decision of justice to a plaintiff, not because of any particular conscientious scruples about rendering justice, but because she worried him with her continual coming. In order to get rid of her, he would give her justice.

That is a poor commentary on a court of justice, but it is assumed that justice had better be given that way than not at all.

This story has another parallel. It is the story of the importunate neighbor who at midnight besought his neighbor for a loaf of bread that he might give his belated guest something to eat. The neighbor was asleep and in his half-waking first moments he implored his caller to go away. But because the latter sought him and plead with him, because he insisted, and because he would get rid of the pest, he arose and gave him bread.

These two stories were told by Jesus to encourage persistent prayer. The lesson is to teach us to "continue instant in prayer, in season and out of season," to continue at the throne of grace, "in supplication making known our wants to Him," "who giveth to every one liberally and upbraideth not."

In the story of our text, he represents God the Father as one who does not feel any worry at one's oft coming, but regards his children as his elect, and that if a human will give justice, as this Judge did, for so slight a reason, how much more will the heavenly Father "give unto them that cry unto him daily."

Prayer—Our Father, and our God, we know not how to pray as we ought. We pray so little. When thy word speaks to us now we are ashamed that we have prayed so little. Forgive us, our Father, and help us to be faithful. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

UNWHOLESOME POLITICIANS.

"Beware of (those) which . . . love greetings in the markets."—Luke 20:46.

Doctor Moffatt interprets this text thus: "Fond of getting saluted." He says the King James version might be taken to refer to a fondness for friendly talk with people in public places. He says that such could not have been the meaning of the Master, but that the original transcript makes it clear that the persons referred to are those who love to parade themselves, be recognized, and are just charmed with the salutes and acclaim of the people.

It is to be admitted that, generally speaking, a human being loves attention and praise, and especially if it means advantage to him. It is also to be admitted that God gave us our natures for high and holy purposes and not for corrupting or flattering influences. In the training of the disciples, three things are stressed preeminently as pitfalls of man, viz., worry, love of money, and the desire for public recognition and acclaim. It is plain why he did this—because Christianity demands preoccupation with the Kingdom. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." If one is preoccupied with himself, and public favor, it destroys effectiveness of Christian service. It becomes an end in itself and a substitute for God's will.

"He that findeth his life must lose it," said he—that is, one must lose his own value of self, lose his dependence upon the flattery of others, that he may attain righteousness in the lives of others. That is the Kingdom.

Jesus offers two remedies for this evil: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." "The second is like unto it—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." By these one wins a far higher order of merit than the greetings of the people in flattered acclaim.

Prayer—O Lord, again at the light of another day, we hear thy voice, calling us to righteousness and to the good of the Kingdom in the world. O Lord, make us true children of thine this day, to love and to serve, and die in the glory of a life spent trying to bring thy law and thy love to pass. This we ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

UNCEASING PRAYER NECESSARY IN CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.

"Watch ye, therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."—Luke 21:36.

This word from our Saviour today reflects that other passage so well known to all of us: "If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?"

"Wherefore, let them that suffer according to the will of God, commit the keeping of their souls to him, in well-doing, as unto a faithful Creator."—I. Peter 4:18, 19.

I met an old gentleman on the street the other day. During our conversation he gave me our subject and texts for today. He said "Brother, if we miss heaven we miss all." And we say, Amen.

Prayer—Our Father, who art in heaven, thy word is like a thunderbolt to our souls today. We feel deeply the warning that we shall not escape hell if we neglect salvation. Oh, thou Redeemer of our souls, have mercy upon us, forgive us our sins and save us to a pure heart and a sound and right-thinking mind, that we may be all thou wouldst have us be as a faithful child of thine.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

CHRISTIAN ALERTNESS IN PRAYER.

"Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation."—Matt. 26:41.

"Pray without ceasing."—I. Thess. 5:17.

It is not to be understood that this constant, alert, unceasing prayer which is urged as a requisite to worthiness in the Judgment, is that kind of prayer which requires one to be always on his knees talking to God; but it is to be understood as teaching a constant soul-watchfulness which looks to God for guidance in every act and every thought. Dr. Moffatt says, "It is the art of keeping spiritually awake." It is a continuous vigil. It is not the sudden spurt of religion which one expresses in going to church every once in a while, nor once a month, it is an attitude lived "hour by hour," which recognizes the Lord in all things and which gives one an insight into life's persistent problems.

Doctor Luccock has illustrated the propelling force of this prayerfulness in the life by the factors in a transatlantic flight. The success of the flight depends not only upon the wind and weather being favorable, nor on the engines going forty hours without missing a beat; but it depends supremely upon the ability of the pilot to keep awake, and he adds, that "the net result of the longer flight of life depends on the same variable factor."

Prayer—Our dear heavenly Father, thou art our friend, who can do unto us exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask or think, and thou hast promised to hear all thy children who cry unto thee. Hear thou our prayer to look unto thee continuously as the Author and Finisher of our faith. In his name we ask it.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

NARCOTICS TO THE SOUL.

"Finally be strong in the Lord, and in the strength of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."—Eph. 6:10, 11.

"Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he hath been approved, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord promised them that love him."—Jas. 1:12.

There are many enemies to the soul's keeping awake: things which deaden and cloud the spirit and lull it to sleep, viz., habit, popularity, the easy chair, selfish objectives, etc. These are not sins. They are habits anyone may slip into unconsciously, and before they are aware of it may be dead or sleeping in spiritual life.

Carlyle has expressed the idea most strikingly: "Daily I am taught again the unfathomable mystery of what we call the soul radiant with heaven even while capable of being over-clouded and, as it were, swallowed up by the bottomless mud it has to live in in this world."

Prayer—Say the Lord's Prayer.

SATURDAY.

DON'T GIVE UP.

We cannot conclude our prayer thoughts for the week without quoting that wonderfully helpful song, "Unanswered Yet":

"Unanswered yet!
The prayer your lips have pleaded
In agony of heart these many years.
Does faith begin to fail,
Is hope departing,
And think you all in vain those falling tears?
Say not the Father hath not heard your prayer,
You shall have your desire, sometime, somewhere.

"Unanswered yet!
Nay, do not say ungranted;
Perhaps your work is not yet wholly done.
The work began when your first prayer was uttered,
And God will finish what he has begun,
If you will keep the incense burning there,
His glory you shall see, sometime, somewhere.

"Unanswered yet!
Faith cannot be unanswered;
Her feet are firmly planted on the rock;
Amid the wildest storms she stands undaunted,
Nor quails before the loudest thunder shock.
She knows Omnipotence has heard the prayer,
And cries, it shall be done, sometime, somewhere."

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

SINCERE, FRIENDLY, UNAFRAID.

By REV. JOHN G. TRUITT.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold."—Prov. 22:1.

Because Dr. Staley was such a great, good man, and because I admired him so much, I have been trying to ask myself what great qualities did he possess. At once I am convinced that he had above the average intelligence, that he was well educated and well read, and that naturally he was a man of culture and great refinement. With these assets assumed certain, I begin to try to find three words to further and distinctly characterize him. In other words, since our calling is of the same nature, I ask myself this question: What are three qualities in his personality which stand out so supremely that I should like to emulate them? After some deliberation, I chose: Sincere, Friendly, Unafraid.

Sincere. If an automobile stopped in front of your home and Dr. Staley alighted therefrom, looking upon him you saw sincerity, unaffectedness, in his every movement. If he went into his pulpit and you observed his manner and his counsel you were impressed with his sincerity. There was no make-believe. He did not assume something of which he was not plainly sure. It was to be supposed that a preacher had prepared himself before he entered the pulpit—Dr. Staley had. As far as he had prepared he preached, and further than that he did not pose. If Dr. Staley wrote an article, a letter, or a book, the first line set forth his direct sincerity, and that straightforward, sincere quality was sustained to the very last line. In the shake of his hand, in the cut of his fine, seeing eyes, and in his unaffected manner of speech at bedside, on platform, or in the council room—whether you agreed with him or disagreed with him—his absolute, unshaken sincerity appealed to you.

Friendly. Dr. Staley was a great man, but strangely enough, it does not take great words to portray him. Just as through every fabric of his life pattern runs sincerity, just so his friendliness is everywhere apparent. I have not chosen love as the outstanding word with which to characterize Dr. Staley. I was not a member of his family, nor one of his bosom friends. But so friendly was Dr. Staley that I can assume very naturally his great love for his loved ones, and his closest friends. To me, in characterizing him, the word "friendly" is finer than any other word I might choose in that realm. And when I say friendly, I think of David and Jonathan—or of that big kind of friendliness that surpasses many kinds of so-called love. From the simple little acts of kindness to children to the deepest devotions of his noble heart, Dr. Staley was friendly. My little two-year-old daughter sang a song for him in his bedroom this summer while he was sick. He thanked her in the friendliest way—and even when we had said adieu, and were at the front door, he called aloud for the little girl to come back a moment. When she went back, he put his arm around her and said: "Ann, I thank you. I appreciated your song so much. I thank you."

Hundreds, yes, thousands will arise to testify in their hearts and memories of the friendly words, friendly acts, friendly thoughts, of Dr. Staley. He did not assume friendliness. He did not pose it. He did not pretend it. He was it.

Colored man, white man; old man, child; educated or illiterate; man or woman; high or low; to one and to all he was yesterday, today, and always friendly. And his friendliness never went too far, it never asked any favors, or laid any obligations save the obligations of respect for a Christian gentleman. He never stooped to the guile of syncope, or the subterfuge of flattery; but hundreds will remember him in his fifty years' pastorate as a "friend in need, and a friend indeed."

He was never too busy to receive a guest in his study; never too far away on vacation to fail to return for the funeral of the humblest member of his congregation, so far as his own personal pleasures were concerned; and the city was never too big for him or too far away for him to miss a call on a friend if he were passing through that city. Although he wore a high hat he never "high-hatted" either the stranger or the humblest person he might chance to meet. It is said of him that he could greet a passing acquaintance upon the street in such a friendly way as to make him feel that a special call had been made upon him. As a minister I should certainly like to emulate Dr. Staley's friendliness.

Unafraid. Here again a simple word has been used. But many who may choose to read these lines will surely testify to the correctness of the characterization. No wonder a whole city shut up its shops during the hours of his funeral. When others have been frightened, and cowardice was obvious, Dr. Staley could be known as courageous. He was unafraid to trust men; or students; or women; or children; or his fellows; or his city; or his church; or his denomination; or his Christ, and his God. On the other hand, you could not shut him up from his convictions; nor keep him from saying his say, when he knew it was right and necessary. Clear, keen, apt, logical were his words in debate, and the forum has lost a master fighter for the right in the passing of Dr. Staley. No orator could frighten him, no debater could scare him. I delighted to see him in battle. Flanking his courage of conviction with his unsurpassed friendliness and sincerity; seasoned with flashing, sparkling wit, he was the equal of any of his day. What clever turns he could make when on a convention floor some of his fellows had become over-heated in their arguments with one another! Dr. Staley would whisper to a neighbor, and say: "Would you tell them a joke? I believe I shall tell them a little story." And in a half minute the whole house would be in an uproar of laughter as it listened to his story and marked his inimitable mimicry. Angry lines in the faces of his fellows had been loosed with laughter, and the day was saved with words aptly spoken.

From the fixing of a fishing tackle, to the forming of a college, an orphanage, a church, or a convention, Dr. Staley went about his task unafraid. While he was never officious, persons of power, wealth, or influence could not intimidate him. He was too courageous to be timid, and too sincere to pretend that he was; and thus he made a great executive as well as a mighty good business man. Even in the matter of his dress he was not swayed by changing styles, although always well attired. So I characterize him as sincere, friendly, and unafraid.

No wonder he could follow, at the age of twenty-three, one of the greatest preachers of his denomination, and hold his place for well-nigh half a century, for he had natural ability, a student's mind, a discerning insight, to which he added the above qualities in full measure.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Are you thinking about the special Thanksgiving offering in your church and Sunday School for your Christian Orphanage? Have you decided just how much you are going to invest in these little children this Thanksgiving? Don't you want them to have bread and comfortable clothing this winter? Don't you want to see them have an opportunity to grow into fine young men and women? They are helpless. They are dependent. They are looking to you. Are you willing to divide with them? They are wards of the Christian Church. It is the duty of every member of the church to help.

Suppose every member of the church would contribute one dollar in this Thanksgiving campaign, or every church make up an offering equal to a dollar per member. It would place the Orphanage in splendid financial condition and no one would be hurt. Of course, some would have to give much more than the dollar, because some would not give a dollar, but suppose you could average that, what a fine spirit it would show.

Good soldiers fight the harder when the battle is against them. Ball players put all they have in the game when the opposing team is winning. The Orphanage needs you more than ever this year. Won't you put up a good fight in your church for a big offering.

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronounced text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

motorist is to drive as fast as he considers it safe to drive. We may come to that decision ourselves some day. Certainly the present chaos in our laws, with the speed limit varying enormously from State to State, and in the cities and villages of each State, leads only to a disregard for law, and a diminishing of the motorist's sense of individual responsibility.

Responsibility must go with power and privilege. An operator of any machine, not omitting the machine of his own body and mind, must be held to prudence and sanity, to a just regard for others, to a wise consideration of the general welfare. It must all come to this, however many laws we may make.

It is in that way God conducts his moral universe. He gives us life, with an immense array of possibilities both of evil and good. Then he holds us strictly to such a use of life as will result in good and not in evil. The true child of God will be proud of the trust thus reposed in him, and will so use it as not to abuse it.

Prayer—Thy law, O God, is the law of liberty. "Our wills are free, to make them thine." Thy wish is our law, our all-sufficient law. Daily and hourly we would pray, with thy well-beloved Son, "Thy will, not mine, be done."—Amen.

PISGAH, ALABAMA.

The Pisgah Church has held up fine under this financial strain that seems to cover the entire country. We have not been able to do much in a financial way, but we haven't given up yet, and are pulling to make some numerical gains and hoping to see the day when we can make a better response to the financial needs of the church at large.

Our summer revival was conducted by Rev. J. D. Dollar, of Lanett, Ala. We began on the fifth Sunday in July, and for ten days Bro. Dollar preached a series of the best sermons we ever listened to from him. Bro. Dollar is indeed a great preacher. The meetings resulted in the church being greatly revived. Four new members united with the church. Later six more united, making ten for this year.

Last Saturday the church met in conference and among other business transacted, elected three deacons who were ordained the following day. The three brethren elected to this office are among our best, and I believe will make splendid officers.

We face the future with hope. One of our difficulties is being isolated from the main body of the conference. We need more churches and there is room for more. The county needs them. Some might wonder why this writer, with only a portion of his time filled, does not get out and organize some work. But every man has his limitations. I am serving this church at a sacrifice. I can't sacrifice more.

A mistake that I am sure is being made now is in neglecting our missionary opportunities in this portion of the country. This course, if continued, will ultimately result in the loss of the work that has already been established.

I trust that those in authority will see the wisdom of enlarging the work here.

FLORIDA MINISTERS' CONVOCATION.

The Sixth Annual Congregational Ministers' Convocation for Florida was held at the Seaside Inn at Daytona Beach, October 3rd-6th. Almost all of the pastors attended and there were some ministers present who are not pastors at present. The wives of several pastors also were present.

The program was especially strong and interesting, and all were enthusiastic about the value of the fellowship and the discussions.

Rev. Frederick L. Fagley, D. D., secretary of the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life, conducted a Seminar of Worship, which proved to be not only informing but inspiring. Dr. A. J. Price, of the Community M. E. Church, conducted a round table on pastoral problems. Many questions had been sent in by the pastors and these discussions proved to be most vital and helpful. In the evenings of the session the following addresses were also given: Dr. Fagley on, "Some Contributions to Our American Life Through Our Congregational Tradition;" Dr. C. A. Vincent on, "Why I Pray;" Dr. H. Samuel Fritsch on, "Putting Pep Into the Evening Service;" and Rev. O. T. Anderson on, "The Minister and the Depression." Dr. E. C. Gillette conducted a period of discussion on State Conference and promotional matters. A meeting of the State Conference directors was held in which were considered such matters as the missionary budget for the coming year; the Conference's participation in the ownership or control of the property at Camp Immokalee, and plans for the spring meeting of the Conference, which will be held at Ormond, April 18th-20th.

MARRIAGES

ANDREWS—LASHLEY.

At the home of the writer, on Saturday, October 15, 1932, Mr. Twyman G. Andrews, of Siler City, Route 1, and Miss Beatrice Lashley, of Liberty, Route 3, said the vows that made them husband and wife in the presence of two other young couples, who accompanied them, namely, Mr. Perry Smith and Miss Reeda Andrews, Mr. Clifford Carter and Miss Joy Andrews, all of the Pleasant Hill community.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. D. H. Lashley, and the groom is the son of Mr. L. G. Andrews. Both the very popular young people and members of the Pleasant Hill Church.

The groom is also a member of the Liberty School faculty and a graduate of Elon College.

Their many friends will wish for them much happiness in their wedded life.

Deflation in Bank Credit is Checked.—

A fundamental factor in the improvement of general economic conditions is seen in the checking of bank credit deflation since July. In November, 1930, total loans and investments of banks had reached a peak of $23,600,000,000. By last July this enormous sum had been cut to $18,420,000,000 or nearly 22 per cent. The latest available statement, that of October 19th, shows that this amount has increased to $19,120,000,000 in the last four months, and will possibly continue still further to increase. It takes a long while for the little fellow to feel the effects of the upward turn, but we venture the statement that he who predicts that "prosperity is just around the corner," will not be far off this time, if every one, little and large, will do his bit to bring about prosperity's return.

Use Your Ballot—

Regardless of party affiliations, regardless of opinions upon the vital questions confronting the nation today, it is an obligation resting upon every citizen of the entire United States to go to the polls, and with prayerful and careful consideration, cast his ballot for the men whom he believes will best support the moral and spiritual uplift as well as the other interests of the country. The South has little enough to say in the selection of national leaders, but that little should be well said and to the point. If you are a "dry," go to the polls and vote "dry." There are at least a half-dozen candidates for Congress in the State of Virginia, who are bone dry, and there are those in North Carolina and the other Southern States. If you believe that the law should be modified, there are candidates who are in line with your belief. If you are a "repealist" and can conscientiously say that you believe in unqualified repeal, there are still those whom you can support. Prohibition forces are divided as to the actual differences between the stands of the two major parties. Anyone who wishes can easily ascertain which more nearly coincides with their opinion. But in the members of Congress to be chosen, one can find those whose beliefs and wishes are identical with their own. It is their duty to inform themselves and to vote accordingly. Truly the time has come when men should put principle above party, and should vote for what they conscientiously believe to be right.

Added to Poverty—Grief.—

Even under normal conditions there is no place beneath the American flag where more people are crowded into a smaller area or fed on shorter rations than in Puerto Rico. As some wag once put it, the West Indies are the place where birth defies control! In Puerto Rico the population has outrun the means of subsistence, with the result that most of the inhabitants are on the edge of hunger all the time. This means that when a hurricane comes along and wrecks their habitations there is no reserve of savings upon which they can draw. Homelessness is added to hunger. The final toll of the storm of September 26th is given by government officials at 217 killed, 2,219 injured, and 75,000 homeless. The army has been asked to send 5,000 tents, 30,000 cots, and a corresponding number of blankets, while the Red Cross responded with an initial shipment of 5,000 barrels of flour. One of the curious phases of the disaster is that when the powerhouse at San Juan was put out of commission by the storm the bread supply of the city was shut off, as the people are almost wholly dependent on commercial bakeries for the staff of life. The reports to the American Missionary Association are that all are safe, but that the new building at Blanche Kellogg Institute and several of the churches were unroofed. Apparently the Ryder Memorial Hospital and the Union Theological Seminary were not seriously affected. The damages to the property of the American Missionary Association are estimated at $25,000, of which $16,000 is covered by insurance. Contributions toward the balance of $9,000 will be most welcome.—The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Wages and the Living Scale.—

In discussing the effect of low wages upon family welfare, a report recently issued by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor says: "Despite the combined efforts of the family, the living conditions were frequently all too meagre, and the children were brought up in miserable houses—overcrowded, poorly constructed, and with little in the way of modern plumbing, and in undesirable surroundings. Although they seldom went hungry their food was often monotonous and usually inadequate to meet the needs of growing children." The report was based upon the study of 550 families with 1,674 children in ten States. It states that 248 of these families succeeded in keeping their year's expenditures within their year's income, 36 met the deficit by drawing upon past savings, 55 by the use of savings and going into debt, and 196 by debt alone. Fifteen families did not report on this phase. This survey, although the results were but recently issued, did not cover a period of the depression, but from October, 1927, to June, 1929. And by its study a new angle on the cause of depression might be discovered: Out of 550 families living during the boom period before 1930, 302 were living beyond their means. If this is typical of the entire country, then out of 25 million families in the United States, 13,728,000 were spending more than they made!

A collapse was inevitable. We decry the oppression of the poor and their under-payment, but it seems that there is conclusive evidence in the report above mentioned, that it was not the smallness of the wage, but the inability or unwillingness of both great and small, rich and poor, to put first things first, that caused the debacle which followed. We wonder whether we have even now learned our lesson?

Liquor Versus Milk in Chicago.—

Dr. R. W. Gammon, Western editor, in a recent issue of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, tells us that the gangsters of Chicago, Ill., are deserting the liquor racket for that of milk. He says: "Who would have ever thought that milk would contend for supremacy with liquor in the minds of gangsters? Those who ought to know, however, say that racketeering in other lines, including milk, is about three times as profitable now as that in liquor. The attention that the gangsters are paying to the milk business has brought about some striking changes in the milk drivers' union of the city. The union headquarters has been fortified, and a police squad has a machine-gun nest across the street from the building. The house has been reinforced with armour plate, and the head of the union uses an armoured car." The writer continues to state that there is no attempt at secrecy on the part of the gangsters, in their attempt to gain control of the milk drivers' union, and that this is the beginning of an effort to control all teamster unions in the city. The men who have engineered the attempt are well known criminal characters. The president of the union said frankly that he was invited to either go along with them or to sell out to them, and "guns as well as cards" were laid upon the table. Dr. Gammon continues: "I have been trying to figure out just how prohibition is to blame for this sort of thing, but haven't been able to do it. The 'wets' say that prohibition brought the gangster into existence. If my memory serves me right, there were a great number of small gangsters in this city thirty years ago, and murder, bootlegging, gambling, the social evil, and the white slave trade quite largely ruled the city. I wonder if the greatness of the gangsters now cannot be attributed to the use of the automobile, to the fact that the world deals in much larger sums of money than it did thirty years ago, and to the fact that we had a World War that cheapened human life tremendously, and greatly increased brutality? . . . If the federal government acknowledges that it is powerless to control the liquor or any other traffic, we shall have a period lawlessness such as the country has never known. Woe unto America when it says to the liquor gang, 'We can't control you; you are too strong for us!'"

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. A. W. Hurst was the preacher at First Church, Portsmouth, Sunday, October 23rd, and was favorably impressed with the attendance at the service and the fine fellowship and cooperation that seemed evident in the congregation. Bro. Hurst reported a very pleasant service with our good Portsmouth people.

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill and Miss Gladys Hall, social worker in connection with the West Tampa Mission, are spending a week in the lower East Coast of Florida, visiting the churches in West Palm Beach and Miami. Miss Hall is speaking on behalf of the work of the West Tampa Mission and Miss Coghill on behalf of missionary education in the local church.

Rev. Helen F. Lanham, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Miami, reports that ten new members have been received into the church since the pastor's return from a vacation. Some of these are already effectively engaged in the church work. She reports that Mr. Frank Struby, formerly an officer of the famous Olympiad Men's Bible Class in Miami, is teaching the Men's Class in the First Church.

The men of Crystal Springs, Fla., recently re-roofed the church and made some other repairs and improvements. The ladies of the church served luncheon for the "Bee." The pastor, Rev. George K. Goodwin, reports that all necessary bills were covered by gifts. This little church was organized by the man who built the famous "Little Brown Church in the Wildwood." This church he called "The Little Brown Church in the Glade," but no one wrote a song about it.

President L. E. Smith, Elon College, N. C., received the sad news, Monday, October 24th, that his brother was in an automobile collision about 10:00 A. M., and died in an Atlanta hospital from the effects of the accident at 2 P. M. the same day. Dr. Smith left Elon for Atlanta on the midnight train Monday, to be with the bereaved ones there and to attend the funeral. He and the family have our deepest sympathy in this hour of tragic bereavement and sorrow.

Rev. F. C. Lester, Waverly, Va., one of the most loyal and faithful of Elon's sons, was a member of the group that met at the college, Monday evening, October 24th, to take counsel as to the best method of putting on the campaign for the "Dollar-a-Month Club." Bro. Lester remained over for the night and took part in the chapel service, Tuesday morning. As chairman of our board of religious education and pastor of one of our good churches, Bro. Lester is a busy man and a faithful worker.

Mrs. R. T. Grissom, Fancy Gap, Va., writes: "I have organized a Woman's Missionary Society at Rocky Ford Church, with seven charter members. We have others who plan to come yet. The women seem quite enthusiastic over the prospect of studying missions. I hope to be able to organize a Society at Elk Spur before very long." In this way and in others, our membership and people in Carroll County are coming to be one with us in church work, in burden-bearing for the Kingdom, and best of all, in Christian cooperation and fellowship.

Dr. Arthur E. Leonard, formerly of Eua Claire, Wis., began service with the Coral Gables Church on October 23rd. He was greeted by a large congregation and both Dr. Leonard and members of the church report mutual appreciation and an anticipation of a happy future under his leadership. Tuesday, November 25th, the ladies of the church gave a reception for Dr. and Mrs. Leonard. The Miami papers printed an interesting announcement and pictures of Dr. Leonard. Mrs. Leonard is recovering from an accident which occurred a few weeks earlier and which delayed their coming to Coral Gables.

This from a reader at Hopewell, Va.: "It was with a great feeling of personal loss that I read of the death of Dr. Staley. I cherish the memory that I have of him and the time he stayed in my humble home. He always seemed to have such a fatherly concern for the Hopewell church, and many of us did appreciate it so much. Death is only a separation for God's children, and 'Twill not be long, it may be soon,' when we will meet him on a fairer shore. God grant that we may be faithful to the trust he has given us. The memorials in THE SUN to Dr. Staley were so good, especially the one, 'There was a man sent from God'."

The week-end conference for young people at St. Petersburg was well attended and the program was a strong and constructive one. The conference was called "Little Imokalee." The group conferences were conducted by Rev. Walter Metcalf, of Tampa, Dr. Garth of the Methodist Episcopal Church of St. Petersburg, and Miss Pattie Lee Coghill. Superintendent Gillette preached the sermon Sunday morning. The whole program was under the direction of Rev. Lawrence A. Gedcke, of the St. Petersburg Church. Following the conference Miss Coghill remained in St. Petersburg to teach in an interdenominational leadership training school.

Circle No. 1, of the Woman's Missionary Society, Elon College Community Church, has given to its members and the public its program for 1932-'33, in the form of a neatly prepared brochure of twenty-six pages, carrying on the front pages of its cover the names of officers of the General Society, the members of Circle No. 1, and the names of committees for the year, one page being given solely to the full program of the Circle for twelve months. This, indeed, is an enviable piece of constructive work on the part of some one and gives publicity and security to the programs and the work of the Circle and the Society for the year. Other Societies could certainly well profit by the example thus set by this industrious and loyal Circle of the missionary enthusiasts.

Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, Ingram, Va., having recently undergone a minor surgical operation, was unable to supply his pulpit at Apple's Chapel Sunday, October 23rd. This gave the mission secretary the privilege of being in the Sunday School and preaching at the 11:00 o'clock service for this good people, whom it is a pleasure to speak to and worship with in their great, good church on the Lord's Day. We marvel constantly at the privilege and the power of officers and teachers in many of our Sunday Schools like Apple's Chapel, where there are just throngs of young people and children ready to be taught, restless and eager to learn and to know. If one wishes to face the prospect and the power of religious education, let one look upon the multitudes of our youth that gather in our Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies.

The Virginian-Pilot of Norfolk recently carried the following news item, which will be of interest to many SUN readers: "The Rev. H. C. Caviness, formerly of the First Christian Church of Portsmouth, has just completed a revival at the Salemburg Baptist Church and Pineland College, N. C. The revival has been a most remarkable one. The preacher has been used in a mighty way in reviving the church, the community and in blessing Pineland College. There were a large number who made professions of faith in Christ, and also a good number reclaimed in faith. Twenty-one joined the church. Fifty of the young women of the college dedicated themselves to definite Christian work, a number of them to go as missionaries in foreign fields. Mrs. Caviness' work with the women holding prayer meetings and giving lectures was most effective in its results."

Our felicitations to our friend, W. C. Beamon, secretary of our Oak Grove Church, Savage, N. C., At a meeting of the Board of Trustees in Greensboro, N. C., October 24th, of the Odd Fellows Orphanage at Goldsboro, Bro. Beamon was elected superintendent of the Orphanage, succeeding in that office Rev. E. L. Stack, a Methodist minister, who resigns the work to return to the Methodist pastorate. For some years Bro. Beamon has been connected with the Odd Fellows Orphanage as financial secretary and in charge of the concert class sent out by the institution annually. He will carry into his work, as superintendent of this children's home, business ability, consecrated leadership, intellectual, moral and spiritual equipment. We predict for the Home, under his management, a continuation of the history of this institution, which, while contributing much to the good of human society, finds itself in these strenuous times without any indebtedness and facing the future with hope, prospect and a balanced budget.

SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS FOR OCTOBER.

THE SUN reports remittances on subscriptions during the month of October from the following:

NEWS FROM GEORGIA AND CAROLINAS.

By unanimous and enthusiastic vote the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference adopted a constitution and by-laws which unites it with the Georgia Congregational Conference. This was done at its meeting at Richland, October 4th and 5th. The name of the new organization is, "The Georgia Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches."

The final step in this "Georgia Merger" will be taken by the Congregational Conference at its meeting at Duncan's Creek, November 1st and 2nd. There the same constitution will be adopted. At this meeting the Christian Churches of Georgia will be represented by delegates and ministers on the same basis as that governing the Congregational people. Following the adoption of the constitution there will be a joint ratification meeting in which both branches of the merger will participate. In this way Georgia will be the first State in the South organically to unite its forces in the merger of the two denominations. It is true that Alabama has voted to unite, but both the Congregational and Christian conferences retain their identity and meet separately each year. By unanimous vote of the Christians of Georgia, their conference adjourned sine die. There will be no separate meetings of the Georgia conferences after this year. Necessary legal matters will be conserved by carrying forward officers to satisfy the legal requirements, but these will meet at the same time and place with the regular conference. Just as soon as practical the new body will be incorporated. Then all work will be done as it should be, by the one conference.

Another interesting item was that the Georgia-Alabama Conference unanimously voted to adopt State lines for Georgia. This, again, is as it should be. In all this matter provision was amply made to carry on in the realm of home missions and the Orphanage exactly as heretofore. There will be no change in the method of collecting and distributing missionary money. To meet this need, the Georgia and Alabama Conference elected an executive committee with power to act in every way that may be required for the conference. This committee is made up of Rev. J. H. Dollar, LaGrange, president; Rev. C. W. Hanson, LaGrange, vice-president; Rev. David W. Shepherd, Columbus, secretary; Rev. H. M. Gray, pastor at Richland, but living in Langdale, Ala., assistant secretary; and Mr. H. L. Floyd, Chipley.

This whole forward-looking program is in line with the action taken by the Southern Convention at Burlington last spring. At Duncan's Creek, when the Congregational wing shall adopt the same constitution, officers will be elected for the Georgia Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches. Hereafter there will be no separate meetings. The two bodies are, or will be, organically joined. "And God saw that it was good."

In connection with this item, the report of the Committee on Resolutions, which was adopted at the meeting of the Georgia and Alabama Conference, at Richland, Ga., October 4th and 5th, is significant. Here it is:

"In profound gratitude to Almighty God for all the ways in which he has led us, your Committee on Resolutions submit the following report:

"That praise to our Father in heaven be fervently offered by every heart for his great kindness and love to us during the eighty-seven years of our splendid history. We recount, with the love of little children, his fatherly guidance and leadership and his constantly abounding blessings manifest in innumerable ways. In humble recognition of these uncounted tokens of his mercy we here and now and shall so long as time shall last, give unto him our everlasting praises and thanksgiving. Our hearts are overflowing with deep gratitude and love.

"That we view with just pride the history of this conference. Its deeds have been manifold. We, as children of our founders and fathers in this faith, rise up and call them blessed. The memory of their holy faith and works shall ever be a well of living water springing up in our hearts to inspire us to noble deeds of valor in the further adventures of devout Christian endeavor as the coming years shall bring us to new understandings of the truth of God as he shall reveal his good and holy will to us. And we would especially remember the Christ-like life and great and sacrificing example of the man whom we have in times past, and shall so long as love of man for man shall last, honor and revere, our great benefactor, friend and counsellor, Rev. H. W. Elder, man among men, and servant of God.

"That we heartily welcome the coming of the day which hastens the answer of our Lord's prayer "That they may all be one." Into the new relationships with our Congregational brethren we shall carry the same spirit of devotion, zeal in Christ's cause, loyalty to the principles of "Peace on earth, good will toward men," that has characterized our happy history. We hope and pray that our new and larger fellowship resulting from the forming of the Georgia Congregational and Christian Conference, shall bring to all of our churches a consciousness of a greater world and a greater task and an ever increasing strength as they give themselves to the continued cooperation with Christ in bringing the Kingdom of our Lord to the hearts and lives of men.

"That this conference deeply appreciates the work of the executive committee and other officers and committees which have so faithfully carried on our work during the past year, and brought to us this inspiring program for this meeting. We also thank all who in any way have contributed to the success of this program. And we would especially express our thanks to our good and faithful secretary, Mrs. J. O. Mabry, whose sincere attention and labor have contributed so much to this and other meetings of this conference.

"That the beautiful hospitality of this church and its many friends of other churches of Richland appeals to us in a most significant manner. It reminds us of the "Beauty of the Lord" round about us. It indicates "oneness" of his people in all things essential. Our hearty thanks go forth from sincere delegates and visitors and with thanksgiving we offer prayers for the blessing of God upon all the homes which have contributed so much to this conference."

NOTICE.

The dates set for the three Florida Associations are as follows: The Southeast Coast Association at Palm City, November 1st; the South Association at Avon Park, November 14th-15th, and the East Coast Association at Lake Helen, November 16th-17th. Interesting programs have been arranged for each. Among the speakers at the Florida Association meetings will be Rev. Frank T. Meacham, formerly missionary in East Africa, who with his wife and daughter, have come to St. Petersburg for the winter. Mr. Meacham is recovering his health after an experience with some tropical fever, but is able to do some speaking in the interest of missions. Mrs. Meacham is a daughter of Dr. Nicholas Van der Pyl, of Oberlin, and is also available for missionary talks. They are now staying at 1935 13th St., South.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

ONE DOLLAR A MONTH.

About seventy-five invited guests of Elon College, made up mostly of alumni, representing the graduating classes from 1898 to and including 1932, and coming from various sections of North Carolina and Virginia, met at Elon College on the evening of October 24th to express opinions and help suggest and formulate plans for financing the college. President L. E. Smith presided and stated that, after much discussion and more or less effectual efforts in many directions, the plan agreed upon and adopted by a consensus of opinion is that of the "Dollar-a-Month Club." The goal of this campaign is 5,000 memberships, which, if secured, would bring to the college $60,000.00 annually, if each member secured would pay the membership fee monthly.

President Smith outlined various possible sources of approach and the fields to be worked, as follows: 26,000 members of the Christian Churches in Carolina and Virginia; 40,000 people in Alamance County; 10,000 alumni and former students of Elon, and about 15,000 members of our Congregational constituency in the Carolinas and Virginia—a total of 91,000 people. Allow 11,000 for overlapping in these estimates, leaving a total of 80,000. Of this number it was logically estimated that there must be 29,000 wage earners and those engaged in productive industries. Of this 20,000, it is believed that 5,000 could be found who, either having been benefited by Elon College, or realizing the college as essential to the life and growth of our Congregational-Christian constituency in the Southeast, and the contribution the college is making to Christian Education and Christian citizenship, would, if properly approached, make an offering of $1.00 a month each to put the college on sound and safe footing.

The problem discussed at the meeting held October 24th, was that of the most effectual and economic method of approaching and securing the names of the 5,000. Any campaign for money costs money, and the desire is to carry on this campaign with the very minimum of outlay to secure the maximum results. This is essential to the success and security of the whole situation. It may seem an insignificant thing to think that gifts of $1.00 a month can save a great institution, and put it on a solid foundation and guarantee its security. On the other hand, those who have taken counsel realize that this is the one sensible and logical thing to do. None of us can make large contributions, but we can, by constant self-denial, make small contributions, and by working together and putting our gifts together make a vast total. A dollar is worth much or little, according to the company it keeps, and our dollars for Elon at this time will be in good company. A committee was appointed with power to set up the organization and push the campaign vigorously, especially for the next three months, or until the goal is reached. Any one reading this and desiring to make a real contribution to Christian education, and the cause of the Kingdom, will confer a lasting favor and make a real contribution, by writing to the college and voluntarily becoming a member of the Dollar-a-Month Club.

The poor and the small givers have always had to lead the rich and the large givers into the great and good things for God. Only when the rich and the large givers see that there is safety and security in their investments will they make them even for any unselfish and benevolent purpose. If 5,000 constant givers of one dollar a month can be secured for Elon College, it will not be long until those with larger means will discover, and, in discovering, will help reward the faithfulness, the love and the liberality of the small givers. It is faith that overcomes this world, and only faith, and heroic faith, can now overcome the difficulties of financing our own Elon. A sane, safe way has been discovered. Let us, out of gratitude to Almighty God for our Elon and its great contribution to the church, to the world and the Kingdom, follow in that way and do our duty now.

J. O. A.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH.

Once a lawyer of the Pharisees approached the Christ and said: "Master, which is the great commandment?" Then Jesus said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment." And then, for the sake of further instruction to this Pharisee, our Lord said: "The second is like unto it, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Jesus did not say the second was equal to, more important, or could take the place of the first. He said, "the second is like unto it."

Much of the thinking in many of our churches today seems to be that the second commandment here named is all-sufficient, and that by loving our neighbor as ourself, doing a kindness or rendering a service to our fellowman, is not only the greatest, but the only and all-sufficient commandment. Jesus did not so teach, neither can the church so preach. Men can love and serve their fellowman without loving and serving God; but they cannot love and serve God without loving and serving their fellowman. It makes all the difference in the world as to the motive, the promptings and the object of the serving. I may give a cup of water to drink to one who is thirsty, but there is no reward promised for that. However, if the cup of water is given in the name of a disciple, out of love to my needy brother because he is my Father's child, that is the service that is promised a reward.

The great object and mission of the church is to teach the world which is the first and great commandment, and then out of that teaching live the life implied by and comprehended in the second commandment. There are millions of people in the world today who will do a kindness to their fellowman, help feed the hungry, help care for the needy, but who will declare that they neither believe in God nor will they have anything to do in his name and for his sake. Soviet Russia, for instance, is seeking as a great nation to serve millions of human beings, but Soviet Russia has put a ban on God, held up to scorn and ridicule the name, the worship, the service of God.

Your humanitarian philosophers are doing the same sort of subtle work. They are making us believe that the only god is Humanity and the only god we can serve and worship is our fellowman. It has all come about by substituting that which our Lord called the second "and like unto it," for the first and great commandment, leaving out from the picture and ignoring the first and great commandment. The church that undertakes to put God first and keep him first is fulfilling its high commission. In speaking of the mission of the church, one feels the force of this paragraph from the National Christian Advocate:

"The mission of the church is the salvation of men and of society. It is to make men what they ought to be toward God and their neighbors. The church is not an end in itself, but the means to an end, which is the regeneration of society and the establishment of the Kingdom of God. Everywhere the church has gone in the name of her Lord, darkness has been scattered, wrongs have been exposed, justice has been enthroned, and love and mercy have been proclaimed as the will of God for man. Institutions of love and sympathy and education have sprung up like flowers in her path; and if civilization is still only partially civilized, it is from the fact that the best efforts of the church have been rejected by individuals and by nations. If the church had never trained and sent forth her mightiest sons and daughters to carry in her Master's work, the civilization of Europe and America would not be beyond that of India or Africa. There would be a tremendous slump in morals and a thousand doors of unspeakable degradation flung open to the feet of our young men and women if the church for one hour should cease her mission. Every man who turns his back on the church is contributing in his measure to the degradation of the entire country."

GRAVEYARD MEMBERS.

Our esteemed contemporary, The Methodist Protestant Herald, grapples first-hand with a great problem in giving its readers light on the "graveyard members." THE SUN's editor had the suspicion that no other communion was quite so heavily burdened with graveyard members as our Christian Churches. Reading The Herald's editorial divulges that our Methodist Protestant churches are also linked with "this body of death." One pastor, in the editorial referred to, declares that he never had been pastor of a church yet in which he did not have to deal with the problem of the "graveyard members." They are not church members in reality. They belong solely to the graveyard. Inviting these members of the graveyard, who think that they are members of the church, to become members of a church in the town or community where they live, The Herald writer says, he gets this answer: "Well, we enjoy attending the church here, but we hate to leave the old church; our grandparents are buried there, our parents are buried there, and some day we hope to be buried there."

Now, what our contemporary can't understand is why such people feel that they must keep their names back yonder in the old home church in order that they may be buried in its cemetery when they die, for he declares that he has never seen a preacher nor a church who is not willing to carry the body of one of its members back to the old home burial ground and bury it in the graveyard there after he is dead, even if while alive he tried to show some life by uniting with a church of his own denomination in the town or community where he lived and while he lived.

It is a problem of no small moment. There are weak, struggling churches in towns and cities especially, which could be strong ones and go on to greater undertakings and tasks, if dozens, sometimes scores, of those living around would transfer their membership from the graveyard to the roll of the church, whose pastor they hear preach quite often, which church they attend frequently as visitors, and which church bears the same name so far as communion or denomination is concerned as the church that stands beside the graveyard to which these members belong. One pastor, with not a few of the graveyard members in his reach and frequent hearing, asks if this is what Paul had in mind when writing to the Romans (chapter 7, verse 24): "O wretched man that I am; who shall deliver me from the body of this death." J. O. A.

SOLVING PRESENT ECONOMIC PROBLEMS.

Those who think present economic conditions can be solved by vociferous utterances and impassioned pleadings of politicians and candidates for office will have another "think" coming, provided Dr. E. Graham Wilson's history and declarations prove true. And whether we agree with Dr. Wilson or not, there is something far-reaching and seemingly quite fundamental as well as appealing in the four declarations he makes:

1. America was founded by God-fearing men and women who sought first the Kingdom of God.

2. Every great crisis in the history of America has been met by a return to God and the spiritual ideals.

3. Present economic problems will be solved as we prostrate ourselves before God, confessing our sins and pledging anew our fealty to the Father of us all.

4. America's greatest need is not gold, but God. He alone can meet our deepest needs and give us those moral and spiritual foundations without which the material development which has come to our country will be our ruin.

FACING TROUBLE.

Without doubt this is a troubled world. It is not necessary to tell our readers any particular thing about this or that trouble. No speaker or writer today gets anywhere by dwelling on the evils of the hour. We know all about them and are tired of them and wish we could never hear of them again. But, alas, we must face them every day. What we want to know is how to face trouble and overcome it.

The world is not all bad. That is one thing we should be assured of. People who get discouraged often feel that the world is bad; that everything is stacked against them, and sometimes they doubt the existence of a good God. Tragedies grow out of such states of mind. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that one become certain of the existence and goodness of God. There are any number of reasons for believing this, but the best evidence for us Christians is Jesus Christ's revelation of God as Father. It is through him that we learn of the love of God for every human being. God does care for each one of us. In all our troubles faith in the unchanging love of God is the basis of our hope. With the Hebrews of old we can say, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." It was Wesley who told a man who came to him saying that his troubles and worries were more than he could bear, to look over them and above them. It so happened that these two men were out walking and Wesley saw a cow looking over a stone wall. He asked the man why the cow looked over the wall, and receiving no answer except, "I don't know," Wesley said: "Because the cow cannot see through the wall." How simple a thing that is! Really, that is one of the solutions of trouble. Faith is the power that enables us to do this. It is God who will help us if we trust to him.

The real secret of overcoming trouble is the cultivation within the soul of a calm center. We are so made that we can determine to a large extent what we will think of. We live in different mental worlds, of course, but whatever we place in the center of our thought that becomes the important determining factor. If we set our minds on the goodness of God, the comfort of religion, the hope of victory we are liable to overcome the bitter sting of trouble. If we can believe also that at heart the world is sound that will help. It is said that at its center a hurricane is calm. And so it may be in human life, if a calm center is developed. This cannot be done in a day or a week; it is the result of a cultivation covering years. It is a habit of life, and those who possess God at the center of things maintain some degree of balance in the midst of distress and sorrow. "Let nothing disturb thee, nothing fright thee; all things are passing; God never changes. Patient endurance attaineth all things, and whom God possesses in nothing is wanting for God alone suffices." Something like this is what we all need today.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIR:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Eastern Virginia Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Christian Conference met with South Norfolk Christian Church, Friday, October 28, 1932. The session was called to order at 10:30 A. M., by Mrs. Joe Bynum Gay, vice-president, Franklin, Va. Mrs. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va., was elected secretary pro tem.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. J. F. Morgan of the Rosemont Christian Church. Scripture lesson, John 6:1-14. Theme, "Co-Workers With God." She laid emphasis upon the fact that the lad gave his small gift and Jesus added a great gift of power to it. Then it was multiplied and it fed the multitude.

The theme of the Conference was "Triumphant Living." The address of the president, Mrs. R. T. Bradford, was read by Mrs. Joe Bynum Gay. The discussion of this theme was interesting and helpful. There was a call to a dedication of one's gifts to God with a high and holy purpose of living the triumphant life. Life is not a failure—it is worth living. And it is worth living well. In this life the spiritual should be first. A recovery of spiritual power will help the church to solve many of the disturbing financial and social problems of today.

Mrs. Jeanette Emrich, of New York City, delivered an instructive address on, "It Is a Fine Thing that God Left So Much for Us to Do." Mrs. Emrich, who has for fourteen years engaged in missionary work in Turkey, is at this time a leader in international relations and social problems. She began her address by saying: "One of the most difficult things in life is change. That makes it difficult for parents to follow the development of the growing child. The wise parent will follow the child in its growth. Don't be afraid to study. Be frank with yourself and look at things as they are."

She continued by saying: "Do not be disturbed by the changing conditions and methods in the mission fields. Methods have changed very much during the past twenty-five years. Science and invention have brought the world into closer contact."

Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, Southern Christian Convention, gave an excellent address on the theme, "Putting God First," saying in part: "In these recent years man has sought to humanize God and make the world divine. Man swept the heavens with his telescope and did not find God there. He looked into the natural world, through his microscope, and found it full of beauty and interest. God has been pushed out of so many lives and benevolence has been substituted for him. A man may be very kind and benevolent and hate God. But he cannot love God supremely and be a bad man. Putting God first will bring new meaning into every life."

Mrs. Herbert P. Harrell, of Driver, conducted a memorial service in honor of those who have died since the last annual missionary conference.

The report of Mrs. W. V. Leathers, treasurer, showed that during the past year the following amounts were raised for missions: Women's Societies, $3,530.83; Young People's Societies, $1,150.55; Juniors, $472.45; Cradle Roll, 105.89; Rally Offerings, $44.57; grand total, $5,304.29.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Joe Bynum Gay, president; Mrs. R. T. Bradford, first vice-president; Mrs. W. H. Baker, second vice-president; Mrs. L. W. Stagg, secretary; Mrs. I. W. Johnson, assistant secretary; Mrs. W. V. Leathers, treasurer; Mrs. O. M. Cokes, superintendent spiritual life; Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, superintendent literature; Mrs. H. P. Harrell, superintendent life memberships and memorials; Mrs. F. M. Nelson, superintendent cradle roll.

More than 200 delegates and visitors attended the session. The next session will meet at Cypress Chapel in 1933. I. W. JOHNSON.

ELON'S HOPE.

Elon College stands on highway No. 10, in the heart of the great State of North Carolina. She has been standing there for more than forty years, calling to her counsel and halls of instruction the young men and young women of our church, of our State, and of our nation, pouring into their minds and hearts the best of intellect, of morals and religion. Out from her campus have gone scores and hundreds of young men and young women fired with high ambitions and piloted on by high ideals. You find them today in the marts of business, in the halls of instruction, in the pulpits of the kingdom. Wherever they have gone, they have left their mark upon society, a mark of honesty and of integrity.

It is her hope to continue this high service to humanity and to the world. She can never realize this hope without the continual thought, support, prayers, and gifts on the part of those whom she has helped both directly and indirectly. Elon College is only an institution, a place where men and women may congregate with prayerful minds, honest hearts and ideals to impart instruction to those who would drink at the fountain of knowledge. She has no way of earning for herself. Those who love her must come with their gifts. These are days of need—great need. She cannot meet her own needs, but is looking to her own to meet her needs for her—looking to the church that founded her, to the friends who have supported her, and to her own whom she has trained and fitted for life.

Elon College cannot fail, but it is an easy matter for those upon whom she depends to fail. And like the prophet of old as he observed the people of God and the caravans of the nation passing by Jerusalem, the Holy City, in need and utter desperation, cried out: "Is it nothing to you, all ye who pass by?" The people with their plenty were passing to and fro to market, but apparently uninterested, unconcerned and undisturbed on account of Jerusalem's plight. Is it nothing to you—to ye who pass by—you who constitute the church—you who would be known as friends—you who are the former students and alumni of the college—is it nothing to you that the college is now in need—in need of commendation—in need of encouragement—in need of patronage—in need of financial support—you who have received—you who are able—you who have been blest—is it nothing to you?

Now is the time to come to the assistance of your college—to give of what you have that she may continue. You may give through your church by seeing that your apportionment to conference is raised in full and sent in promptly—by sending your gifts direct to the college—by paying your dues in the Dollar-a-Month Club. If you are not a member of the Dollar-a-Month Club yet, now is the best time to become a member. Send in your name and a contribution at once. We are beginning now in dead earnest to give every member of the church—every former student—every alumni and every friend of the college an opportunity to take memberships in the Dollar-a-Month Club. Many of you can and should take more than one membership. Ours is not a small constituency from which we may rightly expect support. We have the Congregational-Christian Churches in Carolina and Virginia. We have all former students—we have the alumni of the college—we have the entire citizenship of Alamance County. In this combined field we have a total citizenship of more than eighty thousand. Out of these eighty thousand it is certainly possible to find five thousand who will give a dollar a month to so good a cause as Christian education—our own church college.

This is our job and the task to which the Central Committee of the Dollar-a-Month Club dedicated itself in an enthusiastic and optimistic meeting in the president's office on Friday evening of last week. The organization is to be completed in a few weeks which will make a complete survey and an intensive effort to carry the cause of the college and its appeal to every individual in her natural constituency. By vote of that Committee the president of the institution was requested to attend the annual conferences of the churches in North Carolina and Virginia—present the needs of the college and appeal for memberships in the Dollar-a-Month Club. Will you who read this article, read it carefully, come to the conference session to give assistance in its consecrated undertakings for the institution of our church that is so dear to the hearts of us all.

L. E. SMITH.

A CHARACTER STUDY.

During the past week one of the greatest men of the Christian Church passed from labor to reward, from time to eternity. Any Christian minister in Eastern Virginia or North Carolina would neglect a momentous opportunity if he failed to hold this superb character before the eyes of his people. It is a great opportunity because there are so many people who have almost arrived at the conclusion that goodness is a lost art. They accept it as a matter of fact that Jesus and a few other Biblical characters were really good men, but they frankly do not expect such today. Therefore, it is a tremendous asset for the minister to be able to point to a person, known and loved, in whom one might detect the elements of true greatness and goodness. It thereby rescues goodness from the realm of the impossible and places it within the reach of every one. It gives the minister's message the ring of reality and challenges the people to capture the radiance of such a life.

Let it be said of Dr. Staley that he was always in his place. I have noticed that at conference. A few weeks before his death he traveled to Elon College to be in his place when the Board of Trustees met. We have some members who are here and there—"mostly there." There is a significant statement concerning Jesus. "As his custom was he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day." He was in his place. I declare that when the Sabbath day comes, that day which the Lord commanded us to keep holy, our place as Christian men and women, is with Jesus in the house of prayer.

I marvel also when I think how he touched the lives of so many different classes. Paul once said, "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." (I. Cor. 9:22.) Were it not for the tempering effect of the Gulf Stream, England would have a cold climate about like that of southern Alaska. Because of the Gulf Stream the waters west of England and Norway are warmed so that winds from them give all the countries of northwestern Europe a climate adapted in the highest degree to the promotion of civilization. Such was the influence of Dr. Staley. Wherever he went he tempered the spiritual atmosphere and made it a desirable place in which to live. And as he was placed in his final resting place all classes came and acknowledged their debt of gratitude.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Yes, Dr. Staley, we now realize that no man is ready to really live until he is ready to die."

MOUNT BETHEL AND KALLAM'S GROVE.

Since the series of revival services at Mt. Bethel and Kallam's Grove, latter part of July and the first of August, prayer meetings have been held weekly at each church with good attendance and splendid results.

Mt. Bethel also has a good Christian Endeavor Society.

On the last first Sunday it was my good fortune to be at Mt. Bethel, in the evening sessions of both prayer meeting and Christian Endeavor. They hold these meetings every Sunday evening. The audience, spirit and impressions at each meeting that evening were helpful and encouraging.

The same Sunday at 3 P. M., I held my regular pulpit service at Kallam's Grove. The attendance was good, and the pianist, Mrs. Newton Joyner, was received into membership by letter.

Every Friday night since our series of meetings the first Sunday in August, this church has had prayer meeting, with an average weekly attendance of 81 per night.

They started, by agreement, to read the Bible during the week and report at prayer service how many chapters they had read. They had averaged up to the first Sunday in October, 657 chapters as a total read by those, per week, who attended.

I believe that the reading of the Bible regularly inspired attendance, for reading the word of God in the home is bound to produce glorious results. Yes, the reading of the Bible at home, meeting one another at church, holding sweet communion in prayer, in song, in meditation and the study of God's blessed truth, make life happier, home sweeter, church dearer, and heaven nearer.

I requested the Rev. A. Z. Shoemaker, a Baptist minister of the community, a devout man of God, to aid and assist the church in this delightful work. He has done so, efficiently, with joy to his own heart, gladness to the church and community and gratification to the pastor.

Each church has a good Sunday School.

May heaven's richest blessings attend these good people in their Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, prayer meeting, pulpit service and daily living.

WHAT PROPHETIC AGE?

Editor THE CHRISTIAN SUN:

Will you please give through the columns of THE SUN your understanding of what prophetic age we are now experiencing? It seems that we have come to the crossing of the ways. It is evident that we professed followers of the great Head of the Church, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, should conform as nearly to his teaching as in our ability lies. According to his word, heaven and earth shall pass away, but his word shall not pass away until all is fulfilled.

As he enjoined strict obedience to the commands and precepts given in the Holy Scriptures, which are as a light to our feet, and guide for us through this life, and as they denounce wine and strong drink, and warn us against their evil influence, how can any one who professes his name vote for any person who favors, or is indifferent to the consequences which would follow, the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or laws against this most widespread and besetting evil; this blasting curse of our country?

The Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act are no more failures than the laws against robbery or murder. It surely would not do to repeal those because they are broken. The Eighteenth Amendment would have been a grand success had our leaders been supported by those who were elected to office through solemn promises to serve the best interests of their State and nation.

How can we, as humble servants of him who gave his life for us, get on our knees, and ask our heavenly Father to guide and keep us from all evil, then go and cast our ballots for men who will be empowered to turn loose alcohol, which, as a fiery flood, will sweep the country to ruin.

Please answer in an early issue, as we are desirous of having your opinion of the matter of so much moment.

W. B. MADISON,

Wentworth, N. C.

A FEAST.

On Thursday evening, September 29th, the Young Christian Workers' Class and Christian Endeavor of Hine's Chapel had a Brunswick stew and social gathering at the home of their pastor, Rev. J. L. Neese, Greensboro, N. C.

There were about sixty present. The stew was fine, and there was feasting, indeed. Everyone had an abundance and there was plenty to spare. This gathering was heartily enjoyed by all, as was proven by the fine spirit prevailing.

There is a fine spirit of fellowship that exists between the young people and their pastor. They have learned to love him, not as a man, however, but as an agency through which they receive the Bread of Life. May God forbid that the shepherd of this young flock should ever sidestep or give them any cause to lose the faith they have in him.

When speaking of a feast the thought comes to the mind of the writer, that the Lord has a feast prepared for all who will only partake thereof. His table is well filled, there we find the food just suited to our needs, there we may fare sumptuously, the supply never runs out, and the more we eat the more we have to eat. Oh, that more would feast at the Lord's table.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Blessed Spirit, rule thou in human life. Not only is there room for thee, there is crying, desperate need. Men and women are mystified, baffled. Help thou the tempted not to forsake the house with which we have been clothed upon nor return to the old leaven of malice and sin wherein wicked spirits multiply. Keep before mankind the assurance that prayers but feebly uttered, by thy holiness and power ascending to the Father's throne, often are heard and answered when, like Jacob, we know it not. In trust we wait and pray. Amen. L.

THE MIND OF THE MASTER.

The Missionary Education Movement of the United States has asked that Sunday, November 13, 1932, be designated as "Men and Missions Sunday" in the church. It has announced that fifty-one denominations and communions are co-operating with the Laymen's Missionary Movement in this movement. Following the exercises and emphasis on missions on Sunday, November 13th, the plan contemplates the holding of a supper in the church, or at a convenient place, on Tuesday night, November 15th, at which time the subject of world-wide missions is to be promoted and discussed. The Movement has issued a booklet of sixteen pages which emphasizes the need for observation of Mission Sunday and holding a Men's Missionary Supper and suggests suitable programs for the occasion. These programs are entitled, "With the Mind of the Master." The initial call for such group action says: "In the week of November 13th, through the co-operation of fifty-one Christian communions and denominations with the Laymen's Missionary Movement, the world will be belted by groups of men like that pictured on the title page of the leaflet. They will gather to think about their world, its problems and its needs 'with the mind of the Master.' Can you not visualize yourself as the leader of such a group? This is a call to you to help organize such a group in your community (the church or Sunday School, or Endeavor Society) to inspire, perhaps, the organization of other groups in the surrounding territory; to focus the prayerful, devoted to thought of the men in your church and of neighboring churches upon the great tasks which remain to be done in answering the Master's prayer: 'Thy Kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven'."

As a result of these meetings the announcement declares, "We may confidently expect a strong spiritual stimulus in the life and service of each participating local church, as with broadened, deepened and better informed vision the laymen apply themselves to the common task of the Kingdom through the channels of their local and denominational fellowships."

This emphasis and fellowship supper seem to be of especial need and worth in our Christian Churches, because while our women are organized in their Missionary Societies, our men are not, and it certainly does seem worthwhile for the men to meet at least once a year to discuss together that problem which was nearest the heart of our Lord, and which contemplates nothing less than "peace on earth and good-will among men" of all tongues, colors and nationalities. And we certainly can meet once in a year, the laymen of the church can, to inquire what the Master's mind is as touching the most vital thing in this world—that of bringing his mind to bear on world-wide everyday problems.

These booklets may be obtained by addressing a request to the Mission Secretary, Elon College, N. C., who seeks to cooperate with the Laymen's Missionary Movement in this important and worthwhile undertaking. We think the Executive Committee of the Movement is eminently justified in declaring that, "We who call him 'Lord' must have the Master's mind, before the world will mind the Master. The Master's mind was never discouraged. The Master's mind discerned the vital things and put them first. The Master's mind solved its problems by faith acting through love. The Master's mind embraced the whole world in its purpose of love and took him to the Cross to serve that purpose. May we heed the counsel of Paul, 'Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus'." J. O. A.

ELON MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Under the leadership of Mrs. W. C. Wicker, president of the Woman's Missionary Society of Elon College Community Church, the Society is making splendid progress in the way of new members, interesting programs and spiritual fellowship. At the last monthly meeting, which was the first for the ensuing year, thirty-two members were present, and the lesson for the afternoon, taken from the study book, "Lady Fourth Daughter of China," was interestingly taught by Mrs. T. E. Powell, member of the high school faculty of Elon College. Reports from the four circles were made.

To create interest in attendance, the president of the Society has offered a prize of five dollars to be given the circle at the end of the year which has the best average attendance.

The circle leaders for the year are: Mesdames C. M. Cannon, S. W. Caddell, H. J. Pritchette, and C. E. Tapscott. The following new members have been enrolled: Mesdames Gulley, Steere, Swint, Ausley, Smith, Oma Johnson and Earl Vickers. Most of these are newcomers to, and connected with, the College.

Officers for the general Society for this year are: Mrs. W. C. Wicker, president; W. P. Lawrence, vice-president; C. E. Tapscott, secretary; C. M. Cannon, treasurer. Officers of the Auxiliaries are: Mrs. H. L. Snuggs, Junior Girls; Mrs. B. H. McCarn and Miss Lillie Horn, Willing Workers; Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Cradle Roll; Mrs. Anan Shepherd, literature superintendent; Mrs. J. P. Barrett, spiritual life superintendent. MRS. H. D. LAMBETH.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS FOR NOVEMBER.

By MRS. W. M. JAY, Editor.

Leaders of all missionary societies or program committees will do well to refer to the October 13, 1932, copy of THE CHRISTIAN SUN for suggestions as to mission study books and helps. Mrs. J. Cartwright and Miss Priscilla Chase have given us a fine outline of all the work that we are to study this year. If this does not meet your needs just write to the Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., telling them what you want and they will forward same to you at once.

Now, as to programs aside from the study books. Since the books seem to be on China and the Indians, it seems that we might center our thoughts around those two peoples. Programs for Juniors and Young People will be published soon.

Make your plans for your mission study class at once, for therein lies the best source of material. Order your Thanksgiving programs from Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

WOMAN'S SOCIETIES.

For the next four months we will suggest the little booklet, "Why a Woman's Society in the Local Church?" by Elsie Gough Higgins, price 10c, which may be had from the above address in Boston.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND THE DRINK EVIL.

(A Radio Talk by ELISHA A. KING.)

Good Evening Radio Friends:

This evening I am going to speak to you on "Young People and the Drink Evil." By the drink evil I mean anything that goes with the habitual use of intoxicating liquors from which develop social discords. I do not intend that this talk shall be a political speech, or a discussion of prohibition. What I am about to say has grown out of some personal experiences which may be worth reporting.

In my school days one of my favorite teachers told me that every man should witness to the truth that is in him. It is the duty of a good citizen to express his mind on any subject of importance which he thinks might be helpful to the community. As we have heard a great deal about youth and liquor in the past few years we may be willing to hear a little more from one who has lived the larger part of his public life among young people.

The immediate cause of this talk is an experience of about three weeks ago. In a meeting of, say, twenty-five high school boys and girls there was not one who had ever seen a saloon or an old-fashioned drunk. That fact startled me, partly on account of the enforced conclusion that I am not as young as I sometimes think I am, and partly because it reminded me that a whole generation has grown up since the saloons went out of business. This fact might easily have passed without further notice, but one of the young people made the following statement, or this is the substance of what he said: "I think it would help the temperance cause if we had saloons back. I understand that in those old days women were not permitted to enter a saloon and drink, while today anyone (women as well as men) who has the money can enter a speak-easy and get a drink." That remark opened my eyes to the potent fact that there must be a vast number of young people who know nothing of the days of the old saloon, but have been told of the alleged social benefits of that institution.

I took time enough to tell the young people about the saloon that I used to know and the saloon I hope will never be re-introduced into our American life. I am quite sure all my older listeners' agree on this point. For a period of years I held the position of General Secretary and Physical Director of Young Men's Christian Associations in the Middle West and Kentucky. It was my business to look after the religious, moral and physical condition of five or six hundred young men in the various cities where I served. I was on the most intimate terms with them. Those were the days when saloons by the score flourished in cities, small and large. For many months during the winter season I made it my business to visit all the saloons in the city on Saturday nights, for there is where I found hundreds of young men. I went there to invite them to our men's meetings that we held Sunday afternoons. I knew those saloons intimately and saw the business they carried on. Saloons in those days had back rooms for games of various kinds when it was not against the rules to gamble. There was usually a room where women could come and drink, and many of these saloons furnished centers where ascriptions were made. The saloon spent fabulous sums on plate glass, cut glass, nickel and silver, electric lights, music and free lunches. There was warmth, music, sometimes dancing, women young and old, and above everything else, there was liquor.

I wonder if we have forgotten that men and women went to the saloon to drink liquor, liquor that intoxicated, and I wonder if we older ones have forgotten that when men (and women, too) got drunk, beastly and besottedly drunk, they were forced out of the saloon upon the sidewalk and sometimes into the gutter. I wonder if we have forgotten the sight of a Salvation Army truck that went around the streets to the saloons and park benches late at night or early in the morning and gathered up the "drunks" and carried them to the headquarters of the Army, where they were sobered up and given food and talked with and sent home, if they had a home. I wonder if some of us remember that in the former days of our welfare work, 65 to 85 per cent of our sad and difficult cases were due to drink, directly or indirectly.

Colonel Davis of the Salvation Army says that during the last sixteen years the Army has dealt with over one million cases and in the whole lot there were only 75 bad cases of drunks and of moderate cases only 500. I consider this testimony of the Salvation Army a very remarkable proof that some phases of society have benefited by the elimination of the saloon.

I told those young people, those fortunate young people who have never seen the American saloon at work, what Thomas A. Edison said. We have always had a very high regard for him, one of the world's greatest inventors and benefactors of the human race. One year ago this coming week, October 18th, he passed away. He was asked if he thought that children were better fed and clothed and educated since the saloons were abolished. He said, "Decidedly yes. Let me cite my experience as a manufacturer. On pay days, when the saloons flourished, hundreds of pale-faced women, shabbily dressed, some with faded shawls around their heads, appeared at our factory in West Orange. They were waiting to get some of their husband's money before they got to the saloon. Within a year after the saloons closed, not a single woman appeared." At another time, Mr. Edison said, "I have better use for my brain than to poison it with alcohol. To put alcohol in the human brain is like putting sand in the bearings of an engine." I also told them that thousands of young people in this country were enjoying the privileges of education today because the saloon no longer existed. Men who spent the most of their money in the old saloon are now saving their money, buying homes and clothing and educating their children. What a great transformation has come over the country since the saloon and its kindred associations have gone.

When the young man, referred to above, said that he understood that in the old days of the saloon women and girls were not permitted to enter a saloon, I could not help thinking of the various tallies that have been made and the investigations that have been recorded. I have recently read a report from those old days in Chicago where it was said by a newspaper that fourteen thousand women and girls frequented the back rooms of saloons every twenty-four hours on Madison, Clark and Cottage Grove Avenues. Compare this statement with such a modern report as this: "The youth movements of today embracing five million young people of 43 denominations of Christians, are unalterably opposed to the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage."

Unless one stops to think of it, he may overlook the wholesome influence of the Christian Church upon several million young people in this country. Probably temperance instruction, as such, is not given as large a place as formerly, but as a rule the churches are turning out as fine a product in the way of clean, healthy, manly and womanly young people as one could wish. It is a wonderful heritage to carry through life a sound mind in a sound body, and it is encouraging to all people interested in the next generation to believe that the millions of students in our public schools are a fine lot of upstanding healthy and clean-minded young people of character. Doubtless some of them drink and fail. One cannot expect 100 per cent perfection in youth.

I am much concerned for the children and youth of this country. The old saloon and all it represented was a curse and a blight on many mothers and their children. The terrible appetite for alcoholic liquor bound many youths and adults in a grip of abject slavery which increased in its fiendishness with the years. Home, children, friends, financial obligations were all sacrificed for drink. Surely we who have lived through those days either as witnesses or as welfare or rescue workers cannot forget. The time has come again, I think, when the Christian Church and perhaps the public schools and all other religious and moral organizations that have to do with children and youth should teach the value and importance of temperance. Alcohol is not good for growing youth, and if I had time I would quote valuable opinions on this point from such world famous athletes as Connie Mack, Ty Cobb, Roger Hornsby, Red Grange, Alonzo Stagg, Gene Tunney, Suzanne Lenglen, and a host of others.

So far as I can understand the great leaders, be they politicians or educators, are against the re-introduction of the old-fashioned liquor saloon. I should probably never have spoken on this subject at all if I had not been shocked into wakefulness by the realization that vast numbers of young people have no knowledge or understanding of the blight of that institution. I have been hoping that some of them might hear me tonight. In any case, for every consideration let us protect our growing youth from the temptations of the old saloon.

And while I am speaking let me close this talk with a suggestion that as a whole community we support the churches and synagogues and all the ethical societies where children and young people are concerned. No thoughtful parent desires to see his children grow up as pagans without some religious training. Religion is a real force in the world. It is not so much a matter of dogma as it is of wholesome thinking, altruistic living, and right direction.

INFORMATION FOR DRY VOTERS.

Mr. C. M. Houston, of Alexandria, Va., sends in the following information under the above caption, which is signed by a committee composed of A. N. Shuman, Ryland T. Dodge, and N. A. Lineweaver:

"A committee of the Allied Citizens Association a society for the support of the Eighteenth Amendment, recently mailed to the several candidates for Congress from the State of Virginia, the following questions:

"1. If elected to Congress will you vote against the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"2. Will you vote against the modification of the Volstead Act to permit the manufacture and sale of wine, beer and spirits so long as the Eighteenth Amendment remains in the Constitution?

"3. Will you vote for adequate appropriations to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment and supporting legislation so long as these remain the law of the land?

"All three of the above questions were answered affirmatively and unequivocally by those listed below: William Moseley Brown, Charles C. Berkeley, A. J. Dunning, Jr., Fred W. McWane, J. A. Garber and Roland A. Chase."

There is no statement given as to the replies from other candidates. We have received a personal letter from A. J. Dunning, Jr., substantiating the above statement as to his personal stand on the matter of prohibition.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

WEEK-END CONFERENCE AT WADLEY.

News comes to me that the week-end conference of young people for the Alabama area will be held at Wadley, Ala., on Saturday and Sunday, November 12th and 13th. Southern Union College will welcome this group of young people gladly. Both the college and the young people will be benefited by the mingling of visitors, students, and faculty on the college campus.

These week-end conferences give the young people a fine chance for Christian fellowship, new visions of life, and a deepening of religious experience. It is a very valuable way to spend intervals of life. The program has not come to me, but I am sure that it will be helpful to all who attend, for Miss Marguerite Davison and the other leaders in that area do things in a fine way and have a real desire to help young people in their Christian living.

Previous and important engagements, together with the long intervening distance, make it impossible for me to attend. But I sincerely hope that those who are there be assured the interest of this editor in the accomplishments of the conference is great, and that he will not only wish to be present but will say a sincere prayer that the Great Spirit which was in Jesus, the young man who was a friend of young people, will be with those who spend a while at Wadley in search of the highroad to Christian living. Please be sure that some one is designated to send an account of the meeting for publication. I shall eagerly await that communication.

And will all of you young people who read these lines and who live near enough to go to Wadley please attend the meeting with the hope of receiving and giving inspiration in the Christian way of life? Help to get a big crowd present and to make the meeting all that it should be. This is a real way to serve, and happiness comes only in the path of service.

SCATTERED THOUGHTS.

Young people in and near Suffolk, Va., will be interested in attending the Standard Leadership Training School, November 13th to 18th. Miss Lucy Eldredge will be there to teach young people. Better get a book from the registrar, Mrs. R. J. Brinkley, at Suffolk Christian Church, and begin to study.

About three hundred young people heard Mrs. Marion Parsons speak at the Young People's Missionary Conference in the Suffolk Christian Church, on October 21st, and were benefited by a delightful meeting.

The senior boys of Waverly, Va., recently voted to make a special offering once each month for missions in their Sunday School class and thus become a part of the large fellowship of those who help to send missionaries.

Armistice Day will give many an opportunity to serve their communities by bringing back memories of those hectic days when young men sacrificed their lives on battlefields, and by presenting a better picture of international relations so there need never be a repetition of that awful sacrifice of life and all that is best.

Why couldn't young people plan a harvest festival for Thanksgiving Day? When the colonists were told that by strictest economy and by going immediately on half rations they would probably have enough food to last through the winter, they declared a day of Thanksgiving. Why not rejoice with what we have?

If we are to have a Christmas holiday conference at Elon, it is time somebody got busy. Do you think such a conference is necessary? Would it be better to hold several conferences throughout the South and at different times? Christmas is not a very good time to get together, it seems. What do you say? Please tell me, or Herman Truitt, president of Youth Fellowship, whose address is Reidsville, N. C.

Have you started preparation for that Christmas program? It will soon be Christmas, and your community will be happier by far if there is the right kind of celebration of that great church festival. Plans must be made in advance in order to get the best results. Why not begin?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 6, 1932.

"What Are the Effects of Military Training in Schools?"—James 4:1-10.

With eighty-five per cent of our federal tax going to pay for wars past and future, it is important that we think of everything that has any relation to war. Young people are especially interested in military preparation because if peace should fail and war should come, it will be the present youth that will make the sacrifice of money and life.

In this meeting it would be interesting to call attention to songs which are military, such as: "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," with the hymns of peace and brotherhood. If both types of songs are used, be sure to call attention to the difference.

Newspaper items, which are numerous, concerning the progress of the peace program of the world would be very acceptable if reviewed in this meeting. Someone might compare the teachings of the Old Testament with those of the New Testament concerning war and peace.

A debate on the topic for the evening would be both interesting and helpful, if done in the right spirit. There are some things that may well be said in favor of military training in the schools, and some that should be said against such training. Among those things are:

1. Military training gives needed physical development;
2. It trains in discipline so people learn to obey law;
3. It prepares students for leadership in case of war;
4. It gives the government a large group of men who can readily be prepared for leadership in war; and,
5. It puts other governments on notice that they had better not disturb us for we are prepared to defend our rights.

Military training in schools is bad because:

1. The physical development is out of proportion to the mental and social and is not the kind to be of most advantage through civil life;
2. The discipline is autocratic and crushes initiative;
3. It develops the war spirit rather than the spirit of peace and brotherhood;
4. It does not really prepare the students for soldiership in case of war;
5. It arouses international suspicion; and,
6. It is unfair to make people who believe in peace pay tax to support military training in the public schools and colleges.

This meeting should be closed with the teachings of Jesus concerning the treatment of enemies and the results of using the sword and with a prayer for the peace of nations that grows out of understanding the Christian good-will.

TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 13, 1932.

"Good and Evil in Newspapers."—Acts 8:30; Phil. 4:8.

In preparation for this meeting get the members to look over all available newspapers for the week and evaluate the things contained in them. Compare the amount of space given to good things with those that are bad. See which gets more space: the account of a single murder or robbery, or an account of a church conference in which hundreds of people planned for the increase of goodness in the world.

This will be a good time to discuss the moral values of the comic strips and funny pages. Try to discover the probable effect on those who are supposed to read them. Look over the advertisements and try to find what is the appeal in them—is it to honor, personal development, things that make for happiness, or is the appeal to pride, vanity, conformity to what others do, and perhaps to the baser elements of life? Do not forget the editorials. Classify the editorials as those which are intended to increase goodness, those that tend to destroy goodness, and those that have little or no moral value.

It would be a fine thing to have a newspaper man to discuss the topic. After he has said his say, let the Endeavorers ask questions and give the results of their investigations. Try to find out why newspapers today are so generally opposed to prohibition—is it because of an honest opinion or is it because more money lies in that direction for the papers? Why do newspapers favor one party only and see nothing of value in another political party? Why is crime played up in big type and details given, while church news goes on a back page in small type, or is not discussed at all? Do newspaper men have any desire to develop the country, to strengthen the moral fiber of the people, or do they work solely for money? Such questions as these will prove to be of value if they are studied seriously.

Be careful that the opinion expressed is not merely a random thought but that it is backed up with some sort of information. It is easy to criticize in a destructive way or to commend blindly whatever is being done as the best thing to do, but it is far more worth while to think through situations like the newspaper influence and arrive at an intelligent decision and then make some plans to change the situation.

Why not undertake to collect church news, items that have real value, and try getting them into your local papers? Feature stories concerning people who have done a real service which will most likely be welcomed by the papers. If your society can help to fill the newspapers with good things there will not be so much room for other things.

MAKING A LIVING.

LESSON VII—NOVEMBER 13, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "In diligence, not slothful."—Romans 12:11.

LESSON TEXT: Amos 5:11-15; Luke 19:16-23.

The Christian's main business is making a life. Making a living is secondary. That does not mean, of course, that a man does not have to make a living, or that making a life need be a handicap in making a living. As a matter of fact, about the only way in which most of us can make a life is to do it at the same time that we are making a living. It means that a man should make his living in such a way that he will be making a life at the same time. If any man makes a living by doing something that hurts his life, that is his character, it is a question whether he has a right to do it. A man had better die than to have to resort to some means of making a living. Character is life's supreme value. Jesus himself said as much. Making a life is therefore a Christian's vocation. Making a living is his avocation.

Reference was made to the fact that there are ways of making a living which no man can afford to take up because of the effect they have upon his character. For instance, take the matter of organized or commercialized prostitution. A person cannot make a life while he or she is making a living that way. The same thing would apply to gambling. Gambling has no place in the lists of life work for Christians for gambling is dangerous to character. Bootlegging is another means of making a living that is an enemy of making a life. Some forms of commercialized amusement would come under this heading, too, for they ruin character. There are many other abominations that should receive no support from the followers of Jesus, who came that we might have life, because these abominations do not help, but rather hinder, toward making a life. If it be suggested that a man must make a living, it can be replied that he must not make a living at the expense of his soul.

It needs to be said, however, that there are many people who, although they are engaged in a perfectly legitimate way of making a living, are not making a life very successfully. A man's character is not only revealed by the kind of work he does, it is made by it. A man might be engaged in a worthy work, he might even be a minister of the gospel, but if he is careless in his work, if he neglects his work, if he does the least that will let him get by, if he does not work to the interest of his employer of time or energy, he is failing by just so much to make a life. On the other hand, a man may be doing the humblest of work and by faithfulness and efficiency he may be making a noble life.

Now it was something like this that Amos was talking about in today's lesson, and Jesus was also saying the same thing. Amos, for instance, found men of his day making money—the money of his day—by treading upon the poor, by robbing them of their wages, by taking a bribe, by refusing to give justice in the courts. He boldly rebuked those who were making a living in this way. But more. He summons them not only to give up the evil, but to take up the good. He urges them to hate the evil and to love the good. In other words, he calls them to a change of heart which shall find expression in a change of life.

The story which Jesus told is familiar to all who know anything about the Bible. It is called the parable of the pounds. It is meant to teach the lessons of: 1. personal accountability for that which has been entrusted to us; 2. our responsibility for developing and using our talents; 3. the reward which comes from developing our talents, both in the commendation of our Lord and in the increased capacity to do things better; 4. the sin of not using or mis-using our talents; 5. the penalty for this sin—the loss of ability to use them and the condemnation of our Lord.

This lesson has a rather tragic background as we study it today. For making due allowance for those who would not work under the most alluring conditions, there are millions of men and women and young people in our country, and still more millions in the world at large, who want to work, who can do good work, but for whom there is no work. There are many reasons given as to why this is so. But whatever may be the reason, it should not be the case. Our world ought to be so organized that all who want to make an honest living should have an opportunity to do so. No matter who wins the election—these notes are written in advance of the election—and no matter how soon we get over the depression, here is one of mankind's fundamental problems. And it has a moral and spiritual basis. God has not intended things to be so. It is only as we find his will in the matter, and as we do it, that as Amos says, "the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you." It may be that we can so order our economic life that "the Lord God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph."

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Psalm 119:130.

MONDAY.

You.

"Choose ye this day whom you will serve."—Joshua 24:15.

"You are the fellow that has to decide,
Whether you'll do it or toss it aside,
You are the fellow who makes up your mind,
Whether you'll lead, or linger behind;
Whether you'll try for the goal that's afar,
Or just be contented to stay where you are,
Take it or leave it, here's something to do!
Just think it over—it's all up to you."

—Edgar.

Prayer—O Lord, bless us this day that we may continue to refuse evil and choose good. Put a new spirit within us, and quicken us in Christ.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

LOST IN THE CROWD.

"Jesus passed out unnoticed, there being a crowd in the place."—Jno. 5:13 (Weymouth).

This incident in the life of Christ expresses one of the most formidable hindrances to the cause of Christ. He is lost in the crowd.

Great conventions: business, social, political, fraternal, gatherings; much literature; I see on the table before me, as I write, magazines of every description: political, social, military, travel, fiction, national and international, the screen world, governmental affairs, wit and humor, science and leading daily papers. Every publication is packed and jammed with material presented in a way to make the reader believe it is the most important matter in the world. Not only the front page of the papers, but the entire paper is packed with stories of what folks are doing and a lot of what they are not doing. The Kingdom of God is elbowed out to obscurity. There is such a staggering array of folks and things that Jesus passes by unnoticed.

In like manner Jesus is crowded out of our minds and lives. He is not thrown out, he is just dropped out. Our days are cluttered with various interests. Who has time for the Family Altar, for reading anything well, much less reading the Bible and religious literature? The mass of things we are interested in has become too great. No time, no place for Christ. The tendency is to feel no need for Christ and God.

Prayer—O Lord our God, give us a trust in thee this day that knows no bounds. Give us to know thee that in all experiences, thou doest all things well to them that love and serve thee.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

RESISTING THE CROWD.

"And Jesus went into the Temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold doves."—Matt. 21:12.

We are reading from the morning paper this week (August 15th), accounts of a few stalwart souls, running for political honors, who have the courage of their conviction to stump their constituency and boldly declare in the face of their opponents and a hissing mob, that prohibition is the best law ever yet offered in the solution of the liquor problem and, weak as it may be to solve the problem, "I am unwilling to favor repeal until something better can be offered." "If four men get drunk and one is killed, I am unwilling to agree that prohibition did it." That is the spirit of standing alone for convictions.

If we understand Jesus, such speaking is as he would do. From the experience of the temptations in the wilderness to his trial before Pilate, this spirit of resisting the crowd and fighting for the kingdom can be traced. He never deviated from the truth at any hazzard. This instance of his cleansing the temple is one of those outstanding experiences which inspire hungry souls.

Not every one is called out in political stumping and to shine there against the tide of things. However, each one has every-day problems in which he must choose between good and evil—in which he will serve himself or cast self aside and serve righteousness.

Prayer—O Lord God, our God, and our Saviour, we confess that we are terribly weak-kneed when it comes to choosing between self and others. Grant unto our souls a double portion of thy grace to see the light and stick to it. O God, help us.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

"HIGH HATTING" AND CHRISTIANITY.

"Some said, shall Christ come out of Galilee?" John 7:41.

"Is not this the carpenter's son?"—Matt. 13:55.

"The Pharisees retorted, are you misled as well? Have any of the authorities, or the Pharisees, believed in him? As for this mob, with its ignorance of the law—it is accursed."—Jno. 7:47-49 (Moffatt version).

This is a striking incident of aloofness and snobbery. As this judge looks at the crowd who favored Jesus, and curses them, you can see the very curl of his lips.

The world has not lost this class of snobs. Dr. Luccock sums up the evils of it as it appears in present life, as follows:

"Snobbery is the refuge of autocratic force; it is the defense of conceit; it is a frantic grasp at advantage; and it is a vicious denial of Jesus Christ and the Christian Gospel."

It may be added that it is a denial of universal brotherly love and it puts a limit to the Gospel invitation which is extended to all the world.

Dr. Luccock affirms: "Christ's sympathy for the people knew no limits, and his faith in the possibilities for mankind was unwavering. His entire teaching of the sacredness of personality and the worth of man is the charter of democracy and human freedom."

This is a melodious declaration of the truth that "to as many as receive him, to them gave he the power to become the Sons of God."

Prayer—O Lord, our God, who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not, grant unto us the courage to outlast every vicissitude of life, and to rise as a child of God to our divine possibilities. This we ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

"SPECTACLE OR PERSON."

"The neighbors and they which before had seen him that he was blind, said, Is not that he that sat and begged?"

Moffatt: "Those to whom he had been a familiar sight."

Weymouth: "A familiar object."

This beggar was just a familiar object or sight to the village people—merely a part of the landscape. Jesus was the first to ever see him as a person.

We develop very rapidly an ability to blot out from our conscious vision things to which we are not giving an intense attention. The wrong and the danger of this is the failure to put ourselves in the place of another and really see him as a person. The villagers passed by and saw only a sight. The disciples saw an interesting theme for theological discussion. Jesus saw a brother in need.

To think of a person as a type is vicious. It is a perfect astringent to sympathy. When we get to thinking of folks as types the soul's sensitiveness dies. A stoker fell from the stern of a tug and was smashed by its screws to pulp that left on the waters a lacquer of bloody oil. An architect on the deck of the ship merely exclaimed, "what color!" Taken from Luccock's Preaching Values.

Prayer—Our Father, who are so near us and ready to bless us, make our spirits like Jesus—and in our contact with souls may we show forth that spirit. We ask it in the name of Jesus Christ.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

"LIFE TO THE FULL."

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."—Jno. 10:10.

Moffatt: "That they might have it to the full."

Jesus sought at all times to bring to man an awareness and a grasp of world values, ideas and powers, which lay beyond the elementary senses. That world value is called by him, "Life."

Modern psychology throws light on a life of powers beyond us. The writer saw a house on fire. A man scaled to the top, descended to the eaves, by means of a line he received buckets of water and carried them to where the blaze was coming through. By this means he succeeded in saving the house. This man's actions on the roof of that house would have been impossible at any other time. In his extremity he discovered resources of power in himself which he did not know existed.

There are sources of spiritual power available in Jesus Christ for our daily life. Ordinarily we are living on only a fraction of our possibilities, not only in regard to emergencies, but to joys. Jesus said, "I have spoken to you—that your joy might be full."

In this age of the crowd of marvelous advances of science, when machinery can do almost anything, we are much like the afflicted woman who sought all the physicians, did everything possible to find a remedy for her ills, spent all her money and was reduced to poverty; then she sought Jesus. As one has said, "We have machinery to manufacture everything except the peace which passeth understanding." "Ye will not come to me," said Jesus, "that ye might have life."

The New Testament and Christian experience are striking evidences of the truth that in Christian experience there is increase in power. "I can do all things," said Paul, "through him that strengtheneth me."

Prayer—The Lord's Prayer.

SUNDAY.

THE LEGACY OF JESUS.

"The coat was without seam woven throughout. They . . . cast lots for it, whose it should be."—Jno. 19:23.

Our modern lawyers would present a sorry aspect in trying to assess the value of the legacy Jesus left—just a few pieces of garments which the soldiers shared and cast lots for. No one ever left so little. No one ever left so much—enough to transform the world.

Jesus left just what most of us leave, a few

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

RESTORATION.

By REV. A. G. AXTELL.

"I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten."—Joel 2:25.

Locusts have been common for ages, and have visited every continent and at least some of the islands of the seas. They have been found in Europe, Asia, Africa (both North and South), North and South America, the Island of Cyprus, etc. Ancient history tells of them and their work. Some of this sort of insects are called cicadas, others grasshoppers, besides such local names as jar-flies, seventeen-year locusts, etc. All have the same destructive habits.

They are migratory, and come and go by their own momentum or on the wings of the wind. In Kansas, in the year 1866, there was a plague of grasshoppers that came from the Rocky Mountains. They began to come in small numbers, a few alighting on the ground, the latter part of September. They gradually increased in numbers till into the next month, when they came in clouds, darkening the sun, and eating every green thing—the grain in the fields, vegetables in gardens, the leaves from the trees, cutting a swath of desolation and destruction a hundred miles wide, running from the northwest to the southeast part of the State.

They remained to lay their eggs, then died, but it was feared that when spring came and the young hatched out there would be another devastation; however, in May they took their flight, as by a common impulse, returning toward the region from which the swarm had come.

It is stated that locusts sometimes eat more solid things than vegetation, such as the wood from farm implements; and they have been known to eat their own progeny. They always bring a devastating plague. The prophet Joel gives a vivid description of locusts in Palestine: "Blow the bugle-blast in Sion, sound the alarm upon my sacred hill, till the citizens all tremble! For the Eternal's day is coming—here it is! Near it is! A dark day in a shroud, a day of fog and cloud. Here comes a huge host in power, blackening the hills; the like of it has never been, the like of it never shall be, for years upon years to come; before them fire devouring; behind them flames a-blazing; before them the land lies like an Eden paradise, behind them it is a desolate desert—for nothing escapes them." (Read Joel 2:1-12.)

To Joel the locusts were not only the means of destruction and desolation. They meant much more. That which came upon the earth by the invasion of this army of locusts was but a figure of a greater desolation—the destruction of all that is precious to the human heart: the loss, not only of crops but of hopes; the loss of the fruit of one's labor by low prices or failure in business; or failure in one's profession; or poverty, death or bereavement. All these and all they mean of grief and distress, pain and sorrow, are figured forth for Joel by the desolation left in the wake of grasshoppers. But note the text: "I will restore to you that which the locusts have eaten."

There is in the Greek mythology a god who is named Kronos. He devours his children, that they may not usurp his power. Kronos means Time. Is the myth not a representation of the truth? Does not Time devour all its children? The day-fly begins and ends its life within 24 hours. Time brought it forth, and Time destroys it. The grass of the field flourishes; but it is cut down and used for forage, within a season. Trees grow and live for years; but their years are numbered. Some, indeed, have endured for centuries, but these are the exceptions, not the rule. In the enclosure at the Natural Bridge in Virginia, arbor vitae may be seen which have existed through a good part of the Christian era; and in California the sequoia have stood for two millenia. But most trees perish in a very few years, comparatively. Time creates but to destroy.

So in the animal world. Creatures are born only to live at most for a few years and then to disappear. Even the highest type of animal—man—returns to the dust from which he came within a period averaging much less than three score and ten. Time brings forth children but to destroy them. It is the years which leave desolation and destruction. It is the years which bring human experience; and in this there is much of desolation.

Why present this theme to a congregation in which there are youth? What does youth know of the destructive power of Time? Little, it would seem. Yet the years have already robbed it. Childhood is gone. The locust hath eaten the years of childhood—with its innocence and its winsomeness and charm. These years will not return. A certain charm remains, but it is of a different kind. It is more mature, more of the world—the world of man rather than of nature. "Heaven lies about us in our infancy," but "Shades of the prison house begin to close upon the growing boy," and already "there hath passed away a glory from the earth."

Those years of sweet innocence, those days of nature, when the child can see God in the sky; those brief years when the child is en rapport with trees and flowers and birds, are gone, not to return—unless, unless sometime you become as little children.

What does the mature strength of manhood, or the beauty of womanhood, know of the devouring locusts of the years? Nothing, it would seem. Yet already in "manhood's prime vigor" Time has done its work. Not in the physical make-up, perhaps, but in disappointments and disillusion, and it may be in failure and loss and bereavement. Childhood and youth are experiences of the past. They lie back of maturity and are not to be returned to at will, nor in answer to the most ardent petitions.

And what of age? So far away is childhood that it is all but forgotten; gone is youth and maturity into the past. Time has devoured them. Second childhood may have come, but it is a childhood of weakness and the object of contempt. A certain youthfulness of spirit may be retained, but the charm of youth is gone. Experiences have been stored up, but they are accompanied by strength. Age is at best venerable; yet it is so near to the end of life as to be but a remnant of what has gone before it. Bit by bit Time has devoured all that went together to make a man.

Yet here is the promise of the Eternal: "I will restore to you the years the locusts have eaten." It is the Eternal who speaks. It is the Eternal who promises. "I—even I—will make up to you the years. Years are of Time; I am of Eternity. All the loss and sorrow, all the pain, all the futility, all the failure, and even sin, all this experience of Time, shall be made up to you in an abundance which shall pass the imagination in glory and splendor."

Here is a youth who has wasted his years till he has suddenly awakened and discovered that he has arrived at the full tide of manhood and has gathered no resources to meet his responsibilities. He must indeed reap what he has sown; "Wilful waste brings woeful want." He can be no exception to the rule. He cannot turn back the years. He cannot recover that which he has lost. Only the Eternal can restore to him the years that the locusts have eaten. Yet if he feels sorrow, his sorrow is the beginning of his redemption. It is the opportunity of the most High to begin its work of restoration.

Here is a woman whose life has been saddened by slander. A careless word, an unfounded suspicion; a report as true as that which had no foundation in truth; these have saddened if not embittered her life. Years are gone, and the scar remains. Time has robbed her of the happiness which was her right. Only the Eternal (Continued on page 15.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The first end of winter is here. When we speak of winter it means much to the Christian Orphanage with its 102 children. It means winter shoes; it means winter clothes; it means coats and wraps for the girls; it means sweaters for all the boys; it means three cars of coal. It means many other things that call for money.

The Thanksgiving offering coming in during November cheers us up because our people have always been so loyal and liberal at Thanksgiving that the Thanksgiving offering has always helped us to meet these needs. We trust this Thanksgiving will be better than usual. We are more in need this year than in our sixteen years of service here.

We have been in the extreme drough—our corn crop was a failure, our hay crop was cut off two-thirds at least; our Irish potato crop was cut in half. To top it all off, our income has fallen off so it has been impossible to meet our bills.

Don't you love these little children? Don't you want to help feed and clothe them? Don't you want them to be comfortable? We know you do. Then open your hearts at Thanksgiving when the offering is taken in your church, and make some sacrifice that the offering from your church may be liberal.

Begin to lay aside something for Thanksgiving. We are wondering how many churches will get up a truck-load to send us for Thanksgiving. How kind of you it would be. How easy it could be done, if some one in each church would only take the lead. Every farmer could spare a bushel of wheat or a bushel of corn, a bushel of peas, soybeans, Irish potatoes or oats. It takes lots of oats and soybeans, cottonseed meal, and bran to make our dairy feed. We do our own grinding and mixing. All the good women could spare a few chickens, eggs, canned fruit, pickles, lard meat, beef, etc. It would show such a sweet spirit for our churches to do this. It would be such a wonderful help to us this year. Try it in your church, and see if you don't get lots of joy out of the giving.

The Bible tells us it is more blessed to give than to receive. Would you not rather be a giver than to be helpless and dependent and have to receive? Surely you would. But don't you think it sad to be helpless and dependent, without a home and without means?

A salesman was in the office last week and said he visited an orphanage last year at Thanksgiving time in North Carolina, and forty loaded trucks were on the grounds that had been sent with supplies for the children. I understand that that same orphanage received nearly one hundred truck-loads during the season. Don't the Christian Church love its orphanage as well?

THE REAL ISSUE.

Much more than the so-called wet and dry question is involved in the next general election and in the attitude of those who may be chosen as members of Congress and State legislatures or as administrative and enforcement officials, both national and state.

The real issue goes deeper than enforcement, the Volstead law and the Eighteenth Amendment. It goes to the very heart of popular constitutional government. It raises the far more significant question as to whether a representative democracy can effectuate itself when it comes to a real test; whether the people, after having written a specific provision in the Constitution by the process which they themselves have established and maintained, are impotent to have such a mandate properly administered, respected and enforced by the chosen officials of their government; whether those who have opposed such a provision of the Constitution and have encouraged its disobedience and nullification, can successfully use as an argument to secure the repeal of such a provision, the very degree of nullification and enforcement failure for which they are peculiarly responsible; as to whether it is really possible by extravagant use of sufficient money for propaganda purposes to first encourage disobedience of the people's mandate by those who do not like it and prevent adequate enforcement thereof, and then secure the elimination from the Constitution of that mandate because it has not been adequately obeyed and enforced.

If such a project were to be successful, that success would leave very far-reaching implications with regard to other provisions of the Constitution and the form of government under which we live.—Ernest H. Cherrington, in the American Issue.

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.
The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.
It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.
One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.
The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

devoted friends and some reminiscences. But what is the quality of the reminiscences? It matters not how little of this world's goods one leaves behind, if one can leave a few friends on whom the quality of his life has made some impress and an abiding memory of their spirit which makes them glad—if one can leave a Christian character in whom there is no guile—his memory, which will be a real transforming and abiding force, is the richest legacy the world has ever known.

Modern science tells us that a sunbeam acts upon the world like the push of a stone dropped upon it. The highest glory of life is to so live that our lives will give the world a little push toward its high destiny.

Prayer—The Lord's Prayer.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

can restore the years which the locusts have eaten.

A mother is called upon to lay down her little one for the last time; its resting place not a crib but a coffin. Too soon that which has been given her has been taken away. She will see the babe no more; and the years go on in unrelieved sorrow. Only the Eternal can restore the joys which once were hers.

There are those who would have their homes brightened by the presence of little children; and ringing with their laughter. But somehow they have been deprived of this boon and the lone-some years go on and on; while desolation takes the place of happiness, and longing of satisfaction.

Yet the promise comes to such; and it is the promise of the Eternal: "I will restore to you the years that the locusts have eaten." The lot of man is sorrow; but whether this sorrow comes from one's own sin or that of another; whether from misfortune or deprivation; all, all is in the providence of the Most High. Our suffering is the work of redemptive power. It is the promise of Restoration.

"Yet even now, the Eternal promises, turn to me with all your heart, fasting, weeping, mourning; come heart-broken, not with garments torn, and turn to the Eternal One, your God, for he is gracious and compassionate, slow to be angry, rich in love, and ready to relent. Who knows but that he will again relent and leave a blessing behind him, that you may have sacrifices and libations to offer to the Eternal One, your God." (Joel 2:12-14.)

What does this mean? It means that "The Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." It means that God is saying to everyone of us in every loss and pain: "When you suffer, I suffer with you. That which you long for shall be given. You may become as little children; you may have again all that youth means of hope and aspiration; you may have renewed strength and fortitude; and in me you shall be satisfied."

But mark you, it is a promise of the Eternal. Dark and mysterious are his ways with man. Over against a thousand experiences we put the question, "Why?" And no answer comes to us. Across the desolation and the waste we look, and no little prairie flower greets our gaze; no blade of grass brightens the stark nakedness of our loss and sorrow.

Our own personal experiences weigh upon us; our fellow-beings struggle in the mires of ignorance and distress; the nations of the earth exemplify the motives of hell. History (our human history) yields no balm to the universal sorrow of folly and of sin. Yet the Eternal speaks:

"I will make up to you for the years that the locusts ate, the lopping, the swarming, the leaping, the devouring locusts, that huge host I sent among you. So shall you eat and be satisfied, and praise the Eternal One your God, who has dealt with you so wondrously. 'Twill teach you that I am within Israel; I, the Eternal, am your God alone, and never again shall my people be derided." (Joel 2:25-27.)

And after all, how petty are the tragedies of our lives before that tragedy of Calvary, when the very Son of God cried out, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" If he could so suffer, and so plumb the depths of desolation and despair in apparent separation from the God—the Father-God—whom he had trusted, how shall not we in patience—yes, in something of his sublime patience—go on in hope and faith—ignoring the present in the clear vision of the future? For, "as it is written: what no eye hath ever seen; what no ear hath ever heard; what never entered the mind of man, God has prepared all that for those who love him." (I Cor. 2:9.)

Yes, it is the Eternal who speaks—he who has already said, "I have loved thee with an everlasting love;" the Eternal says, "I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten."

OBITUARIES

HOLLAND.

Whereas, Elisha Thomas Holland departed this life August 22, 1932, at the age of sixty years, and whereas, he had been a member of the Holy Neck Christian Church since early life, and a deacon and leader in the church for thirty years; and whereas, he had been a faithful and efficient worker and exemplified in his daily life the principles of the religion which he professed; and whereas, he had been prominent in the councils of the denomination, serving on important committees and boards of the Eastern Virginia Conference and of the Southern Christian Convention, and was at the time of his death a member of the Board of Christian Education, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That in the death of Bro. Holland Holy Neck Church has lost one of its most efficient and loyal workers, and the denomination a leader and counsellor.

2. That we here record our grateful appreciation of his delightful fellowship, his great service to his church, community and county, and for the many virtues which characterized his life and brought him honor and success.

3. That we will continue to cherish his memory, and seek to emulate in our lives the virtue which he possessed, and strive to fill up the painful void left in our church by his departure.

4. That we extend to his widow, to his children, and to his brother and sisters our sincerest sympathy.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be

VUNCANNON.

Edward Lee, son of Goodman and Bertha Vuncannon, departed this life August 31st, at the age of 17 years, 11 months and 20 days.

He was loyal to the church and Sunday School, and was loved by all who knew him, and will be greatly missed.

He is survived by his parents, four brothers, three sisters and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at Spoon's Chapel in the presence of a large crowd and a beautiful scene of flowers.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. John Pugh.

May God comfort the bereaved.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Which Way Do You Sleep?—

People who do not sleep well should immediately procure a compass and with its aid set their beds in proper position. London scientists now gravely point out the fact that the secret of sound refreshing sleep is to repose with the head toward the North Pole and the feet in the direction of the south. To quote, the bed should be so placed that it is "in line with the earth's magnetic currents, that is, so that the head of the sleeper will be toward the north." One doctor says: "There is no doubt that any human being, whether suffering from insomnia or not, would have much better sleep and be in a much better condition to carry on the work of the next day if he slept with his head to the north. The magnetic currents then pass easily and freely through the body. If they pass across the body there will be restlessness and a feeling of lassitude the following day." A contemporary suggests that all of this "goes to show the importance of right 'attitudes' in life, physical as well as mental and moral. Likewise the danger of cross currents."

Trading Stock and Crops for a Degree.—

During the past few years many schools have announced that they would accept food supplies in lieu of cash as part payment of college expenses. Probably the largest single transaction of this kind to date was between President James M. Smith, of Louisiana State University and a Miss Helen Percy, stockman's daughter and 17-year-old grower of pure-bred Hereford cows. Being drawn from his sanctum sanctorum by the rousing cheers which greeted the would-be freshman as she rode upon the campus driving her charges before her, a trade was soon struck, and the American Weekly tells us that the herd was accepted "at a valuation of $250. Of this, $40 was immediately charged off against entrance fees. The rest will go for tuition, a room in one of the dormitories and board at the University dining hall." It continues: "Miss Freshman Co-ed Percy is now all fixed for most everything except books, clothes, and face powder for the entire nine months." Her Herefords were persuaded to stop nibbling the campus grass and driven to join their cousins of the agricultural department, there to furnish milk for the college cafeteria.

An Elaborate Book.—

What is perhaps one of the most elaborate books of modern times, is one produced in commemoration of President Hoover's visit to Florida in 1929. Only a single copy of the book was printed, and it was presented to the president. The title of the volume was "Constructive Adventure," so named, first, because Mr. Hoover's life was recognized as a constructive adventure; second, such a name would apply to the development of Florida in every sense. The cover is of cow-hide and is exquisitely hand-tooled and painted. We are informed that, "Because of the President's love for fishing, a marine motif was chosen. The border at the top is of flying fish; the right-hand side is decorated with fishtails, and the left-hand side with Neptune's tongs. Corner medallions are sea-horses," and coral, too, is shown because it is always building. The book contains one hundred pages and is printed in a face of type cast especially for its printing. The page size is 12 x 18 inches, and the front pages are hand illumined in oil and gold, the Josephus Bible having been used as a guide in carrying out the theme. A hand press was used for the work, and the total cost of the one volume was approximately $4,000.00.

Roman Catacombs May Become Traffic Lanes.—

If we may believe a contemporary writer, the Eternal City is again coming into her own, and "the streets graced by masterful temples and mighty monuments of art, history and religion, have been liberated by the contamination of trolley cars, and the most modern means of transportation link the distant parts of the new city which is rising in rings around the old one." We are told that wide avenues are being cut through the heart of the city. Open squares have been made around the ancient Marcello Theatre, the Capitol and the Colosseum, and everything built around these ancient masterpieces during the period of decadence has disappeared. The Rome of today bids fair to become a metropolis "more vast," more magnificent and more densely populated than the Rome of Augustus." Even the famous catacombs of the Christian faith, which have ever been sacred for the piety and veneration of the entire world, may become the basis for a modern underground transit system. Yet in the modernization of the city every effort is being made to preserve the things worth while of the days that are gone, and one may be sure that though used as modern thoroughfares, the catacombs themselves will be preserved.

Japs Will Light 4 Christmas Trees of 5.—

"Four out of five of the gay-colored electric bulbs on American Christmas trees this season will come from Japan," says Business Week. This will entail losses in wages to Americans in the electric bulb manufacturing business amounting to nearly two and one-half million dollars, with further losses to the suppliers of raw materials. We quote further, that the extent of this "Japanese invasion is revealed in recent statistics compiled by the industry. Importation of miniature bulbs from Japan this season will mount to 54 millions, of which 48 millions will be Christmas tree lights. This is three times as many as came in when the flood started in 1928." We learn that the Christmas tree bulb market is particularly vulnerable, because buyers of this class of commodity seem to think of price only, and fail to consider quality or the fact that inferior bulbs consume more electric current. Low wages in Japan give a strong competitive advantage, running 80 per cent below American, and the fact that Japan has gone off the gold standard and that their currency has thus been greatly depreciated, gives still further sales advantage. Due to these conditions General Electric has had to close its miniature lamp works in Cleveland, and Buffalo has consolidated its Newark miniature factory with a large lamp works. If estimates are correct American makers will sell about twelve million Christmas tree bulbs this year against Japan's 48 million. Examples such as above make even a "free-trader" stop and scratch his head and wonder if we do not need to raise tariffs rather than lower them. We do not know when this is written who will win the National election. If the Democratic party does it should ponder this question well.

Stokowski Would Carry Modern Music Into Schools.—

It is reported that Mr. Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, will ask public school authorities to assist in his plan to give modernistic music to the children of school age, through the means of the radio. This announcement has immediately been taken up by another famous musician—Walter Damrosch, whom the New York Herald-Tribune quotes as saying, in part: "Mr. Stokowski has devoted his fine orchestra to the production of many ultra-modernistic compositions, and often to the great distress of many of his adult audiences. But that is a matter between him and them, and if they encourage him he is amply justified. But to force these experiments on helpless children is criminal." Mr. Damrosch goes on to say that he believes at least 75 per cent of the ultra-modern works given to the public during the past ten years by his contemporary, will never be repeated by him nor any other director. The Detroit Free-Press agrees with the sane stand of Mr. Damrosch, and goes on to say that when compositions are interpreted for children in order to provide them with the fundamental foundations of musical appreciation, "fair play demands that the works chosen shall be compositions that are really educational in a fundamental way, and have an established place in the world. . . . Boys and girls who are asked to listen to fugitive or bizarre works that attract attention because they are 'different' rather than because they are worth hearing, are being grossly cheated. They are being given a raw deal." And we say, Amen.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. T. Newton Owen, formerly of Eastport, Maine, has come to Florida to live and his address is Mandalay Road, Clearwater. He is welcomed to Florida and is available for occasional supply preaching.

Rev. Orville D. Ullom, of Melbourne, Fla., has been elected to membership in the Kiwanis Club of that city. Rev. Watson L. Lewis of New Smyrna, recently spoke at the Melbourne Kiwanis Club on "Keeping Up the Morale."

The church at West Palm Beach, Fla., under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. Frank Atkinson, recently conducted an every-family visitation which was very effective. The pastor of the church is following the plans for fall program issued by the Commission on Evangelism. He spoke upon the plans and also upon the value of a pastor's class at the recent meeting of the Southeast Coast Association.

Rev. H. C. Caviness, evangelist, closed what he terms "the very best meeting he was ever in," at Palm Street Church, Sunday October 30th. There were more than fifty additions to the church with some joining other churches. Immediately at the close of the meeting at Palm Street, Bro. Caviness left for Hayesville, N. C., to engage there with Rev. E. S. Eskridge for two weeks and then to Andrews, N. C., with the same pastor, for two weeks.

It was the writer's privilege to preach at First Church, Portsmouth, Sunday night, October 30th, and to have a conference with the pulpit committee. This church has the past year been a most liberal contributor to various benevolences and claims of conference and seems united in a program of progress and good fellowship. The church hopes to have a pastor in charge at an early date as successor to Rev. H. C. Caviness, former pastor, now engaged in evangelistic work.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Williams, of Lake Worth, Fla., are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son on October 30th. He has been named David Jeffreys Williams. Mrs. Williams was well known as Mary Ann Jeffreys, who was formerly extension worker for Florida, preceding Miss Pattie Lee Coghill. She is at the present time president of the Woman's Federation of the Congregational Churches of the State. Mr. Williams was Moderator of the Florida State Conference.

The North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference meets in regular annual session at Mt. Zion Church, Orange County, N. C., Tuesday A. M., November 15th. The church is seven miles north of Mebane, about one-half mile south of highway No. 144, and about two miles east of highway No. 203. Rev. J. F. Apple, Elon College, N. C., is the pastor of the church, Dr. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, N. C., is president of the conference, and Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Durham, N. C., secretary.

Rev. Simon A. Bennett, formerly of the chair of Christian Education, Elon College, now a member of the faculty of Southern Union, Wadley, Ala., has been called to the pastorate of the Roanoke Christian Church and was installed with appropriate services on Sunday evening, October 30th. We bespeak for the pastor and people a friendly cooperation, good fellowship and progress. Rev. G. D. Hunt, former pastor, has accepted the pastorate of our Lanett Church and has started in to this important field with zeal and enthusiasm.

The Southeast Coast Association of churches recently met at Palm City, Fla., and a helpful and interesting program had been prepared and the Palm City Church entertained the association in a delightful manner. The Southeast Coast Association is twenty-eight years old and one of those who participated in the program was Rev. H. H. Jones, pastor of the community church at Jensen, Fla., who was present at the first meeting of the association and has been a member of the association during most of the time since. The officers for the ensuing year were: Moderator, Rev. James E. Parker, Palm City; assistant moderator, Rev. O. H. Denney, North Miami; registrar, Rev. Harley R. Core, Homestead; scribe, Rev. H. H. Jones, Stuart; director of the State conference, Rev. Frank Atkinson, West Palm Beach, and delegate to the National Council, Rev. E. A. King, Miami Beach.

Rev. G. H. Veazey, business manager, at the Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala., writing October 30th, says: "The work at the college is encouraging. We put on a campaign in every Christian Sunday School of our conference, on Sunday, October 23rd, for funds for the college, and they responded heartily. Therefore, we are receiving corn, syrup, peas, potatoes, etc., galore. The college is doing the best work, with the largest student body, 51, of its history. The denominational affiliation of the student body is as follows: 21 Baptists, 11 M. E. (South), 8 Christians, 4 M. E. (North), 1 Disciple. Our fifth Sunday minister-layman meeting at Rock Stand was well attended and had a good program. These meetings seem to create more interest among our laymen than anything we have tried thus far. Officers elected for the coming year are: Prof. G. W. Hucy, president; Prof. A. R. VanCleave, vice-president; H. P. Beaird, secretary-treasurer. The next session will be held with Noon Day Church, fifth Sunday in January."

It was a real privilege for the Mission Secretary to be in the Eastern Virginia Conference at Waverly Wednesday and Thursday of last week, the only regret being that he could not remain for the third and final day. This is a great conference, great and good men and women coming together annually to give the best they have in counsel for the church and the kingdom. Distinguished divines and prominent laymen and noted women in the conference led in public utterances, always to the delight and edification of the large delegations from the churches. It is a joy, indeed, to sit with such a body of consecrated men and women. Rev. F. C. Lester, the pastor, with his Waverly co-workers and friends, entertained the conference in royal manner, the only regret expressed publicly being that there were no more guests to entertain. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of Christian Temple, set a good example by being at the conference at the opening day, taking a lively interest in the proceedings of the sessions and remaining through for the close. His illuminating addresses, his good sermon and his kindly greeting to all added much to the pleasure and profit of the conference.

One wonders if that which applies to our Baptist friends does not apply with equal force to we Congregational-Christians and to many other denominations. The Southern Baptist Handbook for 1932 declares that "Southern Baptists are still wasting money in riotous living." To quote the handbook: "The great losses and 'hard times' which have come upon Southern Baptists by reason of the present prolonged depression have not stopped them from wasting their substance in riotous living," the book asserts. "The Southern Baptists waste sufficient money, along five or six lines of extravagant living every year, to finance the whole program of Southern Baptist work." They spend, the book says, more than $40,000,000 a year on tobacco, from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000 on moving pictures, more than $21,000,000 on once-a-week automobile outings, $35,000,000 for soft drinks and chewing gum, and $43,000,000 for cosmetics and beauty parlor bills. The church is suffering most of all in the matter of missions, the one business in which the church alone is engaged, though it suffers also in the dropping off of benevolences. If much of the money spent, in what is termed by our Baptist friends as "riotous living," could be turned into the channels of the church, pastors would not have to go with salaries unpaid, and missionaries in the home and in the foreign field would not have to be closing up their preaching places and turning to secular pursuits for a livelihood.

NOTICE.

The dates set for the three Florida Associations are as follows: The Southeast Coast Association at Palm City, November 1st; the South Association at Avon Park, November 14th-15th, and the East Coast Association at Lake Helen, November 16th-17th. Interesting programs have been arranged for each. Among the speakers at the Florida Association meetings will be Rev. Frank T. Meacham, formerly missionary in East Africa, who with his wife and daughter, have come to St. Petersburg for the winter. Mr. Meacham is recovering his health after an experience with some tropical fever, but is able to do some speaking in the interest of missions. Mrs. Meacham is a daughter of Dr. Nicholas Van der Pyl, of Oberlin, and is also available for missionary talks. They are now staying at 1935 13th St., South.

NOTICE.

The Committee on Education of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference is called to meet in THE CHRISTIAN SUN office, Elon College, N. C., at three o'clock P. M., Monday, November 14, 1932. Any candidates of the conference for ordination, licensure, or to become members of the Biblical Class should meet the committee at this time. The members of the committee are Dr. P. H. Fleming, Dr. J. U. Newman, and Rev. A. W. Hurst.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

Some times the simplest devices are the best. Let me tell you how we care for the various material used by a Sunday School teacher and her class or his class. There is the record book that contains the names and addresses of the members of the class. Then there is the envelope for the collection. There should be a pencil for the use of the teacher or secretary of the class. Then there are text-books and various notes, papers, etc., that must be kept somewhere. What shall we do with them?

It was discovered that many stores that deal in men's goods throw away all of their empty pasteboard boxes or burn them up. These boxes that have contained underwear usually measure ten by twelve inches in size and are about two inches deep. By going to the stores early enough one can get the clerks to save up a dozen or so of these boxes. You may then take them home and cover over the advertisements with paper that does not show through and someone can print the name of the class and its number, the name of the teacher, or anything else on the box. Each class is thus provided with a box containing all the important matter pertaining to the class. The boxes are put away on shelves during the week and anyone can place them in proper position Sunday morning.

We renew these boxes every Promotion Day, which with us comase early in October. We have found this plan most satisfactory and it is one of those things that any school can have without cost of money. If you have never done this, try it and you will like it.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

"TWENTY MINUTES OF REALITY."

"As a child I was afraid of world without end, of life everlasting. The thought of it used to clutch me at times with a crushing sense of the inevitable and make me long to run away. But where could one run? If never-ending life were true, then I was already fast in it, and it would never end. Perhaps it had never had a beginning. Life everlasting, eternity, forever and ever; these are tremendous words for even a grown person to face; and for a child they may be hardly short of appalling. The picture that heaven presented to my mind was of myself a desperate little atom, dancing in a streak of light around and around forever and ever." So wrote Margaret Prescott Montague in the Atlantic Monthly of May, 1916.

And now the Atlantic, for its November, 1932, issue, presents to its readers again this remarkable confession of Miss Montague in facing "Twenty Minutes of Reality," in such a way as to become disillusioned and to be brought into declaring that "eternity and the enjoyment of life can be squared," and that there is no genuine enjoyment of time or eternity until one experiences the reality of things back of the appearance of things, the very soul of things, the body and the framework of which we see about us.

Miss Montague was given an insight, a vision, which she thinks lasted twenty minutes, the effects of which have gone with her through the years and, as she believes, will abide with her through eternity. That insight made this world a different world, and gave of eternity a different picture. She had passed through an experience of depression and doubt, in which it had seemed that God was indifferent to human suffering. Let

Miss Montague tell her experience in discovering reality:

"It was an ordinary cloudy March day. I am glad to think that it was. I am glad to remember that there was nothing extraordinary about the weather, nor any unusualness of setting—no flush of spring or beauty of scenery—to induce what I saw. It was, on the contrary, almost a dingy day. The branches were bare and colorless, and the occasional half-melted piles of snow were a forlorn gray rather than white. Colorless little city sparrows flew and chirped in the trees, while human beings, in no way remarkable, passed along the porch.

"There was, however, a wind blowing, and if any outside thing intensified the experience it was the blowing of that wind. In every other respect it was an ordinary commonplace day. Yet here, in this everyday setting, and entirely unexpectedly (for I had never dreamed of such a thing), my eyes were opened, and for the first time in all my life I caught a glimpse of the ecstatic beauty of reality.

"I cannot now recall whether the revelation came suddenly or gradually; I only remember finding myself in the very midst of those wonderful moments, beholding life for the first time in all its young intoxication of loveliness, in its unspeakable joy, beauty, and importance. I cannot say exactly what the mysterious change was. I saw no new thing, but I saw all the usual things in a miraculous new light—in what I believe is their true light. I saw for the first time how wildly beautiful and joyous, beyond any words of mine to describe, is the whole of life. Every human being moving across that porch, every sparrow that flew, every branch tossing in the wind, was caught in and was a part of the whole mad ecstasy of loveliness, of joy, of importance, of intoxication of life.

"It was not that for a few keyed-up moments I imagined all existence as beautiful, but that my inner vision was cleared to the truth so that I saw the actual loveliness which is always there, but which we so rarely perceive; and I knew that every man, woman, bird, and tree, every living thing before me, was extravagantly beautiful, and extravagantly important. And as I beheld, my heart melted out of me in a rapture of love and delight."

This vision of Miss Montague's was her conversion, her regeneration, her rebirth from above. Eternity now has a different meaning, all life has, all experiences have. Things about, the world around and the heavens above took on a strange new value and became extraordinarily important. "Every living creature was intensely alive and intensely beautiful, but it was as well of a marvelous value. Whether this value was in itself or a part of the whole I could not see; but it seemed as though before my very eyes, I actually beheld the truth of Christ's saying that not even a sparrow falls to the ground without the knowledge of the Father in heaven. Yet what the importance was I did not grasp. If my heart could have seen just a little further I should have understood. Even now the tips of my thoughts are forever on the verge of grasping it, forever just missing it."

From that time through life to Miss Montague, there is no such thing as a dread of time or of eternity, but a glad welcome, a joyous expectancy, since any moment may lift a veil, or give an experience, of real love and delight and eternity, and will simply mean new visions of that reality which gives gladness to every moment and a new joy to every experience. This remarkable confession of Miss Montague's is only the intellectual portrayal, a vivid pen-picture of that experience which the soul in sin experiences as it hears the voice of our Lord saying: "Thy sins are forgiven thee." "Thy faith hath made thee whole, go thou and sin no more."

This "Twenty Minutes of Reality" was a revelation of that which comes from God and reveals the reality of love toward us. And so this confession is made "That the Creator is a loving Creator I believe with all my heart; but this is belief, not sight. What I saw that day was an unspeakable joy and loveliness and a value to all life beyond anything that we have knowledge of; while in myself I knew a wilder happiness than I have ever before or since experienced." And then the further statement helps to grasp something of this marvelous experience: "The accounts given by people who have passed through religious conversion or illumination come nearer to describing my emotions than anything else I have come across."

Miss Montague, in this confession, opens up a world of suggestion and speculation. Those who have passed through religious conversion are the ones who have got a glimpse of reality and are grappling with the realities of life. The church of the living God, in pulpit and in pew, is grappling with reality as no other institution on earth is. Those who know most of reality, talk most about the things that abide, dwell more in the realm of the eternal, and victorious than others, are those who in the church are seeking to find God, to know him, to get a grasp on him. God is Reality, and all things become new and abiding when seen from the divine side, in their true light.

A PREACHER AND HIS CONFERENCE.

The annual conference is more than an opportunity, it is an obligation. This applies most emphatically to every pastor. The conference affords the pastor an opportunity of serving, not the conference as such, but the very church that calls and supports him. It is safe to say that no pastor would be a pastor unless the annual conference of other pastors and churches had licensed and ordained, and thus legally and morally commended him, so that the church would choose him as pastor. It was the conference that gave the pastor access to his local church. That is one opportunity, one high and holy privilege, that the conference has extended to every pastor who has a church. From this it is immediately apparent that a pastor who fails to recognize and appreciate his conference is, to say the least of it, ungrateful and not very loyal.

But the conference is an obligation. It obliges the members of it to support it with their presence, their prayers and their counsel. The conference is to the churches what the municipality or the State is to citizenship. In the case of the municipality or the State, however, requirements are laid down and taxes are exacted. In the case of the church, the very life of the local church, as well as the continued activity of the pastor, demand group action, concert of plan and program, unity of pursuit and objective. A pastor, even a local church, may become selfish as easily as may an individual. When a local church, with its pastor, begins to live for itself, and when a pastor, begins to live for that local church only, he with the church becomes self-centered, restricted, selfish. Here is an obligation that no pastor and no local church can, with security and impunity ignore for any considerable time. The church that does not get itself represented in its annual conference, the pastor that does not answer to the roll-call of the annual conference, even for a few consecutive years, is on the road to dwindling and an untimely death. We have never known this to fail. The pastor and the church must live with other pastors and churches, or they do not live long at all. This is not speculation or theory, it is a plain statement of historical fact, the experience of church history.

One may not agree with all the routine, all the resolutions, all the addresses and experiences of the annual conference. It would be strange if one did. At the same time neither church nor pastor can ignore the conference, that which really gave them life and opportunity, and that which lays upon them certain obligations of moral and spiritual cooperation, communion and fellowship. Mark it down, that a minister who persistently, and without valid excuse, fails to attend his annual conference, will soon be without a church to serve, and the church that does not report itself to conference will soon be adrift like a ship without a rudder, or beaten to pieces on the shallows. J. O. A.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH GOVERNMENT.

Christian Churches, like Baptist and Congregational Churches, have always been democratic in government. This has been the goal, this the polity. There is inherent in this fact that weakness that applies to all self-governing bodies. Majority rule sometimes seems like majority ruin, as has often been shown in the government of the States, as well as churches. But majority rule can correct its errors and abuses, and generally will do so if given time. Monarchies are more efficient; democracies more hesitating, more faltering, but usually finally triumph.

When the World War broke out, Germany and her Allies, with their monarchical governments, showed greatest efficiency and seemed to be sweeping everything before her. The whole world seemed to be yielding to the rule of the few and bowing down to the efficiency of master-minds. It was during that time, of glorifying the efficiency of centralized government, and the inefficiency of the democratically governed nations, that Ambassador Bryce pointed out to the world that democracies often stumbled and fell, but had the power to rise and press on, and though democracies went forward with faltering step, they finally arrived. Never was a truer word said of government, whether in State or church.

Very often devout and wise church members, seeing their will and way defeated by a majority, feel like giving up in despair. How often do we hear it said that the majority who pay little, and seldom go to church, dictate the policy of the church, call the pastor they please and are killing the church. However, before the death blow is struck, the church seems to recover itself, a brighter day dawns, the right prevails and victory in the name of progress and power achieved. One should not withdraw from his church because a majority in any one year goes against him. The way in which that majority was called together and expressed itself may be questionable and doubtful, may seem destructive and ruinous. This, however, does not justify one in withdrawing from the church. Hold onto the good old ship—believe in it, stand by it, pray for it—and a brighter day will dawn, for the church was founded on our Lord and is carried on through him; and though the local church is sometimes made to suffer, as our Lord suffered from the cruelty of unjust or unwise men and women, he came out victorious, the dark night passed away, and a new day dawned, and after the crucifixion came the resurrection with its added power and glory. Hold onto the local church and endure its hardships, its trials and its tribulations, for sometimes it requires more faith, more devotion, more humility, more grace to submit and to endure than it does to take up arms to fight or to march in martial tread. J. O. A.

LIVING FOR THESE TIMES.

It is easy to tell the minister what sort of sermons he should preach for these times, but he could turn right around and tell the members of his church how they ought to live for these times. If the proverb: "What you do makes so much noise I cannot hear what you say," has any truth in it, living is of more importance than preaching. Therefore, upon the laity as well as the pastor there falls a responsibility.

The times, as we all know, are depressing and discouraging, but the Christian has no real business to give up hope. There is much to be thankful for after all, and there are great opportunities to practice our religion. In an age when so many are doubting God an earnest Christian can let the world know that he believes in God. When so many people do not pray he can pray and keep on praying. He can attend church services regularly and go out after other people and invite them to church or take them there. He can help in the Sunday School where the children and the young people are waiting for guidance and friendship. He can interest himself in the young people's work. He can offer his services to the pastor and actually do something to show that he believes in the church and is loyal to the minister.

All of this, of course, is commonplace for a Christian layman ought to do these things. Perhaps about the best thing a layman can do these days is to live an honest-to-goodness life in the community among his associates and business concerns. Several honest and God-fearing men in a community may save it from degeneration. A man whose word is as good as his bond, who pays his bills as he goes along, takes care of his family and helps the helpless and handicapped to take care of theirs—such a man preaches a far greater and better Gospel than any minister can ever preach from a pulpit. As a matter of fact the minister's best preaching is his daily life between Sundays.

These times are very much unsettled in politics, in business and in religion. In such troublous times the laymen in our churches can help the cause a lot if they give the minister free rein in his pulpit. Every thinking minister is in a difficult position because he has much he desires to tell his people. If he knows his congregation will listen attentively with a fine tolerant spirit, he can do a great deal better work in his pulpit. We are all searching for the truth. Let us keep an open mind and be ready for any new light that God may have to shine on the pages of the scriptures or within our own hearts. A new day is coming, let us be ready to meet it and rejoice in it. Let us not be found among those who oppose progress. E. A. K.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference met in the 112th Annual Session at Waverly Christian Church, November 2-4, 1932. The attendance of ministers and delegates was good. Dr. N. G. Newman, of Holy Neck Church was re-elected president. Dr. J. W. Manning is vice-president; I. W. Johnson, secretary; Rev. J. F. Morgan, assistant secretary; Mr. W. E. MacClenny, treasurer.

The most impressive session was held Thursday evening, when a memorial program in honor of the late Dr. W. W. Staley was rendered. A biographical sketch by Mr. W. E. MacClenny, Resolutions of Respect, read by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, which will be published in full in the Annual, presented a background for three addresses: "Dr. Staley as a Citizen," by Col. E. E. Holland; "Dr. Staley as a Pastor," by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, and "Dr. Staley in the Conference," by I. W. Johnson. Rev. O. D. Poythress sang, "I Will Not Forget Thee," in a very tender and impressive spirit. The regular program was followed by brief remarks of appreciation by Mr. Jesse F. West, Jr., Col. J. E. West, Mr. M. J. W. White, Chaplain H. E. Rountree, and Dr. J. E. Rawles.

The Collectors made the following report: "We, your Collectors, beg to report that the amount collected from the churches for this session is $5,347.72, with the following churches not reporting anything: Barrett's, Cypress Chapel, Damascus, First Norfolk, Hobson, Hopewell, New Lebanon, Ocean View, Old Zion, Epworth, Oak Grove, St. Paul, Webster, Wakefield."

Two young men were admitted to the Biblical Class and are now in the Freshman Class at Elon College: Mr. Aubrey C. Todd, of the South Norfolk Church, and Mr. A. L. Granger, Jr., of the First Church, Norfolk, Va.

The conference requested that the secretary appeal to the churches which failed to send any conference apportionments, urging them to send some amount to Mr. W. E. MacClenny, treasurer, Suffolk, Va. Unless the conference funds are greatly increased the work of the Southern Convention will be greatly embarrassed during the ensuing year. The convention will need about $6,000.00 to meet the obligation to issue THE CHRISTIAN SUN until November 1, 1933. The official expenses of the convention will be about $1,000.00 for the year 1933. The estimated income to the convention from all the conferences for 1932 will be less than $6,000.00. On this basis there will be no available funds for superannuation and Elon College from the Southern Convention at this time.

These distressing facts are brought to the attention of churches and conferences in the hope that the leaders may make a serious and persistent effort to relieve the situation. A financial depression is discouraging; but a spiritual depression is worse in its effects upon humanity. There is a lack of funds but there is also a lack of loyalty. Bring this matter to the attention of your church and conference.

The Apportionment Committee offered a report which was adopted, carrying the following apportionments for 1933: Antioch, $150; Barrett's, $50; Berea (Nansemond), $125; Berea (Norfolk), $125; Bethlehem, $200; Burton's Grove, $50; Centerville, $30; Christian Temple, $1,200; Cypress Chapel, $150; Damascus, $150; Dendron, $25; Eure, $150; Elm Avenue, $75; First, Norfolk, $400; First, Richmond, $200;

Franklin, $400; Holland, $300; Holy Neck, $200; Hobson, $10; Hopewell, $25; Isle of Wight, $40; Ivor, $25; Epworth, $10; Johnson's Grove, $50; Liberty Spring, $200; Mt. Carmel, $150; Mt. Zion, $40; Newport News, $300; New Lebanon, $50; Ocean View, $50; Old Zion, $300; Oak Grove, $50; Oakland, $150; Rosemont, $250; Suffolk, $1,500; South Norfolk, $400; Spring Hill, $50; Sarem, $25; Union (South), $95; Union (Surry), $50; Wakefield, $75; Waverly, $300; Windsor, $125; Webster, $50.

FIFTH SUNDAY OFFERING.

At the Richmond Convention in 1927, the convention requested the Sunday Schools of the convention to make an offering for the college on the fifth Sundays. This offering is called the Fifth Sunday Offering. The amount contributed has, heretofore, been running from $200.00 to $300.00—these contributions have helped tremendously. Aside from being a financial assistance, the college is kept constantly before the Sunday Schools and churches throughout the year.

In the schools where the offerings are received for the college, every member of the school has the opportunity to learn something about it. We want the boys and girls and the young people of our church to know something about Elon College, so that they may begin to think and plan to come here for their training.

Preceding every fifth Sunday, the college sends out a reminder to the superintendents, with the request that every member of the school be given an opportunity to make his contribution. We have a number of very faithful and loyal Sunday Schools throughout the church—they never fail to make an offering. Some give more largely than others, but of this faithful number, all give. What a wonderful thing it would be if all the Sunday Schools in the churches would join in this offering. With the united effort on the part of our schools, the total amount of fifth Sunday offerings would certainly be greatly increased.

The college offers two free scholarships to each conference in Carolina and Virginia—these scholarships are contested for by the schools—the school giving the largest amount wins one scholarship and the school giving the largest amount per capita wins the other. The Burlington Church in the Western Conference, and the Christian Temple in the Eastern Virginia Conference, have so far won both scholarships. I wish that some of the other Sunday Schools might make an effort to win this honor, or at least, divide honors with these two churches. Mt. Olivet, Green, won the scholarship in the Valley Virginia Conference; Mt. Auburn in the Eastern Carolina Conference. It seems that the North Carolina and Virginia Conference has not taken advantage of the Sunday School offer. These scholarships are given by the college to stimulate the fifth Sunday offerings. It is hoped that every church in North Carolina and Virginia will begin now to increase their offering, so that in addition to helping the college, they may be able to help some young man or young woman in their own church in his or her efforts to secure an education.

To date a very small number of schools have sent in their offerings. Has your school sent its offering? Read this list and if your school does not appear, call on your superintendent and see why the fifth Sunday offering has not been sent in. Your college needs this bit of assistance. Please do not withhold it.

A PERSONAL TRIBUTE.

My dear Editor:

Please permit me enough space for a personal tribute to the memory of Dr. W. W. Staley.

My first recollection of him was, when I was a boy, I saw him driving along a woods road around my father's farm, near Cypress Chapel, on his way to visit Jackson Harrell, son of Moses Harrell, who lived on a farm about a mile back in the forest. Jackson was then a ministerial student at Suffolk Collegiate Institute, and while home for the summer had contracted typhoid fever, from which illness he never recovered.

From the time of this first acquaintance until the day of his death he has been a guiding light in my personal experience. He was the first to receive my candidacy for the Gospel ministry, the first to examine my qualifications, he was a constant watcher and adviser during my preparation, and at all times gave encouraging advice. I am indebted to him perhaps a little more than any other person for a friendliness that not only supported me but kept me boosted for the work which I felt called to do.

I am wondering how many people in the world there are whom he blessed in the same way. In this connection may I quote from a letter from Braxton, my son. He says this: "I grieve not so much for him, nor for those who knew him, but for those souls who travel this life's span between birth and death without knowing some man like Dr. Staley. It is more important, therefore, that we steadfastly believe in a coming instant when the element of chance shall be removed from human evolution and our lives may be enriched by contact with all beautiful lives."

The crown of life is the beautiful life. Christianity makes beautiful and the end of the Christian way in the world is to make it possible for every personal contact to be beautiful.

NOTICE.

A meeting of the Educational Committee of the Eastern North Carolina Conference for the examination of candidates for licensure and ordination will be held on Tuesday night, November 22nd, at Liberty Church, or at some place announced in the conference. All candidates desiring to be examined at that time will please notify the chairman of the committee and present themselves at the time and place specified.

HISTORY OF HAW RIVER CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

By MISS EMMA THOMAS.

In the month of October, 1895, Dr. P. H. Fleming, a busy man then, as now, but never too busy to work for his Master, came to Haw River and spent some time in canvassing the town to learn whether there were enough people of the Christian faith to organize a Christian Church in Haw River. So his work, like all good work, was crowned with success. On October 21, 1895, he organized a Christian Church with twenty-six charter members.

In November, 1895, Rev. C. C. Peel came to serve as our first beloved pastor, and he went to work like a hero; and on February 1, 1896, he appointed a committee to draft plans for a church, and in a few months the church that you see today was completed. He served as pastor for three years; and now, though he is dead, his labors live on. He was succeeded in 1899 by Rev. W. G. Clements as our second pastor, he being a man loved by his flock and the entire community. It was under his leadership that the remainder of the church debt was paid and the church was dedicated on the first Sunday in June, 1900, the dedicatory sermon being preached by Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va.

Mr. Clements served as pastor for twelve years, and received forty-nine members. He was succeeded by the learned Dr. W. C. Wicker, one of Elcn's beloved faculty members. He served as pastor for two years, and was followed by Rev. J. F. Morgan, the ever busy man for his church and its growth and welfare. He was pastor for two years, and received forty-one members, and was succeeded by Rev. F. C. Lester, another faithful man of God. It was under his leadership that the Woman's Missionary and Christian Endeavor Societies were organized. He served us four years and received six members, and then was succeeded by Dr. P. H. Fleming, who was ever faithful to his duties. He served as pastor for ten years, and received 118 members, and was succeeded by Rev. Carl Dollar, a student of Elon College, who, on account of not having enough work to support him when he graduated, had to resign and only served us six months. He is now a student at Vanderbilt University. He was succeeded by Rev. Roy L. Coulter, a faithful man and ever true to his duties, especially in visiting the sick. He received twenty-eight members into the church. He served as pastor one year and eight months, and resigned to take up the work at Lynchburg, Va., and is now a student at Vanderbilt University. He was succeeded by Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, our present pastor, and he has received three members.

October 21st, thirty-seven years ago, the church was organized, and since that time there have been 309 members on the church roll, and of that number forty-four have died, five of whom were faithful deacons. They were J. W. Johnston, H. H. Simpson, J. H. McLure, R. Q. Haily, and G. S. Smith. Several have transferred to other churches, leaving 190 on our present church roll.

There have been five secretaries: H. V. Simpson served ten years; E. L. Henderson, four years; A. Q. Purcell, ten years; H. F. Sharpe, three years, and Mrs. J. W. Thomas is our present secretary, and has served ten years.

There have been three treasurers: W. H. King, who served eleven years; J. W. Johnston, twelve years, and Miss Emma Thomas, who has served over fourteen years, but who resigned three weeks ago. W. A. Trollinger is our present treasurer.

There have been five organists: Emma Thomas for twelve years, and the remaining years have been faithfully served by Mrs. Nettie McLure Biven, Mrs. Clara Purcell Whitted, Mrs. Annie Sharpe Coble, and, at present, Miss Alma Neese.

Our church, though small, has some as loyal members as can be found in any church. There has never been a pastor to leave it without getting every penny that was promised him. The church has always been supported by free-will offerings, and the treasurer pays the pastor and all church bills monthly. There has never come a call but what was answered.

The church has a good Sunday School which has a vision that looks beyond itself into the mission field, and gives one Sunday's offering to missions and one to the Christian Orphanage. It also has a Christian Endeavor Society that is doing good work.

Haw River, N. C.

LANETT, ALABAMA.

I have been in Lanett since Friday, and have held two services. I attended a board meeting, and visited a number of homes. I find here a very cooperative people, and feel sure that a great year awaits us.

We have a fine prospect here for the Christian Church—I think the best in the South.

We have been getting the work organized and in a going condition. We have a well organized Christian Endeavor Society, a Young People's Missionary Society, a Woman's Missionary Society, and a fine Sunday School.

This church has become a member of the Alabama Christian Conference, by virtue of the State line being made the conference line, as is also Langdale Church. We, therefore, gain almost 500 members by this change. These churches will be represented in the State conference at Tallahassee, Ala. Our goal is set for a good increase in membership during the year. We will hold a meeting here in the near future for the purpose of deepening the spiritual life of the church, and adding to it such as should be saved.

Rev. J. D. Dollar is suffering with a severe cold. Bro. Dollar has become a member again of the Alabama Christian Conference and is the moderator for the united conference. He has been called to work in the country around Roanoke, Ala., and will probably locate in that section. Wherever he and his estimable family should choose to locate, they will be a valuable asset to the community.

I shall move my family here as soon as arrangements can be made, and THE SUN readers will hear from this field at various times.

G. D. HUNT, Pastor.

PRAYER.

Blessed Spirit, rule thou in human life. Not only is there room for thee, there is crying, desperate need. Men and women are mystified, baffled. Help thou the tempted not to forsake the house with which we have been clothed upon nor return to the old leaven of malice and sin wherein wicked spirits multiply. Keep before mankind the assurance that prayers but feebly uttered, by thy holiness and power ascending to the Father's throne, often are heard and answered when, like Jacob, we know it not. In trust we wait and pray. Amen. L.

TRIUMPHANT LIVING.

[The following article was prepared by Mrs. R. T. Bradford, and presented by Mrs. J. B. Gay, before the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, at South Norfolk, October 28th, 1932.]

There never was a great victory without great faith. And the same may be said of a triumphant living. There was never a great life without a great faith. In brief, one's faith is the measure of one's life. One will not find in history a triumphant life that was not stimulated, directed by a great faith. The Christ declared as much, when he said: "As is thy faith, so be it unto you." Or again, when he said: "Thy faith hath made thee whole." Triumphant living means living in and by faith. And the one who, while on earth, had been closest to Jesus, declared in his old age and ripe experience: "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Triumphant living is living a life of faith.

Now this is why our Lord instituted missions—he wanted and must have an institution on earth through which his followers might show their faith through denying themselves for his sake. "Thy faith hath saved thee." He is still saying that to all who, through faith in him, are seeking, out of sheer devotion to him, to glorify his name and to hold him up before the world as the one Person who can save the world. Missions is the test of faith; and faith is that which saves individuals, churches and the world.

And one may say the sole cause of indifference to missions, or opposition to missions, is a lack of faith. Many indifferent and shortsighted Christians say: "We walk by sight. We will only do for and give to that which we can see. We must know where our gifts go. There are individuals about us who are needy, and what we give must go to them." This is the shortsighted Christian. Paul, the great apostle and first great missionary, viewed the matter and declared differently: "We walk by faith and not by sight." In missions we have to exercise faith in those who go; faith in the wisdom of those who administer; faith in the power of the gospel, when preached, to overcome sin, wickedness, and idolatry. When we give to missions, we cannot follow our gift with our eyesight, nor with the reach of our hand, nor even by our knowledge. We have to give, as the woman gave out of love to her Lord, that his name may be exalted and lifted up, and that our names may not be known or may be forgotten. Unless we can give in that spirit, we have not reached the point of faith to which our Lord is striving to bring us.

Now as to overcoming the difficulties and circumstances around about us. There is only one thing that can overcome the economic difficulties of the present; that is faith. We will not overcome economically till we overcome spiritually, and we overcome spiritually only through faith.

What the Christian Church needs today, what it has needed more than anything else through a hundred years, is faith, a faith which overcomes, that faith which leads us to pray for missions, to give to missions, to thank God for missions. For missions is not only the test and the challenge of faith, but, through the missionary effort only, does the church grow in numbers, prestige and power. The reason why the Christian Church has never grown more rapidly is because it has never had that faith which conquers, that faith which makes us look beyond the immediate presence of the home base, that faith which the woman had who made her gift not through benevolence or charity to relieve a human need close by, but to cheer and comfort the heart of her Lord, by making a gift out of self-denial for his sake and for his glory. In all our other giving and donations, we seek to help man, to glorify man, to relieve man, to comfort man; in our gifts to missions, we seek to cheer our Lord, to honor our Lord, to glorify his name, to magnify him, to hold him up to the world as our Saviour and our Redeemer. The triumphant life then is the life lived through faith in him, in his name and in his power to lift, redeem and save.

All this may seem quite general and sound like preaching, but it is that which has prompted us women, especially the past year, as well as through the previous years of our history and of our efforts. I know nothing more beautiful than the faith that our women have displayed through their missionary efforts the past year. We have gone to our societies when we knew that the need for our time, our talents, our dimes and our dollars were pressing on us from a score of immediate purposes and causes, and yet we have pressed on in and through faith. We have faith in the cause we represent; we have faith in our missionary societies, however weak and uninteresting they frequently seem to be; we have faith in our work however long and trying seems the way. And while we think of all this as testing our faith and consuming our strength, we may think of it all as a contribution to triumphant living.

I do not know how others feel about it, but I am convinced that many of us, as individuals, have overcome difficulties and won victories the past year that we would not have won but for our missionary society and the work which it has laid upon us. While the society often tests and seems to exhaust our strength, while it adds new duties to lives already crowded with duties, I feel that this duty laid upon us by our Lord helps us to fulfill all our other duties and obligations and gives us strength, added strength, for our tasks. Some of us may think the biggest thing the past year is the amount of money we have raised. To me the biggest thing is that we have held on and have not become discouraged nor given up during the past year. Today we face the future not discouraged, but encouraged; not cast down with fear, but buoyed up with hope; not conquered, but victorious in face of difficulties. And today I believe I speak the sentiment of all present and of our societies when I say we shall press on toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. This is the triumphant life. And let me say again and finally, that nothing, no enterprise, no institution, no claim upon our time or money, makes such a contribution to the triumphant life and victorious living as our work for missions, our contribution of prayer and purse and plan to missions, because this is the work of faith, and faith is that which overcomes the world.

A WORD FOR THE AMERICAN BOARD.

By WILSON P. MINTON, D. D.

If perchance anyone has ever had fears as to the soundness of the policy of the American Board, or the sincerity of its efforts to carry the Gospel to the world as the agent of our Congregational and Christian Churches, such fears would have been quickly and effectively allayed had you attended the recent annual meeting in Montclair, N. J.

In the first place, there was a most constructive and far-reaching program in which the corporate members of the board and the Prudential Committee (which is directly responsible for administering its work), sought earnestly and fully to discover any weaknesses in its plans and wherein more effective service might be rendered. Using the theme, "Rebuilding with Christ—a Christian Pattern for a New World Order," strong missionary leaders both from within and from without our Congregational-Christian fellowship came to grips with the vital missionary issues of this present day. Challenging personal utterances and sound group discussions made their contributions toward the solution of mission problems.

In the second place, the atmosphere in the beautiful and commodious Montclair First Church seemed to breathe an intense devotion to a world task, and above all a fine spirit of fellowship among all the workers who had come together. It was especially significant and pleasing to note a number from the former Christian constituency including President L. E. Smith, of Elon; Prof. W. A. Harper, of Atlanta Seminary; Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Hainer, of Irvington, N. J.; Rev. Edward C. Hall, of Milford, N. J.; Rev. W. S. Alexander, of Hyde Park, Brooklyn, and others from these and perhaps other of our Christian Churches And there was a definite feeling of complete oneness as we faced world problems together.

In the third place, the genuine motive of the American Board in its efforts to carry the Gospel to the millions in the world for whom we are responsible, was clearly revealed. This was evidenced in many ways but seemed to be particularly so in the three simultaneous forums conducted Wednesday morning on the subjects: "The New Philosophy of Missions," "Oriental Students Among America's Youth," and "Are Missions Overloaded with Institutions?"

The writer attended the first-named of these three forums under the guidance of Dr. Hugh Vernon White, of the American Board. I came away encouraged and strengthened in my own convictions that the message of Christ is the message the whole world needs. Dr. White made three positive affirmations: 1. It is a fallacy for us to say that a religion a people has is for that reason the best for that people. 2. It is a fallacy to say that one religion is as good as another. 3. There is in the world a best religion and that religion is Christianity.

Read those three positive affirmations again and be glad the American Board is the agency of your church for carrying Christ and his message to the world.

IN WHAT TERMS SHALL WE APPRAISE MISSIONS?

COMMENTS BY A LAYMAN.

It was true to every tenet of effective publicity that the first news release from the Appraisal Commission of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry should deal bluntly with the question: "Should Foreign Missions Be Continued?"

The commission members must have been prepared, as sensible and experienced men, for the typical newspaper's response to this release. We personally observed headlines giving variations to the general thought, "Laymen May Abandon Foreign Missions." A typical editorial comment was that, in this changing day, the whole program and message of the church might be expected to change, always with the inference that the church faced defeat if it proceeded in its present forms of ministry.

The secular press is hardly prepared to sense the fine points in the commission's presentation or to watch for forthcoming detailed reports of the strength and weakness of contemporary missions. For good or ill, there has been etched on the public mind the statements that the inquiry and hence the conclusions will represent the attitude of 10,000,000 Protestant Christians in the seven denominations represented in this somewhat unofficial study—and that this force of Christians in 1931 gave an average of $1.41 to foreign missions. The rather active church member who has been giving a dollar a month or upwards to various missionary objects will be inclined to take the appraisal with new seriousness—for his fellow laymen imply that Christian's gifts to missions are small at best and state directly that there is "no ground for a renewed appeal for the support, much less for the enlargement, of these missions in their present form and on their present basis."

With full appreciation of the motives of the laymen who at considerable sacrifice spent months in mission field research, following the trails blazed by other and perhaps more analytical workers who preceded them, the first reaction that some of us have to their work is that it attempts to compromise two diverse viewpoints.

For those who see religion simply as a civilizer—a work or program that must precede commercial development and to some degree popular education in Eastern lands—there may have been too low a return of the large sums Americans have "invested" in missions since the World War. Indeed, if the Christian advances in the East can be held responsible for one social result, quite outside their individual contacts, we must blame them or praise them according to point of view for Asia's new regard for human rights and new concern to take command of her own destiny. Europe went through a similar era as Christian teachings spread through the masses—and here at least we may find testimony that Christian missions are not without their accomplishments. The commission should be frank on its attitude toward the social gospel; as frank as it has been in saying that the Christian missions are opposed abroad by atheism and agnosticism rather than by the competition of other religions.

We are sorry that the value of Christian foreign missions is to be an issue fought in newspaper headlines. It would seem that the first duty of the laymen's commission was to exchange viewpoints with responsible missionary leadership at home—to give more emphasis to conference among the well-informed and less emphasis to general publicity for their findings.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

WAR OR PEACE.

We celebrate this week the fourteenth anniversary of the Armistice which closed the world's worst war. Fourteen years have brought many of the young people who read these lines from childhood to youth. You are fortunate in not being able to remember those awful days when young men were called from their homes, friends, and families to offer their lives on battlefields far away for causes they did not understand. It is very fitting that the Armistice Day be observed both in memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice or offered themselves for such, and to create a better feeling among people so war will be no more.

Billions of dollars were spent in that war, millions of men suffered or died on the battlefields, thousands of homes were wrecked, and the world was made into a moral chaos. It was the war that brought the crime wave we are now experiencing. The price is not all yet paid. We can never think of entering again into such a terrible sin. The following poems express the ideas of the writer, and are given for the benefit of you who read with the hope that you may resolve again that war must cease.

LET THERE BE NO MORE BATTLES.

"Yes, we would honor our heroic dead,
Would lay a wreath on each heroic head,
They all have perished for their dream of truth,
Died with the dare of youth.

"They are not dead; life's flag is never furled;
They only passed on lightly, world to world.
Their bodies sleep, but in that Better Land
Their spirits march under a new command.

"But there is something nobler yet—to live,
Live gallantly, to give and forgive.
Yes, there is something nobler than all war—
To make our country worth our dying for—
To lay the beams of justice on the earth,
And call the Brother Future into birth.

"This is a day that is dear,
A day when God is near—
The day when battles ended for a space:
Let it become the conscience of the race.

"O, sons of time and tears,
The skies are weary of these screaming shells,
The fields are weary of these battle hells;
Send a new vision of the coming years.
Set this great day as a holy day apart,
For dreams of Peace, the wisdom of the heart.
Yes, let this day, O men of earth, become
The dawn-rise of a new millenium.

"O friends of Christ, this is our dream, for we Must strive on toward the brotherhood to be—Toward that great hour of God's ascending sun
When all shall love and all shall lift as one."

EDWIN MARKHAM.

IT SHALL NOT BE AGAIN.

"Who goes there, in the night?
Across the storm-swept plain.
We are the ghosts of a valiant war—
A million murdered men!

"Who goes there, at the dawn,
Across the sun-swept plain?
We are the hosts of those who swear:
It shall not be again."

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

WHICH SWORD?

"A sword, a sword, and a sword:
Which sword will you draw, my son?
For one is of steel with its blind appeal
Till the folly of war is done.
'Tis an honor to fight for God and the right
But justice is seldom won.

"And one is the sword of truth,
God's swift and naked blade
That puts to flight the lines of night
And the hatred falsehoods made.
We are cowards all when lies appall,
But in truth we are unafraid.

"And one is a flaming sword
Whose work is but begun;
Its glorious part is to change the heart,
Its victories always won.
Draw this and smite with all thy might—'Tis the sword of love, my son."

JASON NOBLE PIERCE.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 20, 1932.

"Our blessings." (Thanksgiving Worship Service), Psalm 147.

There is an abundance of material for Thanksgiving services to be found almost anywhere. A brief history of the celebration would be fine. Poems, stories, scriptures, and talks will all be appropriate for the occasion. And be sure to have several prayers of thanksgiving. Of course the songs will be of praise and thanksgiving—use the best to be found in your books. By looking ahead and getting the cooperation of the members of the society, it is possible to have a wonderfully fine Thanksgiving service, and there really should be a good service on this special occasion, for God has certainly been good to us.

When a survey was made by the American Colonists of all the available food for the coming winter and it was found that by strictest economy after going immediately on half rations, there might be enough to eat, the governor declared a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for his providence. The people gathered in their place of worship, and about festive boards with but little food, and gave thanks to God. Are we worthy descendants of those hardy and holy people who laid the foundations of our nation?

Practically all of the Psalms, and especially the last half, are hymns of thanksgiving, or have some cause for thanksgiving in them. Have different members either read from the Psalms or tell the message in such Psalms as the 103rd, the 107th, etc. Poems like the following will also help the program:

THANK GOD.

"Thank God for life!
E'en though it brings much bitterness and strife,
And all our fairest hopes are wrecked and lost,
E'en though there be more ill than good in life,
We cling to life and reckon not the costs.
Thank God for life!

"Thank God for love!
For though sometimes grief follows in its wake,
Still we forget love's sorrow in love's joy,
And cherish tears with smiles for love's sake;
Only in heaven is bliss without alloy.
Thank God for love!

"Thank God for pain!
No tear hath ever yet been shed in vain,
And in the end each sorrowing heart shall find
No curse, no blessing in the hand of pain;
Even when he smiteth, then is God most kind.
Thank God for pain!

"Thank God for death!
Who touches anguished lips and stills their breath
And giveth peace to each troubled breast;
Grief lies before the touch, O blessed death;
God's sweetest gift; thy name in heaven is Rest.
Thank God for death!

—Author Unknown.

FATHER, WE THANK THEE!

"For flowers that bloom about our feet,
Father, we thank thee,
For tender grass so fresh and sweet,
Father, we thank thee,
For song of birds and hum of bee,
For all things fair we hear and see,
Father in heaven, we thank thee.

"For blue of stream and blue of sky,
Father, we thank thee,
For pleasant shade of branches high,
Father, we thank thee,
For fragrant air and cooling breeze,
For beauty of the blooming trees,
Father in heaven, we thank thee.

"For this new morning with its light
Father, we thank thee,
For rest and shelter of the night,
Father, we thank thee,
For health and food, for love and friends,
For everything that goodness sends,
Father in heaven, we thank thee.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

THE SIN OF SELF-PITY.

One of the greatest sins of the age, especially of the present time, is the sin of self-pity. It is heard on all sides, from the rich as well as the poor, from those who have much responsibility and from those who have the least. "No one ever had as hard a time as I have; no one thinks that I have any troubles; I get no sympathy." These are some of the frequent complaints that are heard. Not alone is it of this age, for all down through the years instances are recorded where people have pitied themselves, and also caused others to commit a like sin.

When Jesus, the Christ, was telling his disciples how he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things, and be killed, and be raised again the third day, Peter said unto him: "Pity thyself, Lord." But Jesus turned, and said unto Peter, "Get thee behind me, Satan; thou art an offence unto me; for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of man." Right there Jesus put the sin of self pity in its place. It has no place in the heart which has been cleansed by the precious blood of Christ, it only belongs to the old flesh (self). When it knocks at the heart's door with its insidious designs it should be turned back, thrust out, allowed no time nor place in our whole being. Thus would we indeed walk in the footsteps of Jesus. Such temptations will come, but through him we can and will have and keep the victory, yea, even the victory which overcomes the world. It is the testings of life which ever keep us at the feet of Jesus; trustin, learning, and then going out to serve where he may lead.

Some poet has written the thought that "we shall not pass this way again," that any good we may do must be done now. Self-pity brings good to no one, so if we are to do the good that is expected of us, the good that we want to have done through us, we must say, "thy will be done. Only use me to thy glory." God's plan may mean for us to suffer that we may show to the world how God can keep his own in adversity. Some one has said that some live to serve, others to suffer, and the where and how are not ours to determine. So with bright faces and brave hearts may we meet our days and face our battles. Only as God works in us can we truly serve. If we do not serve or suffer, God cannot work. We are workers together with him, who is love, and he wants us to express our love in helping others. Helping others to a knowledge of faith and hope in Jesus wherein they may find beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified.

Henry Van Dyke wrote the following lines:

"Self is the only prison that can ever bind the soul;
Love is the only angel who can bid the gates unroll:
And when he comes to call thee, arise and follow fast;
His way may lie through darkness, but it leads to light at last."

STEWARDSHIP OF MONEY.

LESSON VIII—NOVEMBER 20, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Take heed, and keep yourselves from all covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesses.—Luke 12:15.

SCRIPTURE LESSON: Deut. 8:11-14, 18; II. Cor. 9:6-15.

A steward is a man who has had committed to his care something from another, which he is to use in the interests of the other, and for which he must give an account to the other. Throughout the Bible this basic view is taken, not only of money or material things, but of time and talents and life itself. The lesson today, however, concerns itself primarily with material things, or as we would say, with money. In the first section of the lesson Moses speaks; in the second section Paul speaks; in the Golden Text Jesus speaks. Of course, they do not say all that is to be said about the stewardship of money, but they say something fundamental.

Moses and the Stewardship of Money.

Moses had come to the end of his life. He was giving the children of Israel his farewell message. He was dealing with the things that were of first importance. He tells them, therefore, to beware of forgetting God. And he warns them that perhaps their greatest danger of forgetting God will be in times of prosperity, when they have plenty to eat, when they have become rich. He warns them against having "their heart lifted up," of becoming proud and self-sufficient and of leaving God who giveth them the power to get wealth, and that had it not been for his mercy and his goodness they would still have been slaves in Egypt. All the blessings of life are reminders of God's goodness and ought to be used as gifts from him. They should serve to develop the responsive heart and the obedient will.

One wonders if back of the widespread and serious situation in the world today there is not the fact that the world had become forgetful of God. Our own nation had become wealthy and we had multiplied things until materialism had become the god of many. We forget that it was God who giveth us the power to get wealth, that the things which we thought we owned we merely possessed, and that we were to use them as good stewards for him. In spite of the effects of the depression there are going to be many more truly thankful hearts at this Thanksgiving season because men and women are seeing things in their true perspective and because they realize in a new way their true blessings. To have wealth does not constitute a sin. But we have Jesus' own words that it does constitute a serious situation. How hardly, says Jesus, shall they that are rich enter the kingdom of heaven. He did not mean that a rich man could not go to the place we call heaven. He did mean that it was difficult for such a man to preserve that spirit which is prerequisite to entering the kingdom, to doing the will of God on earth.

Paul and the Stewardship of Wealth.

Paul has a great deal to say about money. He went so far as to say that the love of money is the root of all (or of every kind) of evil. In this particular section of scripture he gives several fundamental principles.

He says that the man who sows sparingly shall reap sparingly. Natural laws operate in this realm as in order. Paul is not speaking primarily of the amount. There are cases in which those who give only small amounts sow most bountifully, for they give as did the poor widow woman, out of their limited means. But he lays it down as a principle of life that the man who gives sparingly shall reap in kind. The soul that gives in a little way proportionately automatically makes its capacity for receiving small. On the other hand he who gives bountifully enlarges and enriches his life and prepares himself for receiving more of God's gifts.

Paul also says that a man should purpose in his heart—he should quietly and prayerfully decide what he ought to do, he should be governed by his heart, that is there is to be feeling in it, and not simply careful calculation of the head—and then he should give, not grudgingly, or of necessity—he should not have the feeling of a martyr because he has given, or give because he felt that there was some outside compulsion, but he should give cheerfully—he should look upon giving as a privilege, he should be glad that he could give, he should give because he recognizes God's goodness to him.

Paul goes on to say that there is a divine arithmetic involved that mere human minds cannot calculate. Those who give as Paul has suggested will find that they have enough both for themselves and for others. Those who desire to share with others will live the more carefully themselves and their lives will be blessed by spiritual blessings because of this fact. "He that ministereth seed to the sower, that is God, will both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness."

The climax of it all comes when Paul says, "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift." All of our giving, all of our use of money is to be tested in the light of God's gift to us. How dare any man be niggardly or grudging in his giving in the light of the gift of God in Jesus Christ.

Jesus and the Stewardship of Money.

Jesus in the words of the Golden Text, says, "Take heed and beware of covetousness, or keep yourselves from all covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." The measure of a man is not how much he has; it is what kind of man he is. Material things do not offer any fair measure of a man. A far more searching test and standard is the attitude of a man toward his material things, and the use to which he puts them. Let every man beware of that deadly sin—the sin of covetousness—the unlawful desire for things.

What kind of steward are you? What proportion of your money do you give to the Lord? What kind of account could you render to Jesus Christ concerning that which he has given you?

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Psalm 119:130.

MONDAY.

A COMMON ATTITUDE.

"I will therefore chastise (whip) him and release him."—Luke 23:16.

Pilate compromised with his conscience, with Jesus and with Jesus' accusers, by deciding to whip Jesus and release him. This is a common attitude today. One says, "Jesus was a good man, and he may have been divine; there is no doubt that he was a wonder worker, but as for me, I do not see the need of him. I do not know what course others may take, but I will let it go at that. I will have nothing to do with him."

Another approves him as "idealistic," but not practicable, "we live in a practicable world," they say.

Another believes in making a good show and putting up a good front, so he joins the church and assays to show an interest in its activities, but when the show is not on in every-day life he does not admit him in his problems.

Another says, "Christ is all right in the church but his place is not in society, politics, nor in the haunts of men. If he goes where he doesn't belong, he deserves to be kicked out."

Such attitudes neither condemn him nor follow him. Pilate is gone. Rome has passed into history. All those who have so handled him have passed off the scene and Jesus remains. Those who so handle him today are asked:

"What will you do with Jesus?
Neutral you cannot be;
Some day your heart will be asking:
"What will he do with me?"

Prayer—O God, forbid that we shall be numbered among those who are false to Jesus, but teach us to love thee and be faithful always. Increase our faith and love until we shall be willing to die for him. We give unto thee our hearts, to follow thee, to obey thee, and to say every day—we will follow thee, O Lord, our God. Forgive us of our sins and save us, we ask in his name.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

FAIRY TALES.

"And their words seemed as idle tales."—Luke 24:11.

This is what is said of the apostles when the women told them the story of the resurrection. The idea of life after death could not enter their brains.

But something happened just here. We are told in the next verse that Peter jumped up and ran out to verify the story. He found the tomb empty, and as he departed, he was convinced. What changed him? Personal experience. Had he stayed away refusing to believe, he would have never known. It is experience of God in Christ in the personal life that convinces and convicts.

Sam Jones used to illustrate this truth this way: Out in Texas the system for watering cattle is by means of a platform connected with the water supply. The cattle are driven on the platform and the trough is filled automatically, but sometimes an old steer must do differently. He comes up to the trough on the off side—of course, no water comes. He decides there is no water and goes away with thirst unsatisfied.

God is revealed in Christ to us only by trying him. We must get on the platform which is according to the increasing purpose of God. Call ye upon him. Cast thy all upon him. And he will answer. "He is the rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Prayer—Our Father, we believe, help thou our unbelief. We pray for thy every-day experience that reveals thee to us through Jesus Christ our Lord. May we not be without it any day. In his name we ask it.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE FIRST MEETING OF THE APOSTOLIC CHURCH.

"And they returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them . . . and they told what things were done . . . and how he was known of them."—Luke 24:33-35.

This is a story of the first gathering of the disciples after it was known that Jesus was risen. From this meeting the Christian church came into existence.

The particular lesson to be noted here is: what was it that gave birth to the church? It wasn't Baptism, nor the Lord's Supper, nor the Mass, not even a formal worship; it was not argument, nor eloquence, nor anything that man had thought out. But it was a realization of the resurrection as a fact and out of that reality they told to one another their own experience.

Isn't it true that this fact of the soul's experience in Christ is the only valid basis for the church? Isn't it true that the increase of members in the Kingdom is possible only in and by those who have that experience? It is said concerning the church, "and there were added to the church such as were saved."

Isn't it true that every soul born again comes into that birth by and through others who have the experience? The apostles first came to Jesus because others came and told them. The church of Christ was born because they told it. The church has gone forward because those having the experience of the Holy Spirit told it. And so the gospel song says, "Tell it. Tell it wherever you go." How much of our duty of telling it are we discharging? How much is the light of our experience shining?

Prayer—Our Father, we thy servants desire to possess all the experience thou hast for us in the saving knowledge of Christ and may we be a part of thy church in the world. Guide thou our thoughts and actions this day that everything we may do may have its setting in thy plans for the glory of all good. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

JESUS' BLESSINGS UPON THE CHURCH.

"Upon this rock will I build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."—Matt. 17:18.

It was the immovable, impregnable, and indomitable rock of experience upon which Christ said he would build his church. The fact of personal experience (as above) being the only cause for the church, and the only basis upon which the church would be built and by which it would grow, and upon which it would stand forever, despite all the storms that might descend upon it, comes to us not only through that first meeting in the upper room, but later on through the very testimony of his followers.

Peter had just confessed to Jesus, in which confession he said that experience was his teacher. That confession embraced his personal knowledge of Jesus as the true Son of God. Jesus recognizes this, and thus blesses, not Peter, but the experience as the church. It also set forth undeniably that the Apostle's work was to be along that same line. He most emphatically told them that this was the rock and anything else would be "sinking sand."

We understand further that the church is not a structure of wood or stone, altars and ceremonies, but that it is an experience of the heart in which one is born again in Christ and made a new creature; and the temple, or the house, or the place of worship, is an assembly of these saints for worship, for edification to the glory of God. These things are the expression of saved souls. They would not be possible without the first experience.

Let us examine ourselves to see if we bear in our own souls and in every-day life, that whole salvation which only is acceptable unto him.

Prayer—O Lord, as the days come and go, we need thee more and more. Forgive us of our sins and waywardness and give unto us that baptism of the Holy Ghost in our spirits that our lives in thee may be as immovable as that Rock of the ages. Increase our faith and keep us steadfast forever.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

WAITING FOR SOMETHING.

"There . . . lay a great multitude of impotent folk waiting for the moving of the water."—Jno. 5:2, 3.

Here was a group of invalid folks depending for their cure on some commotion of the pool, and it seems that they were putting all their trust in that commotion. If the commotion would only come they could plunge themselves into it and be healed.

Isn't this a picture of a great many people in the church today? They are those who are lukewarm to a constant daily holy living, or apathetic toward a constructive policy for the church, hoping to find some new craze, agitation, "or sump't'n," to supply the deficiency in their own lives.

The success of personal religion, or the success of the living church of God, is not dependent upon popular interest, nor on new-fangled ideas; to depend upon such is the placing of faith as something transient and as fleeting as bubbles. It is highly superficial, and such superficialities pass away as quickly as bubbles. If faith is placed in these bubbles, how soon is faith gone! All those who wait for external manifestations are like invalids who wait hopefully but who never realize the healing power.

It is not to be denied that there are great movements, great revivals, and great manifestations, but they have their source in the veritable personal inner workings of the Holy Spirit of God in his true children whose Christianity is the powerful reality of God in every-day life thrust forward as channels for the workings of that Spirit in the world.

In which class do we find ourselves, today: waiting impotently for something to happen, or working for Jesus to make something happen?

Prayer—Dear Father, as we turn our hearts to prayer today, thy word enjoins us to turn our thoughts into the closet of our inner selves and look for thee there. O God, help us to do this perfectly today.—Amen.

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

LOVE—THE GREATEST OF THESE.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"The greatest of these is love."—I. Cor. 13:13.

In being a pastor which is the great commandment? In being a teacher which is the great commandment? In being a mother which is the great commandment? In being a Christian which is the great commandment? In being anything worth while in the world which is the great commandment? There are many commandments—ten in one place, and all through the scriptures many others are given. Commandments to pay, to pray, to preach. Commandments to do and dare. Commandments to have faith. Commandments to hope thou in God. Commandments of faith, hope and love, "but the greatest of these is love."

When we look into God's natural and physical world we observe that things develop step by step, stage by stage. May it not be so in "the greatest of these." Sometimes the young man thinks he falls head over heels in love with a young lady the first time he sees her—head over heels is staggering backward toward a fallen position; but the years may show him that the great love is that which stands up; head high, heart right, and ready to do and dare for the one loved. Love grows.

Jesus set it in its proper prospective. He placed it in order, or rather showed us what its order was, and of a right should be. "And one of the scribes came . . . and asked him: Which is the first commandment of all? And Jesus answered him, the first of all the commandments is, hear O Israel; the Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength."

I. "Love God," says Jesus. That is first. In the little infant the parent is in that place. In the adult the primary instinct is to cry out to God as a child cries out to its parent. We may not love God first. But that is not saying that it is not right that we should. Our affection may be abnormal. Jesus loved God first. He has taught it to his followers, and he expects it to be the normal thing in a person's life. He set up some very searching standards. He taught about the sacred relationships of mother, father, husband, wife, yea, and children; and always there stood out above and over them all one's call to put God first. Houses and lands, of course, were to be made side issues, not the central things by any means. He spoke of his mother, brother, sister being those who did the will of God. Well, our finite minds, and culture, perhaps have not brought us up fully to comprehend all that Jesus meant; but we can be sure that Jesus put the love of God in the first order. How love of mother, father, wife, and sister, and all the others would grow and glow if we loved God first!

II. "Love me," says Jesus. Delicacy forbade that it be as directly stated as the commandment concerning love of God. But he commanded it all right. "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" In other words, Simon was in Jesus' circle, his love of God was professed already, and he had been taught many things, therefore a growth in love could be expected of him. His love of God should now be shown to have been made larger, and surer, by his love for Jesus, the Son of God. Love God first.

"Love me, too," says Jesus. Or, he might say, "You love God; all you have to do is to open your eyes and see that in loving the Father you are loving me also." Jesus never left the gap between him and God open! How some men and women in every generation have loved Jesus! They have never allowed theological niceties to blind their eyes or blight their love for Jesus. Peter didn't, and in later years he proved his love completely.

I was reading a missionary biography. "What is the matter?" asked my neighbor. This is the line I was reading: "Mr. Williams succeeded in reaching the beach, and the waters of the bay were colored with the blood from his wounds (these wounds had been made by the arrows of the natives of the New Hebrides Islands); and here would that we could say that the bereaved ones on the ship had the Christian privilege of tenderly caring for the bodies of their dead comrades; but this dark picture has no such relief, for the Erromangas were cannibals." It has been nearly a hundred years now since this Rev. John Williams, at the age of forty-three met that fate. Scores and hundreds of other young men and women have dared to follow in his wake, because of their great love for Christ.

"If Jesus Christ is a man—
And only a man—I say,
That of all mankind, I cleave to him,
And to him I will cleave alway.

"If Jesus Christ is a God—
And the only God—I swear
I will follow him through heaven and hell,
The earth, the sea, and the air."

III. "Love one another," says Jesus. The true lover of God will not stop at loving Jesus, for he will hear Jesus saying, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that you love one another." It is not a new commandment to love one another. That commandment is in the Old Testament. But it is new to love "as I have loved you." When Jesus added that phrase he had made a new commandment. Have you thought that it is hard to love God as Jesus expected one to love him? You will find quite as big a task in Jesus' command to love others as he loved them. Indeed, Jesus always challenges us to a supreme ideal. Suppose Christians loved as Jesus loved!

Ugly thoughts, unkind words, evil acts, unfair dealing, angry emotions, would flee like deadly germs in the blazing sun! These things poison the human soul—and, indeed, they actually make ill at times the body itself. Suspicion, jealousy, hatred, greed, envy—what an array of demons would find themselves on the run were Christians to love as their Christ loved. We name the name of Christ, and spill more blood than the adherents of all other religions combined. More than 75 per cent of the federal tax dollar—paid in mostly by adherents of the Christian religion—is used for war in one way or another. And that brings me to the final thought on this message.

IV. "Love your enemies," says Jesus. The circle ever widens. That doesn't mean only making treaties with other nations. That means loving the one you now feel is a despicable cur next door to you. Maybe he has treated you wrongly. Maybe he has hurt your feelings. Maybe he has gotten your job. Maybe he has done better with it than you would have done. Herod had Jesus' place in being Israel's king. Pilate had Jesus' place of authority. Barabbas had Jesus' place of acquittal. But Jesus held his own place of love! Herod, king of Israel! Jesus, king of the world by love! Some day it will come. Pilate in the place of authority! What command has been more far-reaching already than Jesus? Barabbas freed? Jesus, the freer of imprisoned for all time to come! He did it with love. "Love never faileth" On the cross it did not die; it could not fail. Its words were pleading for forgiveness; and its price all of life itself. "Love suffers long, and is kind." "But I say unto you, love your enemies."

What hope can you have where you cannot love; what faith can you have where you cannot love? You wish to have some hope for a fellow? Love him! You wish to have renewed faith in a fellow? Love him! On the other hand, you may put hope and faith into a person or a proposition and put not love and it profiteth you nothing. "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Thanksgiving will soon be here. We wonder if our churches and Sunday Schools are seriously thinking about the offering they are going to send the Christian Orphanage. We need $10,000.00 to pay all bills and meet the fall and winter expenses. If you haven't thought about it seriously, please give it your prayerful consideration. Make your plans in advance of the day you are to take the offering in your church and then work your plan. Tell your people the day the offering will be taken, and ask them to lay aside something to put in the collection plate to help swell the offering.

Talk the offering. Get your people interested in it. Hold up our 102 children before them, and tell them they need food, clothing and care. They are helpless. They need your prayers, they need your love to cheer them in their sad hours. They need your assistance now.

How much sacrifice are you willing to make? It may be a real sacrifice to contribute to this offering this year; but the Good Book tells us to give and it will be given back to us in full measure. Are we willing to trust God? If there ever was a time in the last sixteen years when this institution needed your loyalty, your love and your gifts, it is now. Give it your most prayerful thought.

Prayer is the strategical point which Satan watches. If he can succeed in causing us to neglect prayer, he has won; for where communion between God and his people is broken, the true source of life and power is cut off.—Murray.

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x½ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

CHRISTIAN MANIFESTATION.

"The kingdom of heaven cometh not with observation . . . for behold the Kingdom of God is within you."—Luke 17:20.

The Kingdom of God which God will set up in the world will not be known by any outward splendor or manifestation, but by the inward power of divine efficacy in the hearts and minds of man. God said to Elijah that it would come by the "still small voice" in the soul and in the conscience. He said to Zachariah, "It is not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord."

Carrying out this same manifestation of the Kingdom, as Jesus set in motion his church and taught his disciples concerning its propelling force, he said, "Tarry until ye be endued with power from on high."

It is by faith and by personal consecration to him and his cause, we are saved, and this is within the meaning of Jesus' explanation of salvation. This action of the Holy Spirit upon the soul has been very finely set forth in the following words by Dr. Dubose: "The setting of our entire selves Godward."

Prayer—Say the Lord's Prayer.

SUNDAY.

THE CHURCH'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together . . . exhorting one another."—Heb. 10:25.

From the beginning of the church of Christ in the heart of the apostles there has come across the centuries a Sabbath day, appearing once in every seven when all should cease from their labors and in obedience to God, do something extraordinary for the furtherance of his church in the human heart—that is (as commonly expressed): go to church and not only worship God but exhort one another. This has been made necessary for the glory of God. This has been made necessary that the authority and certainty of religion might be eternal.

It is in this way that every Sabbath becomes a birthday celebration of that first meeting in the upper room, and to participate in that celebration is to every one a renewed pledge of faith and its growth.

If this be true, no wonder then that truly born souls feel keenly the tragedy of so many souls about them who are not and will not become Christians. That is an experience that only a true child of God can appreciate, but it is one which every true child of God does appreciate. It is this particular fact which we are told makes God sick. "So, then, because thou art lukewarm, I will spew thee out of my mouth." (Rev 3:16.)

Dost thy soul burn with the fervent heat of the Holy Spirit? If not, pray until it does. Dost thou have concern for those who are not in the fold? Then, "let thy light shine." Tell it. So live that they who see thee cannot fail to know that thou dost live with Jesus, and they too may be constrained by the Spirit within thee, to acknowledge him in all their ways.

Prayer—O Lord, grant this to us and to our household and to our church, and to thy church in the world. We ask for Jesus sake—Amen.

SWIMMING.

Although all reptiles and most animals and insects are able to swim in varying degrees, few possess the swimming power of human beings. A man has been known to swim thirty miles without a pause, and the only animal that approaches this performance is the American black bear.

The American deer, however, will occasionally swim twelve or fourteen miles at a stretch. It is noteworthy that the rabbit cannot swim at all. The common mouse and the field mouse can swim only a few yards, and often drown in the act, yet rats can swim splendidly. Lions and tigers swim well, although only from necessity—to cross a river, for example. The horse can swim for miles without becoming exhausted, and shows a wonderful instinct in choosing the best available landing place. Bears and moles swim well, but bats and monkeys are helpless in water.—Exchange.

The answer of prayer may be, as it was to Paul, not the removal of the thorn, but instead a growing insight into its meaning and value. The voice of God in our soul may show us, as we look up to him, that his strength is enough to enable us to bear it.—James Freeman Clarke.

How wise it is to know the present, how needful to know the future! We cannot disconnect them without destroying life's unity. Therefore, the two gifts we most of all require to pray for are insight and foresight. Your life will be a failure without insight, your destiny unattainable without foresight.—W. S. Bruce.

OBITUARIES

CAVINESS.

Braxton Monroe Caviness was born October 6, 1853, and died September 9, 1932, making his stay on earth 78 years, 11 months and 3 days.

His wife was formerly Miss Melissa Bray, who preceded him in death seven years ago.

To this union three children were born, of whom two survive: H. C. Caviness, of Asheboro, N. C., and Mrs. J. Y. Oates, of Bennett, N. C.

There are nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild. He is also survived by four brothers and one sister.

He gave his heart to God in early life, and joined the Pleasant Grove Christian Church, where his remains were placed beside his companion to await the resurrection.

He was faithful to his Lord and church. A large crowd attended the burial.

HARDY.

Whereas, the Death Angel visited our community and took from our midst a good and honorable member of our church and Christian Endeavor Society at Liberty, Va., Mrs. Mattie Hankley Hardy and infant daughter, who departed this life October 6, 1932, therefore, be it resolved:

First. That we are grateful to the Master for her happy and useful life, though her prospects seemed so bright for the future, God's finger touched her and she slept. We miss her presence which was ever a joy and inspiration to us, but pleasant memories of our association with her will abide.

Second. That we extend to the entire family our deepest sympathy, realizing the husband has lost a loyal wife.

Third. That we strive to profit by all that was good and true in her life.

MESSERLY.

Shortly after the organization of the Linville, Va., Christian Church, Mrs. Mary Messerly, then quite young, became a member. At the time of her death, she was the oldest and one of our most beloved and faithful members. Her whole life was devoted to her family, church and community. Because of her consecrated life we adopt the following:

Resolved, That the wisdom and ability which she exercised in the aid of our church by service and counsel will be held in grateful remembrance.

That the removal of such a life from among us leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized, and will prove a great loss to the community.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent the bereaved family, a copy placed on our church records and a copy published in "The Christian Sun."

NUMBER 46.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Old Flag Given New Setting.—

The historic "Star-Spangled Banner" which flew over Fort McHenry, Baltimore, in 1814, has been kept in comparative obscurity since 1908 in a small case in the National Museum in Washington, according to the United States Army Recruiting News. This famous flag, which inspired Francis Scott Key to write his immortal song, has recently been set in a new case, which permits the entire banner to be seen. The tattered banner is 28 by 34 feet, and is in comparatively good condition even though it was torn by British shells during the battle.

Bible Sunday to be Observed.—

The American Bible Society is asking that Sunday, December 4th, be observed by the churches as Universal Bible Sunday, and has sent material to almost 87,000 pastors throughout the country, for their use in stimulating on that day a deeper interest in the use and significance of the Scriptures. President Hoover says in this connection: "Universal Bible Sunday once a year brings to all our people simultaneously a concerted stimulus to study the Bible and to ponder its inexhaustible wealth of inspiration and example. The spiritual life is enriched by the annual observance of this day." A devotional study of the Bible is delightfully rewarding.

Homes Census.—

The first survey of types of American homes, results of which have been recently released by the United States Census Bureau, reveals the fact that over 90 per cent of the 25 million families of the United States, in 1930, lived in one-family homes. Only 2.6 per cent of these families lived in apartment houses built for three or more families. As might well be expected, the percentage of one-family homes in rural districts was higher, reaching 97.3 per cent, while in urban centers it fell as low as 84.3 per cent. There were listed 22,833,110 one-family dwellings, while 643,779 multiple-type homes accommodated something over three and a half million additional families.

Do You Own a Belgian Flea?—

The New Yorker gives us in substance, the following story: The price of a competent flea has risen until it is now around $3.00, and all because of the falling off in international travel. Professor Hecker, flea trainer, will probably be greatly embarrassed in his profession if the present condition continues. "All the Hecker fleas are of European origin, procured," we are told, "from ship stewards," and the professor has traveled as far as Norfolk buying fleas that will make the grade. Belgian fleas learn quicker, he tells us. French and Italian fleas are quite bright. English fleas are slow of comprehension. When asked about American fleas, he replied: "America is the land of my adoption. I have received honor and material reward in America. I would not allow any expression to escape me which might offend this dear land. I must, therefore, beg to be excused from discussing American fleas." It is quite evident that his opinion of American fleas coincides with our own.

Health and the Depression.—

Although there is a widespread impression throughout the country that the current depression has had a bad effect upon the health of the nation, there have been distinct health gains in many communities in spite of much unemployment during the past three years, according to John P. Koehler, head of the Milwaukee Department of Health. He reports, for example, an improvement in the general death rate, which was 10.5 per thousand in 1929, 9.6 for 1930, 9.1 for 1931 and promises to be even lower in 1932. The mortality rate in infants under one year old decreased more than 25 per cent during 1930 and 1931. Deaths from pneumonia decreased 35 per cent during the same period. There was a decided improvement in tuberculosis, nephritis, and diphtheria. Apoplexy shows no change, while cancer made its normal increase. Suicides increased 20 per cent. There was an increase in dental defects. The only ailment due to malnutrition to appear on the increase is rickets in children under two years old. The health of many is better.—The Methodist Protestant-Recorder.

The Metal We Call Tin.—

For over two thousand years tin has, because of its scarcity, been considered almost a semi-precious metal. Today, in spite of its many important uses, it is plentiful and comparatively cheap. While proof of the great antiquity of tin is not so convincing as is that of gold, silver and copper, we have records of its employment from the Biblical times of Moses. Herodotus also records its employment in the arts, and its alloys were known to Hiram of Tyre when King Solomon's temple was built. Today it gives its name to the tin-plated roofing which covers our buildings, "tin" cans are an absolute necessity, it composes an important part of the metal from which type that prints this page is made, and the enamel ware of our beautiful bath-rooms and kitchens of today is dependent upon tin for its making. Originally discovered by the Phoenicians in Cornwall, Britain, until recent times gave us most of our tin. Today practically all of our tin comes from the Malay Peninsula, which includes Burma, Siam, and the Dutch and British possessions, and from the little South American country, Bolivia. "In Bolivia," we are told, "the tin mines lie upon a high mountain range so rich in metals that until in the last century tin was trash dug away from the silver." Now it is the chief wealth of that country, the tin tax being a most important source of governmental revenue. And we are told that though the United States is the world's largest buyer of tin, we buy our supply second-hand. Our informer says: "Bolivian tin ore, carried down the precipitous heights of the Andes, passes out through the Panama Canal, across to the smelters of Liverpool, and back to the United States. Although the biggest buyer of tin, the United States gets its supply second-handed. Its own war-built smelters are shut down by export restrictions and high production costs. Yet an American company controls the English company which annually smelts more than half the tin mined in the world."

From the Ends of the Earth.—

"The many generations that will inherit the hills and valleys and prairies we now call ours may complain," says U. V. Wilcox, writing in Better Crops Magazine, "that we have wasted home of their rightful inheritance, but we feel sure that they will bless us for making it possible for them to enjoy in increasing measure the fruits of the earth." These generations yet to come will enjoy hundreds and thousands of plants that were unknown here when the Indian scratched the ground and raised his maize. Of the long list of useful and ornamental plants now firmly rooted in our soil, only comparatively few are native to it. The far corners of the earth have been searched in bringing them to us, and nearly a hundred thousand separate specimens have been introduced. In the desert oases of California and Arizona may now be found date palms from the old world deserts. Feteria, kafir and Sudan grass cover the vast fields of the West. The current vineyards of California, the rice fields of Texas, are other examples. The descriptions of many of these strange and exotic plants read like a romance of science in serial form. One paragraph may take you to Mexico, where some traveller has discovered a plant whose seeds once filled the granaries of the Aztecs. In the next the scene shifts to Africa, the source of a number of crops now important to American agriculture, or to China, a veritable wonder garden of fruits and nuts, vegetables and flowers. Then we are told of the queer plants of New Zealand or Australia which may have possibilities as a provider of wood, food, shade, or beauty to our future generations." The variety of plants seems almost endless. There are trees which may replace mahogany or walnut, fruits that yield medicinal oil, giant lilies for beauty, and vegetables that will give us variety in our gardens. Even now the surface only has been scratched, but our country is a better place to live because of the work that has been done along this line.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

In counting the blessings of the year, recall that your church paper, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, has been faithful in coming to your home every week, and now is the time to take a hard-earned and valuable $2.00 and send in your renewal.

That is a beautiful and timely tribute to the memory of Dr. Staley that "Victoria of the Hills" (Miss Victoria Edwards, Fancy Gap, Va.), gives in another column of this week's SUN. The Mission Secretary does not remember ever having suggested to Dr. Staley that he visit our good people of the "hills," in Carroll County, Va., and our churches at Elk Spur and Rocky Ford, but that he was ready and willing to go even at his own charges; and how he did love the people he met there and enjoyed meeting and being with them. As Victoria says: "I wonder how many lives he reached and how many burdens he carried for those he passed along the way." The more we think of Dr. Staley and the more angles from which we view his marvelous life, the more we are amazed at the number of men and women in all directions and all conditions of life whom he reached, helped and benefited. What a man, indeed, was our beloved Dr. Staley!

Miss Ethel Hurley, Director of Religious Education, Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., writes, as follows, concerning the broadcast of the morning service at the Temple, over station WGH, of Newport News: "May I ask you to make some announcement regarding this broadcast in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. We are not desirous of having folks remain home from the church of their choice to hear Dr. Pierce, but we should like to have shut-ins and others unable to attend the morning worship service acquainted with the fact that they may tune in and worship with us in this way. It would be gratifying to us to know if any of our CHRISTIAN SUN readers are listening in. We would appreciate hearing from them from time to time, perhaps suggesting some problem they are facing, some question they should like to have Dr. Pierce discuss. We have changed the popular name of WGH meaning 'World's Greatest Harbor' station, to mean 'What Great Happiness.' It is our sincere hope that our radio broadcast of the morning service will bring happiness and peace and blessing to many who are unable to attend a church service."

Rev. E. B. White, of Windsor, Va., writes: "We had a great conference at Waverly, Va., Dr. N. G. Newman's stirring and eloquent address was an inspiration to all of us. He is a capable leader, a good preacher and a Christian gentleman. Brethren, life today is full of rush and excitement. People wear out body and soul in their struggle for wealth, pleasure and fame. Isn't it a fact that the most miserable people in all the world are those who live only for themselves, and run after every new fad and sensation? They forget that there is a purer and a greater happiness in the service of the King of Righteousness than in anything else which they can do. What we need is a genuine revival of spiritual life in every department of our daily existence. If we would learn the way of our blessed Redeemer, we must learn that his way is devoid of all jealousy, self-seeking, gossip, hatred and bitterness. My conviction is that the religion of love, purity, temperance, compassion, unselfishness and brotherly love is the only hope of the world in which we live. Let us put God first, and be loyal, consecrated Christians."

A very agreeable and quite welcome visitor at Elon College, November 12th and 13th, was Rev. J. M. Rowland, D. D., editor of the Christian Advocate, author and divine, of Richmond, Va. Dr. Rowland delighted and convulsed with repeated laughter a good audience Saturday evening with his famous lecture, "Some Nuts I Have Met." From this lecture many carried away points of pith and power of human interest and discernment. Dr. Rowland preached to a very attentive college audience at eleven A. M., Sunday, November 13th, using as his theme, "The Report of the Spies Sent by Moses into the Land of Canaan"—a committee to spy out and report upon the land to which the Israelites were journeying. Dr. Rowland admitted his inability to solve problems, and so preferred to discuss privileges. The privilege of entering the land of The charter of the Southern Christian Convention has been amended as provided for in the recent session held in Burlington. The Convention now is the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches. In addition to the change of name, Congregational Conferences are now eligible for membership on the same basis as Christian Conferences. The new charter is effective as of November 10, 1932. The amendment of the charter now makes possible the consideration of additional steps to unify the work of the Congregationalists and the Christians in the South.

STANLEY C. HARRELL, Pres.

Canaan was one of promise to the Israelites, but to ten of the committee sent out, the privilege was reduced to a problem too big and bulky for them to solve, and so they gave it up. Two out of the twelve considered the promise of God a real privilege, and instead of considering themselves grasshoppers, they considered themselves co-workers with God, since with the help of God they were able to enter into and take the land. It was a great discourse, and one that will be remembered with real helpfulness through the years to come. Dr. Rowland will be welcome at Elon at any time he can find it within his reach to come.

From the Hopewell News, Thursday, November 10th, is the following: "The Rev. D. D. Nash is moving his family to Concord, N. C., this week. Mr. Nash came to Hopewell about fifteen years ago and was in the employ of the DuPont Company, during the World War, and has been an employee of the Tubize Chatillon Company for over ten years. Mr. Nash is well known in religious circles for his active Christian work, having been licensed to preach by the Eastern Virginia Conference of the Southern Christian Convention. He served as pastor of the Hopewell Christian Church for over a year, and has also supplied in pulpits of other denominations of the city, besides assisting in revival meetings. Mr. Nash has served the Hopewell Christian Sunday School as superintendent for a number of years, now leaving while in office. His daughter, Miss Mary Lily Nash, who has ably assisted her father in his evangelistic work, is pianist of the church, which position she has filled ever since the church was organized. She has also been an active worker in the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor. They will be greatly missed in the church by its various departments, and the community as a whole. The best wishes of many follow them to their new home in North Carolina." The editor can bear personal testimony of the high character, good standing and faithful service of Bro. Nash. We are trusting that he may find work to his liking and in keeping with his calling to preach the gospel.

The Western North Carolina Conference was in session at Parks Cross Roads Church, Randolph County, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Despite the fact of a very rainy day on Wednesday, a good delegation from the churches was present and the business of the Conference was transacted in order and with interest. On Thursday, the second day, large numbers were present and the spirit of harmony and brotherly love prevailed through all the proceedings of the sessions. Rev. E. C. Brady was and is the very capable and esteemed president of the Conference; Bro. Geo. T. Gunter, the competent and careful secretary; Bro. O. D. Lawrence, the trusted, faithful and accurate treasurer. President L. E. Smith of Elon College delivered the annual sermon and an address also on "Education," both of which were inspiring and highly edifying. Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro, by invitation, delivered an address on "Evangelism," which was greatly enjoyed and was of deep interest to the Conference. The Mission Secretary spoke of the Report on Missions and sought to define for the Conference the field of missions and to distinguish the missionary motive and meaning. Supt. C. D. Johnston of the Orphanage told of the work and needs of the institution so near and dear to his heart. Two other visitors to the Conference, representing THE CHRISTIAN SUN, were Mr. John T. Kernodle, managing editor, and Rev. J. L. Foster, of Elon College, who urged the necessity of subscribing to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. None of our Conferences show a sweeter spirit of fellowship and harmony than does the Western, and it is always a privilege to be in their annual sessions. There was general regret expressed that Rev. J. G. Cummings, a member of the Conference was prevented from attending any session because of illness. Prayers will be many, and anxiety is great that this able minister of the Word may soon be in health and strength again.

THANKSGIVING FOR ELON.

We are being ushered into that season of the year when we are accustomed to count our blessings and to balance our accounts with the Lord. Have you enjoyed health—have you had plenty to eat—have you had the comforts of life? These things come not of yourself, nor as the result of your own efforts, independent of God, but they are yours because of the goodness of God and the generosity of his own soul.

As you count your blessings and face your obligations, perhaps you will feel that Elon College deserves some kind of a Thanksgiving recognition. Let every present member of the Dollar-a-Month Club start a contribution so as to reach the college on or about Thanksgiving Day. Let all of you who have been planning to join the Dollar-a-Month Club, send in your name with your initial payment of $1.00 in time to reach the college for Thanksgiving.

If you who read this little note are not a member of the Club, and have not thought about it, give it serious consideration and do not lay this aside until you have taken a piece of paper, written your name and address on it, attached a dollar bill thereto, and started it on its way. It would be a wonderful thing if a thousand people would open their purses and send their gifts to the college at this Thanksgiving time, and gladden our hearts with the assurance of your good wishes and your thankful gifts—we will be looking for them.

L. E. SMITH.

REV. H. C. CAVINESS—EVANGELIST.

[Rev. H. C. Caviness, who served the First Church, Portsmouth, as pastor for six years, has retired from the pastorate to dedicate all his time and labors to his favorite field of evangelism. On the occasion of his retiring as pastor from Portsmouth, The Virginian-Pilot carried the following item.]:

Bringing to a close a tenure of six years during which the church has advanced materially both in its membership and the scope of its activities, the Rev. H. C. Caviness will officiate for the last time in First Christian Church today, having resigned his pastorate to enter the evangelistic field.

The Rev. Mr. Caviness has organized the Gospel Missionary Movement, an organization nation wide in its scope and having as its objective the teaching of the fundamentals of religion. The support of the work will be through private and personal donations, no collections or offerings to be taken during the service. No member of the organization will receive a salary, according to Mr. Caviness, only expenses incurred in carrying out the program to be paid.

Headquarters of the movement will be located in this city. The Rev. Mr. Caviness has had several years of experience in evangelistic work, having resigned as evangelist of the Southern Christian Convention six years ago to accept the pastorate of the First Christian Church.

The official board of the church authorized the following statement:

"During the ministry of the pastor the church has made remarkable progress, growth has been evidenced in every department, even an increase in financial returns has been evidenced each year of the six years of such pastorate, which is indeed a remarkable incident in the conduct of any church in the present and past period of depression. Much social and spiritual work has been inaugurated by Mr. Caviness outside the usual church channels during his ministry. The cottage prayer services, which are held each Friday—two, sometimes more, in some section of the city, have become a real institution.

"The work of Mr. Caviness each Sabbath afternoon in the Norfolk County jail has been productive of great good, and those in authority therein, as well as the prisoners who have become acquainted with him, have expressed their sincere regret at his departure. The work at the Naval Hospital here, which Mr. Caviness inaugurated and which is conducted at regular intervals by the Christian Endeavor Society of his church has resulted in the confession of Christ on the part of a large number. The regular visitation work and conduct of religious services at the City and County Almshouse and the Home for Aged on the part of the Men's Bible Class and the Women's Bible Class of the church as originated by Mr. Caviness, constitutes a work of splendid and most commendable character.

"For a long while on some week-day at noon time, Mr. Caviness has conducted religious services for the men at the Seaboard Airline Railroad shop, and great regret was expressed by them at his farewell service last week. In fact, Mr. Caviness has touched every phase of the city life. His sympathy toward the poor and those less fortunate in life and his continual ministry to such during the past six years of his life here has been one of the outstanding characteristics of his pastorate.

"He also did much religious work in the Norfolk area, in missions, railway shops, Y. M. C. A. and churches.

"Mrs. Caviness, the minister's wife, has likewise endeared herself to those with whom she came in contact, for consecration and love of Christian service, it is said by those who know her, that she has never been excelled. As a teacher of unusual ability of the Woman's Bible Class of the church she has ever contributed in a most marked way to the religious life of the people, and as a woman wholly sympathetic toward her husband's ministry she shares with him the remarkable results which have been attained during the past six years. Long a leader among the women in the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference in missionary activity, Mrs. Caviness has made a great contribution along lines of missionary endeavor."

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

In a meeting of church workers the other day, a minister of a small rural church arose and said: "I live in a small village of 1,600 people. Our people have little money, but I have put a bulletin board in the local postoffice building, where everybody goes to get their mail. I make all my announcements that way and I reach the people."

"That is a splendid idea. As a rule owners of property are glad to give permission for such publicity. The main purpose is to get information about the church to the people and to put out signs that will attract and interest the home folks.

I have known of ministers who used door knob hangers to good advantage. A large cardboard tag is printed carrying a message and a direct invitation to the household to attend services and a string was placed in the end of each so that the string could be easily slipped over the door-knob. A committee of young people took them around late on Saturday night so that on Sunday morning the whole town found itself invited to church.

These methods are simple and inexpensive, but they amount to little or nothing if behind them all there is not a great desire to get people to church. And they are of little value unless there are people at the door to welcome the folks and make them feel at home when they do come. Just mechanical devices get nowhere. After all it is the spirit of the thing that counts.

A few weeks ago a minister friend of mine organized a committee of his members and got them to make calls on eighty-five families. They distributed literature. They brought back information cards and now that minister has a whole winter's calling campaign laid out for himself. New families were found and a new interest aroused among the people who made the calls. It is the personal touch that counts.

NOTICE.

I am selling magazine subscriptions "to help along," and would appreciate a share of your subscriptions. If you will send me your new, renewal or gift subs, to any magazine at the publisher's price, you may deduct 15 per cent and I will send 25 per cent of my net commission to any church or church auxiliary you may direct. In this way you will help your church, yourself and me. A postal will bring catalog and prices.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

RATIO OF CHURCH-MEMBERS.

The ratio of church-members to population in the United States affords interesting study as well as a firm foundation of hope and encouragement. From 1730 to 1790 the ratio of church membership to population remained practically the same, viz.: one out of every twenty persons of the population being a communicant church-member. With the beginning of the 19th century, a marked increase in church membership began, which has been steady, constant and impressive. In 1800 the ratio of church membership to population was one to fourteen. In each decade of the half century to 1850, there was marked increase, the ratio going up from to fourteen in 1800, to one church-member in ever six of the population in 1850. The decade from 1850 to 1860 showed a tremendous gain, the ratio increasing from one in six to one in every four persons belonging to the church. Following the War between the States, and as an aftermath of that unhappy period, there was a decrease, and the decade ending with 1870 showed only one person in every five of the population a church-member. Ten years later the upward trend again reached the high percentage of one in every four. Since the decade, beginning with 1890, there has been constant and glorious increase, and with the decade ending with 1930, one person out of every two in the United States was recorded as a member of some church.

These figures show light only on the statistical side of the question. A study of growth and achievement in the field of benevolence and missions is ever more revealing. In the beginning of the 19th century the church undertook very little, if any, benevolent work, though some branches of the church did foster and support educational institutions, even of higher learning. Other than this, there were few, if any, charitable institutions sponsored or sustained by the church, and no missionaries. When the church in the early part of the 19th century caught a vision of its duty, destiny, and privilege and began to foster and support missionaries, to found and sustain humane institutions and enterprises, there was a quickening of church life and a leap upward in the ratio of church membership. Today with forty to fifty million dollars spent annually in missionary work, and two or three times that amount in local church enterprises, educational and benevolent institutions, the church is enjoying steady, constant and unmistakable gain, not only in membership, but in prestige and power. It has become a favorite sport of unthinking people, and of not a few ministers and outstanding laymen, to decry the loss of interest in the church, to ridicule the weakness and failure of the church, to discredit the power and the influence of the church. But wherever and whenever the actual facts of record and statistics are considered, the unmistakable conclusion is that the Kingdom of God goes marching on and the prestige and power of the church are increasing, thus fulfilling the words of the prophet of long ago, who said: "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, from henceforth even forever." (Isaiah 9:7.)

THEY GET READY.

Speakers heard in the recent political campaign maintained that they were for temperance, though they opposed prohibition. Since the election is over, it is to be devoutly hoped that these advocates of temperance, who at the same time are opponents of prohibition, will put their platform utterances into practice, and see to it that temperance is observed and practiced, and that less liquor and beer, instead of more, is consumed. Meanwhile, it is to be noted that the liquor interests and beer producers are getting busy. Preparations on a vast scale have begun to be made to receive and distribute liquor and beer as soon as the Eighteenth Amendment is abolished and the Volstead Act modified, which, we are assured by the enthusiastic wets, "are now in sight."

Furthermore, it is reported that seventy-eight whiskey distillers of Scotland, who had closed their plants because of huge quantities of liquor on hand, are to resume operations with the prospect of early shipments to the United States. The whiskey plants of Ireland are starting up with increased output and redoubled activity because of the prospect of repeal and modification in the United States. France, a great wine producing country, is jubilant and is quickening its activity in the prospect of early shipments in large quantities to the United States. Germany, the extensive producer of beer is increasing its manufacturing of barrels in which to ship its famous beer to America in return for our good dollars, much needed now in Germany. The wet millionaires, who have kept up the wet propaganda since prohibition was enacted, are claiming that they see victory now and that at no far distant date their taxes on income may be reduced and the millions of poor who drink liquor and beer will pay the taxes for them, one of them declaring he would have his taxes reduced by ten million a year if wine and beer were restored to the drinkers "and they would not miss it."

One wonders, however, if the wets have gained as much as they professed they have. One post-election speaker over the radio said to the American people, in giving his observation, "It is not prohibition that the recent election repudiated, but it was the depression—that people were casting their ballots, not to bring back beer and the saloon, but to repudiate and drive back the attacks of depression." It is yet to be seen if the American people are ready to vote for the repeal and modification of the Volstead Act, if and when they are given an opportunity to express themselves with a clear, concise, pronounced issue before them unmixed with politics. There are millions of mothers and fathers, and some other millions of sons and daughters yet, who are not willing to surrender to the organized forces, pledged to the return of the saloon and the legalized sale of intoxicants.

COMPENSATION FOR COLLEGES IN THE DEPRESSION.

By ROBERT L. KELLY,

Executive Secretary, Council of Church Boards of Education, Association of American Colleges.

There are abundant bits of evidence that while colleges in common with the rest of the country face a multitude of serious problems due to the financial depression, they meet them with wisdom, courage, and a determination to carry on under the new and more difficult conditions. The joint office of the Council-Association, which is in constant communication with many colleges, has found in numerous personal interviews, conferences, reports, and correspondence the following forms of compensation in the complex situation which the colleges now face:

First, there is a distinct gain in intellectual interest on the part of students, with less attention to the side-shows on the college campus than formerly.

Second, the principle that a student should pay a larger share of the cost of his education than has been the case has been vindicated. Colleges depending more largely upon tuition for their resources find themselves in better relative financial condition than those colleges whose income has been drawn chiefly from endowments. Colleges generally, and especially those which are located in or near large cities, have more day students than formerly. Colleges from whose immediate field a good many students have usually gone to other institutions, particularly in the East, are also having an increased enrollment.

Third, there is a tendency on the part of many colleges, because of and under the excuse of present conditions, to cut out "frills" and to re-arrange their curriculum offerings to the more necessary and cultural subjects. Some institutions have fewer courses, fewer small classes, less expenditure for administration.

In the effort to concentrate upon the educational program, the increased intellectual interest of the students is being capitalized, and students are profiting as they are thrown more upon their own initiative and are allowed to develop their own resourcefulness.

Fourth, all colleges are watching their expenditures more closely than usual, and normally find it quite possible to cut down their budgets to a considerable extent without loss of educational effectiveness. While some colleges report reductions in the number of the staff, the result may eventually mean better salaries for those who remain connected with the institution.

Fifth, an increase in the number of applicants for admission for next year, as compared with the situation at this time a year ago, is reported from several sections of the country.

Seventh, extraordinary efforts are being made by alumni groups, faculties, students, and others to provide funds for students who are in dire straits because of the economic situation. The time is opportune for worthy students.

There is an unexpected optimism on the part of college administrators and their friends. They have not lost faith in their institutions or in their work.

REPORT OF HISTORIAN OF EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

We are again surrounded by historic country and places. Near here, at Jamestown Island, the first permanent English colony was established on May 13, 1607. At the same place on May 14, 1607, the first Lord's Supper was celebrated by Rev. Robert Hunt in an improvised church using an old sail cloth for a shelter, unhewn logs for pews, and a pole fastened to two trees for a rail. These things happened thirteen years before Plymouth Rock was discovered, and before the Mayflower left the quay at Southampton, England, and turned her prow toward the American continent. There in 1612 the first Protestant convert to Christianity was made, when the Princess Pocahontas embraced the Christian religion. It was also there that the first English-Indian marriage took place in April 1613, when she married John Rolfe, and later became the ancestress of some of the most prominent people of Virginia and America. It was on the James River that John Rolfe, her husband, began the systematic cultivation of tobacco several years prior to 1616, and from that the English and American tobacco business had its origin. The old Rolfe House still stands as a visible reminder of those days. In 1611, the authorized version of the English Bible came out under the patronage of the English king, and this marked an era in the English language, for no other book ever did so much to stabilize the mother tongue. It was to Jamestown that the first shipload of maidens came in 1619 as volunteers to assist in the establishing of the English colony in the new world, and to make Virginia a land of homes. It was at the same place and year, 1619, that the first twenty Africans were unloaded and sold to the planters as slaves, and an institution was started that has had so much to do with the history of the whole country from that day to the present, and we know not what the future holds in store for us.

It was in that old church that the first legislative body in America, composed of twenty-two representatives from the different plantations, assembled on July 31, 1619, and drafted a code of laws more democratic than Hampton ever dreamed of before the Mayflower departed from England. The early ministers of the colony were admonished by the king in the charter to preach religion, not only to the English, but to the Indians, that perchance some of them might be converted. The Revs. Hunt, Bucke, Whittaker and others therefore established the first Protestant Mission in America, and the effect of their preaching was felt on March 22, 1622, when the converted Indian Chanco betrayed the Indian plot to murder all of the settlers in a single night. He has never, until recently, been recognized as the saviour of the colony, but now a tablet has been erected to his memory on Jamestown Island, and a suitable monument has been erected to his memory on the Surry County Court House green.

This section played an important part in Bacon's Rebellion, the first attempt at American liberty, and as a monument Bacon's Castle remains to tell coming generations of what he and his companions stood for in that early day. On the banks of the James, in what is now Prince George County, a colony of English Baptists had settled before 1714, and began to hold meetings, and petitioned to the Baptists in England to send them a preacher. Two were ordained and sent: Robert Nordin and Thomas White, who started for Virginia. White died on the voyage, but Nordin reached Virginia and his oath as a Baptist minister is on record in Order Book No. 1, page 58, in the Clerk's office of Prince George County, and on June 14, 1715, Matthew Marks' house on Ward's Creek was recorded as a preaching place for Baptists, and on July 12, 1715, Nicholas Robertson's house was so licensed. From this beginning has grown the great Baptist Church of the South. That was their birthplace. The James River estates give us an idea of what Southern life was before 1860.

But for us as a church there is a peculiar interest in this immediate section. It was not far from here that the Christian Church was organized by Rev. James O'Kelly and his followers on August 4 and 5, 1794. On July 7, 1927, a suitable monument was erected and unveiled on the site of old Lebanon Christian Church. It was near there, at Moring's, that tradition says Rev. James O'Kelly, the organizer of the Christian Church, lived just prior to moving to North Carolina.

It was in this immediate vicinity that Rev. Burwell Barrett, a contemporary of Rev. James O'Kelly, and one of his close friends, preached as a member of the Christian Church. From outside evidence found in the Archives Department of the Virginia State Library, Rev. Barrett was one of the leading men of this section in his day; and even the Christian Church was sometimes known as "The Barrett Society." He married more people, made more trips on business for his friends, in a trusted capacity, than any man that has been run across in his section.

It was no doubt from his preaching that the Christian Church at Holloway's was organized, no doubt in the home of Thomas Holloway, the father of Lazarus and Zachariah Holloway, who afterwards became Christian ministers. After that church had served its day a deed was secured for a lot and a house of worship built in 1826, where Spring Hill now stands. During the trying days of the early church this church practically went down, only one member being left, but Rev. Burwell Barrett's grandson, Rev. Mills B. Barrett, soon after entering the ministry in 1849, learned that the deed for the church lot at Spring Hill was made to "The Barrett Society," proceeded to investigate, and found that it was so, and although the building had been used by the Methodist Protestant Church for some time he took possession and began steps to reorganize the Christian Church there and was successful, in 1850, being assisted by Rev. J. I. Hobby, although he had only one of the original members of the first Christian Church at that place, Francis Clary, among the sixteen who gathered there. The church was on the firing

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The recent session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference set up higher standards for entering the ministry. Hereafter the requirements will be:

1. Applicants for license to preach must complete the sophomore year in a standard college before being licensed.

2. Applicants for ordination must have a degree from a standard college, or its equivalent.

3. Any licentiate or ordained minister from any other denomination is required to conform to the educational standards as set forth for license or ordination.

For several years the conference did not ordain any minister unless he held a college degree. But for the past ten years or more this standard has not been required. In returning to the high standard adopted this year many useful men will be prevented from becoming ordained ministers. The church is demanding an educated ministry. The demands upon a minister are so great that his days are quickly numbered, unless he is well educated and trained for his work. Jesus set a high standard in his own example of thorough preparation. The minister must study. He cannot study efficiently unless he is trained. A college degree is not a substitute for ability and consecration. The finest piece of steel rightly tempered is useless as a tool unless it is shaped and sharpened. It is much easier to cut wood with a sharp axe than with a dull one.

Another recommendation was made suggesting that all pastors attend a summer Bible conference every year. These conferences are not very expensive, and they are helpful to the busy pastor. Many pastors work hard in their churches and do not find much time for association with other pastors. A preacher needs the companionship and counsel of his brethren in the ministry. The pastor's monthly conference will give him some inspiration, but this is not a substitute for a two-weeks' Bible conference under trained inspirational leaders and teachers. The Bible becomes a new book. The tired nerves are rested and refreshed. Life has a new meaning. The spiritual fires are rekindled upon the altar.

The church can rise no higher than the life of the minister. He moulds the thought of his congregation. He mars the vision or points the way to higher and better visions of things holy and divine. He sets the standards of worship and consecration. He should be a man of God. He should be a man of one Book, and a man of many books. He should be spiritual in a carnal world. He should be a man of peace. He should be a man of honor. He should be blameless and harmless. The world is hungry today for this type of leadership. It is crying for love and sympathy and light. Every institution which is able to lift the minister nearer to God and enrich his life with that power "which cometh from above," is ordained of God to advance the coming of the Kingdom. God wants his messengers to be strong. He will give power to consecrated strength. A trained mind may not be any stronger than an ignorant mind, but it can have more power when consecrated to God. "Tarry ye—until ye be endued with power from on high." (Luke 24:49.)

An old minister once gave the writer this helpful advice: "Don't scold your people. If you preach on hell one Sunday, preach on heaven the next. Be friendly. Be hopeful. Listen to what people tell you, and then forget all the gossip.

Avoid personalities. Preach the Word. Believe in people. Be a man. Be a messenger of God."

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE AMERICAN DOLLAR.

You have certainly kept the world guessing for the past five years. Those who have you have hardly known your real value. You have always looked good, but your purchasing power has been unstable. At times, you were worth barely 50 per cent of the value of your ancestors. And then again, your value would begin to increase.

For the past months, you have been mounting upward rather rapidly, until now the fellow who is fortunate enough to possess you, counts himself fortunate and feels himself a financier. Even though you have been fluctuating a bit in worth, everybody has been looking on with longing eyes. Whether you be worth much or little, you seem to be the object of every material desire and the goal of every monetary effort. Men are after you and your worth. And, no wonder, for in summer you afford pleasure—in winter you furnish comforts, and at all times, by your value, millions may be fed. Of course, we cannot eat you—nobody can—you are insipid and indigestible, but with you we may purchase the most choice and palatable morsels.

Now, at the request of my friends and co-laborers in the kingdom, I am at the head of an institution that means much to the physical, mental and spiritual development of the Kingdom of God on earth, and strange to say, this institution finds it difficult to operate her affairs without you. We are looking here and there for you. You are in hiding some place, or perhaps in many places, and search as long as we may, it seems impossible to find you. I have about decided that you have secreted yourself in stocks and bonds, or perhaps in the heart of the earth, itself. Or, did I hear somebody say that you were tucked away in the purses of the people?

Now, Old Man American Dollar, won't you come out of hiding? We want to see your shining face and feel your helpful influence.

A large number of people who think a lot of you are, at the same time, interested in Elon College, and we are asking the assistance of 5,000 men and women among the Alumni of Elon College and membership of the Christian Church, and the citizens of Alamance County to help us locate you. It certainly would be a fine thing if every one of these 5,000 would find you at the same time and turn you in. This would be almost too good to be true, but, at any rate, it would be wonderful.

Now, fearing that you might be too elusive for us, we are organizing with the determination to find you. And, by the way, we have received this week 103 of your brothers. We are not hoping to get all of the family, but we would like to have about 5,000 of you every month.

This Dollar-a-Month Club is getting along fine. The Alumni Committee met at the college Thursday evening and began perfecting a plan calculated to carry the appeal to every individual who has been benefited by Elon College. They propose to carry this appeal to every son and daughter of Elon, with such winsomeness that no loyal heart could resist.

Last evening, Friday, this effort was carried into the heart of Burlington. A number of interested citizens of Alamance County, irrespective of denomination, but with a community spirit and with a community pride, met at the First Christian Church at Burlington, N. C., for the deliberate purpose of carrying the cause of Elon College to every heart in Alamance County. One speaker said: "Elon College is an asset to this community. It means more to Burlington and Alamance County than any other enterprise in it—I had rather see any other single enterprise close up and move out of the county, than to have the county lose Elon College."

Another said: "This is our institution. It does not belong to the Christian Church so far as we are concerned, but it belongs to the community—we can, and we must support it."

Another said: "There are young men and young women in Alamance County who could never get a college education, were it not for Elon College—we must see that it is supported."

At the Burlington meeting, it seemed that interested hearts were beginning to build a fire in the heart of this community, whose light and warmth would sweep out into other hearts and lives in communities far and near.

Do you have one of these dollars that I have been talking about and that Elon College is looking for? Put it in an envelope, write Elon College Dollar-a-Month Club, put a three-cent stamp on the envelope, drop it in the Post Office, and Uncle Sam will do the rest. When it arrives at the college, if you are already a member of the Dollar-a-Month Club, we will give you credit; if not, we will put your name on the growing list and thus number you with Elon's lovers and supporters.

We will be looking for you, you old American Dollar!
L. E. SMITH.

A FRIEND OF THE HILLS.

We realize that our hills lost one of their best and noblest friends when dear old Dr. Staley passed to his reward. Father Staley was a friend to the hills and a father to all.

When our church was being started here at Elk Spur, Dr. Staley came and did all he could to help us. All learned to know him and to love him. Before we had a pastor he came and did our baptizing. I had the pleasure of being one among the first few converts here whom Dr. Staley baptized, and he never forgot me. Any place I met him he always gave me a pat on the shoulder and a word of encouragement. I never saw him without feeling a little stronger. One felt a little more able to keep on. And even now, I recall the light of his smile, and feel that over in the Sweet Land of Rest, a kind hand is still pointing me to the way of the Cross.

His life is like unto a lovely flower. You may pluck a sweet-scented rose, bring it into your room, and soon the fragrance of that flower will fill the atmosphere you breathe. So it is with a life well lived in this world. "No man liveth to himself alone." Either he lives a life worth while and the fragrance from his life will sweeten the lives of those who know him, or he is not worth while, and the world is worse for his living here.

Dr. Staley lived one of those beautiful lives, and like the rose, shed forth the sweet fragrance of friendly understanding that can only come from the heart of a Godly man.

Dear Father Staley, I wonder how many lives he reached, and how many burdens he carried for those he passed along the way. Ah, thousands have been reached by his friendly smile. And to those who really knew him, he will never die. May God help us to so live that we may meet this friend of mankind.

RICHES NEAR AT HAND.

It is a fact that many of our supreme opportunities lie near our own door, and the surprise of many of us is in learning that we have often gone so far away to find what was so near at hand. Philips Brooks once said, "Men who live best and who live longest are apt to come, as the result of their living, to the conviction that life is not only richer but simpler than it seemed to them at first."

To many young men, success is an imagination in a strange land, and many a long journey has been taken in quest of the treasure that lay close at hand. I have in mind, just now, a young man who sold his inheritance (farm) in the western coastal plains of North Carolina and went three hundred miles farther west to find land that would produce more small grain per acre than what he had, and today, the farm he sold is producing a great deal more grain than the land he purchased.

I have known many young people to leave their own nearby institutions of learning, and go to distant States to be educated only to find in after life that those who patronized home institutions were better qualified for life's responsibilities than they. It has come as a strange awakening to many an old man that his best chances were back near the scenes of his boyhood.

"Develop and establish yourself at home," was the earnest advice of my father, that I have learned to appreciate more and more as the years have gone by. "Grow strong, first, at home," was the advice of a well-known statesman to his son. The fellow who can not find the worth-while things of life where he is will not be likely to find them in a strange land; he may become a prodigal.

A. R. FLOWERS.

SPIRITUAL SONGS.

(Colossians 3:16.)

Rather late in life my neighbor became the happy possessor of a piano. Though she knew very little about music she began to play with one hand the tunes of the sacred songs which she knew. With many hours of leisure at her disposal, she used them to advantage until in about two year's time she can play with both hands and the tunes are played quite accurately, though rather slowly. But the slowness is not at all objectionable, for it gives a chance to fit the words in with the melody as we listen. I love to hear her play the dear old songs of Zion as I go about my work. One in particular which my grandfather used to sing so much, and the words come to me:

"Before the throne my Surety stands,
My name is written on His hands."

In the morning comes the songs of inspiration and devotion which are such a help: "He Leadeth Me," "Blessed Assurance," "Thou, My Everlasting Portion," "Saviour, Like a Shepherd." At the noon-tide come the songs which spur me on to new endeavor: "More About Jesus," "In the Hour of Trial," "Stand Up for Jesus," "Work, for the Night is Coming," "I'm Pressing on the Upward Way." And then at night, when the toil of the day is over come the songs of rest: "Saviour, More than Life," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Draw Me Nearer," "It Is Well," "Rock of Ages," "Nearer, My God, to Thee." And oftentimes as I drift off to sleep the strains come to me: "One More Day's Work for Jesus."

Oh, blessed songs of the spirit, how they do cheer our hearts, rest the tired nerves and make us rejoice in the Lord. May they ever ring out clearly above the blatant noise of the popular airs which come over the air, and may they reach the hearts of men and call them back to mother's God, and to a saving knowledge of Christ.

I have another neighbor who has been well trained, and Oh, how her fingers can run over the scales and how brilliantly she can play; yet very seldom do we hear a spiritual song. Thank God for the untrained musicians who will let God train them to play his songs in this night of so much doubt and despair.

"W."

THINK IT OVER.

In recent years there has been a great migration from the farm to the city. In many respects our school system has been responsible for this. We have been teaching our boys and girls great things of the world—science, invention, methods and modes of travel, and focusing their minds on great city and industrial developments. We have neglected to impress upon them the great riches that Mother Nature has in store for them.

When this depression is over, thousands will have found themselves back in kindredship with the soil; and they will be there, not for the purpose of making money crops, but providing their tables with the substantial things of life. With our millions of acres of uncultivated land, it is a blight upon our civilization that the tens of thousands of men now walking the streets of our cities, hungry and without work, are not "digging in" and looking to the earth for a living. Our forefathers braved the forests and dug their living out of the earth. Today the offspring of those pioneers lack the faith and the courage, and in many instances, the willingness, though their tasks are lighter because the wooded land has been cleared and ready for cultivation. One of the many lessons the depression will teach us is to look to Nature for a living, and not to Wall Street.

PRAYER.

Blessed Spirit, rule thou in human life. Not only is there room for thee, there is crying, desperate need. Men and women are mystified, baffled. Help thou the tempted not to forsake the house with which we have been clothed upon nor return to the old leaven of malice and sin wherein wicked spirits multiply. Keep before mankind the assurance that prayers but feebly uttered, by thy holiness and power ascending to the Father's throne, often are heard and answered when, like Jacob, we know it not. In trust we wait and pray. Amen. L.

FLOURISHING THROUGH PERSECUTION.

The church has stood the test again and has proven its strength by fire. In the early centuries bastile forces sought through torture, blood and burning to destroy the hated "Christians." But the more bitter and desperate the effort to destroy, wipe out, exterminate, the more rapidly and powerfully the church grew.

And now there have been evil and desperate forces at work in China to destroy or hinder the work and growth of the church. Of the results The Bulletin of our American Board says:

"Church work, on the other hand, has not only not been interrupted but has actually been strengthened by the experiences through which it has passed. Persecution and danger have proved a refining fire. The churches are active, growing and eager for the continued cooperation of our missionaries. The missionary staff has been reduced to those needed for direct service to the churches."

And then speaking of our Congregational-Christian work in China, The Bulletin adds:

"Our largest field in China stretches across the provinces of Shantung, Hopei, Shansi and Shensi—among eighty-five million people, fifteen million of whom are our special concern. In general it may be said that the deterrent effects of the 1926-28 political revolution have largely worn off. The period 1900-1922 was one of popularity for Christianity due partly to enhanced prestige of Western nations because of their easy conquest of Teintsin and Peking in 1900. The World War brought disillusionment concerning the West. Communist association with the revolution brought widespread propaganda against Christianity as an opiate of the people and an ally of capitalism. The unpopularity that has ensued has served to remove from nominal membership many who had managed to pass the usual tests for church membership in the heyday of popularity. The churches in China are now comparatively free from fear of dissolution and are following positive programs both for increasing spiritual vitality and for larger Christian service to the community."

A VISIT TO AZABU MIDDLE SCHOOL.

On the morning of April 22nd we had the privilege of visiting the Azabu Middle School for boys, with Dr. A. D. Woodworth; and as this was our first visit to any of the many schools in Tokyo, we were very much impressed. After seeing the main auditorium, which seats 1,500 people, we were shown the teachers' room, principal's room, and the office where the students pay their tuition and attend to such matters.

At Dr. Woodworth's words, "san, Yoroshii desu," a man stepped out of the office with two sticks in his hands and struck them together several times. As he did so a number of the students separated themselves from the groups standing around, and we made our way with them to a large building which is separate from the main school, where Dr. Woodworth holds a Bible class before the regular classes begin. While Dr. Woodworth was speaking in Japanese about the conversion of the Apostle Paul, it was interesting to note the close attention that was paid, and the earnest look on the faces of these teen-aged boys. At the close each head was bowed reverently and we were dismissed with prayer. The students are not compelled to join this class, but each comes of his own free will.

As we left this building we were amazed to see so many students, 1,200 in all, every one being neatly dressed in the regular school uniform of dark blue. It being just about eight o'clock, the siren began to sound, and continued for some seconds, while each class formed into line, facing the villa of Mr. Ebara, which stands in a circular inclosure filled with flowers and trees. Mr. Ebara was a Christian and devoted his life and means to this school, and up until his death conducted the morning Bible class. We waited beside a small platform for Mr. Suzuki, the principal, to whom we had the pleasure of being introduced. He then stood upon this platform while the school leader gave a few sharp commands, at which the students removed their caps, bowed, replaced them and turned to march to their classrooms. Each class has a leader and the one we followed was led by a bright-faced boy who was a cripple and must needs walk with a crutch.

We entered a classroom on the second floor, and again the leader gave the commands to stand, bow, and be seated, this time in English. Then followed a very interesting few minutes while Dr. Woodworth gave a lesson on being introduced to his friends in English. The regular lesson for the hour was about a boy named Taro, who went to the Post Office to buy a ten-sen stamp because he was going to send his letter to America. Although these students know English grammar, the conversation is difficult for them, and we were reminded of our first struggles with the Japanese language, as we listened. However, owing to the ability and patience of the teacher, we are sure this class will make good progress.

The hour passed by all too quickly, and then we went to the top of the building, where we had a splendid view of the city. It being a clear morning we were able to see Mt. Fuji, which is said to be sixty miles from Tokyo City.

During the intermission the students are free to be out-of-doors and when the siren sounds again they form into line and march into their classes.

After spending a few more minutes admiring the school building which was just completed last year, we made our way to the main floor, and left the building, having spent two very pleasant and profitable hours.

A HIGH SCHOOL AT ELK SPUR.

It is wonderful to know that there are about twenty children on roll in high school at Elk Spur now.

Miss Lois Calhoun, of Alabama, has come to our hills to realize one of her dreams. She had read of the work here for years and had wanted to work here. So this fall a bright smile flashed across the hills, and ever since the hills have seemed a little less blue. Our "Hilly Grissoms" find her so great a help that we wonder how we ever got along without her. It would be an inspiration to the Christian world to know of the spirit with which this young lady goes about her work. She came not knowing whither she would ever get any pay for her work. She said she was not here for the money and would work anyway. However, the State has promised her half pay and no more, but she smiles right on.

The children say they have a better chance in Miss Calhoun's school than at Hillsville. This must be true for she not only has a splendid education, but she also has one of the sweetest trained voices that ever rang over these hills. And last, but not least, she is interested in the religious side of the work here. She, like our Grissoms, does not feel that she is making a sacrifice to work here, but she feels happy following in the footsteps of Him who gave His life for others.

So now we have a right large school at Elk Spur again—Mrs. Hedgepeth Meredith teaching the grades and Miss Calhoun the high school.

The workers are giving programs here to try to raise money to cover the building. I hope this can be done before the winter snows come as the building is badly in need of a roof.

Our little Mrs. Grissom is finding her nurses' training handy since there is a lot of sickness in this part. She is thought of as a doctor as well as a nurse, here.

And now, when you pray for our "Hilly Grissoms," please add Miss Calhoun to your list. She says she sees God in these hills, and one who sees with eyes like that is sure to win.

VICTORIA OF THE HILLS.

FRANKLIN WILLING WORKERS.

The Franklin Willing Workers Society has had a very successful year under the leadership of Mrs. E. P. Jones. They observed Children's Day in the form of a missionary service with recitation, songs, dialogues, etc., and a missionary offering was received.

Once each quarter this society had charge of the worship service in the Sunday School which was a splendid piece of work for it taught the children the essentials of a good leader. Plans for this new year have been made and the society has started off with vim and enthusiasm.

PROGRESS OF UNITED CHURCH, RALEIGH.

The United Church was organized and incorporated in May 1927. The building had been completed by the First Christian Church during the ministry of Rev. W. D. Parry. Debts and creditors were on every side. There were so many of them that you could scarcely turn in any direction without meeting them.

There is one thing that needs to be said about a group of men in the United Church. It is doubtful whether a small group of men anywhere would face such a situation with such a determined consecration. These men agreed together to stand or fall with the church and to place their personal credit on these obligations totalling more than $122,000.

Bank notes, mortgages and other obligations were underwritten. The total debts of the church now stand at $46,800, and we will reduce these this year if promises are kept. The reductions have been made possible through the cooperation of our small group of men, the Congregational Church Building Society, the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention and the Carlton family. We are far from the goal and it will probably take another five years of consecrated effort to bring the church through. We have learned that the defense—the only way to hold your own ground is to go forward. This we are doing regardless of depression. Our progress during the depression has been slowed up and yet the imperative necessities have made possible constant reductions. In 1930 our debts stood around $72,000. With business crashing around us we have reduced this amount by more than $25,000 since that date.

You need to have a plan and then work it. In the five years I have never made an appeal for money from the pulpit.

Our effort here is an illustration of the advantage of being poor. You can always go far when a group is determined to put its best into an effort. When a minister reduces his own salary to an unselfish level and his loyal group join with him not only in lifting a crushing financial load, but in voluntary work in music, Sunday School, missionary work, the results of such devotion are bound to be manifest. All together we have had five years more of devotion and all of us here know the meaning of it. And we do not forget that we have had Dr. Bloom whose sympathy and help have been with us all the way in what seemed to be an impossible task.

IT TAKES COURAGE.

It takes courage not to bend to popular prejudice; to live according to your conviction.

To refuse to make a living in a questionable vocation.

To say, "No," squarely to something wrong when those around you say, "Yes."

To remain in honest poverty while others grow rich by questionable methods.

To live honestly within your means, and not dishonestly upon the means of others.

To speak the truth when by a little prevarication you could secure some seeming advantage.

To do your duty in silence, obscurity and poverty, while others about you prosper through neglect or violating sacred obligations.

To refuse to do a thing which you think is wrong because it is customary and done in trade.

To face slander and lies, and to carry yourself with cheerfulness, grace and dignity for years before the lie can be corrected.

To throw up a position with a good salary when it is the only business you know, and you have a family depending on you, because it does not run on honest principles.—Young People.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

THAT CHRISTMAS PROGRAM.

Christmas and Easter are the two great days of the church year. At these times the church should do its very best to present the Christ to the waiting world. The message of Christmas is badly needed in our time. The Christ Child, consecrated parents, watchful shepherds, and worshipping wise men are personalities that need to come to the attention of a distracted world so the "good tidings of great joy" may sing in the hearts of men.

Christmas is the time for the church to make much of childhood and youth. This is the opportunity of the year to get the children to live with the Baby Jesus and to render service in his name. Young people who have come to know the Master and to love the daring youth who felt that he must be about the Father's business and who undertook to make the world new and happier should see that this Master is presented to the people of the community in a beautiful way so all may come to know of him and to love him. Unless someone else is busy with a Christmas program in your church, it is time for you to shoulder responsibility and see that a program is prepared.

Incidentally, why not try to arrange entertainments throughout the Christmas season that will bring honor to the name of Christ rather than to join in celebrations that dishonor both man and God. Christmas comes but once a year and the opportunity for strengthening the Christian cause demands the best that youth can give.

Proper costuming of characters and the right use of lights will have much to do with the success of a pageant or play. Do not be afraid to try for effects. Literature is abundant to help you in all phases of dramatic presentation. Simply decide what you want to do and then seek for the necessary information. I may be able to help you. And surely our publishing houses can furnish all kinds of information.

CHRISTMAS MATERIAL.

Material for Christmas programs can be purchased from any church publishing house. Miegs Publishing Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, has published several Christmas programs, including music, in a volume called "White Gifts for the King." These are fine programs of the pageant nature, and are especially good for churches that are making gifts to the orphanage or other institutions. The cost is $1.00.

Pilgrim Press, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., advertises the following pageants for Christmas:

The Light of a Thousand Candles. By William E. Jones. An impressive service in which the Christmas story is revealed through recitation and song. At the conclusion, each member of the audience is given a lighted candle. Single copies, 25c; 12 copies, $2.25; 50 copies, $8.00; 100 copies, $12.00.

At the Door of the Inn. A Christmas pantomime. By Martha Race. A vivid, sympathetic portrayal of the scene before the crowded inn which would not shelter Mary and Joseph during the late afternoon and night of the Nativity. Paper, 20c.

Christmas Plays for Children. Three simple dramatizations: What Child Is This? By Martha Race. A short pageant woven about the carol, "What Child Is This?" The First Christmas Morning. By Maud Lindsay. A playlet for nine girls in which the Bethlehem events are narrated by villagers. Frankincense. By Louise G. Cummings. A short pageant which shows how a selfish child becomes filled with the Christmas spirit. 40c.

Good Will Among Men. By Marshall N. Goold. A Christmas service for churches and church schools. The theme is based on an almost literal interpretation of the angel's song, "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," calling us "to supplant war with cooperation and peace among the nations, and suspicion with sympathy towards all men." The charm of the service lies in its simplicity and the human appeal of its message. Single copies, 8c; 12 copies, 85c; 50 copies, $3.25; 100 copies, $6.00.

The Prophetic Child. By Rev. Langley Sears. 15c per copy; $1.50 per dozen; $12.00 per 100.

Why the Chimes Rang. Arranged from Raymond MacDonald Alden's famous story, by Martha Race. Paper, 35c.

A Christmas Mystery. To be used as part of a community Christmas sing. By Jane Judge and Linwood Taft. 15c; 12 copies, $1.44; 50 copies, $5.50; 100 copies, $10.00.

The Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds. A pageant of the Nativity. By Mildred Emily Cook. Castilian paper cover, 75c.

The Children's Christmas Tree. By Frances Weld Danielson. Charming Christmas entertainments to be given by the children themselves. It is a delightful feature of these plays that preparation for them is as great fun as giving them, and they are free from the dreariness of rehearsal. 25c.

SHARING PRETTY THOUGHTS.

I like to get pretty thoughts which young people find here and there. "As a man thinketh, so is he," said a philosopher long ago. Good thoughts tend to make a good person. A friend from Alabama sent a number of fine things recently, some of which I want to share with you. The first is by Este Porter Lewis and is a beautiful expression of the glories which have been about us for the past two months:

"A chain of mountains all aflame with leaves
Of orange, scarlet, bronze and gold; and mists
From pine-filled valleys rising like the smokes
Of forest fires—as though, this Autumn day,
Each frosted tree sent incense up to God."

My friend said, "The next idea expresses in a lovely way the thought 'I will encourage instead of criticize.'" This statement comes from Abraham Lincoln:

"Die when I may, I want it said of me by those who know me best, that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower where I thought a flower would grow."

And flowers will grow in most unlikely places. We need not fear to plant them.

Another poet has expressed an idea which we all like, but sometimes forget to practice. Why not memorize it and let it be the voice of all those whom we meet?

"If you have but a word of cheer, Speak it while I am alive to hear."

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Dr. Arthur G. Lyon, pastor of the church at Lake Helen, Fla., who has made a life-long study of psychology in its relation to life and behavior has a unique program for the young people of his church, especially those of high school age or over. The themes are selected by the pastor, who prepares a mimeographed sheet of questions and points of discussion and assists the leader in preparation for the meeting. The discussions are very vital and relate to problems of living. Some of the recent topics discussed are as follows: "Organizing Personality," (reshaping personality to an ideal, etc.), "How to Judge Ourselves and Others Correctly," "Measuring Life," with such sub-topics as "Measuring Life by its Supreme Values," "By its Service," "By its Opportunities and Achievements," "Getting Adjusted to Life," with such sub-topics as, "Life Depends on Proper Adjustments," "Correcting Maladjustments," and "The Happy Adjusted Life," "Attention and Success," "When to Laugh," "The Psychology of Habit," "The Conduct of Life," "Its Relation to Character," and "The Life Triumphant."

There has been manifest great interest on the part of the young people and the society has become very active and effective in this church, where there were previously few young people.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 27, 1932.

"To what extent is our church the result of missionary effort?"—I. Cor. 4:6-16.

It is greatly to be hoped that no society depends upon this paper for all help on the topic. The writer seems never to have sufficient time to prepare this page as it should be done for he has to pastor three churches, promote leadership training, and do the work of the Board of Christian Education, and take his share in a number of other kinds of the world's work. It will be far better for those interested in Christian Endeavor to subscribe to the Christian Endeavor World, 41 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass., and to The Highroad, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass. These publications give real help. There is not room on this page for much even if the material could be found. All I can hope to do is to supplement what you get elsewhere.

The scripture lesson indicates that the church in Corinth was the result of the missionary labors of St. Paul. (This material should be studied carefully.) Acts 16 tells about Paul's first entrance into Europe, and the same book tells how the church started, or was strengthened, in Rome, by Paul.

It would be well to have someone look up in some church history or an encyclopedia the spread of Christianity in the Roman Empire until it reached England. Stories of the first missionaries to England make fascinating reading. The reason for settlements in America is another interesting chapter of missionary history. Many of our local churches were organized and developed as missionary projects. All such information should be brought out in the discussion of this topic.

The moral of this story of missions is that since we have received the Christian message by missionary effort, we should share in sending that same message to others who have it not.

Has God denied you the gift of enthusiasm? Then do not hinder the enthusiast by your side; do not chill him with a spray of cheap common sense, or discourage him by your friendly disapproval. If there be not in you the heart to plunge into the river and save the drowning man, then for heaven's sake and your own sake do not stand on the bank and criticize the style of the swimmer who, with laboring stroke, is bringing his unconscious burden to the shore.—Watson.

NOTICE.

This is to inform all delegates and ministers who expect to attend the Eastern North Carolina Christian Conference, which meets at Liberty (Vance), to either notify Mrs. M. B. Newman, or the writer, that we may have entertainment for the night arranged in advance. Those attending the conference will come via Henderson, or Louisburg, and follow highway out to Liberty Church. If any come on train or bus, please notify the writer and some arrangements will be made to get you to the church.

STEWARDSHIP OF LIFE.

LESSON IX—NOVEMBER 27, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "First, they gave their selves to the Lord."—II. Cor. 8:5.

LESSON TEXT: Mark 1:16-20; Acts 26:12-19.

Stewardship of life is an inclusive thing. It means that our personalities, our capacities, our talents, our influence—all that we have and are has been committed to us as a sacred trust, to be developed and used and to be accounted for to God. A frank recognition of this principle is one of the most disturbing facts in life. A man's use of his money, of his time, of his talents, a man's life work, everything must be interpreted in the light of the fact that we are not our own, we have been bought with a price, and that we are therefore, to use all that we are and have in such a way that we can give a good account of our stewardship to God. One reason why so many people are poor stewards of money is because they have not recognized the more fundamental fact that they themselves belong to God. One reason why we do not do more for God is because we have not fully given ourselves to God. When we do as did the Corinthians, "first of all give ourselves to the Lord," we will be good stewards of the other things.

The Lesson Committee did well to select the scripture lessons in the story of the call of the fishermen and Paul's conversion, for both of these sections of the scripture show how these men accepted the principle of stewardship for their lives. But the Lesson Committee have presented only one phase of the matter, and have left unemphasized a very important principle. They have presented the case of men who were called as we say to the ministry, or full-time Christian service. There are many people who think that because they have not been called to be ministers or missionaries, the principle of the stewardship of life does not apply to them. As a matter of fact, the Biblical view of the stewardship of life is that every man is called to full-time work. That is, the farmer and the banker and the baker and the teacher and the day-laborer and everybody is to think of his or her life as a trust. None of us have a right to use our lives to suit ourselves; we are to use them where we are and in the things we are doing, for God. What a difference it would make in so many of our lives if we really believed that we are God's and if we lived out that belief.

Fishers of Men.

Jesus called men, rough, rugged, out-door men. We call him Master, and we do well for so he was. Only a real man could have appealed to men of the type of Andrew and Peter, James and John. Let no man think of Jesus as effeminate and weak. He was a man among men.

Jesus called busy men. Andrew and Peter were casting their nets. James and John were mending their nets. The work of the kingdom is safest in the hands of those who are not lazy, who do well their own business.

Jesus called men to a higher type of work. They were fishers of fish. He told them he would make them fishers of men. Jesus sometimes calls men away from their tasks to other tasks. In most cases, however, he calls men to do their same tasks in a new spirit and in a more exalted way. A Christian husband ought to be a better husband because he is a Christian. A farmer ought to be a better farmer because he is a Christian. A business man ought to be a better business man because he is a Christian.

Jesus called men to cooperative work with him. "Come ye after me." He invited them to become co-workers with him in the work of establishing the Kingdom. He invites you and me to do the same. Whatever else discipleship with Jesus may mean, it means sharing the task with him.

Jesus called men to "become." "I will make you to become." A man does not become a full-fledged, full-grown Christian at once. Being a Christian is primarily a process of becoming. We are to grow in grace. The order is first the grain, then the ear, then the full-grown corn in the ear.

The Persecutor—The Preacher.

Paul would have made a good Methodist. He believed in giving his testimony. He recounted on at least two occasions the story of his conversion. Of course, Paul had a reality to talk about and that made a difference. One reason why testimony went out of style was because so many people had nothing new or vital to talk about.

Paul said he saw a "light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun." It was super-natural, however you want to interpret that. A man cannot be born from above by natural power. The Spirit is the only agency that could change Saul the Persecutor into Paul the Preacher.

"I heard a voice speaking unto me and saying in the Hebrew tongue." The Hebrew tongue was the language of his childhood, the language of his school, the language in which he had learned the scriptures. We might ask ourselves the question as to how well our children and young people will be prepared to understand God later in life if he speaks in the language of our homes and schools and churches.

"It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks." It is difficult to go to the devil. Paul was going to persecute the church, but as he went he was suffering more than those whom he would persecute.

"I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee." Paul had a wonderful experience, but there were other wonderful experiences awaiting him. Alas for the minister or the Sunday School teacher or the Christian who does not constantly have fresh experiences of God.

"Whereupon I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."

Character is what a man is when he is stripped of his possessions and stands before God. Christ measures us by what we are and not by what we have. There are shriveled souls in the midst of great fortunes, and there are noble souls in great poverty.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Psalm 119:130.

THANKSGIVING NUMBER.

MONDAY.

All people everywhere are exhorted to praise the Lord for his wondrous works unto the children of men. The following will serve as a few key passages today:

"Ye that fear Jehovah (the Lord), praise him; all ye the seed of Jacob, glorify him; and stand in awe of him, all ye the seed of Israel."—Psalm 22:23.

"Let heaven and earth praise him, the seas, and everything that moveth therein."—Psalm 64:39.

"Let everything that hath breath praise Jehovah (the Lord)."—Psalm 150:6.

How may it be expressed?

"So we will sing and praise thy power."—Psalm 21:13.

"For it is good to sing praises unto our God."—Psalm 147:1.

"Praise him for his mighty acts: praise him according to his excellent greatness."—Psalm 150:2.

"Thanks be to God, who (which) giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."—I. Cor. 15:57.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we would enter upon this week's duties with a single purpose that we may realize all thy benefits toward us and give thee sincere praise. We pray for thy spirit to fill us and possess us that we may do so.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

"Though he slay me, yet will I trust him."—Job 13:15.

There are lots of folks this Thanksgiving season who have so little of this world's goods that they almost doubt that there is a God. But depression has its benefits. So cheer up.

In prosperity we forget how to live, what it means to have real friends—we get high hat; but, in depression, we have more time to visit friends, stay longer and share common feelings. In prosperity we are busy with prosperity and we do not know our neighbors; but, in depression, we get acquainted with our neighbors and find them a very delightful people. In depression, we can more easily carry out the Bible injunction: "Love your neighbor."

In prosperity we do not have time to stay at home; but, in depression, we spend some time with the family and get acquainted with them; we have heard of men actually falling in love with their wives again and finding them very attractive.

In prosperity we ride everywhere we go, and hurry through; but, in depression, we are apt to walk more and have better health.

In prosperity we get the best meat cuts, have the best gravies and fancy dishes; but, in depression, we get honest-to-goodness food, side meat and greens.

In prosperity, some have no time to go to church; in fact, they think they know more than the preacher does, anyway; but, in depression, they start praying and going to church. One man said, "if this depression keeps up I will soon be going to prayer meeting."

So there is something about depression that is a blessing and which is to be liked. Can you find it in your life? If so, give thanks.

Prayer—O Lord, thou dost teach us that it is not that which we desire most which may be best, nor is it the worst which we often refuse; but the fittest are they who contentedly rest in friendships and common feelings. Grant unto us thy blessings of grace in all that we have and in all that we have not. In Christ's name.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

WHAT TRUE LIFE CONSISTS OF.

"A man's life consisteth not of the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—Luke 12:15.

In the life of John Wesley we are told of a fire which consumed the Epworth rectory in 1709. Wesley was not yet six years old. In their hurry, John was forgotten. The little fellow awakened to find the house in flames and every exit a mass of flames. The father fell on his knees (says the story), in the hall, and cried to God for his boy. One man with more resourcefulness than the others ran in beneath the window where the boy appeared, and had another climb on his shoulder. The boy was reached and just as he was drawn through the window and away, the house crashed in behind him. "Come neighbors," cried the father, "let us kneel down! Let us give thanks to God! He has given me my eight children. Let the house go; I am rich enough."

Prayer—Dear Father, thou wouldst teach us today that our fortunes are in our breasts—that our own hearts make us wretched or happy, rich or poor; and we have learned that abundance is not enough, and that they whose trust is in thee, though having little, hath enough. Grant unto us thy Holy Spirit and contentment and happiness in thee.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE EXTENT OF GRATITUDE.

"And Jesus answering said, Were there not the ten cleansed? But where are the nine?"—Uuke 17:17.

Ten lepers were cleansed. Nine went their way with never a word of thankfulness. The average of gratitude and ingratitude has been about the same in all ages, and this story suggests that it is about ninety per cent ingratitude. We are prone to forget our benefits and mercies. We lay more stress on what we have not than on what we have. We look upon our good things, pleasurable sensations, comforts and luxuries as our birthright, and we moan if we do not receive them all. If we have a spurt of good fortune, instead of being humbly thankful and glorifying God, we take it as a reason for wanting more. The ten believed, but only one praised God. That is still the extent, it appears, of humanity's gratitude to God.

Presumably the nine were praying men as well as the one. They all called alike on Christ for healing. We would think that, having received the answer to their prayers, all alike would have praised him, but it was not so. Why? The answer is, "lack of reverence."

Reverence is the outflow of the life toward God. We draw close to God in prayer, but we draw closer in praise, because in praise we come to the very foundation of truth, love and trust. It is the outflow of the heart in worship and that is the highest exercise that any soul can engage in.

Prayer—O Lord, give us utterance before thee that we may express true devotion for all thy benefits toward us. Make us conscious of thy blessings, and make our gratitude and praise our greatest joy. Unworthy before, let us not be ungrateful after.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

SINGING IN THE DARK.

"In nothing be anxious, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6.

This is the admonition of Paul. He had learned something which the most of us have not—to sing when everything is dark; hope gone and despair reigns. This admonition must have been learned out of his experience when he and Silas were in jail and sang hymns and prayed to God. That experience resulted in such a blessing to them and such a revelation of God in the community, we are sure he could do nothing less than preach it the balance of his days.

This message of Paul's reflects the words of Jesus who assures us that "all things work together for good to them that love God." If we are looking only at material things, and finding comfort only in them, depression or deprivation of them leaves us with nothing to but wail; but if our trust is in God, who, despite depression, turns things up for the best for us, we can sing his praises notwithstanding. If the canary were to sing in the dark, we would wonder. We can do more than the bird. The spirit of the Father, of Jesus the Son, of Paul, sings in the dark. If we will be that much his, we too will sing in the dark. Half of our worries melt away when we begin to sing and praise things. Anxiety cannot resist thanksgiving.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, teach us to trust thee when everything goes wrong. In the pressure of personal sorrows, in the crises of life, however narrow life's way may seem, when the outlook is black, give us a rift of the heavens, send us a vision of the cause for thanksgiving.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

THANKLESSNESS.

"Let us not be weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."—Gal. 6:9.

We cannot close the week's meditation on thankfulness without contemplating the misfortune and tragedy of thanklessness.

"Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind,
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude."

—Shakespeare.

"Ingratitude, thou marble-hearted fiend,"—Shakespeare.

"He that's ungrateful, has no guilt but one;
All other crimes may pass for virtue in him."
—Young.

St. Bernard has said, "Thanklessness is as a parching wind, drying up the foundation of pity, the dew of mercy, the streams of grace, hostile to salvation—nothing so displeases God as ingratitude. That which such a one seemeth to have will be taken away from him (e. g. the unprofitable servant)."

Likewise is our ingratitude to God. It closes the door to deeper blessings; it is untrue to the law of our existence; it is a denial of truth and therefore a loss of moral strength; it lives on God's bounty, and yet refuses to own his power or to accept his love; and he who is ungrateful may one day find himself with nothing to be grateful for.

Prayer—Our Father, forbid that we shall be ungrateful either to thee or to our friends. Thou dost save us, forbid that in act, word or deed, we shall ever deny thee. This we ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

FEAR—A FOE OF MAN.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"O Israel, fear not."—Isa. 43:1.

I.

Out of one of the first verses of Genesis come these words: "I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid." Fear is age-old. It begun with the beginning of the human race. Perhaps it is not man's first foe chronologically speaking, but in magnitude and power it is not far behind any foe man has ever had.

Let us bear in mind from the beginning that there are two kinds of fear—one is reverence, the other is cowardice. The one we should seek to develop, the other we should seek to eradicate. The one leads us to God, the other drives us from him. Fear of God is the beginning of wisdom, and cowardice is the everlasting foe of courage. In this message today we shall be talking about the ugly kind of fear.

This ugly kind of fear seems to fall upon us, turns us pale, drives the strength from our limbs, takes the power of speech from our lips, and benumbs our brains. Fear is terrible. If allowed to live within one's life it drives to distraction, to insanity, and sometimes to suicide. Even a little fear, sometimes so slight as to be called only "worry," makes wrinkles come in our faces, lessens the beauty of our personality, and handicaps us in the joy of living.

Fear is a laughing, ugly demon that should be given no quarter by the sons of God. He changes brave men into cowards; strong men into invalids, and good men he makes powerless. Fear is heavy brakes when a load is being pulled uphill. Fear is an extra burden laid upon shoulders already tired with necessary burdens. Fear is one of man's worst enemies.

It makes almost a strange sentence to say: God is not afraid. He is not afraid. Perfect love casteth out fear. In perfect holiness, and righteousness there is no fear. God does not want his children to be afraid. Fear interfered with God's fellowship with Adam. It drove him into hiding. It drove him from God. It was caused by sin. However, there is a distrust, or dismay that need not be caused by some overt act or sin. Ringing down across the centuries of God's fellowship with his chosen race, has been that great command: "Fear not, O Israel." "Be not dismayed, whate'er betide, God will take care of you." Be ye conquerors of fear!

II.

Christ came to conquer the enemies of his brethren—to put them all under his feet. "He must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet." And the enemy of fear is not supposed to be the last one to be conquered either. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." And for the true Christian who has learned to put his trust in God one of the first enemies conquered is fear. Fear and faith do not fare well together.

So the Gospels begin: "The angel said unto him, 'Fear not,' "And the angel said unto her, 'Fear not,' "The angel said unto them, 'Fear not,' "and Jesus said unto Simon, 'Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men.' "And the command of Christ to his followers today is: Fear not! It is not very complimentary to God to distrust him. Christ has commanded against undue anxiety. Paul says: "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Jesus Christ."

Jesus is not only our Redeemer, he is our example; and "looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith," what do we see? One that is afraid? Of the lack of home? No! Of the lack of bread for the multitudes? No! Of the Devil and Satan himself? No! That God would not hear his prayer for the dead? No! That God would fail to give him strength to withstand every temptation? No! Was he afraid that God would not see the grain of wheat dropping into the ground to die, and that he would not bring it forth? No! What do we see? We see Jesus, tempted right from the hour of his Jordan baptism, going into the lanes and by-ways of Palestine, with no place big enough at first to hold the crowds and multitudes that flocked to hear him. Was he afraid? No! Out of those teeming multitudes, he selected most bravely a few followers. Peter, an impetuous, wreck-making, over-spoken fisherman; Andrew, a nonentity, always simply someone else's brother; James and John, sons of thunder, self-seeking and quick; Levi, a renegade Jew, who had considered not the friendship or respect of his fellows, a seeker of Roman preferment; Simon, the zealot, the "red" of his day, a sort of dissatisfied Bolshevik; and so on we might go. What a set! What a selection! Was Jesus afraid that even they would not measure up to their high calling of God in Christ Jesus? No! Did he trust them? Yes, to the very end! And did they fail him? Yes, "they all forsook him and fled." And now was he afraid? Did the demon of fear take possession of his soul and turn him pale in Pilate's hall? No! Even when when the goodness of his friends, and the mercy of his foes did not follow him—yea, even when godness and mercy failed him—courage still carried him to Calvary.

Did fear ever possess his soul? The Disciples had been very weak. One had betrayed him altogether; and the leading one had denied him bitterly; and they had all forsaken him in the hour of greatest need. What would he do about it? "And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying: All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Was he full of fear? Why, in the hour in which he was received up he said: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost has come upon you: and you shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." John, remembering him, said: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love."

Were the disciples unafraid, like Jesus? Yes, they were after that consuming love possessed their souls, but before it did they were as great cowards as any of us would dare to be. They huddled about Jerusalem behind closed doors, until they met and prayed. Until they were at one place and with one accord in prayer they were but poor fear-driven cowards. Prayer does change things. Trust in God changes things. "The Lord is my light and my salvation: whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? . . . Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear: even though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident."

So there they go. The march of eleven men! Unafraid, because of the presence of the Holy Spirit with them. The Holy Spirit with them because they obeyed Jesus, and prayed, tarrying in Jerusalem in prayer. Unto city after city, country after country; seeing inside homes, and synagogues, and jails, and dungeons across the earth. Challenged and imprisoned, did they stop? Whipped and imprisoned, did they refrain? Standing in the presence of the earth's judges, their question was: Shall I seek to please men, or God? Fear of God makes courage; fear of man makes cowards.

III.

We are Christians. Fear must not supplant our faith; cowardice must not overcome our courage. When I read what other Christians are doing in the face of greatest difficulties; when I hear report after report from our missionaries (Continued on page 14.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We want to make just a few suggestions as to the Thanksgiving offering this year. The time has been when to just pass the hat around would be sufficient. It takes a little more effort now. We want to suggest that you give every member of your church and Sunday School an opportunity to give something. Every little child, too. If you will announce it the Sunday before, it will surprise you how many nickels and dimes even the little children will give. If they don't have nickels and dimes they can contribute Octagon Soap wrappers. We need 50,000. Give every member an opportunity to make a contribution.

If a few individuals in each church and Sunday School will take a little time to impress the serious need of the Orphanage at this time, I am convinced that the results will be encouraging. How about the superintendent and teachers in the Sunday School? Of course, the pastor is expected to present it to the church.

I have observed for many years that the church which plans thoroughly for the offering, and which sets up an organization of personal workers who will see that every one is given an opportunity to make an offering, secures a larger offering by this plan. Plan for a big offering and work your plan, and let us do something worth while for our orphan children who are dependent on you. I have studied this work so long that when the offerings come in I can judge pretty well whether or not any interest was shown in the offering. Your Orphanage needs your special effort this year.

Few situations in life are more distressing than that of little children without homes. No loss seems so great as that of parental love. You have an opportunity at this Thanksgiving season to express your love and your sympathy for your little children in the Christian Orphanage. Let your offerings be in keeping with your love and sympathy.

out yonder where we have in perfect contract placed them; when I see what Christian families are doing; what Christian courage and fortitude possess so many of my contemporaries, I simply want to draw up my belt and be at it for God, and for righteousness. We are Christians. Shall we be afraid? Re-read the closing words of that great, familiar faith chapter, the eleventh of Hebrews. See what courage has possessed the souls of Christians hitherto, and notice how God is expecting the Christians of each succeeding generation to make good in their day, in order that we all together may claim the blessings prepared for us. We have a day of real opportunity. A day of dire need, when courage can be counted at par value. "God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore, will we not fear though the earth be removed." Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me." "Fear not, O Israel."

SUNDAY.

RAPTUROUS PRAISE.

"Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains; for the Lord hath comforted his people, and will have compassion upon his afflicted."—Isa. 49:13.

Sunday, with all its holy sentiments and significances, is a rapturous day. If the week's worship has meant anything near what it should, each may be ready to bring their praises to God in a climax of rapturous praise.

It is possible for us to appreciate all the thoughts of the week and be devout; it is possible to read articles and sermons in magazines and books which reveal God; it is possible for us to say prayers and enter the sanctuary of gratitude; yet, midst it all fail to pass into rapturous praise. Great beauty is there, but not once does it strike all the chords of the heart at once in a Hallelujah chorus.

We cannot read Milton of literature or the Revelation of God without feeling the note of rapture. It should not be that we can count God's blessings without growing rapturous about him.

So, go to church today. Forget life and its troubles, think of all that God is to thee, and mingle thy soul's praise with any others, and the Lord lift thee up to rapturous joy in him forever.

REPORT OF HISTORIAN.

line so to speak, but it was served by Revs. Mills B. Barrett, Robert H. Holland, William H. Boykin and Thomas Bashaw, while during the War between the States it was served by Rev. William B. Wellons, the great Southern leader for some time. It has always been one of the most progressive churches in the Southern Christian Convention, in Sunday School work, in missions, but above all, she has become the mother of several Christian Churches in this section—Waverly, where we now are, being one of them.

On the form of agreement on the reorganization of Spring Hill, the first signer was Dr. Matthew Harris, a Thompsonian doctor, who was born in April, 1795, and lived at Milner's Town in Nansemond County, Va. He married Jane Gray Barrett, August 5, 1821, who was born June 2, 1799, she being the daughter of Burwell Barrett and Lucy Thorpe, his wife, and they were married by Rev. Burwell Barrett, the bride's father. Dr. Harris moved from Milner's Town (near what is now Lake Prince), settling on an abandoned farm on Coppahaunck Swamp in Sussex County in 1842, perhaps the same year peanuts were introduced in Sussex County. He procured some imported peanuts of a fine flavor and variety, and planted them on his farm, and sold them when harvested at Jerusalem, now Courtland, and thus became the first man to raise peanuts in America as a commercial crop. It is hoped to erect a marker to his memory on Route 52, opposite his farm, so the world may know where the American peanut industry had its birth about 1842.

In 1872, Mr. John T. Harris, a son of Dr. Mathew Harris, organized "Sunny Side," a Sunday School at a location about a mile from the present site of Waverly, near Coppahaunck Spring on a farm then owned by W. B. West. A little house was built by the community which was used for several years for that purpose. In the year 1880, this building was sold to the School Board of Waverly to which place it was moved. The money was donated to Spring Hill Church, May 8, 1880. The "Sunny Side" School continued to hold forth in the same building in Waverly where in the year 1883 Deacon John T. Harris, M. J. W. White and Rev. R. E. Barrett and others organized a Christian Church with thirteen or more members, from Spring Hill. Rev. Robert A. Ricks was the first pastor and the church joined the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference in 1884, and at first worshipped in the Temperance Hall until the church was built and dedicated in 1885 by Rev. J. P. Barrett. Many others transferred from the same church later. The Sunday School has had only three superintendents since organization, its founder, Deacon John T. Harris, Judge Jesse F. West, and the present incumbent, Mr. B. E. White, a nephew of the founder, and a grandson of Dr. Matthew Harris. Bro. M. J. W. White was the first member of the Christian Church to make his home in Waverly.

Pastors after Rev. Robert A. Ricks: Revs. M. W. Butler, J. W. Barrett, Roger Channock, J. W. Porter, John W. Harrell, R. H. Peel, H. E. Rountree, James L. Foster, H. E. Truitt, W. C. Hook and F. C. Lester. It has now grown into one of the most progressive churches in the Conference.

One thing that has struck me in the preparation of this paper is the fact that it appears that as many as eight generations beginning with Rev. Burwell Barrett, have been staunch members of the Christian Churches in this section. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."

The conference has lost two faithful members during the past year: Dr. William Wesley Staley and Deacon Elisha Thomas Holland. More will be said of these later.

OBITUARIES

WELCH.

Eliza J. Welch was born January 22, 1867, and departed this life October 26, 1932, at the age of 65 years, 8 months and 4 days. Sister Welch was a faithful member of Bethlehem Christian Church, a good mother, and a splendid Christian woman.

She is survived by three sons and four daughters, and by many admiring and sorrowing friends, who mourn her departure. Funeral services were held at Bethlehem, October 29, 1932, by the writer and Dr. M. L. Weekley.

A. W. ANDES.

THOMAS.

Bro. M. A. Thomas was born November 14, 1848, and died October 11, 1932, aged 83 years, 10 months and 27 days. Bro. Thomas was known and loved in his community as a good man. He was a deacon of Bethlehem Christian Church, and a faithful member there. He is survived by one son.

Funeral services were conducted at Bethlehem, October 13, 1932, by the writer, assisted by Dr. M. L. Weekley.

A. W. ANDES.

MASSEY.

Mr. William Graham Massey was born in Caswell County, N. C., June 11, 1868, and fell asleep in Jesus October 18, 1932, reaching 64 years, 4 months and 7 days of age. He was the son of Joseph Wesley Massey, better known as "Uncle Joe," who preceded him several years ago to the grave.

Mr. Massey was married to Miss Nancy Ella Prichett in 1896, who died about 28 years ago. To this union were born two sons, who survive, Mr. Joseph Earl Massey, New York City, who graduated from Elon College in 1918, Mr. Thomas Ogburn Massey, Maltimore, Md., also a graduate of Elon College.

Bro. Massey leaves to mourn their loss, two sons, a number of relatives and a host of friends and neighbors.

He was held in the highest esteem by his neighbors and friends. He was jolly in conversation and had a good word for everybody. He will be missed greatly. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of his death.

Bro. Massey confessed Christ in early manhood, joining the M. E. Church, and a little over a year ago he united with Concord Church. He was a regular attendant at Sunday School and Church. A good and useful man has been transplanted to a better world. We will miss him. He was a farmer by trade.

Two memorial services were held in his memory—one at the homestead amid sorrowing relatives, neighbors, friends. Thence the body was removed to Friendship M. P. Church and another brief service conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. J. T. Trollinger, M. P. minister, and his body was laid to rest beside his wife in the church cemetery. Peace to his soul.

The floral contributions were abundant and beautiful. May the Lord graciously comfort the bereaved.

President's Camp to Become Part of Park.—

The picturesque mountain camp on the Rapidan River, in Virginia, which has served as retreat for President Hoover during the past four years, will soon become a part of the Shenandoah National Park. Some time ago the camp, where Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald and many other dignitaries have been entertained, was offered by the President for inclusion in the park, "with the view of making it a permanent retreat for Presidents." In order to obtain clear titles to all of the property to be included in the vast government park, the routine used was condemnation, and the 165-acre tract of Mr. Hoover was awarded the State in the same manner. Actual transfer will be made later. Eventually all of the lands in the park area will be transferred by Virginia to the national government.

Church Attendance a Necessity.—

Roger W. Babson, international statistician and Christian worker, wisely says: "For churches to close up now, or to 'let up,' is like hospitals closing during an epidemic. We say this because an epidemic of fear, such as is raging today, is as dangerous as an epidemic of 'flu,' such as raged in 1918. The need of the hour is not more money, more real estate, or more stocks and bonds, but rather more self-control, unselfishness, faith and courage. Self-control, unselfishness, faith and courage are spiritual qualities which cannot be secured from bankers or stores, but from ministers and churches." Over-indulgence, selfishness, lack of faith and the want of courage to do right, caused the slough in which we find ourselves. Only the virtues which stand over against these vices can bring the return of true prosperity."

Is Moderate Drinking Safe?—

Wets in the United States would have people believe that the moderate use of liquor is the solution of the drink problem. Opponents of the dry law say, "Let us drink temperately as in Europe and all will be well!" They often assert that liquor in small quantities is perfectly harmless, and that an occasional "bracer" has no ill effects in the imbibor. Europe now gives the answer to the assertion of the wets. In Germany many applicants for driving licenses received a card with the following advice: "The smallest quantities of alcohol (beer, wine, spirits, etc.) are injurious to the motor driver. It is a widespread error that small quantities have no deleterious effect. On the contrary, they cause at first an increase of self-confidence, followed by premature fatigue, and thus weaken one's capacity for swift discrimination and reaction in the presence of danger." Nothing could be more plain than this statement. Germany has found liquor guilty of being an enemy of public safety. Alcohol even in the smallest quantities is a danger to human welfare.—Christian Science Monitor.

Twenty-three Out of a Thousand.—

"One of the sad things indicated by intelligence tests given throughout the United States," says President F. W. Boatwright of the University of Richmond, "is that, whereas 150 out of every thousand persons are capable of receiving benefit from a college education, only twenty-three of those graduate from college." After enumerating many of the advantages that a college education affords, Dr. Boatwright quoted statistics showing how thoroughly, in spite of increased college attendance, the opportunities of a college education are being neglected. Out of every thousand persons we learn that the majority drop out of school before reaching the seventh grade, 198 graduate from high school, seventy-four enter college, and twenty-three graduate. "Those figures," he said, "would seem to indicate that we are a nation of seventh-graders—a fact which increases the demand for trained intellectual leadership. Education, or graduation from college, does not insure a successful business or social career, but statistics prove that one's chances for success are greatly enhanced by the preliminary training which only a college can give.

Wright Memorial Unveiled Despite Storm.—

On the 19th of this month, dignitaries of State and nation gathered at Kitty Hawk, N. C., to dedicate a monument in commemoration of the fact that here the Wright Brothers, Orville and Wilbur, flew the world's first motor-driven airplane. Provision was made for the accommodation of 20,000 persons, but a bare thousand was present, so inclement was the weather. At one time the gale grew so strong that the ceremonies were halted for over half an hour. The giant dirigible, Akron, was not able to come because of the weather, but Coast Guard planes and Army and Navy airplanes droned overhead as visible results of the Wrights' pioneering spirit. Orville Wright, surviving brother of the pair which on December 17, 1903, started aviation upon its course of achievement, was present, but modestly refrained from taking part in the ceremonies. Among the speakers were Governor-elect J. C. B. Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, and Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, who paid high tribute to the Wrights, placing them among "America's immortal sons." The monument, a ninety-foot granite pylon, with a beacon at its peak, was unveiled by Miss Ruth Nichols, outstanding woman flyer.

Solid Oxygen.—

Our dictionary gives the following definition: "A colorless, tasteless, and inodorous gaseous element." Oxygen, by volume, makes up one-third of the world's water, and is the active element of the air we breathe, so our definition might have well added the word "essential." And now we find that though naturally so in its free state, oxygen is not necessarily gaseous, for a German chemist has recently discovered a method of solidifying it into small "bricks" and of so fixing the solid "gas" that it may be safely kept for years without deterioration in an ordinary sealed tin container. Notwithstanding the terrific pressure exerted in solidifying the oxygen, we are told that these bricks cannot explode and are, therefore, not dangerous. Each brick contains as much oxygen as would in its gaseous form be contained in one of the large commercial cylinders now used, where it is under pressure of hundreds of pounds to the square inch. Not only may this discovery be used in the forwarding of commercial uses of oxygen, but countless lives may be saved thereby. It should appeal especially to the mining industry as an aid against the ever present danger of suffocation, and will probably join the first aid kit in many a factory and home.

A Caterpillar Recipe.—

John R. Scotford, writing in the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, says: "The writer has long suspected that the capacity to consume strange foods nonchalantly is one of the prime requisites for an effective missionary, especially in the stranger portions of the world. Dietetic surprises often add interest to the job." He offers in substantiation of his opinion the following from the pen of Miss Florence Torrence, of Mt. Silinda, East Africa, and remarks that it may give the cooks who read it something new to think about: "One afternoon last week I was walking over the tennis court when I saw a long line of caterpillars marching across the path, one close behind the other. They looked like a long snake winding its way through the grass. I counted 129 caterpillars in line! Then two of our house girls came running and began to gather the hairy creatures into a white enamel bowl. With much astonishment, I asked what they wanted them for. They replied, 'To cook and eat them!' In preparing them for food they first burn the hairs off with hot coals in a winnowing basket, and then wash them in cold water. They are then placed in a pot of boiling water and cooked until the water evaporates. Then the water is replenished and they are cooked a little longer. The final state approaches soup, into which they dip their stiff corn mush, which they eat with their fingers. They claim the combination is delicious. Other insects used for food are termites, locusts, stick beetles, and some other species of caterpillar. I once roasted an edible grasshopper and ate it myself. It really was not bad."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Give thanks unto the Lord for all his benefits. Surely his benefits, infinite in number, should and will wake our deep gratitude and praise.

A Union Thanksgiving service will be held by the Park Place Churches, Norfolk, Va., November 24th, at the Park Place Methodist Church. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, will give the Thanksgiving message. His subject will be: "Thankfulness in a Time of Adversity."

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, N. C., president of the North Carolina Woman's Board and beloved of all, is visiting her daughter, former Miss Graham Rowland, now Mrs. Wiseman, in Texas, and sends back the glad message that though young in feeling and in years, she rejoices to be the grandmother of such a fine boy in the home of her daughter and preacher son-in-law. Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Rowland.

David Grayson, essayist, strikingly interprets our American Thanksgiving Day in these lines: "No holiday in all our calendar is comparable to Thanksgiving. There is no holiday quite like it anywhere in the world. It celebrates no battle, no fall of a Bastille, no bank or business holiday; the birthday of no great man, no political revolution, no church ritual. It is the great holiday of common people who have worked all the year and now thank God humbly for good harvests. We are not celebrating Washington or Columbus or the Declaration of Independence, but just the true, good things, the simple blessings of the soil and the common life. Most holidays are somewhat pagan, and if traced back are rooted in the dull and bloody stories of some old war; but Thanksgiving is the holiday of peace, the celebration of work and the simple life. You must go back to the old Greeks for anything to compare with it—a true folk festival that speaks the poetry of the turn of the seasons, the beauty of the harvests, the ripe product of the year and the deep, deep connection of all these things with God."

The North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference met in the 107th annual session at Mt. Zion Church, Orange County, N. C., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Dr. C. H. Rowland, president; Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, secretary; Dr. Waldo Boone, treasurer, had served in their respective capacities so well the past years that the Conference unanimously voted that they continue, and they agreed. The delegation was quite representative, very few of the churches in the Conference not being represented by delegates, and only one or two not represented by letter. It was reported by the secretary that the churches of the Conference had gained in membership during the year about 350 members. A new church organization, that of the First Christian Church, Winston-Salem, N. C., was added to the roll of churches in the Conference. Rev. Wm. T. Scott is pastor and is quite hopeful over the outlook, the deep and universal regret being that the Christian-Congregational Churches have so long neglected organizing in this thriving city. The Conference was glad to welcome Rev. R. T. Grissom, pastor of our Christian forces in Carroll County, Va., and also four delegates from the two churches—Elk Spur and Rocky Ford.

Pastor Grissom's account of the progress and the present condition of the work was quite gratifying. There were sermons and addresses of outstanding merit and worth during the Conference, and the large audiences who attended were enthusiastic over the program of the Conference as carried out and the spirit of brotherly love and sweet fellowship that prevailed. The next session of the Conference is to be held with Union Church, Union Ridge, N. C., beginning Tuesday after the second Sunday in November, 1933. While the financial returns from the churches did not quite measure up to those of one year ago, the report of the collector, Bro. H. V. Simpson, was quite gratifying and showed a sustained and quite universal interest on the part of the local churches in the institutions and enterprises of the church. From the moment that Mr. Zeb Lynch of the local church, welcomed the Conference on its assembling Tuesday morning, till the last delegate had departed Thursday afternoon, everything possible on the part of the church and the neighborhood was done, in the spirit of cordial hospitality, to make delegates and visitors feel happy and at home. It was a great and good session of a venerable and honored body.

DR. RAYMOND GOES TO NASHVILLE.

Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, for the past six years pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church of Chattanooga, resigned on Sunday, November 13th, to become affiliated with the Atlanta Theological Seminary Foundation connected with the Vanderbilt School of Religion at Nashville. Dr. Raymond's resignation came as a surprise to members of his church and to his many friends. It will become effective January 1st.

Dr. Raymond has been president of the board of trustees of Atlanta Seminary Foundation for several years, and he will now devote himself entirely to the work of the institution and to promoting its interests. Those who are interested in the institution will be gratified to know that Dr. Raymond is to become affiliated with it in this definite way. Atlanta Seminary was a Congregational institution and was moved to Nashville a few years ago and affiliated with the School of Religion, with the new name of Atlanta Theological Seminary Foundation. It has rendered the denomination a great service and is broadening the field of its service by its affiliation with the School of Religion.

Dr. Raymond has not only been a leader in the board of trustees of Atlanta Seminary, but has been a leader in the whole Congregational organization of the Southeast, being president of the advisory board of the Congregational Churches of the Southeast, and has been a leader in the merger of Congregational and Christian Churches, and is known and beloved by people of both sections of the United Church.

He was a graduate of Oberlin College and Theological Seminary, also studying at Andover Theological Seminary and Columbia University. He was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity by Berea College in 1914. He was at one time vice-president of Berea College. Among his pastorates have been the First Congregational Church at Bellvue, Ohio; the First Congregational Church at Flushing, N. Y.; the South Congregational Church at Brooklyn, N. Y.; and the Congregational Church at Greeley, Col. While pastor of the church at Chattanooga he has taken an active part in the city life and has been an outstanding preacher and minister. He is greatly beloved by the people of his church, and by all who know him. Atlanta Seminary Foundation and Vanderbilt School of Religion are to be congratulated upon his affiliation with those institutions.

BIBLE CLASS CELEBRATES.

The I. W. Johnson Bible Class of Oakland Christian Church, whose membership is composed of the young married people of the church, celebrated the fifth anniversary of its organization on October 5, 1932, at the home of its teacher, Mrs. J. R. Gayle.

For this anniversary celebration a history of the class had been prepared, and was read. The class records showed that the enrollment of members had increased from fourteen charter members in October, 1927, to eighty-two members in October, 1932. Of course, many of these are not serving actively. The class has an active membership of about thirty-five.

The class has raised $833.00 during the past five years, and this has been expended for missions, orphanage, benevolences, Sunday School incidentals, church improvements, etc. For instance, the class financed the laying of concrete walks near the entrance of Oakland Church, it purchased a communion service for the church, and the class has assisted in many other church improvements.

The progress of the class has been steady, and to some degree successful from the standpoint of recorded facts and figures. For all of this we are thankful to the "Giver of every good and perfect gift," for to him belongs all the praise and honor. Yet, we are not satisfied with our past achievements, and we aim to reach higher goals of usefulness in Christian service in the future, with the help of Almighty God, and the cooperation of each individual member of our class.

MRS. J. R. GAYLE, Teacher.

FLORIDA ASSOCIATION MEETINGS.

Two Florida Associations held their annual meetings last week. The South Association held its forty-first annual meeting at Avon Park and the East Coast Association held its fortieth annual meeting at Lake Helen. Both associations had unusually fine programs and the addresses, papers and sermons were all of especially high order of merit and interest. They were timely, challenging and inspiring.

The officers elected were, for the South Association: Moderator, Rev. J. B. Root, of Sanford; secretary, Rev. Ralph Krout, of New Port Richey. For the East Coast Association: Rev. Orville D. Ullom, of Melbourne, was elected moderator, and Rev. R. E. Newton was re-elected registrar for the fourth term of two years.

At the East Coast Association a new constitution was adopted, one feature being the change of the name to the East Coast Association of Congregational and Christian Churches. This is the first organization in Florida to so change its name. There are no Christian Churches in this fellowship but it was decided to bring the name into accord with the United denominational name. A feature of the South Association meeting was the presence of Mr. E. S. Burleigh, who for twenty-five years was registrar of the association. He resigned a year ago because of serious illness. He was honored by the association. At both of the association meetings, Rev. Frank Meacham, a retired missionary from Chikore, South Africa, was a guest speaker. The hospitality of each entertaining church was most gracious. Dr. Arthur P. Vaughn is pastor at Avon Park, and Dr. Arthur G. Lyon at Lake Helen.

There are men who delight to see evil in those professing godliness. They doubt, they leer, they jeer. Well, there are birds appointed to seek for the carrion, and they always find it. By their seeking they declare their own nature. Don't you imitate their dirty flight. They are of the carrion family.—Henry Ward Beecher.

GEORGIA STATE CONFERENCE.

The Georgia State Conference met at Duncan's Creek Church, near Buford, November 1st and 2nd. Dr. Shipman, chairman of the board of trustees at Piedmont College, who has known our Congregational Churches since 1912, said, "This is the best conference Georgia ever had."

Dr. McElveen, moderator, opened the conference with exceptionally strong words of greeting and devotion. And all the way through he presided with wit and humor and wisdom to the delight and edification of all. Warm words of welcome were spoken by Rev. W. Carl Parker, the pastor of the church. The sermon by Dr. Frank R. Shipman, on "How Many Are You," was one of the most uplifting we have heard. The women's hour conducted by Mrs. William A. Davis brought the women of Georgia into the life of the conference as they have never been before. This was their first appearance on the regular program. It was splendid. The special music by Piedmont College students was much appreciated. The address on "Evangelism," by Rev. David W. Shepherd, of Columbus, one of our youngest ministers, vitalized the audience with the desire to do things on a high plane when seeking to evangelize.

The treasurer reported per capita tax paid by most churches and the expectation of being able to pay General Council dues in full (which was afterwards done), for the first time in several years. He also reported a gift from the inactive church at Cedartown to the conference of $583.66, on condition that it be returned if the church should be revived within the next five years.

It was suggested that all Georgia do their best to pay all apportionments by December 15th, and thus pave the way to a more worthy celebration of Christmas.

The closing session was in charge of Rev. Jesse H. Dollar, LaGrange. He conducted a lively song service. Allen Jones led the devotions and Mr. Dollar preached the sermon on "Visions of Greater Things Than These."

Perhaps the greatest one thing done at this conference was the completion of the merger of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference with this one. The same constitution which was adopted by the former at Richland a few weeks ago, was presented, discussed, and unanimously adopted. It was then adopted by a rising vote of the Christians present and the Congregationalists. It was an hour marked good fellowship. To safeguard legal rights, the Congregationalists had to elect a full set of officers; but for the work of the united conference (the name is "The Georgia Congregational and Christian Conference"), a full set of officers under the new constitution was elected. The names of all these are not before the writer, but it is noteworthy that a former associate moderator at the great Seattle meeting in 1931, Rev. D. B. Atkinson, D. D., was elected first moderator of this new conference. Rev. Alan Jones, of South Georgia, was elected assistant moderator. Prof. C. Lisle Percy, Dr. D. B. Atkinson and Rev. C. W. Carpenter of South Georgia, were elected committee on licensure and course of study. The board of directors and other officers were selected two from each of the three associations. Rev. M. J. Sweet was elected superintendent, registrar and treasurer.

One of the most touching features of this conference was the licensing of Mr. Crawford Moncrief, of Knoxville, Ga. He is now in charge of four small, rural churches. On recommendation of the committee he was issued a license for one year. He will pursue the course of study. He appeared before the moderator, Dr. McElveen, who asked the usual sacred questions, gave him encouraging words of welcome, a serious charge as to the duties and the privileges of the ministry, caused him to kneel and then offered a remarkably appropriate and helpful prayer. The effect on the candidate and congregation was marked.

This report would be grossly unappreciative did it not speak of the wonderful hospitality of Thanksgiving Proclamation!

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEREAS, at this season of the year, our people, for generations past, have always turned their thoughts to thankfulness for the blessing of Almighty God;

Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, do set aside and declare Thursday, November 24, 1932, as a day of national thanksgiving, and I do urge that they repair to their places of worship, there to give thanks to the beneficent Providence from whom comes all our good; and I do further recommend, inasmuch as this year marks the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, the Father of our Country, whose immeasurable services to our liberties and our security are blessings perennially renewed upon us, that our people refresh their memory of his first Thanksgiving Proclamation, which I append and incorporate in this present proclamation.

"BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA A PROCLAMATION.

"Whereas it is the duty of all Nations to acknowledge the Providence of Almighty God, to obey His will, to be grateful for His benefits and humbly implore His protection and favor—and Whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint Committees requested me 'to recommend to the people of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness.'

"Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being, who is the beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be—That we may then all unite in rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks—for His kind care and protection of the people of the country previous to their becoming a Nation—for the signal and manifold mercies, and the favorable interpositions of His Providence, which we experienced in the course and conclusion of the late war—for the great degree of tranquility, union, and plenty, which we have since enjoyed—for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness, and particularly the national one now lately instituted—for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed, and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and in general for all the great and various favors which He hath been pleased to confer upon us.

"And also that we may then unite in most humbly offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations, and beseech Him to pardon our national and other transgressions to enable us all whether in public or private stations to perform our several and relative duties properly and punctually—to render our national government a blessing to all the people, by constantly being a government of wise, just, and constitutional laws, discreetly and faithfully executed and obeyed—to protect and guide all Sovereigns and Nations especially such as have shown kindness unto us, and to bless them with good government, peace and concord—to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue, and the increase of science among them and us—and generally grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best.

"Given unto my hand at the City of New York the third day of October, the year of our Lord 1789.

"GEO. WASHINGTON."

the Duncan's Creek Church. The people opened their doors wide to all delegates from everywhere. Everybody was happy, well fed and contented.

The conference adjourned to meet with United Church, LaGrange, Tuesday before the first Sunday in November, 1933, which will be on October 31st and November 1st.

FIFTH SUNDAY OFFERING.

The Fifth Sunday offerings of the Sunday Schools of the Convention continue to come in. In THE CHRISTIAN SUN two weeks ago, we reported a list of the churches responding to the call of the college for an offering. We have heard from a number of other schools since our last report. There must be many other Sunday Schools in the Convention that intend to send in their offering.

It is the purpose of the Convention and the hope of the college that every Sunday School shall assist in this worthy undertaking. To date, we have received a total of $143.51. Get your SUN of two weeks ago and compare it with the list below and see if your school appears. If not, call on the officials of your school and inquire why. You greatly encourage us by your offerings. The following schools have sent in offerings since our last report:

R. W. Barnette, Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	$ 1.03
Josephine Graham, Union Ridge, Burlington, N. C.	2.17
H. L. Worrell Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	6.22
Velna Johnson, Zion, Moncure, N. C.	1.61
H. C. Merkel, South Norfolk Sunday School, South Norfolk, Va.	4.29
Eli Freeman, Randleman Sunday School, Randleman, N. C.	1.00
Alvin Sloan, Cary Sunday School, Cary, N. C.	.89
Rev. J. W. Patton, Mt. Bethel Sunday School, Elon College, N. C.	1.25

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

Rev. Frank Atkinson, pastor of the Congregational Church at West Palm Beach, Fla., gave a very fine address on "Evangelism," at the East Coast Association meeting recently held at Palm City. He told something of his experience in studying evangelism in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. At that time his purpose was to be an evangelist. Later, however, he entered upon a regular pastorate and began to use his knowledge of evangelism in building up individual churches by a different method.

He gave a report of an experience at West Palm Beach. He organized a considerable number of his church members into visiting groups and got them to enter upon a campaign of calling. They used the cards and literature provided by the Commission on Evangelism (287 4th Ave., New York City). Eighty-five families were thus called upon. The visitors made numerous notes on the cards they returned, and the pastor found himself confronted with a pile of cards, a mass of information and opportunities enough to keep him busy for many months. New people were found, "backsliders" were awakened and interested and possible new members were discovered. Mr. Atkinson thinks that such evangelism produces definite and lasting results.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

"SUNDAY SCHOOL OR CHURCH SCHOOL?"

Haven't we called it "Sunday School" long enough? There are those who believe we have. Names designate, or convey, ideas. Maybe the name is now desecrating, rather than designating, the idea of Sunday School. The name comes from the fact that in the beginning of the idea they simply taught on Sunday a school for poor children. These children were taught reading, writing, arithmetic—and after a while the catechism.

When the Sunday School began there were no free public schools, either in England or America. Those who went to school in the week had to pay for the privilege. There were many children whose parents could not pay. Robert Raikes, of Gloucester, England, in 1780, began a school in his city for the purpose of giving some education to children who, because of their poverty, did not have the privilege of going to school during the week. Of course, the ultimate idea was to lead these children to the study of the catechism, the Bible and to the church, but before this could be done, they must be taught to "read, write and cipher." At that time there was no other name that could convey the idea than that of "Sunday School." We have long since outgrown the idea, but we still hold the name.

The idea in the Sunday School now is that of the "Church School" or "Bible School," meaning thereby that part of the church engaged in instruction and Christian education. The church immediately approved the idea of Mr. Raikes. When Mr. Raikes, in 1784, published an account of his plans and work for religious training and neglected children in his native city of Gloucester, Mr. Wesley, founder of Methodism, published Mr. Raikes' account and exhorted the people to adopt the new institution; and history tells us that immediately Mr. Wesley and his followers began to instruct their neighbors' children and take them to the House of God on the Lord's Day.

In Wesley's Journal, 1784, he says: "I find Sunday Schools springing up everywhere I go. Perhaps God may have a deeper end therein than men are aware of. Who knows but some of these schools may be nurseries for Christians?" In 1787, just seven years after Robert Raikes had begun his work of gathering the children, and, out of his own pocket paying his teachers to teach them on Sunday, Mr. Wesley wrote to one of his preachers: "I am glad you have taken in hand that blessed work of setting up Sunday Schools in Chester. It seems these will be one great means of reviving religion throughout the nation. I wonder Satan has not yet sent out some able champion against them."

From recent accounts and observation, one wonders if Satan did not reserve his forces for a more subtle attack and in a more effective manner. We are hearing in many quarters now that the Sunday School, especially in cities, is quite one thing, and the church quite another; and that many—young and old—go to Sunday School who never attend a worship service of the church. Would it help any to change the name "Sunday School" to "Church School?" and thus in the very name itself emphasize the idea that the Sunday School and the church are not two separate and distinct organizations, but one and only one? Isn't the Sunday School the church seeking light; whereas, the preaching and the worship hour is the church seeking power.

The Sunday School is the church seeking to get information; the preaching and worship service in the church seeking inspiration. The Sunday School is the church at work; the preaching hour is the church at worship. The Sunday School is the church trying to learn lessons about the Lord and the way of the Lord. The preaching hour and worship service is the church getting a revelation of the Lord seeking fellowship with him.

The time has come when, instead of making the Sunday School one thing and the church another, we should consider both one and as two aspects of one single idea and entity. Possibly, if we would change the name to "Church School" or "Bible School," we could the sooner drive home to the hearts of the seekers after truth in Sunday School and church the two aspects of the same idea, namely, that of finding, knowing, serving, worshipping our Saviour and our Lord and His Christ.

"LOTS OF MONEY."

Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro, addressing a recent Conference, said that the present depression was not from lack of money or dearth of financial holdings, but a lack of faith and a dearth of moral and spiritual power and possessions. Attention was called to the fact that at the time we plunged into this depression, there was more money in our country, and greater prosperity, than we had ever known in history.

From a recent survey of trading areas, it would seem that Dr. Rowland's statement is verified. By this survey it was shown that within a radius of sixty miles about New York, on a given day, in October, 1932, while a veritable howl was going up from the unemployed of that city, the unimaginable sum of $16,000,000,000 was on deposit in the banks within that territory. Nor does this tell half the story. The New York Times of October 24th, points out that at that time there were in the savings banks, within a radius of sixty miles about New York, $4,869,695,225. "Therefore," said the Times, "the average account per family in the savings banks of that community was $940.00." That is to say, that nearly one-third of the money on deposit in the banks of the New York area is that on deposit in savings accounts, or in the accounts of those who are small depositors. On October 31, 1932, The United States Daily printed the statement that the life insurance companies of America have $20,000,000,000 of assets and that 68,000,000 Americans have life insurance policies totaling $109,000,000,000 in protection. We are told that 63 per cent of our population carry insurance, and that this 63 per cent is made up from every class, group and calling in the land. Last year the insurance companies paid to beneficiaries, of more than one million policies, $2,500,000,000.

While very many of us have not many of these dollars, it makes us feel good that they are lying around, that they have not been squandered nor have they gone up in smoke.

The banks simply do not know where to place their money, for the simple reason that securities are either insecure or doubtful, and this is true, because we have lost faith, and faith is an integral part of spirituality. Money has not disappeared from the face of the earth. We need to recover our moral and spiritual balance to regain a lost faith, and when that is done, money will come out from its hiding, and safety vaults, and will again flow through the economic structure of society, and thus quicken the life of the whole body and system.

ELON ONWARD AND UPWARD WITH THE DOLLAR PLAN.

There is no more hopeful sign in the outlook of Elon College than the growing interest in the "Dollar Plan." The only way to rebuild is to follow the method used in building. God himself recreates and re-constructs by the same method and plan that he used in creating and constructing. Mankind cannot improve on God's way in doing things. Elon's plan in building was the enlistment of small gifts. The history of the institution shows that there were no large gifts until there were multiplied numbers of small gifts, even from a dime to a dollar and ten dollars and up to five hundred dollars. Then came the day of the one thousand dollar gifts, but the forerunners of the one thousand dollar givers had been a thousand small gifts and givers. This is history with which many SUN readers are vividly acquainted.

This has not only been the way of the history of Elon College, but the way of history of the church throughout the centuries. Those of humble and limited means and activities, but of large faith and abiding love for God, had to lead the way and establish a foundation of safety and security for those who had the responsibility of handling large sums and doing things on a large scale.

And now that the financial sustenance, support and system of Elon is to be rebuilt, the same plan must be pursued that was pursued in the building. Those of us who can give a dime at a time, a dollar a month, must show to the world our faith in Elon and thus lead the way to larger things and a brighter day. President L. E. Smith is eminently correct, and perfectly safe in saying that if he can find five thousand persons who will contribute a dollar a month to Elon College for ten years, the institution will be on a safe footing with her debts and two other dormitories built and paid for. This does not mean that the gifts from these five thousand would do these wonders, but that these gifts would form the foundation for the building of a great financial structure that would sustain and secure the college. The plan has been adopted and, as Dr. Smith assures us, is meeting with hearty approval to secure the names of those who would give a dollar a month for the support of the college, and on this foundation we will build so far as finances are concerned. "The worth of a dollar," like that of an individual, "is in the company it keeps," and surely the dollars sent in now to Elon College will be in the company of the good, the wise and the fruitful, for they unitedly will pave the way for, and guarantee the arrival of large sums from those charged with the responsibility of investing in a large way their fortunes.

"God helps those who help themselves," and we have found a way whereby we can help ourselves throughout our Congregational-Christian constituency, and as we help ourselves in building with our dimes and dollars a secure foundation for Elon financially, God will see to it that our faithfulness and self-denial shall not go without reward. J. O. A.

PAIN.

St. Paul was well acquainted with pain. He lists a good many painful experiences to show his zeal for the gospel. On a part of his missionary journeys he was accompanied by his beloved physician, St. Luke. Once he called his, or our, afflictions light as compared with the compensation they would bring. He overcame his physical handicaps, and by the grace of God, succeeded in carrying out his missionary purpose.

Physical handicaps have influenced the lives of great men in a most wonderful way. All of us have our troubles, pains and obstacles to overcome whether we will or no. Pain is no respecter of person. Whether we deserve it or not, we have it to endure.

One of the outstanding Christian leaders of today is Toyochiko Kagawa of Japan. We look upon him in amazement. He is forty-four years of age, has written sixty books and has accomplished remarkable social reforms in Japan. He speaks to thousands of his fellow countrymen every day, nearly, and holds his first Sunday morning service at six o'clock to accommodate working people.

In one of his speeches delivered in Japan he said that he had been ill all his life. First, he had to struggle with tuberculosis. At present, he has diabetes, and trachoma and a weak heart. This has injured his eyesight, so that he has to read with a magnifying glass. He names other physical ailments, but only to show how to overcome them. When he spoke of tuberculosis, he said, "At twenty years of age, I hardly weighed seventy-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and forty. So when you are told that you have tuberculosis, you need not worry. Sickness has to do with the spirit. When the spirit is healed, the physical sickness will go. If you say, 'I have consumption, therefore it's hopeless,' you will not get well. The doctor has said over and over that I could not recover; but because I believed I would, I did. With all these ailments, I am still active. Illness is a matter of the spirit. I feel that it is half mental and half physical. If you believe, come what may, you can overcome it and recover. This is religion. I have peace because my heart is easy. What is living of me is merely spirit."

Great faith has cured many an ailment. A strong will determined to live and conquer has carried many a man and woman through a long life of usefulness. Courage, hope, persistence do wonders. The 91st Psalm breathes a wonderful tonic message but does not deny trouble. It gives the promise that God will be with us in trouble to help us overcome. E. A. K.

WHAT I OWE.

After reading "What I Owe to Christ," by C. F. Andrews, one hardly knows how to summarize so great a book. It is a most carefully written personal narrative drawn from a naturally reti-cent man by the insistent requests of friends who have a right to ask him. He is and has been for years associated with Sadhu Sundar Singh, Mahatma Gandhi, Rabindranath Tagore, and is personally acquainted with Dr. Albert Schweitzer and Kagawa of Japan, and has spent much time in India, Africa, Japan and China. He has accomplished great things for the Indians in South Africa (in conjunction with Gandhi), has promoted race freedom and fellowship and has developed in himself and others a wholesome inter-religious freedom. His life has been given wholly to Christ, and his entire time has been devoted in the interest of the poor and exploited peoples of other races. He was ordained a priest in the Church of England, and for years was a teacher. He has served for years in the capacity of missionary of the English Church. He has now become a free-lance, living in delightful fellowship with men and women of many races and religions.

This book of 281 pages tells the story of how his uncompromising faith in Christ has dominated his every move, and has widened his views. For some of us it seems strange to read, in this book, that his father, a minister in another denomination, and himself could not participate in the Holy Communion together. A great change came over him, however, as may be seen in the following experience. When Mr. Andrews was in the Fiji Islands, he communed in the Methodist Mission with the Methodist missionary presiding at the table. He was deeply impressed by this experience and writes: "It was at times like these—and there have been many such in my life—that I have seen how man-made rules and ordinances about denominational differences break down completely in the sunshine of Christ's love." This is the way he learned to enjoy religious freedom. The book might easily be called the story of the gaining of religious freedom in the life of one disciple of Christ.

Another conclusion he came to is worth mention here. He saw, and experienced, too much controversy, too much forceful propaganda in missionary work, and gradually came to believe in the superior value of "silent influence, carrying with it the fragrance of a true Christian life." Again he says, "A Christian life that grows silently like the rose, shedding its perfume on every side, is the truest witness to Christ."

The reading of this volume is like participating in a conference of devout men who unbosom their hearts to one another. It has a great spiritual value. E. A. K.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Suffolk Christian Church suffered a great bereavement in the death of Mr. Hersey Woodward, Sr. He was born October 2, 1855 in Suffolk, Va., and died November 10, 1932, in the home where he was born. Five generations of the Woodward family have lived in the home of his birth. He was a son of the late Richard and Missouri Lassiter Woodward. He married Miss Augusta Eppes Saunders, February 18, 1880. He is survived by his wife, five sons, one daughter, one sister, one brother, and a number of other relatives.

During a revival conducted by the late Dr. C. J. Jones, he was converted and united with the Suffolk Christian Church, on July 26, 1891. This was the turning point in his life. The whole tendency of his life was changed by the new life which he found in Jesus Christ. At once he became active in the church. During his life he served as treasurer of the church for more than twenty-five years. He organized the Twentieth Century Baracca Class, and was the honored teacher for more than twenty years. During this term he missed one Sunday in a period of ten years. He also assisted in the organization of the Baracca Class at the Liberty Spring Christian Church. These classes have grown in numbers and have made a large contribution to the development of the other work of the local church.

He served as treasurer of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference for ten years. In addition to his work in the church, he served as secretary of Masonic Lodges, and other fraternal orders, and gave much of his time to the work of these organizations.

For forty-three years he held an important position in the Farmers Bank of Nansemond, where he became acquainted with hundreds of people. In this position he had rare tact and ability. As Note Teller he handled millions of dollars in notes, and his memory was so accurate that he could remember the amount and date of nearly every note in the bank.

It is impossible to give an extensive outline of his life and work in the short space allotted to this letter. Enough has been written to indicate that he was a busy man, who filled many important places in the city where he lived and died.

He was conscientious in the discharge of his duty. He believed in efficiency and promptness in business and in church. An accident which occurred more than forty years ago, crippled him for the remainder of his life. After this he had little use of his left hand. He walked slowly by using a cane. Many people with less energy would have despaired of trying to make a living for a large family. He overcame these handicaps with great will power, and was always ready to give his best service in conscientious work.

He was faithful and punctual. This spirit motivated his life in every thing he did. When he attended church he hung his cane on the back of the pew in front of him. There is a worn spot on that pew—the mark of his cane. Think of the hundreds of people who are well and strong, who have not worn out any church carpet, or removed any paint, by faithful church attendance.

He was religious. He loved the church. He loved the Lord. He gave his time, his money, his talents and his attention to the Christian religion. He knew what Jesus had done for him. Religion enriched his mind, sharpened his wits, inspired his motives and directed his activities. He requested that "How Firm a Foundation" be sung at his funeral. That was an index to the heart of the man. His life rested upon this foundation. A life which does not rest upon Jesus Christ has missed the highest and best. It must have been a great moment when Dr. Staley and Brother Woodward were re-united in that happy home above, where it is well with the soul.

CONFERENCE SUPPORT.

Our Conference calendar is so arranged that, beginning with the Eastern Virginia Conference, the Conferences, with the exception of the Valley Conference, meet week after week without interruption.

The Conferences this year have all been well attended and they all have had splendid programs. The members of Conference, while regretting that the offerings from the churches have not quite measured up to what they have been giving, have refused to allow themselves to be discouraged in the least, but with faith and confident expectancy, they have planned for the future, anticipate better days, more efficient service and larger ingatherings. Emphasis has been placed upon the real work of the church. In conference sessions, there have been persistent exertations by those who feel the responsibility of the Conference for the several churches, to give themselves to prayer, Bible study and real Christian service. The church has not only been called to prayer and to sacrificial efforts, but she has been called to face frankly the inescapable question of stewardship—the stewardship of life, of time, of service and of money. The churches have been urged that, in these days of depression, they should not forget the enterprises of the church and the great need of the Kingdom for financial support. We are so apt to take what money we have to meet our obligations—to provide for our personal comforts, and to forget the claim of the Kingdom upon our earnings.

More than ever the church needs our gifts—to refuse to give now will mean the loss of gains and the permanent halting of the Kingdom in its progress.

The Conferences seemed greatly concerned over our mission interest, the support of the Orphanage, and the future of the College. Just now the college is looking to the membership of the church to follow the lead of the Alumni in securing memberships for the Dollar-a-Month Club.

The Club is already lending substantial support to the college. It seems a small amount to give, but a large number of small gifts amount to a worth-while total. For only a few months the Club has been in operation, and that on a small scale, yet we have received a total of $1,198 00. The encouraging thing about the Club is that the membership continues to grow. We are happy to report 28 new members since the last list appeared in THE SUN. We now have a total of 420 memberships. These memberships represent a total of 276 members. You will observe that a number have taken more than one membership. This is permissible and welcomed.

The Alumni is getting pretty well organized and is preparing to launch a systematic campaign to increase their membership materially. A complete organization will be formed at an early date, and an effort will be made to reach every member of the church. But, why wait until you are approached in person? This is a good time to join the Club. By the time this paper reaches you, it, perhaps will be Thanksgiving Day. Whenever you read this article, if you are a member and are in arrears with your dues; won't you please remit? If you are not a member, let us have your name, then you will be vitally interested in the growth of the Club—herein lies the salvation of the college—a large number of her friends giving according as the Lord has prospered them, regularly for the support of the institution. If you do not have the money, you may pay your dues with farm products. We still need provisions for the college dining table. A membership of 5,000 is our goal—every new member brings us that much nearer. Encourage us by sending your name, address and the dollar for the first month's dues. The following are the generous hearted friends who have joined the Club since our last report:

L. E. SMITH.

A NEWSPAPER-EDUCATED PEOPLE.

Regardless of what we may be able to boast as to our achievements in the field of strictly academic education, we are very largely a newspaper-educated people. To say the least, we are a head-line reading people. We hurry to our work in the morning hours, glance over the headlines of the morning paper, while commuting by trolley or automobile, take up the duties of the day, and then get the head-lines of the afternoon paper between the time we close the office door and open the home door. Very few of us read at length, thoroughly digest a news article, an editorial, or some feature article. The Sunday paper fares but little better in our hands.

There is a lurking danger in the reading of head-lines only. The intelligent head-liner realizes that he must weave into the display lines something catchy, something sensational, something to stir the imagination. The head-lines often distort the actual facts; and unless we go beyond them, we may be misinformed.

We are not only a newspaper-educated people, but we have become a newspaper-acting people. In journalistic phraseology, a person is never carried to a hospital; he is always rushed to the hospital. No intelligent newspaper reporter will say that officers were sent to the scene, but he will say that they hurried to the scene. It is the action idea that the newspapers convey to us, and so we have become a restless people. We are rushing to some place; we are hurrying to some scene; we reach some place just in time to catch the train or avoid a mishap.

We are not only a newspaper-educated people, a newspaper-acting people, but we are a newspaper-influenced people. We are taking it too much for granted that because we saw so and so in the paper, it is true. And here lies the fertile field of the propagandist. He knows that the average reader will decide that a thing is true because it is in print. He knows further that in this rushing and hurrying age we do not stop to analyze, but simply read in a superficial way and accept it as the truth.

There is no medium of education that wields such a wide and varied influence as the press of our country. Caution should be exercised in the selection of our reading, lest we find ourselves improperly influenced and awkwardly educated and distorted in our views.

TIMOTHY THOMAS.

BALLAST OR COMMON SENSE.

A story is told of an old man who went out sailing with a young man who had just bought a new skiff. Being favored by a good breeze, the lad unfurled his splendid canvas; and the little boat moved forward rapidly on its course. All the while the youthful navigator talked with enthusiasm and pride of the faultless rigging of his skiff; its wide spread sail and the record time he was making. At length they had reached the end of their destination, and as the old man rose to leave, he said: "Young man, will you take a bit of advice from an experienced man of the sea? you have skill and you have nerve; you have a splendid little boat and you have a good sail, but make sure that you always have plenty of ballast on board; for whether you are sailing the briny deep or the ocean of life, you will find always that ballast properly placed will keep you steady and make you safe."

Now ballast (balance) is just another name for good common sense. Grandpa used to call it "horse sense," but regardless of what you may call it, it is just one of the things that you have to have if you expect to get anywhere. You may read books until your eyes are dim, your brain dizzy and your hair is gray, but books alone will never educate you. There is a vast difference in knowing things and knowing about things.

Books just supply us with knowledge about things; which is an indispensable contribution to the makeup of an education, but greater than all this is that indescribable something known as "intelligence." The hope of educating people beyond their intelligence, from books alone, is the way of folly. The ballast is lost in life, where practical common sense ends.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE.

With the end of October, Piedmont College was well on its way towards closing its first term. The enrollment has been 12½ per cent over that of 1931-32. The freshman class numbers 130, and will still be large after the inevitable losses because of poor finances or poor scholarship.

The new members of the faculty include Mrs. Belle D. Hope, R. N., of Montgomery, Ala.; Miss Grace M. Keeney, of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Susie Ritchie and Mr. Max Forester. Mrs. Hope is a graduate of the City (now Roper) Hospital School of Nursing, Charleston, S. C. Her career as a trained nurse has been an honorable one and has won her many memberships including that of honorary membership among the Alumnae of St. Margaret's Hospital. Miss Keeney comes from the William Whitney School of Music in Boston, where she also studied the Marchesi Method with Rose Stewart. She has also been a student in the noted Westminster Choir School, Dayton, Ohio. Miss Ritchie, one of Piedmont's own graduates, is directing the work in Physical Education, while Max Forester is filling a temporary appointment, made necessary by the pressure of work upon the department of biology and the work of the athletic coach.

President Newell has been kept away from the campus all through the fall by the serious illness of his father.

Dr. D. B. Atkinson was called from his work for several days by a meeting of the Federal Council's Committee on Worship in New York City.

A notable feature of the term has been the new vigor manifest in the undergraduate societies. The Protropian Society has obtained new quarters, and is showing a marked revival, which is kindling the ardor of the other three.

Richard Halliburton was the first speaker in the Lyceum Course. A large audience greeted him, and well pleased they went away, hoping to hear him again.

The football team, with a fine backfield and a well-trained line, has had a creditable season so far. The record stands: two games won, and two lost.

FRANK R. SHIPMAN.

Demorest, Ga.

"We cannot have peace in America unless there is peace in Europe, and the peace of Europe is threatened by threats of war in Asia. These things being true, how can anyone fail to see that the Christian Church must be at least as world-minded and internationally responsive as the business and political agencies are being rapidly forced to be?" says Rev. Dwight Bradley, First Church, Newton, Mass., author of "The Recovery of Religion." "So-called 'foreign missions' are simply the concrete expression of the church's will to take its place and play its part in world affairs. International business and diplomacy represent the economic and political influences at work on a planet-wide scale. Foreign missions represent the actively Christian and spiritual influences that are likewise at work. No greater calamity could befall civilization than to have the missionary movement falter at just the time when the commercial and political forces are extending themselves all over the earth."

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Blessed Spirit, rule thou in human life. Not only is there room for thee, there is crying, desperate need. Men and women are mystified, baffled. Help thou the tempted not to forsake the house with which we have been clothed upon nor return to the old leaven of malice and sin wherein wicked spirits multiply. Keep before mankind the assurance that prayers but feebly uttered, by thy holiness and power ascending to the Father's throne, often are heard and answered when, like Jacob, we know it not. In trust we wait and pray. Amen. L.

PROGRAM FOR FOR YOUNG PEOPLES' AND JUNIOR MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.

FROM SEA TO SHINING SEA.

Base the program on the missionaries featured in the Guest Book, pp. 2-13. If you do not have a Guest Book, one may be secured from Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C. Four "guests" are suggested in the program and others may be added if desired. Each individual could be impersonated and his story, almost as written, told in the first person. Choose the impersonators at least a week in advance of the meeting, so that there may be ample time for preparation and the impersonations given from memory, or in the words of the speaker. A map with the different stopping points indicated would add interest to the program.

Hymn—"O Beautiful for Spacious Skies."

Scripture—I. Cor. 3:8-12.

Prayer—For all workers and all travelers that each may carry with him the message of Jesus Christ. (Talk in advance with the one who is to lead the prayer, about the theme, that the prayer may be in keeping.)

Leader—"We shall start our journey of discovery by taking the subway from New York City over to Brooklyn, where we will visit Rev. W. S. Alexander in Hyde Park Christian Church." (Impersonation of Mr. Alexander.)

Leader—"To the young people of the South, Miss Lucy needs no introduction. She has long been a welcome visitor to our churches and a teacher and leader in our Conferences. (Impersonation of Miss Eldredge.)

Leader—"Max Webster is one of the younger generation of ministers, who served an apprenticeship in Student Summer Service, and has become a 'workman who needeth not be ashamed.'" (Impersonation of Mr. Webster.)

Leader—"Dick Fagley is still in the apprentice class, though the joy of service in the vacation months may lead him into the Christian ministry. Mr. Bridges will tell us about him. (Mr. Bridges speaks about Dick Fagley.)

Hymn—"Let There Be Light, Lord God of Hosts," "Light of the World, We Hail Thee." Benediction.

Slightly adapted from a program in the Young People's Bulletin for Autumn, 1932.

Every Young People's Missionary Society, Sunday School Class, Christian Endeavor is urged to spend an adequate amount of time on the study of missions. If you can, secure one of the study books for the year, and study it carefully. A list was given in THE SUN for October 13th. Write for the Young People's Bulletin, and use the programs in it, or enroll as a World Service School and secure the Intermediate-Adult programs.

MISSIONARY NOTES.

By MRS. W. M. JAY.

The attention of teachers of Women's Societies is called to two very helpful leaflets, samples of which the presidents of the societies will receive shortly:

The World Friendship Bulletin, published quarterly by the Department of Missionary Education of our Congregational Christian Education Society. You may receive it regularly by asking Rev. J. L. Lobingier, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., to add your name to his mailing list. It will cost you nothing but the postage stamp.

Program Suggestions for Women's Societies in the Local Church, is the other leaflet, and may be secured from the same address. This leaflet lists seven program possibilities from which you may choose the one that best suits your group.

During the following months a series of programs will appear in THE SUN, one each week. They have already appeared in the Missionary Herald and the American Missionary, and are reprinted here for the use of those who do not have access to the above magazines. There are two treatments of each subject, but by people so unlike in their mode of expression that they are quite different. One program may be used each week with profit; one of each used twice a month; one selected from the four or a combination of the two that are similar, used once a month.

We heartily recommend the use of the study books for the year for such societies as can use them, but for those who need something less elaborate we urge the use of some one of these other programs.

MONTHLY MISSIONARY PROGRAM.

"WHY A WOMAN'S SOCIETY IN THE LOCAL CHURCH."

Program II.

"Our Church and Community Opportunities."

WORSHIP HELPS.

Hymn—"O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Reading—Isaiah LXI:1-9.

Poem—"Brotherhood."

"The crest and crowning of all good,
Life's final star is Brotherhood;
Her long-lost Poesy and mirth,
Will send new life on every face,
A kindly power upon the race,
And till it comes, we men are slaves,
And travel downward to the dust of graves.
Come, clear the way, then; clear the way;
Blind creeds and kings have had their day
Break the dead branches from the path:
Our hope is in the aftermath—
Our hope is in heroic men,
Star-led to build the world again.
To this event the ages ran:
Make way for Brotherhood—make way for man."
—Edwin Markham.

Prayer—That we may see the many opportunities of service close at hand, and that our neighbors may find the spirit of Brotherhood a living reality in our church and our community.

1. Opening talk by leader.

2. Paper or talk on "The Women's Society at Work for the Church."
Special music.

3. Paper or talk on "The Woman's Society and Its Community."

Discussion and conversation by all, led by the leader.

Aim—Decide upon at least one enterprise in which your group may engage for the coming year.

Sentence prayers on the program subject.

Benediction—One verse of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

A Hindu festival was in progress. A group of Indian Christian girls from the Lucy Perry Noble Institute, Madura, India, were visiting the temple. Some of them went through the court and up to the spring where the Hindus believe their sins are washed away. As they came back, looking their happy, clean selves, an old woman tried to brush back the crowd, crying, "Clear the road! Can't you see these people have gone and washed in the spring?" In a symbolic sense, this is indeed true, says Miss Gertrude E. Chandler.

IDEAL CHURCH MUSIC.

By MISS NELLIE REA SLEDGE.

From time immemorial music has been used in connection with religious ceremonies. Crude songs and chants kindled the religious emotions of primitive and barbarous peoples and as civilization advanced, higher forms of musical expression were developed. The ancient Egyptians and Assyrians handed down their theories to the Greeks and Hebrews, by whom they were transferred and elaborated. It is, therefore, from the productions of the Greeks that the music of the Christian Church has developed.

To prophesy meant to sing, and there is little doubt that Isaiah, Jeremiah, and others like them uttered their prophecies in song no less than in verse. To such men as these, music could never be an art—it was a form of speech.

During the reign of David there are everywhere signs of a musical renaissance and for the first time the conception of music as an art began to appear. It was during his reign that the Levites were organized as singers for the Temple services. David himself composed many of the tunes to which his Psalms were sung. And the Psalms, those most wonderful of hymns, have been the voice of the church in all ages.

Then years later, while the Roman Empire was the ruling power in the affairs of men and the growth of Christianity had begun, Christians were persecuted, despised, and compelled to hold their meetings in secret. Consequently, there was little opportunity for the use of music, yet amid these dangers it was used and was a means of consolation to these devout disciples as well as a means of voicing their praise.

Christianity triumphed over Paganism, however, and we find the mention of music in the New Testament. We know that after partaking of the last supper, Jesus and the eleven disciples sang a hymn, probably a Psalm.

Paul counseled his converts: "Let the words of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another with Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts unto God." The great symbolic pictures of heaven have been filled with music which is not merely a means of worship but the "incarnation of that harmonious living, that spiritual oneness with Jesus which makes melody with its heart to the Lord." Such is the ideal and aim of worship in music and song.

Music has the power to purify the life of individuals and vitally affect the character of children. And when people or choir directors give no thought to what is sung and why it is sung, I say it is irreverent toward God and wrong to man. Worship and music have always been closely associated. In those periods when religion has flourished best, men have sung most. Without music worship has seemed imperfect if not impossible. Churches, both large and small, are coming more and more to realize that religion without worship is like life without a goal.

Music serves a further purpose in the church, in that it tends to attract large numbers of people who are not only soothed but deeply inspired and stirred by great music.

Even pure music apart from speech, that is, without words, has its gracious ministry. Pure music, then, is full of religious suggestion and inspiration. The prelude to public worship, which is rarely heeded, is an example of pure music. The prelude should help to set the tone and beget the mood of the hour and so to prepare the mind for the preacher's message. This means that there must be the closest cooperation between the minister and the director of music. The purpose of the prelude, then, is to rid the mind of clattering particulars and thus aid in organizing a discordant crowd into a worshiping unit. In the same way, the offertory and postlude may and should be religiously helpful, not mere adornments to the service, but intrinsic parts of a service of prayer and of praise.

But it is when associated with words that music becomes most effective. To make the hymns of the church is to shape the faith of the church. In all ages, hymns have been the prayers, the spiritual food, the creeds, and the weapons of the saints. Motives and ideals can be expressed with winning power through song.

Too many of the hymns now used in churches and Sunday Schools are mere wretched jingles and when people, children especially, are asked to sing these they lose their respect for the church and their training in worship is harmed more than it is helped.

Hymns used by various departments of the church should be chosen with care in regard to the purpose or ideal of the department. For instance, the hymn, "There Is a Fountain Filled With Blood," would have no place in a children's service. No doubt that hymn has been used by adults with benefit but to the mind of a child a hymn like that becomes a riddle. Children's hymns must be good for children. They should be marked by simplicity.

Hymns should be true to life. To give out in the springtime hymns about "barren lands," reaping time," and others is to train people that while they must never lie in ordinary conversation it makes no difference what they sing.

A real test of a good hymn is the character of the music. Unfortunately, the market is full of cheap, tawdry tunes that appeal to the feet rather than to the head. The fact that people love to sing them is no proof of their value for religion. "We have such good singing," various Sunday Schools and churches report, but, we wonder, good for what? Is it good only for the physical animation created, or is it good for religious expression and impression? The rhythm of any ideal hymn may be well marked and vigorous, but it should be kept free from all irreverent associations. Rag time, or its religious equivalent, should be barred from the church. "Jazzy" tunes have no place in worship and to hear people say that they can worship through the singing of the cheap songs, which so many churches buy from publishing houses, is to cast a shadow of doubt on that person's religion. It is amazing just how many churches spend money each year to buy song books which contain tunes that sound as if they might have been written for the ballroom. None can worship by sitting in church and singing a hymn that sounds like a one-step, and it is up to the leaders of music in the churches to abolish all those tunes which any of us could dance by.

There are a great number of good hymn books now which have come from the press with the hearty approval of ministers, religious educators, and from anybody who is anxious to praise and thank God through well-written and meaningful hymns. So I warn any church against some of the musical literature which may well be called irreverent trash in which some publishing houses indulge.

The leadership of worship in music is a vastly important task. The director of music should be an earnest Christian, gifted with musical taste and religious appreciation, whose presence and manner fit him naturally to lead. He should know the best method of leadership which includes a knowledge of the best hymns and classification of these so that each song may be used effectively; but a good leader is positively forbidden the privilege of giving forth cutting remarks or an ill-timed joke. A most important matter will be his wisdom in the selection of the hymns. Here, a good leader must be able to utter and enforce the main thought of the service, maintaining harmony in variety.

Care should be taken to see that the first hymn is familiar so that all will be at home in it, and yet it should strike the keynote of the service. Everybody can sing hymns like "How Firm a Foundation," Holy, Holy, Holy," "Faith of Our Fathers," and "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," and everybody can sing them sincerely. What better hymn could be chosen to open a service than "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," or "Come, Thou Almighty King?" There are many other familiar hymns of praise and adoration that rank with these.

Quieter hymns may find a place in the body of the service—those hymns which give forth the spirit of consecration or devotion. Hymns that express a vigorous and wholesome reaction to the thought of the hour may be used at the close. In other words use hymns that will cause the congregation to want to go out and do service for Him of whom they sing. Let the closing thought of the service, which is usually in hymns, be a good thought and one that inspires and uplifts.

Many of our greatest hymns are fervent prayers. Here are the hymns: "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," "Abide With Me," (which cannot be surpassed as an evening prayer), "Have Thine Own Way," and "Take My Life and Let It Be," which often express our souls' sincere desire, if sung prayerfully, much better than any of us could ever put those thoughts into original prayers.

I am suggesting another prayer hymn, one written by the beloved Fanny J. Crosby: "Pass Me Not." The story is told of a young man who was converted by hearing this song sung by a group. One evening, as the boat, on which this young man was working, passed another boat, he heard a group singing, "While on others thou art calling, do not pass me by." After hearing this, the young man wondered what would happen if the Lord should pass him by. A few moments of silent deep thinking and waiting and the young man knelt in prayer and dedicated his life to the Master.

It is time that leaders realize that the usual musical program, carelessly selected at the last minute with no clearly defined purpose, is a confession of weakness that borders on the sinful.

In announcing the hymns a knowledge of the lives of the authors will be very useful. Merely to give out the number is a very dull and ineffective method. When the announcement of a hymn is given it is well to give the name of the hymn as well as number. For instance, an audience pays more attention to the announcement, "Let us sing the hymn, 'Trust and Obey,' No. 56," than they do to the announcement, "Song No. 56."

A point of great importance is the pause between stanzas. Some pianists do not pause at all but require their singers immediately to pick up the next verse. This makes for breathlessness on the part of the singers. I have discovered that to insert exactly four beats between verses, four beats regardless of where the stanza may end, is entirely satisfactory. The singers then start on every verse in exactly the same manner.

Teachers in Sunday Schools and leaders of various departments of the church can play a rare part in helping to bring about a more intelligent appreciation of hymns. To fail to sing, to look about and whisper, to busy oneself with the offering or lesson papers during a hymn is gross and costly irreverence. No person, who does these things persistently, should be permitted to teach or lead.

Each service of worship should aim to create and maintain such a spiritual atmosphere that each scholar of the Sunday School or member of

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

THE THRILL OF THINKING.

Yesterday and today (Sunday) Miss Lucy Eldredge and Miss Priscilla Chase have been here helping me to think. Guess I was a bit behind with my thinking. It was thrilling to sit here in Waverly, Va., and think of people and things all over the country, and the world. Names of people and places from Maine to Florida, were mentioned and memory brought back familiar faces and lovely places. Oh, the joy of being able to think.

There was Edward Dubois, from down in Florida, where sunshine and sea breezes banish fear of cold, and I recalled how beautifully he led that opening vesper service on the Elon campus last summer. Of course, Florida meant Pattie Lee Coghill, also, and her smile means happiness to thousands of people all over the Southland. What a wonderful privilege to remember those who have brought us happiness!

As we sat here, in a comfortable little office, thinking together, the three of us mentioned above, young people who have been called from our old homes to travel and work for the church, we dared believe that our thinking might be of value to you who live in many sections of the country. We seemed to feel that, if we could think aright, something good might come to many of our friends here and there and that others who know us not might be made happy also. What a thrill to think!

Plans for a summer school at Elon College were outlined in detail, and many other plans discussed. Who knows, it may happen that our thinking here will make possible a new vision to dozens of boys and girls who will go for the first time to a training school, conference, or other meeting of youth. Let us hope so. Somebody planned for us, somebody thought for us; yes, God, himself, thought for us, and does. Our ability to think shows our kinship with God, and separates us from other animals. How thrilling to think. Try it.

SUFFOLK TRAINING SCHOOL.

Records for the leadership training school held at Norfolk, Va., last week, show that Rev. W. M. Jay gave credit on the Study of the Pupil to Mrs. I. W. Johnson and Marguerite Richardson, of Suffolk; Elizabeth Sharpe, Theresa Maul, and Elizabeth Harris, of Waverly. Miss Chase rewarded Mrs. Holland Ballard and Mrs. C. C. Rawles with credit on Junior Materials and Methods.

Mrs. C. T. Everett and Mrs. Herbert Harrell, of Driver, received credit on Worship, as taught by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle. Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, Misses Lottie Mae Cross and Susie I. Powell, and Robert Speight received credit from Miss Lucy Eldredge for work done on Materials and Methods of Young People's Work. It was my pleasure to award credit for work done on the New Testament to Miss Elsie Darden, of the Oakland Church, and to Mrs. F. C. Copeland, Mrs. B. D. Crocker, Mrs. Lewis G. Brothers, Mrs. G. H. Howell, and Mrs. G. E. Rogers, of the Suffolk Church.

As many as sixty people were present at the time for this school. Many came as visitors for one or more times. The attendance, the type of work and the number of credits given indicate that this first attempt of the Suffolk Church to hold a leadership training school was very successful, and those present voted unanimously for such a school next year.

Dr. N. G. Newman, of Holland, brought a fine message for the commencement the closing night (Friday). Miss Lucy Eldredge delighted the school with the charming way she led the worship services each evening. These special features were both educational and inspiringly devotional. The group went away with the feeling that they were a bit better prepared to sing the chorus of the challenging song used by our youth this year entitled, "Are Ye Able?" Join with us in that chorus:

"Lord, we are able, our spirits are thine,
Remould them, make us, like thee, divine.
Thy guiding radiance above us shall be
A beacon to God, to faith and loyalty."

THE CHRISTMAS CONFERENCE.

For the past two years there has been held at Elon College a Christmas Conference of young people of the South. Out of these conferences has grown the Youth Fellowship of the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches. The organization has been set up and is now functioning. Hence, one feels safe in saying that this Christmas Conference has been successful.

For several more years the youth representing Christian Churches of the North have met at Dayton, Ohio, and later at Defiance, Ohio. Out of these conferences have come Youth Congresses for many of our conferences, plans for the work of young people, a chart showing things to be done on the Christian Quest, and dozens of other important things. The young people of our churches are much richer because certain leaders have gathered in these conferences to study together, under the leadership of the Spirit of Christ, methods of work for the youth of our churches.

It is thought by some that for this year leaders of the South should meet with the national group at Defiance, Ohio, on December 28th to 31st. In this way plans can be unified and the work for the entire church planned. We, of the South, can have a conference at a later date, if so desired. I shall be glad to know at once what others think about this idea. Write me a note giving your opinion. And if you think that you might be able to go to Defiance, do not hesitate to say so. Think fast, and write me at once. Thank you!

I THANK MY GOD.

Because in tender majesty,
Thou cam'st to earth, nor stayed till we Poor sinners stumbled up to thee,
I thank my God.

Because the Saviour of us all
Lay with the cattle in their stall,
Because the Great comes to the small,
I thank my God.

Because upon a mother's breast,
The Lord of Life was laid to rest,
And was of Babes the loveliest,
I thank my God.

Because the Eternal Infinite,
Was once that naked little mite,
Because, O Love, of Christmas night,
I thank my God.

—G. A. Stuttert-Kennedy.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 4, 1932.

"How Can We Work for Christian Unity?"—
John 17:18-23; I. Cor. 3:6-8.

This would be a good time to get some one from a nearby church of another denomination to lead the service, or at least to speak on the topic. Or better still, why not invite the youth group from another church to share in this meeting?

Use hymns written by people of various denominations and show how we sing the Methodist hymns of the Wesleys, the Lutheran, Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational, and even Catholic hymns. In our poetry and music we are all much the same.

It might be well to point out that all denominations go to the same Scriptures for guidance in living. There is no denominational Bible.

In answer to the question of the topic it may be shown that we can work for Christian unity by:

First, facing frankly the things in which we agree and differ. On most of the important matters we agree. We believe in the same God and Christ, we use the same Bible, we make similar prayers, we sing the same hymns, we are interested in the same things such as making better people, and we hope to spend eternity in the same happy place. Only in the minor matters do we differ.

Secondly, bring together for social occasions, religious worship, and common tasks people from different denominations. It is surprising how much we appear to be alike when we get together. Forget all about the differences, and share experiences as Christians.

Thirdly, read and distribute literature on Christian unity. Do not forget that some of the most valuable literature is found in the Bible, part of which is listed for this meeting.

Fourthly, talk in favor of Christian unity whenever there is opportunity. Show by conversation that you believe that other peoples are Christian as well as your own church group.

Fifthly, consider the many things that can be done better through group effort than individually; by united effort than by small church efforts. Many communities have several small churches that should have one large, capable, successful church. Think how much more could be accomplished by the larger group, and then let others know what you discover for yourself.

Finally, study the prayer of Jesus until you can pray with him for a united church.

WHEN DIFFICULTIES DON'T COUNT.

There are times when difficulties don't count. With some people, difficulties mean only opportunities. The brother of Jesus wrote a letter once in which he said. "Count it all joy when you fall into all kinds of temptations." It's a little hard to do, isn't it? But it's lots of fun. Why shouldn't we be happy when there are mountains to climb, difficulties to face, and temptations to overcome? That is the way we try our mettle, our character, and in overcoming we find fellowship with the Young Man who did make difficulties a stepping-stone to success.

Miss Margaret Slattery tells the story of a lad in Russia who had the big idea. She noticed that his shoes were badly worn and asked if he could get them mended. He informed her that he could when his turn came, which would be about November—it was then summer. She offered sympathy because he would have to wait so long, when he needed shoes so badly. The lad straightened himself up and said, "What are shoes when one is helping to build a world?"

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

LIVING WITH PEOPLE OF OTHER RACES.

LESSON X—DECEMBER 4, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons."—Acts 10:34.

LESSON TEXT: John 4:5-10; Acts 10:30-35.

The problem of living with the people of other races is becoming quite a practical one. Even in the South where we have the lowest percentage of foreign-born people, we are having people of other nationalities constantly and in increasing numbers coming into our communities. And of course there is our problem of living with the negro race. This lesson, then, has a practical bearing upon our lives if we think only in terms of our local community.

But there is the larger aspect of this problem, which has come about because the world is constantly becoming a closely-knit neighborhood. Modern transportation, modern means of communication, travel, interchange of students, international organizations, and many other factors have brought the peoples of other races into close contact with us, and this will be increasingly true in the years to come. More and more we are going to have to learn to live with people of other races. The world is not big enough any more for nations or races which cannot get along with each other.

A Jew and a Samaritan.

"Then cometh he to a city of Samaria." Jesus was not like many Jews. They hated the Samaritans so bitterly that they would not even pass through their country, but would instead go away out of their way to avoid any contact with these hated "dogs" as they called them. Alas, the strange and inconsistent and indefensible things so many of us do because of our racial prejudices.

"Now Jacob's well was there." The Master was on historic and sacred ground. He must have had strange emotions as he sat at the place where the father of Israel had lived and labored and loved.

"Jesus, therefore, being wearied with his journey, sat thus on the well. And it was about the sixth hour." The Master knew what it was to be tired and hungry. He took upon him the form of a man. He lived our life in the flesh. He knows, therefore, how to sympathize with us and how to help us.

"There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water; Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink." It was not customary for a Jewish rabbi to speak to a woman. It was not customary for a Jew to speak at all to a Samaritan. How petty and sinful it all appeared to the Master, who saw folks not as members of this or that race, but as children of his heavenly Father. Back of all that Jesus said and did in this immortal incident there was his great passion to share with this woman that water of life, that living water, which alone satisfies. The woman was surprised that he, a Jew should speak to her, a woman and a Samaritan woman at that.

"Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water." Water, an absolute essential to physical life—living water, absolutely essential to spiritual life. And only the living water satisfies.

One needs to remember that it was to this woman of a hated sect and race, to this woman of immoral character—the man she was living with was not her husband, that Jesus not only spake the immortal words as recorded in John 4, but it was to her that he made the announcement that he was the Messiah. "I that speak to thee am he" (the One that should come) Let us not forget that God has revealed his truth to peoples of other races and other nations. They have unsuspected as well as unrealized capacities.

A Jew and a Roman Soldier.

Here is another strange combination. Cornelius, a Roman and a soldier. That is not, from the human standpoint, a very promising combination as concerning spiritual discernment and reception. But to this man, a Gentile and a soldier, God had spoken and revealed his truth. Cornelius' prayer had been heard—God hears the prayers of his children of other races and color of skin.

Simon Peter was having a hard time to be consistent. He was staying in Joppa at the house of a tanner. That was not the place for a good orthodox Jew to be staying. Perhaps Peter's conscience was troubling him. In any event he had a vision, a sheet full of all manner of four-footed beasts and creeping things, let down from heaven. He refused to eat on the grounds that he was very circumspect in observing the law as concerning what a Jew should eat. God told him in no unmistakable terms, that what He had cleansed, Peter was not to call unclean. The Jews thought the Gentiles were common and unclean. They looked upon them as Peter looked upon the contents of the sheet, common and unclean. God was making plain to Peter, who had interpreted the mission of Christianity as being to the Jews, that the Gentiles were included in his love and in his redemptive purpose.

"Now therefore are we all present here before God to hear all things that are commanded thee of God." Here was a prepared congregation, a prepared preacher, a prepared message. No wonder the Holy Spirit came upon them.

"I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him. Jews and Chinese and Africans and Negroes and Indians and all the peoples of the earth have just as much access to God as we white American folks have. He loves them just as much as he loves us. He demands that we treat them as our brothers and sisters in Jesus Christ. H. G. Wells was right when he said that perhaps the most terrible thing in the world is race prejudice. As Christians it should have no place in our lives. We are not superior to other peoples. We have simply had superior advantages. We are under responsibility to share with them.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

THE CONDEMNED RABBLE.

"Ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you; and killed the Prince of Life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses."—Acts 3:14, 15.

This statement is the declaration of Peter speaking to the rabble who became excited about the work of divine healing which he had performed on the lame man at the gate. This rabble had congregated and become agitated and amazed that Divine power should exist in a human being. Jesus had done such work, but they thought they had put a stop to that by crucifying him.

Peter defends Jesus and the power of the Holy Spirit, which had been given him to carry on the Saviour's work. This is presented in the fact of his spiritual presence in their midst to work such marvelous miracles. It is a marvelous sermon Peter then preaches to them exhorting them to repentance and faith and to seek forgiveness with all their souls.

"Ye have killed the Prince of Life," and demanded a murderer to go free, "and yet," he would say, "Jesus is still alive, and I am a witness to it." Doctor Moffatt interprets the words, "Prince of Life," "Pioneer of Life." Nowhere can we find where "Prince" means "Pioneer." Humanly speaking, Jesus pioneered life, all right, and of all pioneers he was the greatest.

But Peter must have meant more than that. He meant that Jesus, as well as being the Son of God, was the Son of Life that now is and that which is to come, leading man out from the depths unto the heights of glory, making them heirs and joint heirs with him to the Kingdom. He was the Prince of Life that led man into a realm called life. He said, "Better to enter into life with one eye than to be cast into all hell with two eyes." "If ye would enter into life keep the commandments." "Life is more than meat." "In him was life and the life was the light of men." "He that believeth not shall not receive life," etc.

Prayer—The Lord's Prayer.

TUESDAY.

"OUTRAGED."

"As they spake unto the people, the priests and the captains of the temple, and the sadducees, came upon them, being grieved that they taught the people . . . the resurrection from the dead . . . laid hands on them and put them in the hold (custody) until the next day."—Acts 4:1-3.

The chief word in this text is "grieved." The Bible's use of this word does not refer to sorrow, as we know it today, but it conveys the meaning of annoyance, discomfort, disturbance, outraged senses, chagrin over improper conduct.

This crowd at the temple was praising God for the astounding miracle of the presence of Jesus after his death, and for the bestowment of abundant fullness of life which before had been promised by him.

The temple bureaucrats saw nothing but disorder, a breaking down of their religion and their sense of prestige and dignity outraged. Therefore, to jail the "New Life" bunch must go.

In the course of life, it often happens that one grows prosperous and settles up (not "down") in comfort and in exalted feelings and attitudes, and looks down upon the "common horde" with aloofness. Some people, it is believed, cannot go to certain churches because of their perch on this pinnacle; cannot tolerate people in the humbler straits of life; but the fact is, these humble people may be a very good people, capable, superbly generous, faithful in the least of things and ready to give their last shirt for some one in need. How easy it may be to become the devil's advocate should one of them be caused to stumble!

Prayer—Our Father, we would be like Jesus. Show us the way. Make us like him by thy Spirit, we humbly beseech thee.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

RALLYING TO WHOM?

"Grow up into him in all things, which is the head even Christ. . . . Walk not . . . having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God."—Eph. 4:15, 18.

Scripture Lesson—Eph. 4:4-18.

The writer was visiting a large Bible class recently. Preparations were being made for a fall rally day. The president opened the class exercises and presented the business of the day. The homecoming and rally day was set and a program outlined. In the discussion, the teacher of the class informed them that he could not be present that day; to which the president replied: "What is the use of having a rally day unless we have some one to rally to? If you are not there we need not have the rally day."

The writer appreciates the importance of the presence of the teacher of a class on a rally day, and he feels that the class was quite right in desiring and arranging for that teacher to be present. But the point is that it is a serious indictment upon a Christian organization, whose only reason for existence is the glory of God, to assemble and conduct its business without even the mention of Jesus Christ in the whole business program, and to feel that because some one person could not be there, there was no one to rally to. Christ is our leader and teacher, and, with him exalted, a class could rally anytime. It is rather tragic to forget him who is the rallying point of all the ages since He was lifted up on the cross.

Prayer—Our Father, we confess to thee that it is so easy to become absorbed in our affairs and forget that thou art with us and art our leader in all things, we offer ourselves on the altar of love and consecration forthwith to keep thee in mind and make our rallying all to thee and thy glory. Amen.

THURSDAY.

REFLECTING WHAT WE ARE.

"The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid."

What one does, reflects what he is. The Wick-ersham report was dry, and yet it reflected minds in favor of repeal of some sort.

What are you? What ever you are, do not think you are fooling everybody. What one is reflects his character.

Refer to Joshua and Caleb reporting upon the Land of Canaan. They reported the land good and that the children of Israel should go up and take it. But the minority saw nothing but giants and many of them, and brought in a minority report that it would be suicide to undertake to possess that land. They had not learned yet that "They that be for us are more than they that be against us." They were willing only to play safe and let well enough alone. They were not ambitious, it seems, to accomplish great tasks for the Lord.

We heard a poetical line the other day which is appropriate here:

"Bite off more than you can chew
And chew it.
Plan more than you can do
And do it.
Hitch your wagon to a star
And keep your seat.
There you are."

Being in the realm of imagery, this philosophy does seem impossible, and yet it is encouraging and inspiring to the ambitious. All achievement is that which was just beyond one's reach, but it was achieved because one believed he might climb there. So the world advances. So may one achieve experience in God through the Holy Spirit.

Prayer—God has a promised land arranged for each of us. What a wonderful thing it would be to realize that he is having his way with us so that our lives are what he arranged for. That is the greatest need of humanity today. Well let us offer ourselves and pray for it.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

RELIGION AT HOME.

"And they departed from the presence of the council . . . and daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ."—Acts. 5:42.

The apostles had been outraged, jailed, miraculously set free, jailed again, and harassed, and yet they persisted in their mission to make Christ known to the world. Our text is a record of the way they did it: at the temple, to be sure, but they did not omit to teach ceaselessly in their homes.

Therein lies a great difference between that first church and the church of today. We have not ceased to teach and preach in the temple, but we have ceased to teach and preach the Word in the home. The price the church is paying is seen in the great non-church-going public; in empty pews; in a youth ignorant of God and his Word; in a growing atheism; and in crime, to what extent we cannot tell.

Preaching in the temple is futile in the soul unless there is teaching in the home. Home instruction and home training has been fundamental in everything ever since God first established the home in the Garden of Eden. Here is the secret of creative increasing Christianity in humanity—teaching in the home. Its recovery transcends all other programs fostered by the church.

Prayer—Our Father, we are in our home today, and now we are at our home altar worshipping thee and looking to thee for the things we need. Give us vision, Holy Spirit, instruction, and everything we need to teach our children Jesus, and train them for service. In his name we ask it.—Amen.

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE FORCE OF THE FIRST PSALM.

By REV. JOHN G. TRUITT.

"The Lord knoweth the way of the righteous."—Psalm 1:6.

The force of this psalm is on principles, not persons. It mentions persons in applying the principles, showing the rightness and wrongness of their choices. Great principles, like wide-open roads, run through this Psalm. "Way," is the word used. And immediately we are set to thinking of the narrow way, and the broad way. And we soon recognize that the narrow way is the best way, and that the broad way is the impoverished way—poor and narrow after all.

Three phrases stand out in the first verse: "The counsel of the ungodly," "the way of sinners," "the seat of the scornful." There they are: Counsel, way, seat. The counsel of the ungodly leads to destruction; the way of sinners is a way of walking that one must avoid; and the seat of the cynic is not a throne by any manner of means!

There are ears to which it seems that evil counsel appeals. Paul calls them "itching ears." He says the time will come when people will decide what they want to hear, and having itching ears for that kind of thing, will "heap to themselves teachers" who will teach as they want to hear! Such, then, is the "counsel of the ungodly." You can find it on any worth-while subject. There are those, for instance, who can wax enthusiastic on what they call the evils of prohibition. Great counsel they give. Telling how to bring prosperity to the land, and peace to the home—beautiful words they are to conjure with; but, "blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly." It hath been said that good advice does not cost anything, but I tell you that good advice is the blood-bought, struggle-won, hard-earned summing-up of the experience of the ages and if it is good it costs somebody something somewhere.

There is the "counsel of the ungodly" on the subject of missions; or the matter of giving to the church; or the subject of prayer; or keeping the Sabbath day; or the sanctity of the marriage vows; or the right of races; and the trustworthiness of international treaties. People oftentimes decide what they think on those matters and find teachers, orators, speakers, counselors, who bring them their own desired doctrines. And all too often the crowds follow that counsel with their mob-like cry: "Crucify him, crucify him" not realizing that they are walking in the counsel of the ungodly.

Next there is that phase, "the way of sinners." In Proverbs that way is said to be a "hard" way. That does not mean that it is a road that is travelled easily because it has a hard surface. It means that that way is laden with pain, agony, sickness of the soul, destruction, and death. The crowds entering that road may be young, beautiful, laughing, unthinking, interspersed with their elders, and sometimes the youths; and they may seem to think that those traveling any other road are but missing the way; but sooner or later, they are going to begin finding the road "hard". Peter puts it thus: "Sporting themselves with their own deceivings . . . that cannot cease from sin; beguiling unstable souls; . . . which have forsaken the right way, and are going astray, following the way of Balaam, the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness; but was rebuked for his iniquity."

Then there is that phase: "seat of the scornful." That is the sneer that has snowed under many a good soul, and frost-bitten full many young plant of holy endeavour. It keeps the young from undertaking a Christian service, and side-tracks the old from Christian duty. You cannot refute a sneer. It has no throat that you can throttle. It is a smile, degenerated into a smirk; it is the sword of the cynic. "Blessed is the man that sitteth not in the seat of the scornful."

Now let us read the first and second verses together. How they make the truth shine! "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in His law doth he meditate day and night." Let us try to paraphrase it so as to bring out the meaning in it: "The blessed man is never side-tracked by the counsel of the ungodly, is never found on the sinner's road, is never seen in the scorner's seat, but the blessed man in searching for his opposite for each of these three things turns to the Word of God; and therefore the counsel that he delights in is found in the Law of the Lord, the way that he delights in is found in the Scriptures, or now in the New Testament (I am the Way, etc.), and the seat that he delights in is the Father's Throne (To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am sit down with My Father in His throne).

In other words, take your choice, among good folks, or evil folks. Be thoughtful, and constant in your endeavour to find God's way and will for you in His law. In His law meditate day and night. Let the mob do its marching, and the sinners find their way, but take thou time to be holy. "Be still (and meditate), and know that I am God." Counsel multiplies. You will find it in all sorts of places—places of amusement, places of learning, lodge hall, theater, public platform, school and printed page; but one of the best places in all the world to find it is in God's Word at the place of prayer. Jesus sought it there, and he sought well.

In the third verse we find that the Godly man shall be alive, growing, fruitbearing, neverthirsting, neverdying, ever-prospering. And on the other hand in verse four the ungodly shall be dead, finished, lifeless, light, wind-driven, unable (verse five) to stand either before God or in the presence of good people. Why? Verse six. Right principles are established in the wisdom and the knowledge of God, and the way of the ungodly is a perishing way.

Have you ever noticed, as I said in the outset, that the main force of this psalm is on principles rather than persons. In verse six notice that it is the "way" that is "known"; and that it is the "way" that shall perish. If the "way" perishes, what will happen to the people on it? Here is a road laid by ants on a newspaper in my back yard. In burning some trash, the newspaper, ant-road and all, goes up in flames. Their way has perished. Here is a caravan crossing a frozen lake, when they are yet far from land and beneath them the water is very deep, the ice gives way and goes out from under them. Beasts of burden and people alike were lost. Their way has perished. Here is a caravan crossing a frozen way was a perishing one. "He looked for a city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

When the Psalmist speaks here of a "way" that perishes it makes me think of a verse in the New Testament: "By a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us." That way was consecrated by his death upon the cross for us. It is a way that never perishes. The way itself is alive. Automatically repaired, and never grows old. Upon that way is found peace, and joy forevermore. The prophet Isaiah foresaw it: "And an highway shall be there, and a way, and its hall be called the Way of Holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those (the clean): the wayfaring one, though a fool, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there, and the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs, and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

When you read this letter in your CHRISTIAN SUN on Thanksgiving Day, perhaps you will have a good turkey dinner in store for you. When you and your family gather around your table filled with good things to eat, we hope you will have a real happy day. The happiest institution in all the world is a happy Christian home, where God is first and love reigns supreme.

We wish all homes could be happy homes, but unfortunately misfortunes visit some homes and they are broken. Death visits homes and removes father and mother, and little children are left without a home. Their lives are denied a father's protection and a mother's love. Then the opportunity comes to all Christian people to come to the rescue of the fatherless and help to give them a happy home and a chance in life.

While we are feasting on good things to eat on Thanksgiving Day, and enjoying it, let us take stock of the good deeds we have done during the year, and see just what we have contributed to assist our Christian Orphanage to carry on its work of love and charity.

May it be said that you had thought of the little fellows who are without father and mother "just set adrift to find what harbor they may on the restless sea of human endeavor."

Have you felt that abiding peace of conscience that naturally comes to you when you render service to others? Did you ever feel the thrill and warmth of heart that comes when the weak hand of the little child snuggles into yours on a dark night or in a strange place? Did you realize how much comfort it brought to the little child, and how secure it felt?

Your Orphanage took in a little child some time ago, and the house mother had to pull its little bed up by the side of hers, and let it put its hand in hers before it would go to sleep.

Your Orphanage is doing its best to give these little children a happy home. We want to appeal to you at this Thanksgiving season to open your hearts and give as never before, that your Orphanage may carry on. You may have to sacrifice. You may have to do without something you really want to help; but don't you think you can afford it?

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches x 3/4 inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.
It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.
The size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.
In size, 3 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer binding.

the wave lengths and power limits assigned it, so that it will not interfere with other stations.

If we think this is magnificent, if it passes our understanding, what do we think of the Central Knowledge of the universe, of that Power who sees all and knows all and communicates with all and controls the destinies of all? If we can not understand how this mysterious influence can enter every home on the viewless air, and speak to every ear at once, and present scenes to every eye, let us remember that radio is only one of the endless creations of our God, and let us wonder and adore.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, thou art very great. Thou art omnipotence and omniscience. We can not comprehend the least of thy powers. But, blessed be thy name, thou dost condescend to be our Father, and thou dost love us.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

SURE RESULTS.

"Can a man take fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned? Or can one walk upon hot coals, and his feet not be scorched?"—Read Prov. 6:27-28.

Solomon's thought applies to any sin. As surely as fire burns, sin destroys. As surely as fire tortures, sin produces misery. While sin remains sin, it is a deadly menace, and the only way to get rid of the menace is to get rid of the sin.

No one is safe against sin till he begins to hate it, and the way to hate sin is to love Jesus Christ, the Saviour from sin. The way to love Jesus Christ is to learn about him, to dwell on his words, to commune with him, and to obey him. Such a great thing as the love of Jesus Christ is not to be gained without some thought and labor; nothing good is won without pains; least of all, the supreme good.

Prayer—O Christ, dwell in our bosoms by thy Holy Spirit, and no coals of sin will be there. For all is safe, and all is strong, and all is happy, with thee.—Amen.

IDEAL CHURCH MUSIC.

the congregation will realize that presence of God and have conscious communion with God.

Variety secures interest. Hymns may be sung by the school, by classes or departments, or as solos.

Learn, or try at least, four new hymns each month. Not how loud, but how well sung, should be the keynote of music.

And so, as we strive to get that sense of divinity, gravity, and orderliness which should be associated with divine worship, let us not fail to worship God in spirit and in truth.

Roanoke, Ala.

LANETT, ALABAMA.

I am becoming better acquainted with our people, and the needs of our church at Lanett, Ala. Rev. J. D. Dollar, the man of God whom I succeed, has done a great work here, and the people love and honor him.

But there is still a great work to be done here for the glory of our Lord. In this beautiful city we have six to eight thousand people. We have in our church some 325 members. If all of them would unite in the service of the Lord, it would be easy to put the program over.

However, we have the faithful few who may be depended upon for everything. We have a faithful band of women who are doing a wonderful work for the church. They are constantly doing things for the church and the kingdom. They are faithful to the prayer meetings, and to the Missionary Society. They secured for their treasury nearly $10.00 last Saturday from the sale of Brunswick Stew with many orders unfilled.

It is an inspiration to see those good women work. If our men could be induced to undertake for God and the church as do the women, the church would be no beggar. All of its obligations would be met and its bills would be paid.

A representative of Southern Union College will be with us next Sunday. The college has a campaign on for food and feedstuff which is meeting with favor of most of our people and churches.

This will be a fine way for the college to stand up under the depression. If the needs of the college can be met, then all money collected may be used for purposes other than buying food. We hope to have a good day and be able to make a creditable contribution to the needs of the college.

G. D. HUNT, Pastor.

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Therefore, be it resolved:

That we may be drawn closer to God by the entrance into his heavenly home of our friend and spiritual adviser.

That we seek to emulate his noble example, and keep before us as a tower of strength, loyalty and devotion to humanity and to Christ and his kingdom in the earth, the life of this great man.

That our heavenly Father remain always with his loved ones and give them the sustaining grace that characterized the life of their sainted father.

Old Irish Custom Broken.—

A custom that has persisted since time ancient, has been the going to London of a newly appointed governor general of Ireland, that he might kiss the king's hand in acknowledgement of his appointment. But things change, and we are told that this time the new governor general of the Irish Free State, Donal Buckley, expects to have his commission sent to Dublin by mail. More practical, perhaps, yet just another breakdown in the personal touch that is after all so important.

Selenium Comes Down to Earth.—

Selenium, non-metallic chemical element, which varies greatly in electrical resistance under the effect of light and heat, and which has among many other scientific uses been employed in transmitting photographs by wire, has come down to earth. It has been found that it can be used most effectively in the making of a liquid spray to kill red spiders. The red spider is said to attack no less than 183 different species of plant life, including house plants, flowers, fruit trees and evergreens. The farmer, home gardener and lover of flowers will no doubt welcome "selenium" to their vocabulary.

"Try Religion."—

During the next three months an evangelistic campaign is to be put on throughout the entire country by the Salvation Army, in which the campaign cry will be, "Try Religion." The commander of the army in the United States, Evangeline Booth, speaking in reference to the campaign has this to say: "We believe that the economic situation of the last two years has caused many to consider their spiritual condition. During the period of prosperity, we maintained our churches and our preachers, but I am afraid that many of us forgot our spiritual obligations. We hope that our blessed efforts will be successful in inducing many such people to return to the faith of our fathers. Men have tried many other things, and in vain. Why not 'Try Religion'?"

Temple to Emperor Augustus Still Stands.—

"It is in Angora, capital of Turkey," says Dr. William T. Ellis, famous writer on religious and kindred subjects, "that there still stands the only remaining Temple of Augustus, the deified Roman Emperor who ruled the world when Jesus was born in Bethlehem. On the walls of that temple may still be read the emperor's own story of his achievements, including—what is nowhere else found—a record of the census that caused Joseph and Mary to leave Nazareth for Bethlehem. This is an overpowering corroboration of St. Luke's long-disputed Gospel record. Incidentally, the inscription makes clear that we are now living in the year 1930 A. D." According to the chronological notes given in our Bibles, we are living in the year 1935. The wonder is that, with such sparse facilities for preserving history as was then known in Judea, that we have our records as near right as they are. There will hardly be an attempt by calendar reformers to skip the number of years necessary to bring us right.

Peanut Pickets Threatened.—

On Tuesday of this week, protesting peanut growers met in Chowan College auditorium, at Murfreesboro, N. C., to develop a plan for the orderly marketing of the present year's crop of peanuts. Heretofore, united effort on the part of peanut growers has failed to materialize because of the refusal of large numbers of planters to cooperate, but present prices, reaching an all-time low, may force cooperation. At a meeting held at Scotland Neck, it was seriously proposed that a march on Washington be organized to bring to national attention the predicament of the peanut belt. Stringent picketing of the roads to check movement of the crop was also advocated. Calmer counsel prevailed, however, and if the majority of the growers can be enlisted, there will be a central committee appointed to work out marketing plans, or, at the very least, preventing any further decline. Nothing can be gained by violence, but vast improvement can be made in farming conditions, if the farmer can be induced to use his head in marketing as well as he uses his hands in crop production.

Football Fatalities Number Thirty-Seven.—

The associated news services tell us that the casualties of the football season were light this year when placed upon a percentage basis, but thirty-seven is entirely too great a number to give their lives on the altar of the god of football. So great were casualties last year that new rules were passed last spring to ward off a repetition of those figures. We are told that they seem to have been most successfully put into practice in the colleges, only five having died of injuries received on these teams. The other thirty-two lost their lives either in preparatory schools or sand lot teams. In organized professional football, where the game is still played under the old rules as to the "dead ball," and where flying tackles and blocks are still allowed, there were no fatal or even serious injuries. Football is a fine game, but the question arises as to whether or not there is not too much emphasis being placed upon football in our colleges, to the detriment of a well-rounded athletic program which would care for the entire student body. A football coach certainly seems more essential to the running of a college today than does a professor of Latin, or Greek, or mathematics.

Sterling Reaches All-Time Low.—

While the king of England discusses the British war debt with Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, and Ramsey MacDonald, prime minister, continued his conferences with cabinet members in an effort to conclude a new note requesting extension of the December 15th payment, the pound sterling slumped to a new all-time low level of $3.17. There seems to be small chance of postponement of these payments, unless there is a radical change of sentiment in congress. On the other hand we fully realize that there is no possible way of forcing collection if the debtor nations choose to default. Possibly the best suggestion that has been made is that we allow a credit on war debts contingent upon further reductions in armaments. We would thus save vast expenditures ourselves, and at the same time enable the other nations to place themselves in better financial condition. Another suggestion which would probably help the unemployment situation here, would be to allow a certain percentage of all purchases from this country to be applied as a credit on the war debts.

"Prosperity Can Never be Purchased by Beer"—

In its first official expression on the subject of prohibition since the presidential election, the Methodist Episcopal Board of Bishops reaffirmed the church's position and declared that "prosperity can never be purchased by beer." The bishops in their final session stated that the present congress "has repeatedly by its vote shown itself dry," and called on the congress to "stand by its adherence to the Constitution and its enforcing laws." Their statement said further: "No new arguments in favor of alcohol and its traffic have been presented recently. All the substitutes proposed for prohibition have been tried during the centuries, and all have proved ineffective to curb the evils of this narcotic poison." The statement noted that "the recent election did not change the Constitution or any national law," and asserted that "until laws are changed by the orderly legal processes, public officials are now under obligation to be guided by them and should remember their oath of office." Meanwhile we are told that Mr. Roosevelt's "first objective" after he becomes president is to have congress pass a beer bill, and, with vital world problems crying for wise solution, the chief concern of Democratic political leaders seems to be an enthusiastic speculation as to how soon the country can be driven to repudiate prohibition and return to the "happy days" when men had good jobs and made good wages, but spent the most of it in the saloon. We are already having striking intimations of what it will mean to return to those horrid conditions.—Methodist Protestant-Recorder.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

President L. E. Smith, of Elon College, is in New Orleans attending the Southern Association of Colleges. He is to return to Elon Sunday.

On account of the crowded condition of THE SUN this week, the list of subscribers who have paid during the month of November will appear in next week's issue.

Peloubet's Notes and Tarbell's Teachers' Guide may be obtained from the office of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, in Richmond, for $1.90 net, or $2.00 per copy postpaid. Send your order at once.

Dr. Wm. James Campbell, president, Atlanta Foundation, School of Religion, Vanderbilt University, was the minister to the 11 o'clock service, Elon College, Sunday, November 27th, and was heard with great gladness and profit by the faculty, students and community.

Rev. Elisha Bradshaw, Walters, Va., has been called to, and accepted, the pastorate of Mt. Carmel Church for the coming year. Thus a great opportunity and a high privilege comes to Bro. Bradshaw, since Mt. Carmel is one of our good churches and a community of many young people.

The Holy Scriptures have been translated into 924 different languages and dialects in its steady march through and around the world. It remains yet "the best seller," and the most popular book ever published and, though centuries old, the demand for it grows not less, but greater each year.

Dr. William T. Morgan, pastor of Independent Congregational Church, of Birmingham, has conducted special evangelistic services at Liberty Church, East Tallassee, and delivered two addresses at the Christian life Conference at Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala., since the Alabama State Conference.

The Christian and Congregational women of Alabama have had two meetings in common recently. The first was at the Alabama Women's Missionary Conference at Wadley, and the second at the Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches at Mt. Olive Church, Tallassee. Mrs. P. L. Beaird and Mrs. E. W. Butler were the presidents of the two women's groups.

Rev. J. D. Dollar, who has served faithfully and effectually as pastor of our church at Lanett, Ala., has moved to Roanoke, Ala., and becomes the pastor of several rural churches, about which he writes in THE SUN this week. Bro. Dollar is one of our most beloved pastors, and we predict for him a great and good year in the field to which he has been called, and which is not new to him.

Rev. George W. Blount, who is a bachelor, and has been the effective pastor of Union Church, Chattanooga, returned to Wilson, N. C., to be near his widowed mother. The Tennessee Conference volunteered a letter of appreciation and commendation when they gave him his ministerial transfer. At his farewell service, addresses of appreciation were made by Drs. M. S. Freeman, C. Rexford Raymond, and by the Conference superintendent.

Snowden's Sunday School Lessons for 1933, published by the Macmillan Company, is as good as ever. We believe that it is hardly necessary to say anything further to those who have been using this superb little volume. Dr. Snowden is an attention-getting writer, and in his Sunday School notes he is at his best. Certainly every teacher of the International Lesson should have the benefit of his helps. Send to THE SUN office for your copy. The price is only $1.35.

The Seminars on Worship, which were given by Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, as he traveled in the Southeast with Dr. Knighton Bloom, were helpful contributions to the church life. While Dr. Fagley emphasized order and neatness and quiet, and recommended the use of flowers and white linen in the churches, he did not make worship dependent upon furniture, millinery, church windows, or pews, or dim religious light. Worship with him is a seeking of God. People do not have to conform to forms of worship. He was so full of his subject that he did not need to repeat himself.

The seventh annual issue of "Doran's Ministers' Manual" has been recently published by Round Table Press, Inc. Compiled by Dr. G. B. F. Hallock, D. D., it contains a well-nigh inexhaustible fund of ideas for every service of the year. It contains among other things: 106 sermon outlines, 53 sermons for children, 53 talks on the Sunday School lesson, 500 illustrations, quotable poems, prayers, and mid-week prayer meeting topics. The price of the volume is only $2.50, and to quote one of our own ministers: "It is more than well worth the price." Send check or money order to THE SUN office in Richmond, and you will be supplied with a copy immediately. We might suggest to laymen that there is no more appropriate Christmas gift for their minister.

The following is from the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, November 10th, by Dr. Frederick L. Fagley: "The visit to Elon College was an event long to cherish in memory. Here is a most complete set of college buildings, everything perfect in detail. The setting, the campus and the style of buildings, all unite to form as ideal an environment for study as could be wished. Dr. L. E. Smith, the new president, has a heavy burden of financing the school, but the work goes on. The teachers are faithful, the students keen and interested and the atmosphere one of true religion and of consecrated living. The churches of the Southern Convention of Christian Churches have carried Elon College forward by prayer and gifts. They are united now that the college shall go forward. It is in every sense a church college and the people are determined that its service to the cause shall not be lost. The Sunday services are held in the college chapel, with students and townspeople uniting in a real service of worship. In the afternoon we had a conference with students and nearby pastors, returning to Greensboro in the evening for services at Dr. Rowland's church."

The Eastern North Carolina Conference was in its annual session at Liberty (Vance), Monday, November 22nd, and until the late evening hour of November 23rd. Dr. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, presided, and was voted to continue as president; Rev. E. M. Carter assisted Prof. L. L. Vaughan, the secretary, who was absent part of the session. Bro. W. J. Ballentine, for many years the competent treasurer, was on hand gathering the money sent up from the churches for Conference and Convention purposes. With deep regret, Treasurer Ballentine was compelled to report an unprecedented decrease in the amount of money sent the Conference over that of previous years, the most striking falling off, we believe, of any of our Conferences. It was further and deeply regretted that Rev. J. Lee Johnson, one of the outstanding and most active ministers of the Conference, was not able to attend the annual sessions on account of the condition of his health. Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, added greatly to the Conference, not only with his address on Elon College, which was timely and very helpful, but with addresses on other topics, showing the wide range of his interest and his deep concern for all the enterprises of the church. One of the interesting features of the Conference was the report on the women's work by Miss Margaret Alston, a feature of this report being that the women in the fourteen Missionary Societies out of forty-eight churches of the Conference had paid in more for missions the past year than the Conference itself had paid for Conference and Convention purposes. Miss Alston is deeply interested in the Woman's Missionary work of the Conference and is exceedingly anxious that a Woman's Society be organized in the other thirty-four churches, believing that this will mean a new day for the Conference and for the churches. No Conference in its activities rises any higher than the tide and the achievement of its missionary aims and contributions. Among the outstanding events of the Conference was the ordination of two members—Rev. J. Ray Dickens, now a senior at Elon College, and Rev. Raymond T. Grissom, a former citizen of the Liberty community and a member of the Liberty Church, now in charge of our mission at Fancy Gap, Va., and also the licensure of Mr. Robert Kimball, a student in his junior year at Elon College. These three are very promising men and inspire the Conference with the hope that they will add strength and power to the activities and programs of the Conference in coming years. The Conference elected five delegates to the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches to meet at Cleveland, Ohio, in May 1933, the delegates being: Rev. R. A. Whitten, Henderson; Rev. T. Fred Wright, Sanford; and Rev. E. M. Carter, Youngsville, and two laymen: W. A. Newman, of the Henderson Church, and K. B. Johnson, of Fuquay Springs. Rev. S. E. Madren is pastor of the local church, and he and his people united in doing all within their reach to make the sessions of the Conference comfortable and successful.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference, to be held at the First Congregational-Christian Church, Newport News, Va., December 6, 1932:

- Election of officers.
- 2:40—Closing devotional period, Rev. N. G. Newman.

THE NEW INTEREST IN CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

The thought-provoking statement that "31 per cent, only, of the children in the State of Virginia attend the Sunday School, and that only 50 per cent of these attend regularly," opened the way for Rev. Minor C. Miller, general secretary of the Virginia Council of Religious Education, to make a very significant and timely address on "The New Interest in Christian Education," at the monthly meeting of the Church School Teachers and Officers of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.

Mr. Miller spoke of Christ's emphasis on teaching, and how his message changed men, revolutionized the world, nineteen hundred years ago, when he exhorted men to "Go ye, teach."

For the first two hundred years, all education in America was religious. Religion was not separated from life. The first universities were organized mainly to train church leaders. There were no Sunday Schools; religion was taught every day of the week. But as religion became divorced more and more from public education, about the time Robert Raikes began his Sunday Schools in England, the Sunday School became a part of the church program in the United States. Now, the only religious education children and young people receive is in the Sunday Schools, and what a very small proportion are actually attending this important agency of the church! And there are eighteen counties of the 100 in Virginia, where the average church attendance is less than 75.

Then Mr. Miller outlined the growth of the International Sunday School Convention, organized in 1872 with the emphasis on training leaders, traced through the development of this important organization until it became in 1922 the International Council of Religious Education with headquarters in Bridgewater, Va., which has been the official agency for linking the State work to the work of the International Council.

It is interesting to note that the Virginia Council is the only Council in the South accredited with the International Council.

The need for better Sunday Church Schools has brought about the problem of facing the situation with a new emphasis on objectives. Education must be thought of in terms of behavior, life, not in terms of certain knowledge to be acquired. Or another author speaks of education as "the entrance of control into experience," while still another says, "Education is the production and prevention of change in life," and that living based on the ideals of Jesus. How much, today, with the serious economic and social problems which the world faces is there a need for ideals which will actually determine the conduct of folks, and what ideals other than those based on the principles of Jesus will meet the need!

Mr. Miller paid a tribute to the fine old teachers who were not trained, but he also stated how different conditions are today from those during the time some of them lived.

Besides the new interest in objectives, there must be a new interest in program—that is, the curriculum, the leadership, the organization and administration, and the equipment of the church schools.

In meeting some of the needs, church school teachers and officers have today, the churches in cooperation are suggesting a motto for a two-year period: "Increase," with a new interest in promotion:

1. Increase in spiritual life.
2. Increase, in attendance, with special emphasis on home visitation.
3. Increase, in working capacity, with special emphasis on leadership training.

There are splendid helps which may be secured from Mr. Miller through the Virginia Council, which help church workers to face their local situation and seek a way out, which will help them to lead the ones they teach to more abundant living. They are as follows:

Standard "A" and "B" for the Church School.
"How to Increase Sunday School Attendance."

Mr. Miller came to the Christian Temple at the invitation of the Department of Christian Education of the Church, Miss Alma Rountree, executive secretary. Mr. Miller was introduced by Miss Ethel Hurley, director of religious education of the church, who led the worship service.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL'S SHARE.

Elon College belongs to the Christian Church—it was founded by the church and to the church in a very definite way is the responsibility for its progress and support.

It is a training school for leadership. The college has a perfect right to look to the church and all of its departments for support. The Sunday School is a very large part of any active church—it is one of the most important and productive organizations within the church. It is entirely in order that the Sunday Schools of our Convention should feel responsible for our college. By vote of the Convention, every Sunday School is asked to contribute the offering received on the fifth Sunday for the support of Elon College. The college appreciates these offerings, not simply for the value of the dollars that may be sent in, but for the words of commendation that may be given to the entire school, in behalf of the college, by the superintendent, or someone appointed to make the appeal.

In the Christian Church in North Carolina and Virginia, there are 168 Sunday Schools. At our last report, we had heard from 33 schools. During the week five more have reported, making a total of 38. Has your school sent in its fifth Sunday offering? If not, won't you please see that the offering comes in at once? We want to hear from the other 130 schools before Christmas, certainly. The following reported this week:

THE MEASURE OF A MAN.

That he shall be industrious, knowing that by industry the nation may prosper and thrive and mankind make progress.

That he shall be social, knowing that contact in life, one with another, ideas form and great things develop for the world's progress.

That he shall be intellectual, knowing that a trained mind is a part of production, and the highest enjoyment of life comes in the fullest understanding and appreciation of all creation—and the Creator.

That he shall be moral, knowing that individuals as well as nations cannot succeed on a basis of improper living.

That he shall be public spirited, knowing that no man liveth to himself and that no man dieth to himself, and that each man is his brother's keeper.

That he shall serve God, knowing that God is the Creator of all things and in him and through him man is privileged to become the best and greatest of all creatures.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

As chairman of the Committee on Evangelism of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, I am suggesting to all the ministers and churches in the Conference, that since Christmas this year comes on Sunday, that the services on that day be made intensely evangelistic, and that an opportunity for accepting the Christ, whose birth we are celebrating, as a personal Saviour, be given at the services. Also that opportunity for church membership be granted in all our churches. In this way we can celebrate the birth of our Lord in a most beautiful manner, and I believe in a way that will be most pleasing to him.

What could be more inspiring than the winning of lost ones to Christ, and presenting them to him on his birthday? So as we bring gifts on this Christmas to our friends, let's try to bring him gifts of souls, won to him by this better way of observing this greatest of all holy days.

I would like to have a report of any minister or church that may carry out the idea, as to the joy of the service, and the number of gifts of new Christians and new members thus presented to our Lord on his birthday.

Write me, as to suggestions or results, at 3507 Bainbridge Boulevard, Berkley, Norfolk, Va.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

A few weeks ago we attended a religious convention. On the evening of the first day the pastor of the church conducted the devotional service. He had three singers and a pianist. They sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul," written by Charles Wesley in 1740. After singing the first phrase, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," the minister read from John 13:1 as follows: "Having loved his own that were in the world, he loved them unto the end." Then they sang, "Let me to thy bosom fly." The minister read then from John 13:23, as follows: "There was at the table reclining in Jesus' bosom one of his disciples." Then the choir sang, "While the nearer waters roll," and the minister read from Psalm 69:2, these words: "I am come into deep waters." This method continued until the whole hymn had been sung.

Such a plan revealed the fact that every phrase of that hymn had a Biblical background. It was most effective and spiritually inspiring. At first it seemed as if such an arrangement would be very mechanical and the interruption of the singing unpleasant, but very soon we were caught by its uniqueness and its heart appeal. This and a prayer was all that was necessary for that service. The regular program followed.

The idea seems to have originated with Dr. H. Augustine Smith, professor of fine arts in religion of the Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service. Dr. Smith is, as you will recall, the editor of that almost perfect hymnal, "Hymnal for American Youth," and other musical books. His new book is called "Lyric Religion," with the sub-title, "The Romance of Immortal Hymns." (The Century Co., New York). It is a book of over 500 pages containing stories of hymns and arrangements of beautiful musical programs for church services. It is in this book that my friend, the pastor of the entertaining church, found the setting of the hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," that he used that evening. Those who use this book find it a constant source of knowledge and inspiration. Its use has enriched many a church service.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE VOICE OF THANKSGIVING.

They tell us that no other country on earth, than the United States, has a national Thanksgiving. And this is only a part of the story. There is no other holiday comparable to it, even in this country. It honors no hero, celebrates no human epoch, emphasizes no achievement of conviction or courage, and undertakes to emphasize no page or person of history. Thanksgiving with us of the United States is a national affair, in that the president of the United States, and the governors of the several states, issue a proclamation, calling upon the people to give thanks to Almighty God for his gifts through the year. It is a church or religious festival only, in that church houses and places of worship are used as convenient and suitable centers for thanksgiving and for praise.

Now one wonders if the Jews themselves, long before the Psalms were written, and while the Psalms were being collected, did not have their periods of thanksgiving and praise, for certainly no other literature in all the world voices the spirit of thanksgiving as does the literature of the book of Psalms. Certain it is that Thanksgiving and the days that follow it, are not complete without reading again and again the Psalms and the poems of the book of Psalms, that emphasize the idea that the nation, the churches and the people of our land should carry with them after Thanksgiving Day. It is a Psalm of David that sings the stanza: "That I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving all thy wondrous works." And certainly no thanksgiving hymn or utterance has ever surpassed in spirit and power the 107th Psalm, each stanza closing with the refrain: "O, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men;" and certainly no ode to thanksgiving is sweeter and more stirring than the 136th Psalm, with its twenty-six verses, each verse, however brief, closing with the words: "For his mercy endureth forever." It was of God's mercy we were thinking last Thursday when we gave thanks and it is of his mercy, of which we should ever be conscious, if the song of praise and thanksgiving is to find adequate response in our own hearts and leave its melody there. * J. THE CASE OF COLONEL ROBINS.

The only unusual incident in the loss and finding of Col. Raymond Robins was the prominence of the man. Col. Robins has a unique and most interesting history, and his name is not unfamiliar in all civilized countries. His rise from poverty to plenty, and from insignificance to fame was spectacular and unique. Being a poor miner, digging with a pick one week, the next week with a fortune in his pocket and his pick cast aside forever, he plunged, with all his might and main, into the herculean task of the social betterment and religious uplift of his fellowmen. It is doubtful if any man living as a private citizen has worked harder, and accomplished more, to bring about a sympathetic program and understanding between labor and capital, employer and employee, than has Raymond Robins. He had felt the sting of poverty, and the burden of "the man with the hoe," when overnight the comforts and the privileges of ample and satisfactory fortune were his. He knew what it was to be poor, and he knows well what it is to be rich. But as a man of wealth, he never lost sympathy for, and a deep interest in, the man of poverty and need.

Carrying the burden of unemployment upon his heart, traveling, lecturing, preaching, going in all directions where his services were demanded, or there was opportunity for helping, he broke under the strain, and through that process of psychology known as amnesia, he simply slipped from one personality and became another. Walking out of a hotel in New York, he disappears as completely as if the earth had swallowed him up, until two months later he is found in Whittier, a small mountain town of Western North Carolina. He was living under a different name and regime. He had allowed his beard to grow; he had donned overalls; he walked the mountain woods' paths, and, in a measure, had lapsed back to the habit of early days that brought him fortune when he was an adventurer, an explorer, a seeker for metals, just as he had been in the Klondyke, when he found the bag of gold that made him rich for life.

Changing personalities is no new experience. Psychologists devote pages and chapters to the treatment of amnesia, that unknown process of the mind through which a person completely loses his identity, forgets who he was and what his condition and history in life have been, and becomes entirely another person. And then psychologists teach, as they have been teaching for years, that this person may come to himself in a day or an hour, and the second personality that had been assumed, or had developed through the mental lapse, is entirely obliterated, and forgotten as the first personality had been, until the symptom of amnesia had come. Amnesia, psychologists teach, is that symptom or disease through which one person becomes another person, and further that this other person may at any time come again to be the original or first person—dual personality, in fact, as completely as if there had been two persons with two distinct memories, experiences and lives.

Dr. James, the most eminent psychologist of our century, declares that there are unexplored regions of the human mind, and all that psychologists have been able to do is to classify, describe and analyze the outward fringes of the mind wherein dwell those experiences and activities which are the common experiences of man. The most baffling field of science and human investigation is now, as it has ever been, the human mind. And this, too, is reasonable and may be understood, when it is recalled that the human mind is the field occupied at once by the finite and the infinite, the mortal and the immortal, the temporal and the eternal. Psychologists explain thought and the process of thinking, but they cannot define it. With Des Cartes, again we say, "I think, therefore, I am." The human mind is that through which I prove and am aware of my existence, but I may exist as one person today, and as another tomorrow. Through the human mind, man reaches up to God, and God reaches down to man, and in the field of mental activity, God and man "ensphere." J. O. A.

A LADY MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT SPEAKS

Lady Nancy Astor, Virginian by birth, is and has been for some years a member of the British Parliament, the only American woman ever enjoying that distinction. An observer of events, a student of politics, a woman of keen discernment and brilliant intellect, she is making a distinct contribution not only to the legislation of Great Britain, but of the world. On a visit recently to her parental home near Richmond, Va., and being sought for an interview about the recent election in the United States, she said she had to be very careful about talking, but added: "If you ask me about prohibition, I'll tell you this—if America allows Europe to dump a flood of wines and liquors into this country, you'll never solve your unemployment problem, and will be worse off than you are now." And then commenting on the results of the election, she said: "The election was not a wet victory. The vote was a protest against too much drinking under prohibition, rather than a vote for liquor. The American women will never vote for liquor; theirs was a protest vote against present conditions of enforcement."

In this brief manner our gracious lady goes to the heart of the perplexing problem of prohibition. As this paper has often said before, we have heard very little objection to or argument against prohibition per se, but against our prohibition laws, because they were not enforced. In brief, the government had failed to enforce a statute it had written on its books and, therefore, it should be abolished. It is known that Lady Astor, in the British Parliament, is an outspoken advocate of prohibition, in some form, for the British Isles, to try to help save that great people from spending millions on that which is not bread and for that which destroys rather than builds up. Legalizing and taxing beer to help the poor is but adding fire to a flame that is already burning to wide destruction. J. O. A.

WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

Before the election this journal had a great deal to say about the question of prohibition. The hope was expressed that nothing would transpire to bring back the old saloon. Somehow or other, the wish was expressed that the Eighteenth Amendment might remain unchanged. All that is history now. We do not care to discuss the why or how of the voting throughout the nation. This is not a political journal.

It is somewhat early to form an opinion or to attempt a satisfactory explanation of what the vote meant. It is, however, a sweeping victory for the so-called "wets," or it looks that way. Without doubt there will be a strong attempt made to introduce legislation calculated to make the selling of beer legal. The impression made upon some people is that the country as a whole wants beer. If beer is sold there will have to be places in which to sell it. These places may be called by any other name than "saloon." At the present writing no one knows what a year or even six months may bring forth along this line. It is not certain that the political victory is a "wet" victory. It will take some time to analyze the vote and no one will know the attitude of the American people until congress convenes. Meanwhile we will wait and think.

As churches, we are interested in the young people growing up all around us. We must protect them from the temptations and the evils of drink. If liquor is to be sold again openly to all who wish to purchase it, then the best protection for our youth is to fortify them from within. There will have to be a new method of teaching ethics that includes the drink habit. Either we will have to get out the old anti-alcohol text books, or prepare new ones. Probably we will prepare new ones. This will be the province of our Sunday School publishing societies. Doubtless the literature of the "Allied Youth Movement" will serve a good purpose. Parents will have to include counsel to the children that has in the offing the possible use of liquor. It is not to be supposed that intoxicating liquor will be any the less damaging to the blood, nerves and general deportment than it used to be. Those who knew the old order should take advantage of their knowledge and prepare for a campaign of education. It looks as if we will have to face the old problems of intemperance, the temperance lecturer will once more be heard in the land. Whatever be the development the church should be ready. It is possible that the church had lost some of its temperance fervor in the past, but the future is ours. What are we going to do about it?

THE ELECTION AND THE CHURCH.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

Staggering significance must be attached to the recent American Presidential election. All sorts of grave meanings are being seen in it by the secular press. But for the Christian Church there is one outstanding import of it all: an overwhelming majority of the people are seeking a better way of life. Their number is far greater than Governor Roosevelt's impressive majority. Even the least thoughtful person cannot escape the truth that the American mood is one of desire for change. The nation is profoundly dissatisfied with things as they are—and that discontent embraces the whole post-war scheme of life.

Such open-mindedness and unrest as the election revealed are a clear call to the church. The people have said, in effect, "We are not satisfied. We want a better way of life. Perhaps a change of administration will help. Anyway, we'll try it; for we are ready to follow any path that seems to be a way out."

At the best, as Governor Roosevelt would be the first to declare, political remedies can go only part of the way in effecting a new national order. The deeper remedies lie within the minds and hearts of the people. Here the church and the school must take up the task.

Not since the War has the church been given such an opportunity. Open-minded, unsatisfied, questing, the people are plainly ready to take any steps that will lead them toward the New Day.

If the church is wise, courageous and prompt, those steps will be toward the houses of worship, where the essential Way of Life is set forth, Sunday after Sunday.

I am not here proposing any new "movement" or organization: we are too heavily encumbered with such already. True, there should be swift action in the emergency by official religious leadership; but more important, and more effective, will be the measures taken by individual pastors and local church boards. These last should sit immediately in special deliberation upon measures to be taken in their own parishes to meet this magnificent opportunity.

What are some of these measures? Well, no doubt, a few of the more alert and outspoken bodies will take time to rebuke the religious "leaders" who acted as political campaigners, and diverted many channels of religious expression, to partisan purposes. Their impotency, as shown by the vote, should be a chastening experience. David should have had more sense than to try to wear the armor of Saul. The church's weapons must ever be spiritual, and not carnal.

That for an important aside. Most urgently, the local church officials should give themselves to a consideration of measures for getting the people to attend church services. That is the first step; for only so can the old message that is the sure word for the new times ever reach the ears of the people. A concerted activity to promote church-going should sweep the land. All emphasis upon other more general interests, such as have too greatly engrossed the ministry of late, should be sidetracked to make way for the special express train called "Go to Church."

Methods are many, and may be left to local devising and to the interchange of experience. Probably no method will ever be an improvement upon the old one of personal invitation by church members themselves. Is it too optimistic to envisage a nation-wide "Go-to-Church" canvass, locally inspired and directed?

But what will the people find if they do go to church? Will they be welcomed to warm Christian hospitality and fellowship? Will there be reality and vitality in the worship? May they be sure of hearing words of life from the pulpit—a clear presentation of the Gospel of comfort and counsel and joy, and of God's great love? Discourses about books and about politics and about international affairs and about the Mooney case, and such like, make poor pabulum for hungry and weary spirits. What men and women eagerly desire today is inspiring truth about God, and what he may mean to their lives. The Good News which transformed the early Christians is what this present seeking world most desires.

We have had, in the election, a spectacular and Providential revelation of a nation's new mood. It all spells "opportunity" for the church. Is the church wise enough, great enough, and interested enough, to enter this open door?

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

"I must work." These words were spoken by Jesus. There is in them a suggestion of an inner urge. Something within the spirit of Jesus directed him. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." (John 5:17.) "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." (John 17:4.) The will of the Father was the secret of his inner life. He sought to do the will of the Father.

Man should find a real joy in work. It is not a curse, but a blessing. It is not a burden, but a relief. Man was created for work. Unless he finds work he is ultimately miserable. But there are dreamers who hope the time will come when they will be relieved of daily toil. The idle rich and the idle poor are both a menace to progress and civilization.

An idle church member is a menace to the Christian religion. Church members need religious work. There are millions of people in the churches of America who have paid nothing for the support of the church during the past year. Think of a church of three hundred members having only one hundred members who contribute to its support. Think of the two hundred who pay nothing, and give nothing. These two hundred are suffering. They are out of work. Why do they not have a hunger march on the church, with banners, crying, "Give us work in the church." They are in spiritual need. Sacrificial work would be a blessing to them. The people who support the church, by their work and by their gifts, help themselves more than they help others. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." If all the people in the church would work for the church, and give as the Lord hath prospered them, the religious depression would soon end.

Man does not always receive pay for his work. Some work is done without any hope of pay. No man can expect to be paid for everything he does. But, when there is a wage agreement it should be paid. The law of Moses (Deut. 24:15), requires that a laborer should be paid each day before sunset. The employer should pay as he goes. The laborer should do likewise. Credit may be a blessing, and it may become a curse. "Charge it, please," is not always helpful to the purchaser. The installment plan was accepted many years ago, as a good plan to stimulate business and help people of small means. It has been overworked. People are now burdened by this apparent kindness.

Every man should try to adjust his living expenses according to his income. It is not good business, nor good religion to spend more than one earns in making a living. If all people would live within their incomes during the years of prosperity, there would not be so much suffering when business conditions change. As a matter of fact, business would not undergo such extreme changes. It is not easy to do this. When a man is out of work and has no income, he needs food and clothing and shelter. He must either go in debt or be supported by others. This is an emergency. But there would be no such an emergency if this country had been on the "pay-as-you-go" plan of living for the past decade. It is hard to keep out of debt. But it is harder to pay debts than to stay out of debt. Work as you go, and pay as you go. You may not go as fast or as far, but the going will be better and more valuable.

The church needs to put these principles into practice. Churches have not paid their pastor's salaries. They have failed to give liberally to missions, the orphanage, the college, and other benevolences. Church boards and institutions are in distress. People have not been "giving as they go." Now is the time to pay up your church current expenses. Give every week. Pay your pastor every month in full and on time. Lay aside a definite amount for benevolences. The church should set an example for consistent living, business integrity and religious devotion.

I. W. JOHNSON.

FROM JAPAN.

Since I wrote last, our city has been enlarged, taking in eighty villages and towns heretofore considered the suburbs of the city. The result is that Tokyo is the second largest city in the world, New York being first, Tokyo second, and London third. That is what the Japanese say. I think they are rather proud of their big city. It does not seem to affect us any, as we go on our way just the same.

The Japanese war minister, Mr. Araki, is out to get 197 million yen more than the budget allows him. He claims that this is a crisis in the affairs of the nation and that it is necessary to have this money to put the military forces in an effective fighting condition. It looks as if he felt that since Japan needs to stand against the whole world, a big army and navy are quite necessary. One of the dailies says that to meet the demands of Araki the nation would need to make a debt of ten billion yen when the yen, so far as raising the money by the Japanese is concerned, is just as hard to raise as so many dollars in the States, if not very much harder. If Araki gets what he asks for, it will only hasten the day when the country will go bankrupt.

Two of our missionaries have made a visit to China and on the way passed through Korea and Manchukuo. In their conversations with the missionaries in both countries they found a deep hatred of the Japanese rule in spite of the fact that Japan keeps better order than the natives themselves can do. It is much as if I should try to rule your household on the ground that I can do it better than you. I guess every man wants to run his own show, and the different countries take the same view.

The annual conference of the Kumiai Church (our church) just held its annual meeting. It was a great gathering, with more than two hundred delegates. One of the speakers, a graduate of Oberlin, said our church is the greatest in Japan. But it is said that the M. E. Church and the Presbyterian Church have each a slightly larger membership. It was a great pleasure to meet our missionaries who had come from afar to be present. Anyhow our native church is a great growing and going concern, and it is a joy to see the faces of so many great and good men who are working to advance the Kingdom of God in Japan.

There is considerable deflection of both missionaries from Mr. Kagawa's leadership because in his publications he claims more than properly belongs to him, but no one, on this account, is lessening his efforts to advance the Kingdom.

We daily at our family altar remember all the faithful men and women of the homeland who hold the ropes for those working in Japan. The rich blessings of the Lord be on you all.

THIRTY YEARS OF THE CHRISTMAS FUND

It was just thirty years ago that Dr. William A. Rice, the beloved secretary of the Board for Ministerial Relief, sent out ten Christmas checks to those on the roll of the board who were in special need. That was the beginning of the great Christmas Fund. It appealed to our Congregational people at once and grew almost by leaps and bounds. In 1908 the fund reached $580, and, for the first time, it was possible to send a Christmas check to each one of the pensioners. In 1917 the total was $11,500; in 1919 it was $21,500; in 1924 it passed the $50,000 mark, and in 1930, it reached its highest point, $83,470. Last year, in spite of the business depression, the Christmas Fund showed a total of $73,533 contributed by Congregational and Christian Church people. That fund not only provided a generous Christmas check for every pensioner, but has enabled the board to send out during the months of 1932 more than 650 emergency checks to meet cases of distress.

Many of our ministers and widows will be in sharp need during the coming winter, and anxious hearts are already asking, "Can we again count on the Christmas Fund for help?" The officers of the Board of Ministerial Relief look with confidence to our Congregational and Christian constituency to provide a sufficient Christmas Fund in 1932 so that our aged and disabled ministers and their families will not suffer want during the year to come. All state boards share in the distribution of the Christmas Fund, and money received from Christian Church sources is used entirely for the benefit of Christian Church ministers.

DR. THRALL RESIGNS.

Dr. J. Brainerd Thrall has resigned as pastor of the First Congregational Church of Asheville, N. C., his resignation to take effect April 1st. He has been pastor of that church nineteen years, having organized the church and having been responsible for the building of the present fine structure on Merrimon Avenue. Dr. Thrall is a man of remarkable personality and vigor, being eighty-three years of age and has been in constant and active service during many years. He was a graduate of Amherst, where he was received into the honorary scholarship fraternity Phi Beta Kappa. After teaching two years in the Cornwall Heights School for Boys in New York State he went to Europe and studied for one year at Leipsic University in Germany and later several months in Paris. He then returned to America and entered Yale Divinity School. He held several pastorates in the east and one at Sioux Falls, S. D., before coming to Asheville.

During his pastorate in Asheville he has been a leader in the city in many activities, especially in the Boy Scout movement. He has been Commissioner of the Boy Scout Council and presides at the Court of Honor session every month. All the Boy Scouts of the section know and love Dr. Thrall. He is greatly beloved by the people of the Asheville Church, who look up to him as a father. He loves the church but is resigning in order that the church may secure a younger minister. He is giving the church ample time to find a successor before he ceases his active service.

NOTICE.

The Christian Missionary Association will meet at the Congregational-Christian Church, Newport News, on December 6, 1932. We will have cars to meet the ferries. Delegates from Norfolk and vicinity should take the ferry from Naval Base at 9:15 A. M., or from Willoughby (Ocean View) at 9 A. M. This transportation will save some expense.

ROBERT LEE HOUSE.

"I AM LOOKING FOR A CHURCH."

More than forty years ago, the leaders of our church realized that the future progress of the church depended upon a trained leadership—a trained leadership for both the pulpit and the pew. They were few in numbers and limited in resources, but they had a vision and were courageous enough to follow that vision. They organized and founded a college, which they called "Elon." All through the years this has been our college and has rendered a most necessary service to the church as a whole. More than any other institution of our church, Elon College is responsible for her growth and development. It is impossible to think of the church aside from Elon College. It is impossible to even imagine her continued growth and development without the college. All through the years the church, through her local units, has given her support to Elon—it has not been large, but it has been consistent and generous until recent years. For some reason or other certain sections of our church have failed to support the college as in years past.

I would like to assure all concerned that every possible effort is being put forth to see that the college measures up to the expectation of those who founded her and of those who support her. Our equipment elicits the admiration of all who observe—our faculty deserves the cooperation and endorsement of all who are interested in the cause of Christian education. We are now badly in need of financial assistance. I am making a desperate effort to balance our budget. You will be interested to know that our business manager was authorized to pay salaries up to and including the month of October—this means that we have been able to balance our budget, beginning with September, to date, an achievement, which, to me, is remarkable, when you consider that we have paid out of this year's resources $2,400 on salaries due professors who taught for us last year. I am exceedingly anxious that we shall be able to pay all bills, including teachers' salaries when we close for the holidays. We are not able to pay debts incurred in the past, but we are endeavoring to operate on a "pay-as-you-go" plan.

There are a large number of people who are concerned about the college and are willing to put their shoulders to the wheel to see that she continues to move forward. I am calling on all such for help now. Naturally, we look to the church for support. I AM LOOKING FOR A CHURCH—a local church who will, of its own accord, put on the Dollar-a-Month Club campaign among its membership—make it fully, conscientiously and successfully, and send in its report without any prodding from the administration office of the college. Isn't there one single church in our entire brotherhood which will come to the rescue and set an example for the other churches? Any one church in the Convention could do it—all could do it. I am asking everyone to undertake the job. If we could have a half-dozen or more churches put forth such an effort right away, it would help us to balance our budget by Christmas. We have encouraging news for the Club and it will be of interest to all. Two weeks ago, we received $103.00 from members of the Club—one week ago, we received $47.00 from members of the Club. This week we have received $79.00. You can see how encouraging these reports are. Have you had a part in them? If so, congratulate yourself and help us again next week. If not, won't you send in your dues at once? We need a little inspiration and a whole lot of encouragement—you can give it if you will.

The present-day militarist, whether he lives in China or elsewhere, is one who sets the welfare of his part of the world above the well-being of the rest of humanity. I am of the opinion that it is human nature to prefer peace to war, but we must recognize that there are militarists in every country, and that they ignore world opinion. We must also remember that in such an interdependent world as ours, the ignorance and provincialism of the militarists can bring disaster. Unless the public opinion of the large body of peace-loving people in each country keeps under control their own military minorities, the future of the world is at this moment seriously threatened.—Chiang Kai-shek, ex-President of China.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Father, God, we bow to thee. For cause the Christian part of our nation has hanged her harps upon the willows. Give anew to the nation's captivity witness of the Spirit, and with testimony let the redeemed of the Lord exalt thy mercy, plead thy forbearance, confess thy judgments. For fear and dismay give hope and trust, and grant to the helpless deliverance from the evil grip which verily would dash our little ones against the stones. We pray in Jesus' name.—Amen.

THE LAYMEN'S FOREIGN MISSIONS INQUIRY AND THE MISSIONS BOARD.

By WILSON P. MINTON, D. D.

That was a most significant meeting held in the Hotel Roosevelt, New York City, November 18th and 19th, when secretaries of a number of Foreign Mission Boards and several hundred of their board members met with the directors and sponsors of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry to consider the report of the Commission of Appraisal which had just been released. This report is now available in book form, being published (with some changes from the original, we understand) by Harper and Brothers, at $2.00, under the title "Rethinking Foreign Missions." We hope it may soon be reviewed in these columns. Our concern here, however, is only with a brief report of the meeting of the Commission of Appraisal and the board representatives.

To refresh your memories we remind you that the report is the result of more than two years of most intensive and painstaking labor on the part of a corps of efficient workers. It grew out of a meeting of laymen of one single denomination in New York in January, 1930, to consider their own foreign mission problems. The importance of a thorough study of all foreign missions seemed so vital that eventually leading laymen of seven denominations came together to form the Laymen's Inquiry, which became responsible for this work.

The inquiry was restricted to India, Burma, China and Japan. Its results were obtained by a two-fold process: First, the Institute of Social and Religious Research sent a corps of workers to the fields mentioned and after eight or nine months of intensive search on the field placed in the hands of the Appraisal Commission the most carefully prepared facts obtainable. Then the Commission itself went to these fields and spent months of arduous labor in each, seeking to get to the bottom of the whole matter. The result is the report just released and which formed the basis for the discussion of the Commission and the board representatives.

It would be impossible to attempt to cover the discussion in this brief article. I want to make a few comments, however, on facts which have sent me away from this meeting with a deeper conviction than ever that our American Board, composed of our Congregational and Christian leaders, is handling our foreign mission work in a conscientious, intelligent and effective manner. There is, of course, much room for improvement, but that is always true of all our work, and I find much hope in the knowledge that our board is always trying to find where it can improve its work abroad. But here are the comments:

First, there can be no question of the honesty of purpose, and earnestness of effort, the efficiency of method and the sympathy of attitude of the inquiry in facing its task.

Second, the members of the Appraisal Commission are human and they doubtless have made mistakes, some of which may be difficult to overcome. For example many feel that their methods of publicity were wrong, inasmuch as the newspapers undoubtedly warped the meaning of the releases in many cases so as to give an entirely wrong impression.

Third, there were both conservatives and liberals on the Commission and had either attempted to go too far in presenting their own views the other group would undoubtedly have presented a minority report. Instead of this, however, they presented findings only upon which both groups could unanimously agree. In this achievement the report is outstanding as a distinctive advance step in cooperation.

Fourth, many grievous situations are clearly revealed as to poor methods and ineffective personnel in the foreign mission enterprise, but at the same time the report emphatically declares that this work must not only go on, but that with certain constructive changes it should challenge even larger support than ever before, as the means of bringing the world to its highest and best through the Christian religion.

Fifth, the Commission believes that the sharing with other faiths of our experiences in Christ unrestricted by our dogmas, by our institutions, by our divided denominational attitudes will do more than anything else to bring forth the richer and fuller religious life in Christ which we ourselves have not yet completely found.

Sixth, a divided Christendom has no place in the missionary enterprise in the Orient. Our divisions are our shame and to a large extent our failure abroad. The Commission insists that the foreign mission work of the future must be on a united basis.

These are only a few of the many things that might be said about this far-reaching report. Much more will be said later, for this thing cannot die. It offers a challenge which we Christians must meet. The writer was particularly pleased to know that our board was recognized again and again as having already started many of the things suggested in the report. It is helpful to know that the Commission felt it did not suggest any changes in work that had already at least been started by some board, and our own united American Board is able to show many instances of just this sort of thing. No finer thing could be said of it than that it is constantly criticizing itself, looking at its own faults and attempting to correct its own mistakes.

While Puerto Rico is now under the Home Mission Board it was formerly under our Foreign Mission Board, but regardless of that it provides a splendid illustration of just how our united Congregational and Christian Churches are trying to do the most constructive work possible overseas. A gentleman who represents a certain interdenominational humanitarian work approached the writer in the midst of the inquiry sessions and said, in substance: "I have just come from a visit to Puerto Rico where I have had the privilege of seeing the fine work being done in the United Evangelical Church. You Congregationalists and United Brethren and Christians have a right to be proud of the fact that in that united church you are actually already doing what this inquiry declares must be done by all Foreign Mission Boards if they are to accomplish their task."

But there is much to be done. Only a beginning has been made by even the more progressive boards. It was particularly pleasing to note that immediately after the adjournment of the inquiry discussions, the officials of our American Board met for a thorough study of the best plans which might be started to carry out the constructive suggestions of the Appraisal Commission. We are girding ourselves for even greater service.

MIND THE LIGHTS.

Out on a reef in New York harbor, there is a lighthouse which was occupied and tended for years by a woman, Mrs. Katie Walker. She was faithful to her trust, remained steadfast at her post, and never failed in the least of her duties to make the harbor safe for sailing in dark nights and foggy weather, so far as her lighthouse was concerned. One day she told the secret that kept her steadfast to her post and faithful to her task. She had lived there with her husband, who was taken ill with pneumonia and carried to a hospital, and one night the message came to her that he was dead. Then flashed in her mind the three words that had been most often on his lips: "Mind the Light."

Over 1900 years ago, One said, "I am the light of the world." That light shone out in the darkness and the darkness comprehended it not. Then as he was going away, he gave his most emphatic and parting message to his followers: "Mind the Light," or, as he expressed it: "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel." He expects all those to whom he has entrusted the light to be faithful, even as the woman in the lighthouse on the reef in New York harbor, and to help guard with safety and security, the incoming and outgoing multitudes as they pass through the darkness of the night and the danger of the fog.

WHY THE CHURCH?

Prepared by REV. HELEN STREET RAMNEY.

(Reprinted by permission from American Missionary.)

Hymn—"The Church's One Foundation."

Leader—Our subject for today is, "Why the Church?" The church serves various purposes. One is the inspiration which comes from fellowship in worship. Let us worship now through music which leads us to God.

Music—Handel's "Largo" or Wagner's "Pilgrim Chorus."

Leader—We have just sung that Jesus is the Foundation of the Church. Let us hear the words that are the heart of his teaching. (Read Mark 12:30, 31.)

Prayer—(From Hoyland's "The Sacrament of Common Life," p. 21, par. 4, or from the Commission on Evangelism's "The Fellowship of Prayer," 1932, February 13th and 20th, and March 2nd and 4th.)

Leader—Through inspiration and fellowship the church is to help people to carry out these commandments of Jesus. We have spoken of worship. The church is also to proclaim the gospel. (Have some member report an interview with the minister as to how he is trying to bring to the community these teachings of Jesus.)

Leader—The church is for religious education. (a) Have a statement from some one who has interviewed the church school superintendent or director of religious education as to how the church school is bringing these fundamentals of Jesus to youth; (b) Have some representative of the young people's society tell in what ways as a branch of the church they are carrying out these commandments.

Leader—The church is to uphold the personal Christian standards. (Have some one read Phil. 4:8 and I. Cor. 13:4-7, Moffatt's translation, if possible.)

Hymn—"O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Leader—The church is for social progress. (a) Have members, previously appointed to interview social workers in the community, report what the church members individually, or the church as an organization, have done, and can do further, to help in the Associated Charities, in bettering conditions in the jails, in getting better movies, etc. (b) Have members report on interviews with experts on peace education, prohibition, race relations, industrial and economic betterment, as to what a good church member should do in relation to these efforts to carry out the teachings of Christ regarding our neighbors.

Leader—The church is to work for a Christian America. (Have reports on your own state projects. Have impersonations of representatives of the different kinds of work included in your Home Board projects, using as much enthusiasm as if they, themselves, were agents. As introduction, use leaflets: "You Give Orders Through Your Church and Our Church," "Serving Our Country." Then choose between the following leaflet portrayals: "Blanche Kellogg Institute," "Puerto Rico," "Talladega College," "The Medical Work of the A. M. A.," "Some Needs of the Hour in Town and Country," "In the Western Woods," "The Slovak Way," "Veterans of the Cross," "The Summer Conferences." Using the articles on our colleges in this issue of the magazine, have some one tell how they are making a better America.

Leader—The church is to permeate the whole world with the spirit of Jesus. (Have people, preferably in the costumes of the countries, report various phases of American Board work. For introduction use "High Spots in the World Program of the American Board." Then select one of these three: "Our Rural Work in Africa," "Our Rural Work in the Far East," "Our Rural Work in the Near East." Use also one of these: "The Doctor Will See You Now," "Interpreting China in Revolution," "Contributions to Christian Leadership in China."

Hymn—"In Christ There Is No East or West." (Note—All leaflets referred to are free and may be had from an office of the Commission on Missions. Costumes may be rented reasonably from the American Board, 14 Beacon St., Boston, or the Commission on Missions, 19 S. La Salle St., Chicago.)

MONTHLY MISSIONARY PROGRAM.

"WHY A WOMAN'S SOCIETY IN THE LOCAL CHURCH."

Program II.

"Our Church and Community Opportunities."

WORSHIP HELPS.

Hymn—"O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Reading—Isaiah LXI:1-9.

Poem—"Brotherhood."

"The crest and crowning of all good,
Life's final star is Brotherhood;
Her long-lost Poesy and mirth,
Will send new life on every face,
A kingly power upon the race,
And till it comes, we men are slaves,
And travel downward to the dust of graves.
Come, clear the way, then; clear the way;
Blind creeds and kings have had their day
Break the dead branches from the path:
Our hope is in the aftermath—
Our hope is in heroic men,
Star-led to build the world again.
To this event the ages ran:
Make way for Brotherhood—make way for man."
—Edwin Markham.

Prayer—That we may see the many opportunities of service close at hand, and that our neighbors may find the spirit of Brotherhood a living reality in our church and our community.

1. Opening talk by leader.
2. Paper or talk on "The Women's Society at Work for the Church."
Special music.
3. Paper or talk on "The Woman's Society and Its Community."

Discussion and conversation by all, led by the leader.

Aim—Decide upon at least one enterprise in which your group may engage for the coming year.

Sentence prayers on the program subject.

Benediction—One verse of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

PROGRAM FOR FOR YOUNG PEOPLES' AND JUNIOR MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.

FROM SEA TO SHINING SEA.

Base the program on the missionaries featured in the Guest Book, pp. 2-13. If you do not have a Guest Book, one may be secured from Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C. Four "guests" are suggested in the program and others may be added if desired. Each individual could be impersonated and his story, almost as written, told in the first person. Choose the impersonators at least a week in advance of the meeting, so that there may be ample time for preparation and the impersonations given from memory, or in the words of the speaker. A map with the different stopping points indicated would add interest to the program.

Hymn—"O Beautiful for Spacious Skies."

Scripture—I. Cor. 3:8-12.

Prayer—For all workers and all travelers that each may carry with him the message of Jesus Christ. (Talk in advance with the one who is to lead the prayer, about the theme, that the prayer may be in keeping.)

Leader—"We shall start our journey of discovery by taking the subway from New York City over to Brooklyn, where we will visit Rev. W. S. Alexander in Hyde Park Christian Church." (Impersonation of Mr. Alexander.)

Leader—"To the young people of the South, Miss Lucy needs no introduction. She has long been a welcome visitor to our churches and a teacher and leader in our Conferences. (Impersonation of Miss Eldredge.)

Leader—"Max Webster is one of the younger generation of ministers, who served an apprenticeship in Student Summer Service, and has become a 'workman who needeth not be ashamed.'" (Impersonation of Mr. Webster.)

Leader—"Dick Fagley is still in the apprentice class, though the joy of service in the vacation months may lead him into the Christian ministry. Mr. Bridges will tell us about him. (Mr. Bridges speaks about Dick Fagley.)

Hymn—"Let There Be Light, Lord God of Hosts," "Light of the World, We Hail Thee." Benediction.

Slightly adapted from a program in the Young People's Bulletin for Autumn, 1932.

Every Young People's Missionary Society, Sunday School Class, Christian Endeavor is urged to spend an adequate amount of time on the study of missions. If you can, secure one of the study books for the year, and study it carefully. A list was given in THE SUN for October 13th. Write for the Young People's Bulletin, and use the programs in it, or enroll as a World Service School and secure the Intermediate-Adult programs.

PRISCILLA CHASE,

WILLING WORKERS' PROGRAM.

This group of programs is intended for Willing Workers or the Junior Department of the Church School. The leader who wants to do a more elaborate piece of work is urged to use "New Joy" (for Juniors), by Carolyn Sewall, or "Off to China (for Primaries), by Sweet and Wagner. If that is not possible, do all you can to enrich these simple programs. A little money and time spent in writing letters will yield valuable returns.

Books on China for the leader or the children to read, may be secured from the American Board Lending Library, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass. Time limit: two weeks from the date of receipt. Charge: postage both ways. Fine: 2c a day, if kept overtime. Address Education Department, American Board, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Chinese costumes for boys or girls may be secured from the same address, for 25 cents each and postage. Curios may be borrowed at a charge of from 5c to 25c, according to the number. Postage must be paid by borrower.

The following visual education materials will be of real value and may be secured from the Pilgrim Press, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

China Picture Map, 50c; a large outline map which may be colored by the children. The border is made up of a series of pictures of Chinese life and a sheet of pictures to be colored and pasted on the map accompanies it.

China Teaching Pictures, 50c; China Picture Sheet, 25c; Here and There Stories, 5c each. These may be secured from the Department of Missionary Education, Congregational Education Society, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Help the group to plan a friendship project. Let the children suggest what they would like to do but be ready to make suggestions if they do not. The Envelope Series for September, 1932, pp. 38-39, contains a list of things that may be sent to China. A Friendship Scrapbook containing pictures of American children, of the town

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

THE PRINTER'S MISTAKE.

For more than six months I have been writing this page and have been watching for the printer's mistake. Of course, I expected that he would make many of them. But most of the time the search has been in vain. In fact, hope had almost fled, and I was beginning to wonder just what kind of human beings print THE CHRISTIAN SUN. For human beings of the type known to me make mistakes. Then last week came the mistake that makes me know that printers are human.

Right there in plain type they said that Norfolk had the training school that was held in Suffolk. Now those of you who have never sent copy to a printer may not know just how loathe I was to look up my carbon copy to see who had made the mistake, but I confess that it was not the easiest thing I ever tried to do. But a letter from Suffolk saying that they would really like to have the credit for the school goaded me on to look up the trouble, and, thanks be, it was the printer's fault. (And I was almost glad that they had made some kind of mistake.) However, the article itself states in both headline and reading matter that the school was really held in Suffolk.

DID YOU READ "IDEAL CHURCH MUSIC"?

Did you read that wonderful article in last week's paper on "Ideal Church Music," by Nellie Rea Sledge? If you did not, please look up the paper now and turn to page nine. The writer is a young lady who attends Summer School at Wadley, Ala., and likes it, goes to young people's meetings and makes a contribution, works in her church with delight, and writes with a pen of eloquence as well as knowledge.

Evidently Nellie Rea has given some time and study to church music as well as the kind she studies for voice and piano. Our young people should be sure to read this article. If you have the nerve, you might show it to your choir leader, Sunday School superintendent and pastor. If you do show it to them, be sure to smile and tell them that you feel sure they will enjoy reading the article written by a young person. Then another day when you have considerable courage, you might ask why your church and school might not try some of the suggestions made in the article. Do you get the idea? Then try it out—after you have read the article.

HOW TO BE HAPPY AT CHRISTMAS.

Christmas is creeping up so rapidly now that we must begin to make lists of people to whom we will give gifts and send greetings. We are already in a rush. Stores are filled with customers and prospective customers. We are trying to find the way to be happy at Christmas.

The Christian Herald for December has an excellent article telling how people can render service rather than spend money. The title of the article is, "Santa Goes Off the Gold Standard." Beatrice Plumb tells how people are much more delighted with getting a service which they need than presents which have no useful purpose.

Which put me to thinking. Young people in their conferences, schools, and fellowships have said they wanted to win others to Christ this year. Christmas is Christ's birthday, and it is Sunday. What better service could you render to a friend than to get him to accept Christ and join his church at Christmas? If you succeed in getting a friend to do this, you will be happy, and so will your friend. This is the kind of thing that has permanent value.

One pastor, who still likes to think that he is young, is calling in some of his best young people and talking over the matter with them. They will get some literature from the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life (287 Fourth Ave., New York City), study the literature and distribute it, they will pray for certain young people in their church, and then they will talk with those friends in a friendly way about Jesus, and ask them to become followers of Jesus and to join his church on his birthday. How well this plan will work remains to be seen, but it seems to have promise of something good being done.

If you want to be happy at Christmas, win someone to Christ and lead them into the church.

ARE YOU BUSY?

"I really intended to do so-and-so, but I was just so busy that I did not get it done." Do you ever say such as that? Well, let's hope not. But I know one who does. Sometimes he seems to insert that in most of his letters, and to tell that old story (or is it a lie?) to all his friends.

Yes, most of us are busy—busy doing many things—most of which might just as well be left undone. I wonder! How do we spend the twenty-four hours of each day which God gives us? When a certain preacher went to a new church he announced that he was there to serve the people, and that they could use either his head or his feet. Many people run errands when they should be at serious work. Let those run errands who have nothing more important to do.

A friend sent the following poem to me recently. Its message was good for me. I pass it along to you. It is copied from The Baptist and was written by Robert Whitaker:

"Busy? Yes, friend, too busy oftentimes
To catch life's sweetest song,
Too eager for the task to hear the chimes;
Busy too late, and long.

"Busy with what? With weeds and sticks and sand,
Building for but an hour,
Oblivious of the sky-line, rainbow spanned,
The ocean's swell and power.

"Busy for whom? For those from whom we think
To gain the gifts of greed?
Or for our loved, who beyond meat and drink
Leisure and loving need?

"Busy till when? Until the day is spent,
And high desire has fled.
Until the soul of all we dreamed and meant
Is dead! Is dead!

"Busy! But not too busy to drop
The load, and rest and smile;
This is the place, and this the hour to stop
And live a while."

WESTERN DISTRICT C. E. MEETS IN STRASBURG.

The annual convention of the Western District of the Virginia State C. E. Union was held in the Strasburg presbyterian Church, in November.

Miss Rene Mathews, president of the District Union, opened the meeting at 10:15 A. M., with a prayer service. Rev. H. M. Crim, pastor of the convention church, welcomed the delegates. Classes on "How to Plan a C. E. Meeting," and "Odds and Ends of the C. E.," were taught by Rev. H. E. Chaney, of Baltimore, and Rene Mathews, of Winchester. Tom Rodman, Winchester, won the first award in the sharp-shooting contest, and Myra Jones, of Forrestville, won the second.

At 6 o'clock, a fellowship banquet was held in the social hall of the convention church. Here fun and fellowship reigned supreme. A musical program was rendered by Rev. Arthur Wake, Misses Josephine Millner, Dorothy Lutz, Jean Crawford and Eleanor Balltis. Reports from the nominating committee and awards committee were read at banquet hour.

At the evening service a pageant, "The March of Time," showing how C. E. has come down to us from the vision of Dr. Clark, more than fifty years ago. Following this Miss Margaret Richards, Winchester, president of the State C. E. Union, installed the new officers.

Sunday morning, at 9 o'clock, there was a quiet hour service before Sunday School and preaching hour. The Sunday afternoon session was given over to classes in all branches of C. E. work. Miss Margaret Richards led the closing devotional service, using as her topic, "The C. E. Life." Rev. Harold E. Chaney brought the closing message to the convention.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 11, 1932.

"Practicing Brotherhood in Our Own Neighborhood."—Luke 10:25-37.

The Scripture is so familiar that we may miss the point. The lawyer was no different from us even if he was "willing to justify himself." He believed in the theory of neighborliness; it was practicing that was hard.

Recently I saw some children tell the story in action like this: A Slovak child came into an American school. Some bad boys picked on this strange and timid little girl and would not leave her alone even after fear and temerity had been greatly increased. Some very good children came to school, but would not play with this stranger, whose heart was crushed. Then came a child who went to the stranger, dared others to harm her, divided apples with her, bound up her wounded spirit, and led her into the bright sunshine of childhood friendship.

How would you like the story if it read like this? A certain farmer was careful in the preparation and harvesting of his crops, and then offered them for sale in my home town. Robbers in the form of buyers stripped him of all that rightfully belonged to him and sent him home without food, the food and clothes that he and his family needed. The politicians saw his plight, but they said they could do nothing about it, as the major portion of their pay came from the wealthy. The church looked on the misery and turned away saying that "church and state must stay separate." Then comes a new political party whose name we do not like and offers to the hungry bread and to the naked clothing.

Or how would you like to read the story this way? A certain Chinaman moved into our town. He was far from home and seemed to be lonely. He went to the church across the street, but they soon let him know that he was not wanted there. Then he came to our church, but of course we could not afford to associate with him. Then came along a negro minister and invited him to come to his church, and there the Chinaman found a Christian fellowship and became a Christian.

Don't like these modern translations? Neither did the people of Jesus' day like what he told them about a Samaritan doing better than the leading Jews, but he was telling the truth.

Why not sit down with your leaders and think together about ways in which neighborliness can really be practiced now, and then enlist your society or class or group in putting into practice the spirit of brotherhood? Pretty speeches are all right some times, but they can never take the place of practicing.

THE CHRISTIAN'S USE OF LEISURE.

LESSON XI—DECEMBER 11, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Whether, therefore, ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—I. Cor. 10:31.

LESSON TEXT:—Neh. 8:9-18; Mark 6:30-32.

A Christian is not his own. All that he has and is to be held in stewardship. The question, then, of a Christian's use of leisure is a practical question. It is also a question which a great many Christians have not frankly faced, and a great many more have not satisfactorily solved. Let us think about some of the aspects of leisure as they have a bearing upon our Christian life.

Our Modern World and Leisure.

Leisure is becoming more and more a problem in our modern life. We are constantly hearing about shorter working hours, involving fewer hours per day, and fewer days per week. We are constantly developing machines and improving methods which give people more time free. There seems to be even in ordinary times in modern life a great deal of unemployment which is another form of leisure. In fact, one of the results of mankind's progress, if not the purpose of it, has been the securing of more leisure time, that is, time when one is more or less free to do as he pleases.

Leisure and Character.

Now the significance of all this lies in the fact that our leisure time is a tremendous factor in the development of character. What one does when he is free to do as he pleases enters very vitally into the making of character. A banker once sought a young man for a position in his bank, and instead of reading the customary references, he made diligent inquiry into how the young man spent his evenings and his leisure time. When asked why he did this he replied that in his opinion that was a real test of a young man's character. As a matter of fact people do not go to the devil while they are busy. The old saying: "Idle hands are the devil's workshop," contains more truth than fiction. He who would develop character must give heed to how he uses his leisure time. Indeed leisure time may be the means of enriching character or it may be the means of debauching it. This does not mean that one must be dissipated; it means only that one need waste or misuse leisure time.

For instance, here is a young man or a young woman with the problem of one evening. One may spend the evenings at the movies, or on the street-corner, or at the bridge table, or one may spend the evening with good books, in wholesome social fellowship, in activities that enrich life and serve others. One of the great differences between the men who succeed and the men who fail, is to be found in the use made of their leisure time.

Sunday and Leisure.

A great many people, of course, are obliged to work on Sunday, but a great many more people have Sunday as a free day. Here stands the day, on authority of Jesus himself, as a gracious gift from God, and as an opportunity for ministering to the highest interests of the whole man—physical, intellectual, social, and spiritual. Here is a day ordained by a gracious loving Father as a day of rest and worship, given to us to be used in such a way that we shall go back to the tasks of the new week with strength, with new spirit, with new enthusiasm. But it is not so used by many Christians. And tragedy of tragedies, those who use this day as a day of rest, so many times do not use it as a day of worship. There is nothing that we can teach our children that will be of more value to them than to teach them the proper use of the Sabbath. There is nothing that we ourselves need to learn more than how to use this day of leisure. It need not be a day of abstinence; it may be a day of activities.

The Christian's Use of Leisure.

"Ye are Christ's." We are to use our leisure time, our spare time, in such a way that it will minister to the whole man—body, mind and spirit. We are to use it in ministering to others. We are to use it in such a way that when we turn again to the duties of life we shall be able to make them factors in bringing in the Kingdom of God.

Let us think as individuals about these things:

Am I spending my leisure time in such a way that I am enriching my life and becoming a better Christian?

Am I using my leisure time in such a way that I am helping others?

Am I spending my Sunday in such a way that my spiritual life is nurtured?

Do I spend my week-ends in the light of Jesus' ideals?

Is my vacation a season of re-creation, or of "wreck-creation?"

CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN.

With the first of December, the annual sale of Christmas seals throughout the entire country will be under way. Christmas seal dollars saved many thousands of tuberculosis patients last year, and enabled the caring for of untold numbers of undernourished children. Through the efforts made possible by these seals, much has been done to decrease the death toll of the white plague. Help save a life by using tuberculosis Christmas seals this Christmas.

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Psalm 119:130.

SHALL WE KEEP ON DOING IT?

"And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou riseth up; and thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thine house, and upon thy gate."—Deut. 11:19, 20.

Three things God set in motion at the time of creation: 1. The Home; 2. The Church; 3. The Government (State). Since that time the home has been essentially first in all things and by its training the future of the church and state is determined.

Nothing can be substituted for Christian character at home; the homely cadence of faith, learned there, can never be matched; it preserves life from moral decay, it gives strength and beauty to domestic relations; it is the supreme source of elevating influences. To sanctify the home with religious teaching and training unto righteousness vindicates the name of God, fulfills God's purpose in it, and satisfies God's praise for it. It prevents evil with blessings of goodness.

*"There was a power in this sweet place,
An Eve in this Eden; a ruling grace,
Which to the flowers, did they waken or dream,
Was as God is to the starry scheme."*

—G. Campbell Morgan.

Some one has asked: "What will a generation be like which has grown up with no Christian teaching and moulding at home?" In the face of this reality and this deadly liability, shall we lightly let slip our own home training of our children? The question is far more serious than that—we are already doing it. The question is shall we keep on doing it?

Prayer—Our Father, we gather our little family within these four walls of our home this day to praise thy holy name that we can feel that our home is a part of thy salvation. O God, help us in our weakness to do our part. In his name, we ask it.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

IF WE KEEP ON DOING IT.

"When the righteous turneth away from his righteousness . . . shall he live? . . . in his sin that he hath sinned in them shall he die."—Ezk. 18:24.

"Every one that heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man which built his house upon the sand . . . great was the fall of it."—Matt. 7:26, 27.

If we are disobedient to, or ignore, God's command to keep the fires of Christian teaching and training burning in the home; if we let slip from us the blessings of that life, home will become merely a place where we eat and sleep. Though the home may have all things else—love, friendship, comfort, refinement—it does not fulfill its true ideal unless the influence of real religion is adequately there.

A worldly home cannot be a deeply united home without the union of a common life in God.

Children allowed to grow in a non-worshipful atmosphere—without the quiet gradual awakening and culture of the religious affections cannot grow into maturity with a well rounded character.

Life's greatest blessing to any individual is the rich consciousness of a temple of God within; and the finest compliment which can be paid any one is: "The Lord is in his holy temple."

Prayer—Dear Father of love and mercy, as we worship today, we realize as we never did before that this temple of the Lord is within us, that thy kingdom is within us, and that religion is in daily living. O God, forgive us our desecrations, and make us what we ought to be.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE TEMPLE OF FLESH.

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God?"
"If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."—I. Cor. 3:16, 17.

The church, the state, and all spheres of life are built upon what humanity is at heart. The devotional spirit of man is manifested in personal life. Upon the altar of the personal heart and life, the fire of devout desire must ever be kept burning.

*"There is a secret place of rest
God's saints alone may know;
Thou shalt not find it east or west,
Though seeking to and fro.
A cell where Jesus is the door,
His love the only key;
Who enter will go out no more,
But there with Jesus be."*—Anon.

Prayer—Our dear heavenly Father, we set our hearts toward thee this day. We seek to lose not the view of our Saviour's face. May our every step be along a path of duty and pleasure which like a river makes us glad, and makes glad thy city eternal.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

KEEP THE FIRES BURNING.

"Fire shall be kept burning upon the altar continually."—Lev. 6:13.

Constant, persistent, discretionary, religious home-teaching and training bestows upon the children the tendency to transform the thoughts and acts of life into acts of devotion. The earthly duties of a godly man are all holy to him.

*"Jesus, confirm my heart's desire,
To work and speak and think for thee,
Still let me guard the holy fire,
And still stir up thy gift in me."*

Prayer—O thou, who comest from above, impart unto us the fires of thy sacred love. And may that love be an inextinguishable flame. We render unto thee this day of ours our fervent praise, and pray thee to make us perfect with thy perfect will.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

HOW TO KINDLE THE FIRE.

"When Solomon had made an end of praying, the fire came down from heaven . . . and the glory of the Lord filled the temple."—II. Chron. 7:1.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

There is the answer. The heart is the altar, and the fires of the Holy Spirit are to burn there. The sacrifice to be consumed is the offering one makes to God in his thoughts, his prayers, and his service. The fire of the Holy Spirit which he sends down.

To a great many this does not seem possible. Well, earth can grow no grass on a barren rock, and man's heart is as barren as a rock until the fresh breath of Jesus touches its core and with that breath gives life to blossom with goodness forever.

Prayer—

*"O Lord, descend upon my heart,
Wean it from earth to joys that dwell above,
Lift it from weakness, mighty as thou art,
Teach me to love thee as I ought to love.
"Teach me to feel that thou art always nigh,
Teach me the struggles of the day to bear,
To check the rising tide, the rebel sigh,
Teach me the patience of increasing prayer.
"I ask no dreams, no passing ecstasy,
No ceaseless dwelling in this vale of clay,
Just send thy angel thoughts through opening skies,
And take the dimness of my soul away.
O, take the dimness of my soul away."*

Amen.

SATURDAY.

HOW TO MAINTAIN THE FIRE.

"Whatsoever things are true . . . honest . . . just . . . pure . . . lovely . . . good report, if there is any virtue and if there be any praise think on these things."—Phil. 4:8.

The way to keep the heart aflame with the Holy Spirit is by natural human means. Jewish altars of olden days were kept burning by the priests who removed the ashes and everything that would hinder the fire, and by laying on of wood and watching it ceaselessly.

This is a parable of which the spiritual experience writes its true meaning. It is done first by removing everything from the life that can never mount up toward God; then by going into the inner temple of our being and place there the cultivation of the power to think, the love of the beautiful, obedience to the laws of God; and cultivate there all the graces mentioned in our text. Then let thy soul worship. "Waiting upon the Lord," we renew our strength, we mount up with wings as eagles; we run and are not weary; we walk and are not faint."

Prayer—O Lord, God, Jesus our Saviour, pour out thy Holy Spirit upon us and maintain the work thou hast already begun in us. To this end we lay ourselves upon thy altar. O Lord, come thou. We wait for thee.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

CHRISTIAN VITALITY.

"Pray without ceasing."—I. Thess. 5:17.

"Lord, teach us to pray."—Luke 11:1.

Prayer lies at the foundation of all Christian vitality. It is the crown of human character and the token of spiritual life. Without the power of prayer one is spiritually dead.

If one would live he must breathe. Prayer is the Christian's spiritual breath. If I would be a Christian I must pray. This fact lies beneath everything. Without prayer everything gives way. Without it, I cannot know God's word, I cannot worship, I cannot commune with God, I cannot think holy.

Said an old man, "The greatest error of my life, has been not learning to avail myself, as I should have done, of the help of prayer." Jesus emphasized the importance of this in his own life when he said, "I live by the Father."

Prayer—O Lord, thou who art the only source of all our light and life; thou who art our truth and strength; we bare our inmost souls before thee and ask thee to chastise all that is wrong in them, and teach us to adore thy will. Clear our vision that we may see thee as thou art, and forbid a single thought or act in us that is unworthy of thee. Stir our prayerless hearts, and help us, to make all our work a prayer. In Christ's name we ask it.—Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

HOW HAGGAI HELPED.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"Then came the word of the Lord by Haggai the prophet."—Hag. 1:3.

Let us turn back to a very old book—a tiny little book of only two or three pages, sticking in among other volumes—and get our lesson today. How we revere and like old things! Old homes, old furniture, old pictures, old values that fade not with the years, but grow in beauty and in strength. The book from which our lesson is taken this morning is more than a century old—more than five centuries old—more than two thousand years old—more than five hundred years before the birth of Christ. The date is on the book: "In the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month," which is just the same as saying "520 B. C."

I am a preacher, and when I read this book I am attracted to it at once because in it are sermons. It is the first of those sermons about which I wish to think this morning. It is a sermon from a young prophet that could say: "Thus saith the Lord." It was a sermon that was preached not just to be preaching (shame on the phrase), but it was preached as an issue, and for a particular purpose. In other words it is a real sermon, and not a pretense.

A remnant of God's people had returned from the seventy years of captivity. They had come to rebuild the walls of the city, and to rebuild the temple. They began well. But now for fifteen years they had not worked on the temple. "This people say, the time is not come, the time that the Lord's house should be built." A fifteen year's silence is broken by Haggai. Hear him: "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house (the house of God) to lie in waste." That is a great issue. That is the subject, and text. You have ceiled houses. Beautiful for their pretty cedar finish, comfortable in all their modern appointments. You released captives. You came from captivity with a commission. To rebuild your House of praise, of worship, and of prayer. What have you done? God blessed you, and you took advantage of it for the building of your own beautiful homes, but said "it is not time to build God's house. God spared you from your enemies, and you took advantage of it for the making of your own comfortable living; God was good to you, and you presumed on his mercies to forget his work, and work for yourselves. Your first duty was to God's house. This you have overlooked. For fifteen years you have overlooked it. "You should account for yourselves as servants of God, and stewards of the mysteries of God; it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful" (I. Cor. 4:1, 2, paraphrase); but instead you have simply sought your own interests, and put God off.

"Now, therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts, Consider your ways." An appeal is made to reason. God is coming to them through Haggai and saying let us reason together. How God honors us! How loving, forgiving, longsuffering, and patient he is! "Now let us consider." "Ye have sown much and bring in little." You have gone out into your fields outside the city walls, and you have worked hard; sown much, waited for a great harvest; have made plans to that effect; put in a great deal of anxiety, hard work, good money, education, thought, energy—indeed, you have just staked all on the business—having first built your fine ceiled homes you have set out to pay for them! Oh, Haggai, to whom are you speaking? But it is God speaking and his words have a way about them! His words are eternal words, searching words. They rise again. Yes, you have sown much, but after all you have brought in but little.

"Ye eat, but ye are not filled." How often we hear somebody talking about stomach trouble—too much to eat—cannot eat like I used to—do not seem to find anything that suits me, are all expressions that must have been common twenty-five hundred years ago, when this sermon was being preached. "Ye eat, but ye are not filled," and daintier, food from your flocks, and fields, and vineyards ye are constantly seeking to find. "Ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink." Isn't that modern? "Ye clothe you, but you are not warm." Too much style to be comfortable! Too thin to be warming. God is reasoning with them. Now will you listen to this? "And he that earneth wages earneth wages to be put into a bag." To put into the building and loan society, into the savings department of the bank, to horde away for others to fuss over, thinking as you horde it that your primary intention is to have something for your old age. God is not arguing against thrift, and industry. But he certainly has had Haggai hit the nail on the head when the next words are added: "With holes." Let me re-read the sentence: "And he that earneth wages earneth wages to be put into a bag with holes." That is too modern, and altogether too touchy a subject for me to dwell on just now. Saved and lost; saved and lost. And that ends that section of the sermon.

Now he appeals through Haggai to their emotion. First to their reason and then to their emotion. "Ye looked for much and it came to little; and when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it." Now listen, my children, ye have erred. You looked for much. You wanted much. You tried. That part is all right. You have not been idle, nor even spendthrift. You tried to make a great deal. But when you gathered it all up it was but a very little, and when you brought that home, I blew it away! "Why? Saith the Lord of hosts. Because of mine house that is waste, and ye run every man into his own house," ceiled and comfortable, and beautiful, but unpaid for, while the Lord's house lies in waste, disgrace and shame! But further: "Therefore, the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit. And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn (I'm quoting it now just as it is found in the first chapter of Haggai) and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon cattle, and upon all the labor of the hands." Seems to me like that might bring a depression. That covered everything in that cattle-raising and feeding, wine-growing, hand-crafting people. Here were God's people with the challenge of that particular age hard upon them, calling them to duty, and to the rebuilding of God's altars, to the rebuilding of that which was abiding first, and permanent among that people, calling them to redeem the house of God from destruction, and disgrace, and shame, and they had been now for fifteen years forgetting all about that for themselves. God tells them not to be wondering any more for the cause of that setback. "I called for a drought," he says.

Added to his appeal to their reason, and to their emotion, is now his appeal to their will. How beautiful is this command: "Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the Lord of hosts." Isn't that a challenge? "Go—bring—build." It is the age-old, eternal call of God to his young, strong followers. Go, bring, build! To the mountains for me; to the tall timbers of Lebanon; bring it here like men able to achieve a mighty task. Re-echo it in Jesus. Go ye into the uttermost parts of the earth, bring the glory of the nations into it, and build me a new world, and new heaven and a new earth.

"Then . . . all the remnant of the people obeyed the voice of the Lord their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the Lord their God had (Continued on page 15.)

Christian Orphanage

My Dear Friends:

There was a happy day at the Christian Orphanage on November 16th, when a car loaded from bottom to top with foodstuff was placed on the siding at Elon College marked to the Christian Orphanage.

Some time ago, our good friend, Mr. J. M. Darden, who is chairman of the board of trustees and a tireless worker for the Christian Orphanage and the little children who are making their home here, realizing the short income this year in money, the failure in crops on the Orphanage farm, on account of the extreme drought this year, and wishing to do all in his power to make our burden lighter, conceived the idea of asking the churches in Eastern Virginia and around Suffolk to take part in donating foodstuff and other things that would be useful to the Christian Orphanage in its work, to help load a car to be shipped to the Christian Orphanage. It takes Mr. Darden, with his untiring energy, to push a thing like this across. He solicited the cooperation of the other trustees in Eastern Virginia, Mr. L. R. Jones, Mr. A. L. Jolly, Mr. B. D. Jones and Mr. C. D. West, to get the churches in their communities to work on this project and on November 15th, the car was shipped from Suffolk, Va., loaded to the top.

The following churches had a part in this undertaking: Cypress Chapel, Bethlehem, Damascus, Oak Grove, Liberty Spring, Oakland, Windsor, Antioch, Franklin, Holland, Holy Neck, Beaver Dam, Mt. Carmel, Eure, Suffolk; and the following friends and corporations joined in this splendid undertaking: J. W. Woodsworth, H. W. Stephenson, Holland & Beamon, Suffolk Oil Mills, Suffolk Peanut Co., H. M. Pinner, B. W. Godwin, Nansemond Grocery Co., Lummis & Co., R. N. Baker. The car was loaded with sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, peanuts, corn, pop-corn, canned goods, turnips, flour, box of clothing, lard, hams, chickens, beans, pears, meat, cabbage, sugar, peanut meal, syrup, cotton seed meal and a number of other things that fit in splendidly with our work here.

No one knows the joy that it brought to the heart of every member of the Orphanage family when this car was opened up and the wagons and trucks began to haul it out to the buildings. Even the mules and cattle looked happy when they saw the corn meal and foodstuff for them.

The Christian Orphanage management cannot express its thanks in words for this splendid contribution from our splendid good folks in Virginia. Then one thing we appreciate as much as any other one thing is the sweet spirit in which it was gotten together and loaded on the car and shipped to us. We want to thank each and every church and each and every individual for their cooperation and contributions and the assistance they rendered in helping Mr. Darden to put this splendid idea into effect.

We very happily remember some fifteen years ago, when the hail-storm ruined our entire crop the last days of July and Mr. Darden, with the help of a number of churches in Virginia and friends, shipped us a carload of foodstuff to help us bridge the great loss we had sustained.

Our earnest prayer is that the Lord will richly bless each and every one who had a part in this splendid contribution. We have read in the papers where other orphanages would receive carloads of foodstuff, and we have wondered if some time somebody would send us a whole carload of foodstuff, and our wish and dream has come to pass this year when we were so badly in need.

Our children had a happy Thanksgiving, and a splendid chicken dinner.

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

sent him, and the people did fear before the Lord." And Haggai told them for God, saying: "I am with you saith the Lord . . . and be strong, all ye people of the land, and work; for I am with you saith the Lord of hosts. According to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so my Spirit remaineth among you, fear not. . . . And I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come: and I will fill this house with glory, saith the Lord of hosts. The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts. The glory of this house shall be greater than of the former . . . and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts." What a challenge to us, and to all nations, is Haggai!

ELON COLLEGEAN ACCREDITED COLLEGEof theCONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST*WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

OBITUARIES

GLASSCOCK.

The sympathy of Virgilina and community goes out to Brother and Sister Willie Glasscock in their time of deep sorrow occasioned by the death of their little daughter, Rosa May, aged thirteen months, which occurred October 28, 1932.

She was sick with pneumonia only four days. The service and burial were conducted by the writer at the Glasscock cemetery near Virgilina, Va., on Sunday afternoon, October 30th.

Besides the father and mother, there are surviving four brothers and sisters. The parents realize that their loved one cannot come back to them, but they can go to her.

C. E. NEWMAN.

HOLSINGER.

Perry Lee Holsinger was born February 14, 1860, and died October 20, 1932, as the result of an accident several days previously. Bro. Holsinger was 72 years, 8 months and 6 days old. He was highly respected and regarded as a good man in his community.

He is survived by his widow, three daughters and two sons.

A large congregation attended the funeral services, which were held at Fairview Church, near his late home, October 23, 1932, conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. M. L. Weekley.

In his death the Bethlehem Christian Church has lost a good member, and the community a good neighbor and citizen.

A. W. ANDES.

MINOR.

Mrs. Mary Jane Minor was born in Rockingham County, N. C., February 14, 1845, and departed this life October 17, 1932, reaching the ripe age of 87 years, 8 months and 3 days. She was the mother of four children, two of whom survive her, namely: Mrs. Fannie Smith, Greensboro, N. C., and Mr. T. R. Minor, Reidsville, N. C., R. F. D. Her husband preceded her about 18 years ago to the spirit land.

She leaves, to mourn their loss, a son and daughter, 16 grandchildren, 25 great-grandchildren, and a number of relatives and a host of friends.

Mrs. Minor confessed Christ in her youthful days, and joined the Concord Church, where she was ever faithful, consistent and loyal unto the end. She displayed a beautiful Christian spirit and neighborly attitude during her earthly career. A good woman has gone.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, at Concord, amid a large congregation. The floral offerings were beautiful.

New York Charters Many Breweries.—

Since the election many breweries have made applications for charters representing a capitalization of as many as five figures. Edward J. Flynn, Secretary of State, says that dozens of these applications have been accepted by the State of New York during the past month, and charters issued covering millions of dollars.

Dr. Few Heads Southern Association.—

At the recent session of the Southern Association of Colleges, held at New Orleans, La., the president of Duke University was elected president of that body by an overwhelming majority. Dr. W. P. Few has for many years been prominent in the educational work of the Old North State, and is capable of giving the Southern Association one of the best administrations it has ever known. Our people will remember that it was through his initiative that the educational agreement between Duke University and Elon College, now in effect, was perfected.

Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell Resigns.—

After twenty-three years as president of Harvard University, Dr. Lowell has offered his resignation as the head of that institution. While no reason was assigned for his resignation, his age is thought to have been the primary cause, as he will soon be 76 years old. When Dr. Lowell assumed the office of president in 1909, Harvard had an enrollment of 3,882. He leaves it with an enrollment of over 8,000 students, and an endowment of nearly one hundred and twenty-five million dollars, the largest of any institution of higher learning in the United States. Among his possible successors, the name of President Hoover has received prominent mention.

Unemployment and the Palestine Movement.—

Three Rabbis, Mayer Berlin, J. L. Fischman and Aran Bib-Nun, have recently arrived from Palestine on their way to the American Misrachi Organization in Buffalo, N. Y. They are authority for the statement that the Holy Land is "the one place in the world that has not one unemployed man." These Rabbis are vitally interested in the migration of Jews to Jerusalem, and say that the Jewish population of Jerusalem has grown from 50,000 in 1917, to over 220,000 today. Present economic conditions have resulted in a large exodus of Jews from the United States, and many Jews believe that the wonderful prophecies of the final restoration of Israel to their own promised land are being fulfilled, and that the divine purpose of God concerning his chosen people is being marvelously worked out.

Rats.—

A series of meetings have been going on in the vicinity of Vadala, India, following the return of representatives to a course on rural work conducted by the Presbyterian Mission. The groups have talked about cows, chickens, seeds and even rats. In order to exterminate the last-named pests one group prepared over 1,000 barium carbonate pills and then went from house to house in Vadala—Christian, Hindu and Moslem—distributing the pills. Only three refused to use them, a Brahmin, and two Jains whose religion prevents them from taking life in any form down to minute insects. Reports showed an effective campaign against rats. Constructive work along other lines is planned so that members of different religions may work together for the good of the community.

"A Senator for a Day."—

It is probable that the all-time record, not for length of term but for shortness, will be held by Walter Walker, new Democratic Senator from Colorado. Traveling by automobile 390 miles over snow-covered roads, this stocky Westerner completed his 2,100-mile trip to Washington by plane in approximately thirty-six hours, arriving twenty-five minutes ahead of schedule, and giving his party a temporary plurality. Senator Walker will serve for only a day or two and will then be succeeded by a Republican, again switching the Senate plurality back to that party. Appointed to serve the unexpired term of the late Senator Waterman, a special election intervened before he could take office, and he was defeated by his Republican opponent, Karl C. Schuyler, by a few thousand votes. Then, before the ballots could be finally tabulated and Schuyler's election certified, the convening Congress came along, and Walker dashed eastward to assume his toga. Senator-elect Schuyler, incidentally a personal friend, was present when Walker took the oath of office, and expects to replace him as soon as his credentials arrive.

Skating on Thin Ice.—

Compromising with sin is a dangerous sport. We have no quarrel with the man who believes he is right, though that belief may differ from ours, but it is high time that church people live up to their beliefs. Only a transfer of six votes would have been necessary to have passed the Garner resolution providing for a repeal amendment. As it was, the vote stood 271 for repeal and only 144 against. Virginia cast a solid vote for unqualified repeal, though with almost the same delegation at the last session of Congress, the wets could muster only three votes. Congressman Lankford, we believe, expressed the position of many others who voted wet. He declared, in substance, that while he had not changed his opinion personally, he believed that the mandate of his State compelled him to vote as his successor in office would have voted had he been a member of this Congress. The vote, while a technical victory for the prohibition forces of the country, was certainly a moral victory for the wets. Possibly after all, the church is not as much to blame for conditions as we first think; possibly the church did its best, but that it, through lack of closeness to its great task, has become much weaker than we think. God forbid, but it may be so.

Five Factors of School Efficiency.—

While no hide-bound rules can be laid down in determining school efficiency, the following factors are given by the National Education Association as being of the utmost importance: Amount of attendance, holding power, teachers' salaries, value of school property, literacy. The University of Virginia has just issued a bulletin giving the standing of the various States when these five factors are considered. The bulletin is quite lengthy, but we can only give a partial summary of what it says: "The amount of school attendance is of basic importance as a measure of the effectiveness of school systems. No matter how excellent our educational facilities and how up-to-date our school plants and our teaching methods, school systems are effective only insofar as they reach those for whom they were primarily provided." Securing proper attendance, then, is of first importance. Then the "holding power" is an essential. It is comparatively easy to hold pupils during the earlier years, but every means available is necessary in the latter years, and it has been found that while the price a teacher is paid does not determine his efficiency, yet higher salaries do attract a better class of teachers and eventually provide improved holding power. The value of the school property, including both buildings and equipment is also used as a factor in comparing the relative standing of States, for equipment is essential both because of its holding power and because of its educative value. And finally literacy itself has a great bearing upon school efficiency. The more illiterate a community, the harder it is to show the necessity for school training. Thus we have the five factors which are considered by the association in determining school efficiency. The bulletin referred to gives the present standing of the forty-eight States on these factors. "No attempt is made to discuss the standing of the States," it says. "However, it is a cause of alarm that the twelve States ranking lowest in each of the five factors are in the southern half of the country, with the largest proportion in the Southeast." No investment pays a better return than the money spent for education. This applies individually as well as collectively. It might be further added that one of the best investments that a church constituency can make is in educational institutions that give it leadership.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN has waited faithfully through the year, and at expense of labor and money, has gone to your home regularly, and now very much needs, as it richly deserves, your renewal. Why not renew today? Please!

Dr. J. Edward Kirby, United Church, Raleigh, turns out to be a poet as well as preacher. His poems, by request of the Raleigh station, have been given, five of them, now, to radio-land. One of these poems, we present in another column: "The Rose Red Sun," and this will be appreciated by those who have enjoyed recently the rich riot of color over field and forest, and "The Rose Red Sun" of the approaching evening hour.

Arthur Swartz, Vanderbilt University graduate, began service as pastor of Albemarle, N. C., November 1st. He comes well prepared and with a good reputation to this growing field. For the time being, two Sundays in the month, he will serve the Salisbury Church, part of Trinity Parish, as assistant pastor to Rev. W. T. Scott. But his main work will be in Albemarle, where he will be ordained at some near future date.

The pastor-at-large had the pleasure and the privilege of speaking at the chapel service at Piedmont College, October 31st. It was an appreciative audience before him as he rose to speak. Students from many denominations, alert, ready, progressive—many of them working their way through. Room is crowded, the dean said. They would hardly know what to do if more came. And despite the hard times, 48 per cent more are paying, without help, their own way this year than did last year. The student spirit and faculty loyalty are marked factors at Piedmont. They are all friends in this college.

The pastor-at-large, in giving his annual report to the Georgia Conference, stated that he had during the last twelve months visited 129 churches, preached 68 sermons, held 148 conferences, given 42 addresses outside of sermons, attended Sunday School 45 times, given innumerable individual interviews and traveled 28,340 miles. Part of this was done in the Carolinas, but it indicates something of the demands of the field. He further stated: "During the time I have been serving you in the capacity of pastor-at-large (two and one-half years), there has been no time for vacation. It is an all-year-round job."

Bro. J. T. Rowland, prominent, popular and beloved citizen of Raleigh, N. C., died at his home in that city, Monday, November 28th, and was buried, the funeral services being held from the home, in the city cemetery, November 29th, a great number of the citizens of Raleigh and surrounding community attending the obsequies. The floral offerings were elaborate and beautiful. The deceased was the only brother of Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., of our First Church, Greensboro, and was his senior by two years. He leaves a widow and son, who, with Dr. Rowland and the other members of the family, have our sympathy in this hour of bereavement.

Mrs. Elizabeth Everett, widowed and oldest sister of THE SUN's editor, J. O. Atkinson, died at the home of her son in Wake County, N. C., Saturday morning, December 3rd, the funeral being conducted on Sunday, the 4th, from the home.

A most pious and godly woman, having reared a family of six—three sons and three daughters—to honorable manhood and womanhood, and having been preceded to the grave several years by her husband, goes to join that larger circle of her friends and loved ones in that brighter, better world, the citizenship of which, through consecration to her God, she had joined in early girlhood, and to which she remained faithful, true and loyal through a life of more than seventy years.

Dr. Adam Daniel Beittel has been called as interim pastor to the Collegieside Church, Nashville, Tenn., effective from November 1, 1932, to July 1, 1933, with the sincere hope that the relationship may become permanent. Dr. Beittel was born in Lancaster, Pa., in 1898. He attended and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Findlay College, at Findlay, O., in 1922. He received his Master of Arts degree from Oberlin College in 1923, and his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Chicago University in 1925. For the next two years Dr. Beittel was pastor of the Congregational Church at Columbus, Montana, after which he returned to Chicago University, where he received his Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1929. Since 1929, he has been Professor of Biblical Literature and Church History at Earlham College in Richmond, Ind. During the summer of 1931, Dr. Beittel studied in Europe, and traveled through Russia. Dr. and Mrs. Beittel have two sons, five and three years old. They will reside at Collegieside House, 1126 Nineteenth Avenue, South, Nashville, Tenn.

THE ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

The Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches held its annual meeting at Mt. Olive Congregational Church, Tallassee, of which Rev. H. M. Gray, a Christian, is pastor. On the program some twenty-five pastors talked on themes of particular interest to them. Rev. G. D. Hunt, who was thought to be elected to the last Alabama legislature, but who was not accorded the office, and was glad not to be a legislator at this time, led the conference in a round-table talk on the topic, "The Fight on Liquor." As a result of the discussions, the conference committee, shortly before the election, sent out an information sheet noting the positions on the prohibition issue of the various Alabama candidates for Congress of the United States.

An interesting feature of the conference was the ordination of Prof. A. R. VanCleave. Those having special parts in the ordination services were Frank E. Jenkins, Simon A. Bennett, E. H. Sperow, and F. P. Ensminger. Southern Union College sent to the conference a delegation consisting of Dr. Jenkins, Dr. Charles A. Mohr, Professors Simon A. Bennett, A. R. VanCleave, E. H. Sperow, Rev. G. H. Veazey, treasurer.

Miss Helen Jenkins made an excellent report on Thorsby Institute, which is conducted without debt.

Dr. William T. Morgan, of Birmingham, delivered the conference sermon, and gave the message in the pastor's retreat. The young people's rally was conducted by Miss Marguerite Davison, Rev. A. R. Van Cleave making the address. Rev. C. W. Carter was chosen moderator of the conference for the coming year. Through the generosity of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference, the Alabama Conference is happy in receiving into its bounds the three churches of the first Conference which are located across the line in Alabama, at Lanett, Langdale and Phenix City. The Lanett Church is now the largest Christian Church in Alabama. At the annual meeting of the Alabama Christian Conference, it was arranged to have a federation with the East Alabama Congregational Association, which is a much smaller group. Each organization will continue to have brief meetings to attend to its financial affairs and to the status of its ministers. The new group will be the strongest of the five associations in the Alabama Conference and may be properly termed the East Alabama Association of Congregational and Christian Churches.

CHRISTIAN LIFE CONFERENCE.

Christian Citizenship was the very appropriate theme for the conference held on Armistice Day week-end, November 11th-14th, at Wadley, Ala. The young people gathered from all over the Eastern part of Alabama for their second week-end conference. This year each church was limited to six delegates so that more churches could be represented without burdening the Wadley people too heavily. Seven churches were represented with full delegations and others by single delegates. Each group took an active part in the program, led worship services, joined in discussion, and performed stunts. There was such a fine spirit shown by all of the groups that it was very hard to decide which one deserved the award for contributing the most to the spirit of the conference. Finally the committee gave it to Lanett, a newcomer to the group, because of the realignment of the border line churches between Georgia and Alabama. Lanett is a real addition to the Alabama group.

Different phases of Christian citizenship were discussed under the leadership of Professors Bennett and VanCleave, Dean Satterfield, and Dr. Ensminger. Addresses were made by Dr. W. T. Morgan of Birmingham, Dr. Jenkins, Dr. Mohr, Rev. Jesse Dollar, and Dr. Ensminger. One of the students at Southern Union, a young minister, took charge of the morning service Sunday, assisted by the Southern Union Glee Club and friends from his home church, Noon Day.

The recreational part of the conference was not neglected for all enjoyed a jolly get-acquainted social Friday night, under the direction of Mrs. Bennett, Prof. VanCleave and a committee. At this time the group stunts were given by five delegations. A recreational hour between the two morning sessions was conducted by the Roanoke young people. Games and a picnic lunch gave the group an opportunity to enjoy the warmer part of the day out-of-doors. The banquet was the gala occasion and about one hundred and fifteen attended. It was a Peace Banquet and the decorations of leaves and doves, the toasts and addresses accentuated that theme. Musical selections were rendered by the Glee Club, by Miss Marciai Hamlin and by Miss Ruth Frisbie, a very welcome visitor from Tallassee, who shared her lovely voice with us at two of our sessions. Sunday morning the group gathered in Wadley Park to cook breakfast and to hold a devotional meeting. After church the ladies of the town spread dinner for the group, and gave us a fine fellowship hour about the tables.

At the final business session officers for the year 1933 were elected as follows: President, Mr. John Knight, of Lanett; vice-president, Miss Fay Hill, of Pleasant Grove; secretary, Miss Buna Veazey, of Wadley. Many thanks were due the retiring president, Mr. Klein Hood, and the secretary, Miss Eunice Stephens, for their earnest efforts in behalf of the conference. The young people pledged their loyalty to the Summer School for Leadership Training to be held at Wadley, July 27th to August 3, 1933. The results of the series of summer schools held in past years are obvious in the fine group of young leaders springing up in the Christian Churches of East Alabama. We hope the Congregational young people of that section will take advantage of these opportunities for training leaders among them.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

The Congregational Community Church of Birmingham recently celebrated its first birthday under the ministry of Dr. Trevor Mordecai, with a dinner and annual meeting at which the majority of its five hundred enthusiastic members were present.

Visiting speakers included Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, associate secretary of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, from New York; Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, secretary of the denomination's eastern division, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. Fred P. Ensminger, superintendent of the Alabama Conference.

Reports read and talks given revealed that in the years' time the original membership had more than doubled, a Church School of over 250 enrollment had been organized, an active Woman's Guild of large membership formed, home and foreign mission projects supported, and the important social service in which Dr. Mordecai has been active since coming to Birmingham seven years ago, actively forwarded.

It was further emphasized that the new church has financed all its own current expenses, paid all its operating bills, and had practically wiped out a small indebtedness incurred in organizing and equipping its temporary quarters at the outset, while assets were on the organization's books ample to cover even this small balance.

The meeting was the first to be held in the Community Church's newly-optioned property on 8th Avenue North at 19th Street, where the building of a large woman's club, including an auditorium seating 500, has just been occupied.

The first mid-week meeting and church night meeting saw an audience of 125. Beginning with Sunday morning, October 23rd, all church services have been held in this comparatively small auditorium, a move precipitated suddenly by the action of the Alabama legislature in repealing, so far as the state's larger cities are concerned, previous laws which required moving picture shows to remain closed on Sundays. As a result of this legislative action, the Community Church loses its regular place of worship in a moving picture theatre.

The emergency nature of the move is indicated by the fact that the theatre had already proved too small for the crowds seeking admission to the Congregational evening services. After accommodating the 1,100 persons that were the theatre's maximum capacity, crowds numbering several hundreds of late comers have been regularly turned away of late during the preaching of a particular series of evening sermons.

The handicapping of the pulpit work by the forced move to the smaller auditorium is receiving the full consideration of the local officers and members, and plans are being set in motion for construction and equipping at the new location of a new auditorium capable of seating at least 1,000 worshippers in comfort. The necessity of turning away people in the interim is adding an urgency to plans and efforts that it is hoped will shorten the building period to a minimum.

Originally formed by a large proportion of the membership of the Birmingham First Presbyterian Church following Dr. Mordecai into the Congregational fellowship, the new church has grown rapidly and substantially under the force of its own objective of offering the widest possible ministry to the center of a large industrial city.

F. P. ENSMINGER.

IN ALABAMA.

We have just moved to our new home in Roanoke, Ala. We hated so much to give up our friends at Lanett. They had been so nice to us for the past five years, and it is always hard to part from friends.

We have gone to Noonday, Rock Stand, Mt. Zion, and Antioch, all since conference, and will go to Pleasant Grove tomorrow, the Lord willing. These five churches have called me for another year. Rock Stand is our old home church where we received our first call as pastor in 1908. We have served them fourteen years, and have been away from them four years.

Mt. Zion is where I gave my heart to God and joined the church, when I was twelve years old. We served them thirteen years and have been away five years.

We have served Noonday ten years in all, and have served them for three years from Lanett. These are all good people, and very appreciative.

Last Sunday was our first trip to Antioch, and we found a very enthusiastic congregation awaiting us. They found that we were moving.

Tuesday last Bro. Dock Landers and his good wife drove up in their car, bringing us flour, meat, sweet and Irish potatoes, syrup, canned berries, butter, eggs and chicken. Pretty soon Bro. Charlie Birdsong drove up with a load of nice dry stove wood. And then on Thursday morning, Bro. Vernon Brand drove up with a load of wood. So we find some good and thoughtful friends, and we do not have words to express our appreciation to them. Pray for us that God will help us to be the pastor that these five churches need. We expect to give them the best service we are capable of rendering. We are hoping for and expecting a good year.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

CHURCH UNION.

The recent union of the three branches of Methodism in Great Britain has emphasized afresh the trend toward church and denominational union. Following the merger, the Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the Anglican Church of Great Britain, and the moderator of the Free Churches, united in sending to all the churches of both groups in Great Britain letters appealing for a closer union of the churches "under a common consciousness of responsibility for the spiritual care of the people in face of a civilization increasingly secular, and for a more concerted policy in carrying out those tasks for which the Christian Church exists."

Church union is in the atmosphere, and the complete merger of three of the leading denominations of Canada, and of the Congregationalists and Christians in the United States, has shown to the church world that there is much to gain and nothing to lose by uniting separate bodies of Protestantism. Some years ago Dr. John R. Mott declared that a Christless world was the price that a divided Protestantism was paying for its division into numerous creeds and sects. Dr. Mott is now quoted as saying "that within the next ten years the Protestant forces of America will be united to such a degree that we shall hardly be able to recognize the situation in contrast with what obtains today."

As long as there is overlapping of denominational lines and interests, extravagance in keeping up vain competition between Protestantism of similar and almost identical faiths and beliefs, this world will not be taken for Christ. A divided army never marshals its whole strength, and only by a united and concentrated effort can the enemy of souls and of society be vanquished.

PERSONAL CONVERSION.

The findings of the Committee of Inquiry (a laymen's committee which went abroad to study the whole question of foreign missions), are creating quite a sensation, some receiving with approval, some rejecting with severe criticism, the report as now printed and given to the public. THE SUN will have more to say of this report, though already two estimates have been given in THE SUN, one favoring, the other criticizing. THE SUN's editor has not read the whole report, which is quite voluminous, but he came to at least one point with which he finds himself in heartiest accord. The committee declares that while the clamor is for community uplift and social betterment at home and abroad, neither those on the foreign field, nor the Christian workers at home, should forget the fact that the foundation of society is the individual, and there is no substitute for individual regeneration, personal conversion, a turning away of the individual from darkness to light, and from the world to the Saviour of the world. The committee does well to put its emphasis there, since that salient fact seems often to be ignored by the preachers of "the social gospel."

And all this fits quite well with the now well-known Herrnhut statement, given to the press in July, one hundred years after the going out of the first modern Moravian missionaries. This statement declares: "Our aim is the personal conversion of men to a new life in Christ, to complete surrender to God, and to new relations of love with their fellowmen. From a true conversion of heart and mind there must follow a new discernment of ways of living that are in accordance with the mind of Christ, and a new determination to wage war on the evils of society and to redress the wrongs of the world."

The moral and spiritual current of society can rise no higher than the moral and spiritual standard of the individuals who compose society.

WAR DEBTS.

The papers are telling us not a little about the war debts and the nations beyond the seas are learning to hate us quite heartily. This is frequently the case of a creditor who has been over-indulged and is called upon to pay. In time of their need and our plenty, we loaned with quite a lavish hand. The total debts of European nations to the United States are about eleven and one-half billion dollars. Lengthen this payment out for a period of sixty years, as was agreed upon in war debt settlements, and add the interest to the unpaid principal, even if the annual payments were made promptly, and the total indebtedness would be twenty-two billion dollars. Of this amount approximately two and one-half billion dollars have been paid. The nations of Europe are finding it now very difficult to pay, because of world-wide depression, the reduction of foreign trade because of high tariff, and the virtual cancellation of reparations from Germany, Germany being the chief debtor to the nations that owe us, and Germany cannot pay. The World War has not ended. Its fruits, its follies and its foibles are with us in abundance. The debtor nations of Europe are pleading for time. extension of the moratorium, for any consideration, that will allow them to recover and get in position to pay. It is a problem that the present Congress will have to face, and possibly the Congress will show us how nations impoverished and practically bankrupt can pay debts contracted in time of plenty. This is usually the way of debts and obligations in this world. As individuals we borrow and plunge deep into debt during days of prosperity, and then when the days of adversity come, we are called upon to pay. Verily, debt is one of the most cruel task-masters. And many of us now are in position to applaud Paul, who wrote: "Owe no man anything, but to love one another; for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."

J. O. A.

IF REPEAL COMES.

If prohibition fails and is repealed, it will be by the work of its foes, and not of its friends. From the day the amendment and the law were passed to this good hour, the wets, and those who love liquor and long for their beer, have never ceased in their propaganda for the return of the legalized sale of liquor and beer. If now the victory comes, be it understood that it will be their work, and not the work of the dry element of the country.

One other fact. The argument against prohibition has not been against the virtues and the worth of the amendment and the Volstead act, but against the failure to enforce. Thus our government tacitly acknowledges, when it repeals the law, that it has failed in carrying out a law which it willfully and deliberately enacted by the greatest majority given any part of the organic law of the country.

And then one other fact. If prohibition fails, it will not be because of the cost of enforcement, or attempted enforcement, since the profit to the government for fines and confiscated property has been about $25,000,000 a year—this much over and above the expense of enforcement. These, with the record that the drinking of liquor in the United States has decreased 64 per cent and the drinking of milk has increased 28 per cent since prohibition was passed, and the further fact that thirty million new savings accounts have been opened up and 400,000 new homes have been built annually, and that there has been an annual increase of $68,000,000 in life insurance and 300 per cent increase in college attendance since prohibition began. Such facts as these, we say, will be very difficult to face and to argue away as we come, and if we come, to prohibition repeal.

WHAT WE OWE TO FOREIGN MISSIONS.

It took a converted Brahmin from far-off India to tell us that. Maybe his name is worth remembering—Narayan Sheshadri—and he was speaking to an audience in Philadelphia, and certainly was acquainted with our ancestral history. He knew very well what a time missionaries had, convincing our Anglo-Saxon forebears of the merit and worth of Christianity and how they were, through foreign missionaries, finally won, some of them, to Christ. What that Brahmin from India told his audience in Philadelphia was a plenty, and since it summarizes history and declares eternal facts, we give his own words as reported in the press:

"This cultured audience convinces me that missions pay. Long after India had reached a high state of civilization, your ancestors were barbarous and degraded heathen. It was foreign missions in the early days of Christianity that lifted them out of this state, and gave them and you, their descendants, the Christian civilization and enlightenment you now enjoy. You owe what you are to foreign missions."

Which causes one to conclude that only ignorance, ingratitude or superstition, prevents any Christian from doing something to pay the debt he owes to foreign missions.

WHAT YOUR DOLLAR A MONTH WILL DO.

The Dollar-a-Month Club is being organized with a view of securing 5,000 members as soon as possible to enable Elon College to do several things.

First, if we secure these memberships, we shall balance our budget, for the president has greatly reduced the current expenses of the institution without reducing the efficiency of the service.

Second, we shall be able to liquidate our most urgent obligations which disturb the minds of all friends of the college. Your dollar a month will enable the college to multiply friends of the college by making it possible for the largest number of persons to share in the educational interests of the church. This opportunity is in the reach of almost all. About three cents a day to save Elon College is not much, and more than 5,000 persons can do this much, and more, if they try. With ten cents a day, you can take three memberships.

Your dollar a month will enable the college to prove that there are those who love the institution and inspire others to help liquidate all indebtedness in the course of time. It would inspire the workers here at the college to undertake even greater things for the educational interests of the church. It would enable us to receive not only the moral support of the Congregationalists, but 5,000 members of the Christians in the Dollar-a-Month Club, paying $5,000 monthly, would inspire them to believe in our loyalty, our devotion, our self-sacrifice and our determination to the extent that they would rally to our assistance and help us remove the burden that we are carrying and set the college free to undertake greater tasks. This, in turn, would inspire general educational agencies, and foundations to contribute to an endowment, which would enable us to carry on without contracting further debt.

If you, and each of you, five thousand strong, would unite with the Dollar-a-Month Club, our president agrees to pay the college out of debt and build two dormitories within a period of ten years—not with the proceeds of the income from the Club, but with this income and other financial assistance which this Club would inspire.

Your dollar a month, with the rest of the 5,000 members, would give assurance to our creditors so that they would give us all the time necessary to pay all our obligations without further embarrassment. If you had no doubt about these results, you say to yourself, that you would not mind making the sacrifice, or rather enjoying the pleasure of assisting in this glorious undertaking. Well, you need have no further doubt, with such a leader as we have in our president. With him, the morale and confidence of our constituency are rapidly developing. The spirit of the college and community was never finer than at the present. The contagion of this spirit is rapidly spreading and the whole church is becoming inspired with confidence that the college shall live and support be given without further doubt of the outcome.

Your dollar a month, with the economy practiced by the president, with his wise business policy, with his reduction of the current expenses to less than one-half, with the cooperation of others of like mind, with the inspiration of our people generally, with the increased patronage, with the support of the Congregational brethren, and with larger gifts from educational foundations that are ready to assist all safe and worthy educational institutions, and with our unsurpassed physical equipment, which we shall have paid for, with our superior laboratories and splendid library, we shall win our goal, reach our ambition and bring great joy to all lovers of education.

Will you join the Club without waiting to be urged? You will enjoy it so much more to feel that you are a voluntary member of such a valuable organization.

W. C. WICKER.

IN THESE DAYS OF—

The other day we read a very striking and noteworthy thing. The writer declared that in these days of organization and activity, we had reached the point in public life where we were inclined to break up into small groups, and out of our discussions and deliberations creating more heat than light. This thought is worth pondering. If it is true, and we are inclined to think it is, it is a strong indictment against our organized life.

To think is to differ. To differ is no breach of candid and honest convictions. To disagree with our fellowman is no parliamentary crime against any council or counsellors. To disagree and to differ without considering the ultimate consequences of what the difference may mean opens the avenues to a breach that may not be healed and a hindrance that may not be overcome.

It certainly does stand as a known fact, that too often the difference of opinion may lead to a separation in love and affection. This simple matter of disliking an individual because he or she may differ in thought, is one of the pangs filled with deadly poison, that works toward the undermining of the brotherhood of man. It is the sure sign of a small soul, a mediocre mind, and a limited vision of worth-while things for an individual to disrespect, disown from social life, and ignore in public life the person or persons who may not think and act and do as his or her critic may think and act and do.

There must be an answer to these things—and that answer it seems to us lies in the realm of selfishness. Too many of us put an exalted premium on our own opinion. Too many of us do not know the first chapter in the Book of Toleration. We have not learned that to blend our minds, our souls, our acts and our undertakings, is to work out and bring forth that which is best and most beneficial to all. If we could but forget our personal views; if we could only lay aside those things which serve our personal desires, not to say aggressions, the organizations and activities of our day would come more nearly filling their needed places in the realm of human service.

Shall we be the creators of heat or the givers of light—that light shall open our blinded eyes and be a torch that shall guide us toward the goal of better things? This is the question mark that hangs in a blazon manner across the pathway where human beings trod. Shall we triumph over it, or shall we stand before it selfishly satisfied, blocking the progress of our day and generation?

Give The Sun for Christmas

We know of no more appropriate Christmas Gift than your church paper. Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

We will also send an announcement card stating that the paper is being sent by you, and wishing for them a whole year of happiness.

In addition to this, as a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each Christmas Gift subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

On Monday evening, November 28th, the Philathea Class of the Suffolk Christian Church held its regular monthly business session, and celebrated its 19th anniversary. The class was entertained by the teacher, Col. J. E. West, and his wife. Mrs. R. O. Harvey is president; Mrs. G. P. Pond, secretary, and Miss Victoria Ellis, treasurer. The class has an interesting history. It gives liberally to the support of the local church, and to the orphanage, missions, Elon College and other benevolences. A splendid program of vocal solos and duets was given by Mrs. Ruth Taylor Vann and Mr. Edwin Richardson, accompanied by Mrs. C. R. Wallace. After the business session, a banquet was served in the social hall. Interesting talks were made by the toastmaster, Col. J. E. West, Mrs. I. W. Johnson, the first president, Dr. J. E. Rawles, teacher of the Junior Philathea Class, and Rev. H. S. Hardcastle. The writer added a few feeble remarks. It was a delightful occasion.

The Suffolk Christian Church lost a worthy member in the death of Mrs. Nora Butler, widow of the late John M. Butler. Mrs. Butler was for many years the superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday School. In this work she acted as superintendent of the Cradle Roll. She and Dr. Staley organized the Cradle Roll in the Suffolk Christian Sunday School many years before this department was recognized by many of the denominations. Hundreds of children were added to the school and received their first instruction and training in "Miss Nora's department." She was devoted to her work. She loved the children and they loved her.

The funeral was held in the Suffolk Christian Church, on Monday, November 28th, and was conducted by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle and the writer. She is survived by a brother who lives in Norfolk, Va., and two sons, James and Charles Butler, of Suffolk, Va.

The funeral of the late John Frank Turner, who died Sunday, November 27, 1932, was conducted by the writer and Rev. R. E. Brittle, on Monday, November 28th, in the Liberty Spring Christian Church. Mr. Turner was 72 years, 11 months and 1 day old. His wife died several years ago, leaving him to care for a family of five small children. He reared these children to manhood and womanhood, and they are faithful members of the church. He is survived by two sons: James T. and Jesse F. Turner, two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Duke and Mrs. W. E. Duke, seven grandchildren, and three sisters: Mrs. Chas. Badger, Miss Laura Turner, of Nansemond Co., Va., and Mrs. C. E. Hanbury, of Great Bridge.

Mr. Turner united with the Liberty Spring Christian Church when a young boy, and was a consistent member at the time of his death. For more than twenty years he was the sexton of the church. In all of his work he was very faithful. He was deeply interested in the church, and was conscientious in the discharge of his duty. He was sincere, and was honored and respected by all who knew him. His life and character commanded the confidence of the community.

This writer has officiated at nine marriages and twelve funerals since the annual conference met at Waverly, November 2nd-4th. Life reveals many extremes. Births and deaths, sickness and health, marriages and funerals, poverty and wealth, famine and plenty, hunger and banquets, joy and sorrow—all claim the attention of the Christian religion. It is glorious to know that the Gospel of Jesus Christ has a message for every person, and for every experience of mankind. It touches every note in the scale of music. It climbs the stairs to attics and kneels beside the cots of the poor. It asks a Father's blessing upon a cup of water and the piece of bread. It waits in drawing rooms of palaces to call the devotees of luxury and indulgence to "seek ye first the kingdom of God." The Gospel can supply balm for our pain and comfort for our sorrow. Jesus Christ stands in the midst of the people, saying: "Give ye them to eat," "Come unto me—I will give you rest."

I. W. JOHNSON.

A CHRISTMAS OFFERING.

This is a generous season of the year—generous in thought, in deed and in contribution. The greatest giver of all hath set for us the high example. He gave his Son that we might ourselves have sonship through him. Mankind seems to have fallen in line, and with every passing year this spirit of generosity has apparently been accentuated; all become objects of benefactions: family and friend, the poor and needy, churches and institutions. Oftentimes our gifts are small, far smaller than they should be, but even so, they help. They help both the giver and the receiver. He who refuses to give unwittingly, impoverishes himself. He who gives and gives in the spirit of the great Benefactor greatly enriches himself. Life is enriched insofar as it enriches others. We enrich others by sharing with them that that has been lent us. Already we are beginning to purchase and prepare for our friends little remembrances, which are to go as our "Christmas gifts."

From whence hath come this universal spirit of beneficence? Did it not come from the hand and heart of God? Out of gratitude divine, then let us bring our gifts, our gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh, and cast them at his feet in humble recognition. Of course, we will not journey to far-away Bethlehem and there lay our gifts of purse, of heart and of healing, and if we should, we would not find there the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger any more than we find him at our own door. He is here, there and everywhere. As we serve our fellowman, and as we give to the church and the institutions of the church, we give to the Kingdom.

May I appeal to the generous souls of our church. At this season of the year when the urge is to be generous, think of the poor and the needy, of the widows and the orphans—they deserve your help—but at the same time, don't neglect your church. The church has ever stood firm for the right—she made an invaluable contribution to our moral and social order at the beginning of our country, and she stands today at the forefront of the nation's leadership. You cannot separate the church from her institutions. The institutions are the departments of the church. Our church cannot exist separate and apart from her institutions. It is our custom to support our institutions largely by direct contributions. I am, therefore, appealing to the church and to individuals in the church, to make a Christmas offering—a personal and individual offering to Elon College. We need it. The college is supposed to receive fifty-one per cent of all money sent to the Convention by the several Conferences constituting the Convention, but so far, we have received nothing. The college does have friends. There are those who care. Aren't there a large number of those who read THE CHRISTIAN SUN who will sit down and mail us a Christmas gift? I am so anxious to balance our budget—we have some bills to be paid—teachers would like their salary checks for Christmas. We are depending on you. You may direct that your offering shall go as payment on a previous obligation to the college—as payment of Dollar-a-Month Club dues, or simply as a gift.

At any rate, we are hoping for your gift—many gifts. May the Lord help every one of us to give as we have received.

L. E. SMITH.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY.

The story of "The Star-Spangled Banner" is well known to nearly every American beyond preschool age, yet it is a story that cannot be told too often. Perhaps no song ever written had a more historic and patriotic setting.

After the British had burned the Capitol and ransacked other public buildings in Washington early in September, 1814, they decided to sail for Baltimore where they planned to take the city, make it their winter headquarters and subjugate the whole coast. Before the British pulled out of the Patuxent River where they had anchored during the attack on the capital, however, Francis Scott Key, a lawyer of Georgetown, went as a special envoy to confer with the British admiral about releasing an aged American doctor, a close friend of Key's, and whose professional services were needed. The British were fearful lest Key should obtain information about their plans to attack Baltimore. The admiral ordered Key's detention with the fleet until after the bombardment of the city. Key was detained on board The Minden.

Before reaching Baltimore, the British troops under General Ross, were put off for a land attack and the fleet continued on to the city. Soon after the land attack had begun the enemy's sixteen ships concentrated their fire on Fort Mchenry, which stood like a sentinel at the gates of the city. Through the day and through the night the cannon roared, shells shrieked overhead, and the sky was splattered with bursting bombs. Break of day came and Key did not know whether it meant victory or defeat for his countrymen on shore. The bombardment closed just before the break of day. At the first peak of dawn, Key strained his eager eyes to see if the American flag on the old fort was still flying. At last he saw it faintly through the mist. No wonder he wrote: "Tis the Star-Spangled Banner, oh! long may it wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

The British fleet was forced to withdraw, but a poem had been born during the fight that was destined to stimulate national pride and kindle patriotic fervor.

Francis Scott Key, the son of John Ross Key, an officer in the Revolutionary War, was born in what was then Frederick County, Md., August 9, 1780. Although he wrote many excellent poems, gained fame as an attorney and statesman and had a prominent part in the affairs of his native state for years, he is known to posterity almost entirely as author of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Key married Mary Tayloe Lloyd, of Maryland. In 1801, he removed from Frederick, where he had practiced law, to Georgetown, D. C., where he served as District Attorney under General Andrew Jackson.

A new monumental bridge crosses the Potomac River in memory of Francis Scott Key, the patriot and statesman. The Washington approach to this bridge is within a block of the old Key mansion site. Also, in numerous large cities throughout the country his life work has been commemorated in marble for all time. Key is buried in Frederick, Md., and a magnificent monument is erected there to mark his resting place in the garden of sleep.

TIMOTHY THOMAS.

PRESENTATION OF THE BIBLE.

(Ordination Service, Liberty Christian Church, November 23, 1932.)

As I present to you this Book, the Holy Bible,
I recall what Whittier said:

"We search the earth for truth we cull,
The good, the pure, the beautiful.
From graven stone and written scroll,
From the flower fields of the soul;
And weary seekers for the best,
We come back laden from our quest
To find that all the sages said,
Is in the Book our mothers read."

In our day, there comes from the press a steady flow of books covering a multitude of subjects. Volume upon volume has been written by master minds in the field of philosophy, science, religion, and literature. Truly, we are indebted to the wise thinking men and women of all ages who have created an inventive mind by their expression of thought upon the printed page. Many books are worthy of our careful reading and diligent study; but the one book needful above all other books, is the Holy Bible. It is from this Book that we hear God speak to us. All other books reflect the voice of man; the Bible, the voice of God.

The Bible, though often neglected, is unique in many ways. While no literature compares favorably with it as a literary gem, it is a book of knowledge. No one can read its pages carefully and remain ignorant. It is true to human life, because it reveals defects of human life, and describes the most heroic characters. No one is really educated unless he knows his Bible.

From the pages of the Bible the weary seeker finds rich rewards. Be thou anxious? Listen to the Master speak to thee: "Behold the lilies of the field, they toil not, neither do they spin, yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these."

Is thy heart broken because of sorrow? Hear his voice as he says: "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me?"

Art thou a sinner? Sins may be forgiven: "Go thy way and sin no more." The prophet Isaiah speaking for Jehovah: "Come, let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be like crimson, they shall be as wool."

Art thou in need of words to express prayer for sin? The fifty-first Psalm affords a model prayer.

When thou art tired and worn by the trying experiences of exacting duty, go for refreshment to Jesus, as he says: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Wouldst thou work for the Master? Hear him invitingly say: "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest for your soul," or "Take up thy cross and follow me."

Wouldst thou become a student of art? Then view the rarest pictures of the saints, painted upon the sacred page, whom the world can never forget, and whom God will forever remember.

If thy interest in romance demands a story more beautiful than you have read, try the book of Esther, the story of a noble queen who saved her people from a great peril, or the book of Ruth, which tells of how, from her humble and lowly station in life, she was exalted to position, honor and happiness.

When thy patience is exhausted, read the book of Job and get acquainted with one whose trust was in God, regardless of circumstances and surroundings.

Wouldst thou seek the path that leads from earth to glory, when this short, fleeting life on earth is done? Pursue God's promise through the Old Testament and find its fulfillment in the New, hearing Jesus say: "I am the way, the truth and the life."

The Bible is a gift to us in life. It was written by men of old, under Divine inspiration, to be our guide. It will prove to be a map of discovery to new worlds, a guide-post to point the way along the toilsome highway of life.

It is the pilot of the shipworn sailor, to direct him to the haven of rest. It contains food for our spiritual good, without which our souls should become dwarfed and starved. It is the weapon of defense in all our battles, and when employed will prove of greatest value in the offensive against the wiles of the evil one. It is the greatest insurance policy ever issued, because it covers all losses and protects our interests here and hereafter. It condemns sin, and all who trifle with its sacred contents, and shows the end of all those who forget God. Although the sinner finds himself under condemnation, he will also find a remedy for sin and a way out from under its bondage.

It is The Book of the Minister, which cannot be dispensed with by the true servant of God. According to your diligent study, and prayerful interpretation, will depend the fruit of your labors in the Master's vineyard. May you use it during your ministry so that when shall fall from the nerveless grasp of your hand the working tools of life and as you step across the threshold of earth into the chamber of eternity to meet the Judge Supreme, may it be your portion to hear the welcome plaudit: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Father, God, we bow to thee. For cause the Christian part of our nation has hanged her harps upon the willows. Give anew to the nation's captivity witness of the Spirit, and with testimony let the redeemed of the Lord exalt thy mercy, plead thy forbearance, confess thy judgments. For fear and dismay give hope and trust, and grant to the helpless deliverance from the evil grip which verily would dash our little ones against the stones. We pray in Jesus' name.—Amen.

THE AIM OF MODERN MISSIONS.

(EDITORIAL NOTE.—One could wish that every reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN would consider seriously the following from the Missionary Review of the World, since there are so many who know little and care less of the "aim of modern missions." Every Christian should know and should care, since our Lord instituted Missions and, solely for his sake, are missions carried on in the world. In the following lines, the aim is clearly refined and distinctly described.—J. O. A.):

The central aim of missionary work is "the personal conversion of men to a new life in Christ, to complete surrender to God and to new relations of love with their fellowmen." This statement was issued by the International Missionary Council at its meeting in Herrnhut, Germany, last July. Representatives of twenty-five different nations were present, including Christians from the mission fields, as well as representatives of mission boards in the West, so that the findings may be taken to represent evangelical missionary thinking around the world. All Christian missionary work—educational, medical, industrial and literary—is recognized as subordinate to the central purpose of "making clear the message of Jesus Christ in all its fullness."

The expansion of western civilization throughout the world is disintegrating the traditional thought and customs among these backward peoples. Millions have scarcely the bare necessities of life, though God has provided an abundant supply. All are weary of international disputes, racial hatreds, bitter controversies and communal strife. Men are increasingly rebellious against economic schemes which tend to concentrate the wealth of the world in the hands of a few and to exploit the masses for private gain. The youth of today are being captivated by theories and programs which do not derive their force and authority from the Gospel and yet are exercising over the minds and conduct of men an influence often more extended and more revolutionary than the Christian Church. It is a time for true repentance and regeneration.

The Christian Church must face this situation courageously. Our missionary task is to make known by word and by life God's revelation of himself and his way of life through Jesus Christ. Personal piety, good advice, modern philosophies and human programs of reform are not sufficient to meet the needs of the world. What Christians have to give, says the Herrnhut statement, "is good news of a divine act in history, of the Word made flesh. Apart from this there is no Christian mission. In face of the powerful anti-Christian forces operating in the world today, we reaffirm our faith that the revelation of God in Christ is the only way of deliverance for mankind, and that alone can provide the foundation for an order of society that will be according to the will of God."

THE FELLOWSHIP OF WOMAN'S MISSIONARY WORK.

By MRS. H. P. BEAIRD.

It is an inspiration to think of the great work the Woman's Missionary organization has done to bring about a friendly spirit throughout the land for home and foreign missions. As we read and think of the work we should be inspired to do everything in our power to enlarge the field of woman's work. This great step toward enlargement is "Fellowship." Our Lord Jesus Christ prayed: "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." Our Lord was trying to restore friendship among men that there might be a fellowship of divine love.

In our missionary work, we are always thinking of others. Who they may be, we dare not say at present, but Jesus always has something to say about living effectively and happily with others. A life purpose is clearly revealed in the way we help others. How much do we really care about the need of others? As we pray, "Thy will be done on earth," how much are we thinking of the needs of all people? What are we giving unselfishly?

"Lord, help me to live from day to day
In such a self-forgetful way
That even when I kneel in prayer
My prayer will be for others.
"Others, Lord, yes others—
Let this my motto be:
Help me to live for others
That I may live like thee."

This brings us in a closer relationship with our fellowman, whoever he may be. Let us view the needs which we should help meet for others who are in the lower state of intelligence than we ourselves; let us hear the cries of suffering people. Here is your opportunity: "Go ye into all the land." An old familiar quotation brought to mind will put us to thinking of our duty here for others: "I expect to pass through this life but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to any fellow-being, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

Jesus in his missionary journeys says: "This is my commandment, that ye love one another, even as I have loved you." Another view of our fellowship is love. If our love is self-respecting, sex-respecting and truth-respecting, it will lead to abundant treasures in life. The heart of fellowship must be kept clean. "Let love be without dissimulation."

As you go down the path of life, you will find the way to true neighborliness and high friendship. You meet new friends and loved ones and your brotherly spirit goes out with you as your heart becomes attached to them. We will be victorious if we believe God's word and labor under his commandment.

One of the finest ways in the world to cultivate the missionary spirit is to cultivate the habit of giving to missions. "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Our treasure is that which has cost us something. We are quite willing to put into a cause or an enterprise that which has cost us little or nothing. When we put that in which really costs us something, then the heart goes with it. Jesus commended that poor widow because she cast into the Lord's treasury all her living—all she had. Her heart, her life, the spirit of real sacrifice went to the Lord's cause, because she cast all she had into the Lord's treasury. If we loved like Jesus we would give all we had and no one would need to urge us to give. We must first put ourselves fully into the mission cause.

Again, some say they do not believe in missions, when what they mean to say, or should say, is they do not believe in giving to missions. They are unwilling to obey their Lord's command: "Go, ye," and try to justify their unwillingness by declaring their unbelief. It is not a case of unbelief with them; it is a case of unwillingness to part with their cash—that which has really cost them something. When we give to missions, we are cultivating a spirit of helpfulness to all interests of God's kingdom.

We mean more than money when we speak of supporting our missionaries. We should have daily prayer for them, calling them by name and country. We should include them in our conversation in the home. Men, women and children should be taught who our missionaries are and what they are doing. We should feel that the missionaries are a part of us and we should sacrifice in every way to support them in the great work they are doing.

There is a desire on the part of the outcasts that someone will come into their vicinity and tell them the righteous way of living, in accordance with the Word of God. No missionary with a spirit of brotherly love will let a poor, fallen outcast suffer for lack of God's Word, but instead, feel that they are the ones in need of her services and the ones to whom she was called to serve. We all should be missionaries in this way and try to bring the downcast back to the level of fellowship if they only show in their attempt that they want to make themselves useful. God will forgive them if they only try and if we pray in earnest with them, we too will find ourselves benefited by our own efforts. We cannot do it all by ourselves but it is a part of their duty to do all in their power for improvement of this large field of fellowship we are trying to strengthen.

"In man whom men pronounce as ill,
I find so much of goodness still:
In men whom men pronounce divine
I find so much of sin and blot;
I hesitate to draw the line Between the two, when God has not."

—Joaquin Miller.

Do we have the real spirit of Christian fellowship? Do we feel that we are as close to Jesus as we would like to be? No, for no matter how near we may be to him, it is still possible to come nearer. Though we are devoted to him, and have experienced the fellowship of Jesus, he is constantly calling: "Come near unto me."

Dr. George Jackson tells us that the origin of Christian fellowship is that of Jesus and his twelve disciples. Jesus gives us a perfect example of fellowship. If we have the spirit of Christ we have true fellowship. Fellowship that is not beneficial to some person is not true Christian fellowship. We, as God's children, are under obligation to share our Christian experiences through fellowship. The one great need of the world today is religion which is imparted through Christian fellowship. It is our duty to impart the religion to those who are out of harmony with God.

The heart of the world today, as ever before, and as never before, is sick and faint. The Great Physician needs those who will walk by his unseen side. A hungry, untaught, fear-driven humanity, more than half of whom have never heard of the love of God or the Jesus way of life, waits by the roadside for Jesus to pass by. O Christian, Jesus waits that he may pass by with your feet, your hands, and your heart. What nobler voice to utter today than to say to him in sheer simplicity and devotion:

"I will, without a word, Rise up and follow thee."

NEWS FROM NEW ENGLAND.

Newton, N. H., has been having special revival services beginning the first week in November. The Taylor Brothers, who have been holding mass meetings in Concord, N. H., hold meetings in Laconia the last of November. The Christian Church people are very active in arranging for these well known workers. A delegation attended the Concord, N. H., meeting on November 4th.

The State C. E. Convention was held in Laconia, November 10th-13th, Dr. Poling being one of the speakers.

The officers' banquet was held in the Christian Church. Rev. Charles Durgin and Miss Ellen Hoyt Durgin of the Christian Church at Freedom, N. H., are both State officers.

At Pine Point, Me., the Sunday School attendance November 13th was 27 at the school house at the beach, and 44 at Blue Point. Mrs. Perkins of Old Orchard usually conducts the Sunday School, but owing to the serious illness of her mother, friends are assisting now.

Sunday, November 13th, we gave a lantern lecture, "From Joppa to Jerusalem," at Blue Point. Thirty were present.

Rev. Daniel Smith, of Rhode Island and Massachusetts Conference has been serving the Farmington Congregational Church the last year. He was present at the York and Cumberland quarterly conference November 18th, held at York, Maine.

DAMASCUS SOCIETY HAS "GUEST DAY."

The Woman's Missionary Society of Damascus Christian Church at Sunbury, N. C., held a "Guest Day" meeting last month. A special program was given, the main feature of which was a talk on "Home Missionaries," by Mrs. Edwards of the Methodist Church.

After the regular meeting, a social period was enjoyed by all with dainty refreshments. About twenty-two members were present, and twenty-five guests were present.

This interesting item was sent in by Mrs. Roy Parker, and contains a splendid idea for other societies to follow.

Loaded with gifts from friends in America, Miss Alice P. Adams entered the customs at Kobe, Japan, on her way back to Okayama fully expecting to have the arduous task of repacking all her belongings. The inspector came up. He looked at the name on the tag. "Oh," he said, "you are Miss Adams. I have read about your work in the papers and seen your picture. We are glad you are back. No, don't take your things out at all. A woman like you we can trust. We know you need these things to keep you comfortable." So he put his mark on Miss Adams' luggage, and in five minutes she was through the customs.

COLLEGE STUDENTS AND CHRISTMAS.

Soon many college students will be going home for Christmas. And, oh, how they will love that! Home for Christmas! If there are happier words to be found, I wish you would tell them to me. Well do I remember planning to stay at school during the holidays and then at the last minute deciding that six hundred miles between me and home at the happy Christmastide was entirely too much distance, that life is too short and too valuable to waste loafing about a campus when mother and family want you at home.

It is often suggested that those who remain at home throughout the year plan something special for those who come home for the holidays. This is a good suggestion, and one that has brought much joy to those who have carried out the idea. But here is another suggestion which seems to have value in it. If it has, try it out this Christmas.

College students are the fortunate ones. Many would like to go to school who cannot. They have remained at home discouraged. It often costs great sacrifice for a family to send a member to college. The students have learned things that those at home have not had a chance to learn. They know how to stage entertainments better than those who have not had their advantages. Then why shouldn't the students home from college look up old friends, attend church, and plan something fine for those old friends who have to remain behind while these fortunate ones, students of college today, forge ahead? How about it, college people? Will you see that something finer in the way of Christmas cheer comes to the old church and home friends because you have had a chance to go to college?

Home for Christmas! Yes, but how much of cheer will it bring those who have given you the chance of college? How much happier will your church and community be than if you had remained away? Why not sit right down and think of some good things you will do when you reach home for Christmas? In this way lies duty—and happiness.

THE PROPHETS AND PROBLEMS OF LIFE.

Recently there was given to me a copy of a new book by Dr. Sidney A. Weston on "The Prophets and the Problems of Life." The book was written to be used as a study course for young people, and is composed of material used by the author in teaching seniors. The material is so practical and interesting that the seniors whom I teach are going to use it the first quarter of 1933 as text for Sunday School.

Perhaps the best way for me to tell you about this charming and helpful little volume is to give the outline of the book itself, which is as follows:

Section one deals with Amos—the Prophet of Righteousness. Three lessons are taken from Amos with these topics: "Have I a Right to be Rich?" "Conflicts of Loyalties," and "Danger Spots in American Life."

In section two, in "Hosea, the Prophet of God's Love," the lessons are entitled, "God's Attitude Towards the Wrongdoer," and "Ideals of Love and Marriage."

"Ideals of Leadership," and "What Have I a Right to Expect of God?" are studies in Isaiah, the Statesman Prophet. Micah is listed as the Prophet of the Poor, with the specific topic, "Why Are People Poor?"

From Jeremiah, the Lonely, are the chapters on "The Heart of Religion," and the "Fate of the Reformer." The book finishes with Jonah, the Narrow Nationalist, and the question, "Shall I Be a Jonah?"

In each chapter there are given specific references to the prophetic material which tells of how life problems were met. There are numerous present-day problems given. Quotations from many sources are given, and solutions offered by young people who have studied the course are listed. This is a very stimulating little book, and can be used to good advantage by all young people's classes who are willing to do some real work and record in a notebook the things they discover. Order from the Pilgrim Press, Boston.

THE PILGRIM HIGHROAD.

Again let me call your attention to a very fine magazine intended for young people and leaders of young people, which is published under the auspices of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches. With editors like Dr. Sidney A. Weston, Miss Margaret Slattery, Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, Miss Lucy Eldredge, and others, this Pilgrim Highroad must of necessity be a great magazine.

And it measures up to all expectations. Poetry, pictures, short articles of inspiration, discussions of Sunday School lessons, Christian Life topics, and Christian Endeavor topics, stories, suggestions for recreation and socials, and numbers of other helpful things are interspersed in such a fashion as to make the magazine a delightful and helpful companion to those who want to live and lead in a Christian way. "The Twenty-Five-Cent Christmas" is a delightful article on how certain people with plenty of money gave twenty-five-cent articles for Christmas to their expensive friends and the remainder of the money to those who needed it, much to the delight of all interested parties. This article alone in the December number is worth the subscription price.

And the subscription price is only twenty-five cents a quarter when ordered with other Sunday School supplies, $1.00 a year when two or more copies go to the same address, or $1.25 when mailed separately to individuals. Subscriptions should be sent to The Pilgrim Press, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

SHARE YOUR PAPER.

And here's another thought free. Why not make a habit of sharing your CHRISTIAN SUN with others? There are probably others near you who are not subscribing for the paper. You could take them yours after you have read it, and tell them of some item which you think will interest them. Be sure to introduce the paper by some article that will be especially attractive to the person addressed. In this way you can share what is fine for you, and you may be able to get other readers for the church paper.

I seem to remember that certain Youth Fellowship groups have voted to get new subscribers to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. You should not forget that fine resolution, but should put it into operation. The method suggested will be a good one to get readers, and then subscriptions will be the next step.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

FOR DECEMBER 18, 1932.

"Spreading the True Christmas Spirit."—Phil. 4:14-19.

In this meeting the members should give their ideas as to how Christmas should be spent this year and as to how the true Christmas spirit can be spread abroad. It is not sufficient to read what others have said. And before the meeting closes something very definite should be planned that will help to get the Christmas spirit spread through the community and into the larger areas of the world.

Do not be content with just singing some songs, but select some of the best in your song book. They should be directly related to the topic. Such as "Christ for the World We Sing," "Fairest Lord Jesus," "O Come, All Ye Faithful," and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks," are appropriate.

The leader should open the discussion with a brief talk about what Christmas means. The commercial Christmas, the social Christmas, and the Christian Christmas would make a good outline for a talk.

The Christian Endeavor World suggests that the scripture be read in the Moffatt translation, which is as follows:

"But you were kind enough to take your share in my trouble. You Philippians are well aware that in the early days of the gospel, when I had left Macedonia, no church but yourselves had any financial dealings with me; even when I was in Thessalonica you sent money more than once for my needs. It is not the money I am anxious for; what I am anxious for is the interest that accumulates in this way to your divine credit. Your debt to me is fully paid and more than paid. I am amply supplied with what you have sent by Epaphroditus, a fragrant perfume, the sort of sacrifice that God approves and welcomes. My God will supply all your needs from his wealth in glory in Christ Jesus."

The same magazine suggests that the discussion center around the following questions with answers somewhat as suggested:

1. What is the Christmas Spirit? Answers: Love and service for other persons, groups, races; concern for the welfare of the child; respect for motherhood; spreading joy; relieving want; enriching every area of human life. See Luke 4:17-19; Luke 2:8-14; John 3:16.

2. What Does this Spirit Mean in Our Own Day? Growth in educational opportunities; charity and social service; political freedom and the fight of free speech; lowering of class distinctions; a growing campaign against war and the spirit of international hatreds and jealousies; the promise of a better spirit in commerce and industry; movements towards church unity.

3. How Shall We Spread the Christmas Spirit? Begin at home by bringing happiness to family, reach the community and church, cooperate with relief organizations, share with the needy, cooperate with denominational enterprises, keep an unselfish spirit and give to the limit of ability.

Dr. Stock, in The Pilgrim Highroad, suggests some other questions which might well be discussed. (1) Can a Christian be happy in the midst of so much need? (2) Should we give everything to the needy and not give gifts in our families? (3) Should we wear old clothes so we can give more to those who need clothes? (4) Should the Sunday Schools give presents or treats in a time like this? Try to find the Christian answer to these questions, and then lay plans to do something about it.

Don't forget the true Christmas spirit should go throughout the entire year, and that plans should be made accordingly.

CHRISTIAN STANDARDS OF LIFE.

LESSON XII—DECEMBER 18, 1932

(REVIEW LESSON.)

GOLDEN TEXT: "If any will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me."—Luke 9:23.

LESSON TEXT: Philippians 3:8-14.

We have been dealing in this quarter's lessons with Christian Standards of Life. A standard is an ideal or an objective, a measure by which attitudes or actions are judged. Christian standards are therefore ideals of life and conduct that are in keeping with the teachings and spirit of Christ. Christ is the standard of the Christian. He himself said, "Behold I have given you an example." A man who is a Christian in any real sense is one who is trying to embody in his character and to express in his conduct the spirit of Jesus Christ. Perfection is our goal. Christ-likeness is our standard.

But being a Christian is a progressive, not a static thing. Paul, one of the best men who ever lived, said: "I have not yet attained." In one sense the Christian goal is a moving one. We can never catch up to it. But in constantly following after it, we grow, and become more nearly conformed to it. We are to forget the things that are behind and to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." It is a daily business. Jesus says: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me."

The central theme of this quarter's lessons has been the application of Christian standards to life, not only in its personal, but in its social aspects. In the first lesson we considered the Christian and his devotional life, emphasizing the fact that we should give time and thought to the development and the enrichment of our personal spiritual life, not only by prayer and the study of the scriptures, but through public worship. This is of course the place to start. He who would reform the world must first of all be transformed himself.

The second lesson treated Christian standards of life in their larger aspects, and with lessons two and three, emphasized the application of the ideals of Christ in the home and in the family relations. The ideal in brief is as follows: The father, the mother, the husband, the wife, the son, the daughter, the parent, the child should act in the home, and should approach the problems of the modern home, in the spirit of Jesus Christ. The standard by which Christians should test their attitudes and their actions in the home is Christ's example. One can readily see that the application of Christian standards to home life would effect a revolution in many homes, and improve conditions in every home.

Lesson Five deals with the Christian's attitude toward and responsibility for life in its larger aspects as touching law and the nation. We are to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. Governments have a divine sanction. But above the state there is God, and the Christian standard of life demands that Christians live and act in such a way that the state may become a means of bringing in the Kingdom of God. It needs to be said that a Christian is not to take his standards of action from the state. As a matter of fact the state represents what might be called a happy medium. A Christian lives beyond the law of the state in that he lives above it.

The world is increasingly becoming a neighborhood, with the life of nations becoming more inextricably knit up with other nations. The Christian standard of life demands therefore that the individual Christian, and also the nations express and practice the things that make for world peace. Fair dealing, good will, the promotion of the spirit of brotherhood, must be expressed in international relationships.

The basic principle of the Christian life is that we are not our own, but that we belong to God, and therefore all that we have and are is to be considered as a stewardship and administered accordingly. Lessons seven, eight and nine, therefore deal with the stewardship of making a living or what might be called service, with the stewardship of money, and with the stewardship of life itself. A man's means of making a living ought also to be a means of making a life. A man's money constitutes a real responsibility, and is to be earned, saved, and given in the light of the fact that a reckoning must be made of its use. A man's life is to be used as something precious entrusted to one from God, and not only what might be called one's life work, but all of life is sacred.

Christian standards of life must be applied to the question of our relations with the people of other races. Lesson ten does this. The nations and the peoples of the world are all members of one great family with one common Father, God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. The welfare of one is bound up with the welfare of all, and vice versa. Nations are to share and to serve. Suspicion, greed, exploitation are un-Christian.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." But the wrong kind of play makes Jack a bad boy. The Christian standard of life demands that one's leisure time be spent in such a way that it will pay dividends in physical, mental, moral, and spiritual values. Here as elsewhere Christ's claim must be considered. Especially is it important to use the day which God has set apart as a day of rest and worship in such a way that the highest interests of the whole man are served. But those who spend Sunday in the most circum-spect way are not at liberty to spend the other days of the week as they please.

It is a difficult thing to be a Christian. To apply the ideals and the spirit of Christ to all the relationships of life is life's most difficult challenge. But those of us who name his name have been called to just this. And herein lies the secret of joy and peace. We have been created and called for just one thing. We may find real life only as we rise up and follow him.

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Psalm 119:130.

MONDAY.

THE WAY TO VICTORY.

"The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?"—Ps. 27:1.

These words of David reminded us of the lifetime trust he put in God. David's experience with Goliath, with Saul and with the lions when he tended sheep, is a type of that trust. He expected to win in life's battles because he said, "I dwell in the house of the Lord." "I wait on the Lord with my whole heart." "I trust him."

The person who waits upon the Lord, receives God's grace, is given bright, strong and calm assurances, making it possible for him to do what Christ said in Matt. 10:28, "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

Prayer—

"Take these weak hands and hold them, Lord;

Our helper be,

In thee is all our fullness stored;

We come to thee,

And know that, by thy Spirit's might,

We must be victors in the fight."

—Edith H. Divall.

TUESDAY.

HUMANITY'S GREATEST NEED.

"If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the sinner appear?"—I. Peter 4:18.

One has taken his first step toward being a Christian only when he recognizes his unfitness. We feel a lot of unfitness about us these days when things seem to be out of joint. We are talking about the needs of China, needs of Japan, needs of Europe, needs of the United States, needs of the farmer, needs of the manufacturer, the need for work—and we are asking a lot of our government to set things right.

You and I both know that confidence and happiness are based on righteousness, honesty, love, fair dealing, and not on money. If this is true, confidence and happiness can be had only upon the establishment of righteousness, honesty and fair dealing.

Religion is not a dogma to be believed, or a rite to be performed, but it is a life to live. Careful living every day is the only assurance of the victory.

Why didn't Christianity prevent the World War? One has answered, Because there was not enough of it on hand."

Prayer—O Lord, our God, in thee we trust. Make us every-day Christians, and give us thy Spirit to make us faithful.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

MY STEWARDSHIP.

"Give an account of thy stewardship."—Luke 16:2.

The teachings of Christ declare that we are only sojourners and stewards in this world, and that what we have is given us only to work with and improve for God. A rendering of a report of faithfulness to him will be our judgment.

The following is quoted from an unknown author: "The earth did not belong to my ancestors, they couldn't give it to me. It will not belong to my children, I cannot bequeath it to them. It does belong to God; he entrusts a share of its care to me. I am his steward. Stewards are not required to be wealthy or brilliant; but they are required to be faithful. Faithful stewardship calls for thoughtful prayer, honest study and work, and joyful obedience."

Prayer—Our Father who art in heaven, and who art the strength of our hands and hearts, give us faith and courage to be faithful every day in what thou hast given us to do, and diligent in season and out, and to thee we give the reward and glory.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

FELLOWSHIP.

"And the Lord called unto the man, and said unto him, where art thou?"—Gen. 3:9.

This is a picture of Jesus seeking the fellowship of folks. It seems to indicate that there was a time when man enjoyed unclouded communion with his Creator. This fellowship was so real that nothing stood between them. God talked with man and man delighted in the voice of God.

This search of God for man also indicates that something had changed all this. Disobedience had laid bare man, unclothed his conscience, and took away his garment of innocence. The fig leaves are a symbol of man's first attempt to hide his own faults, and finding that that would not do, he tried to hide among the trees symbolizing the morass of life. Even here God's voice, crying for that communion with them, was heard.

This was the beginning of that great necessity, that out of God's pitying love, he sent forth his Son as the second Adam. Ever since that time God's voice has been heard calling, "Where art thou?" Ever since then God has sought to restore that fellowship. It is accomplished by answering his call, surrendering the life, and humbly living every day to bear his burdens for the restoration of humanity.

Prayer—Our Father, like Peter, we desire to say, "Thou art God." Thou art real to us, and we confess our need of fellowship with thee daily through our Lord Jesus Christ, our Saviour. We look up, we try to see thee—we try to know thy meaning. Be thou not far from us. Endow us within by thy Spirit, and help us to seek for that communion with thee as much as we believe thou art seeking us.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

REMEMBER.

"Thou shalt remember."—Deut. 8:2.

Memory is the condition of the proof of ourselves. By it we check up on ourselves, and apart from it our minds would be a blank and our future would be very uncertain.

God bids us to remember how he has been with us, what he has done for us, how he has strengthened our hearts, how we may take courage and not only prove ourselves but develop our mental and spiritual life.

It is thus that memory is a gift of God. It was thus that the Bible was written. It is thus that history is written today. It is thus that Christian character is built.

Prayer—O, thou our true life, my God, O thou who madest all things contained in memory, may we attain unto thee. O, thou who art the light of the world, shine thou through all things, and shine thou in our minds, dwell with us all day, and forever, and may we be able ever to find thee the completeness of our souls. In Christ's name we ask it.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

TRUST.

"Though he slay me yet will I trust him."—Job 13:15.

How often we use and hear used this text in an effort to reassure believers that God "doeth all things well to them that love him," whatever the crisis may be. Because this has been proved over and over again to be true, these words have become sacred.

It is very easy to praise God when all things prosper, but that is no sign of faith. To be gracious when all things seem ungracious; to be sweet when things are sour, to be bright when all is dark, is the height of faith. This is the kind of faith enjoined by our Lord in the parable of the virgins. The five wise ones kept their objective in mind, prepared for the coming event, conserved their lamps of light and faith and then when darkness came they lighted their lamps, saw the bridegroom and went on into his presence with rejoicing.

This is a parable of what we may do with our love and faith for God in this life.

Prayer—Our Father, we desire to trust thee in the dark hours, in the presence of evil, and whatever comes may our faith not fail for one moment, and in death may we be still trusting thee.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

HOW HIGH?

"Praise ye Jehovah from the heavens; praise him in the heights."—Read Psalm 148:1-14.

New York City is building an office structure eighty-five stories high, or 1,043 feet. Scientists have figured that, largely on account of the space occupied by elevator shafts, it is not feasible to go above 2,000 feet in constructing these enormous buildings.

Fortunately, there is no such limitation in the building of edifices for souls to dwell in. We can still sing with Holmes, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul, as the swift seasons roll!" God dwells in the height of the heavens, and our spirits are to live there with him. Height nor depth can separate us from his love.

Prayer—And how fresh is the air in those upper stories, our Father! How magnificent and yet more magnificent is the view from those upper windows! Who can ever be content to live at the street level or in the basement?—Amen.

THE ROSE RED SUN.

By J. EDWARD KIRBY, D. D.

The rose red setting of the sun
At the close of a windswept day,
Broke into gorgeous splendor
Amid swirling clouds of gray.
The dawn had been red beauty
With her blazons flaming high,
Here was the final touch of glory,
In its march across the sky.

Into the day of sunlight
I had walked with faith aglow,
To meet burden and heartache
And every phase of woe.
There was laughter of little children,
And youth with spirit high;
There was sorrow of the widow,
And death in age was nigh.

Joy was the birth of morning,
A knight in his roundelay;
But heavy laden sorrows
Came amid the hours of day.
Dissonance charms in music,
Is that the reason why
The rose red setting of the sun
Was in a cloudy sky?

Raleigh, N. C.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE FOURTH PSALM.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

This Psalm is surely the psalm of a poet. It seems to come out of quiet, uninterrupted musings and meditations. Some quiet place has been found. It is most likely the quiet room of a king—a king who loved God—and is in his hour of prayer and study. "Hear me when I call, O God of my righteousness." Is he commanding God? A king, he is used to giving commands, and used to having them obeyed. Or is he making a plea?—"Hear me when I call." Or is he making a prayer? A prayer unto his God, to One whom he loves and trusts, and has an understanding with, after many years of companionship with him. Perhaps it is neither a command, nor a plea, nor a prayer in the high and priestly sense—it is a communing with God. Just David and God on terms of understanding—terms of friendship and of trust.

"When I call" is more emphatic than just a mere conversation. It is as though David remembers hours of great anxiety, and believes that such hours are his lot, and is reminding himself and God that in such hours of need he is going to speak right out and up to him. The psalmist is reminded how good God has been to him in the past. "Thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress." The one word that strikes us as being just a little unusual in that sentence is the word "enlarged." Turning to my dictionary I find these meanings: "To make larger, to magnify, to increase in strength, to expand with joy, to set free as a captive." At once I saw that there were two distinctly different meanings then that this word might have, for "to increase in strength" and "to set free as a captive," are entirely different things. So I turned to my Hebrew Bible for the original word and found that it was not one that could mean "to set free as a captive." So while that is a very pretty sentiment, it is not what David is talking about.

What he is saying is: "O Lord, in hard times you have made me a bigger and better man; you have given me a new sympathy, and a new trust in thee; and furthermore, O Lord, you have given me a real joy, so that I can truly say that thou hast enlarged me with joy." It is something to remember how God has blessed us in days of poverty and personal privation. How happy we have been.

"Pap's got his patent-right, and rich as all creation;
But where's the peace and comfort that we all had before?"

Let's go a-visitin' back to Grigsby's Station—
Back where we used to be so happy and so pore!"

It is as though David remembers all this business of being a great king, and adds: "Have mercy upon me, and hear my prayer." There is a thought in that: Unless God did have mercy upon us he would never hear prayers coming up from our unworthy selves, at least that is the way David feels about it: "Have mercy upon me, and hear my prayer."

The antiphonal nature of the Psalms accounts for the change of speaker in the next verse. God is speaking: "O, ye sons of men, how long will ye turn my glory into shame?" God's glory is so great we could meditate upon this line for some time. What is God's glory? A few words may help us to illustrate. "Goodness" is part of God's glory. How long will men trespass upon the goodness of God? How long will they presume upon that glory? How long will they claim to share his nature—his goodness, and yet be evil in their thoughts and acts—thus turning his goodness into shame? A part of the glory of God is his orderliness—his law, or laws. How long will men disobey his unchanging laws? How long will they disregard authority? How long will they violate the eternal values of reverence, brotherhood, kindly service? Thus turning the glory of God into shame. Or, again, love is God's glory. How long will men violate love? Cultivate hatred? Misuse the highest virtues? And thus turn God's glory into shame? God wishes to share his glory with us. Jesus wished his disciples to share his glory: "The glory which thou gavest me I have given them," says Jesus. How God yearns to exalt the sons of men! How long will they turn his glory into shame?

"How long will ye love vanity, and seek after leasing?" To love anything else than the foregoing right principles—the eternal verities—is to love vanity; and to seek after leasing—lies, sham, deception. This same word leasing is used in the next Psalm. It means "lies," or deceptions.

In the third verse David is musing again. "But know that the Lord hath set apart him that is godly for himself." In other words: It is like a contract between God and a good man. God is to hear when the good man calls, but on the other hand the good man must be always ready to be used of God. God must be able to find him for immediate demands. He must be as a nurse would say: "Kept on the register for call to duty." He must never be out of the way, or out of place—he is set apart! He is meet for the Master's use. That man God guarantees to hear when he calls.

It is, in verse four, as though God were again speaking. Sin will take you off of the register. Remember, if you are to be "the godly," who is set apart for God, you must be good, and pure, and righteous. "Stand in awe, and sin not." Be surprised at the tremendous temptations that will come along; be assured that the holier you are the greater the temptations will be; and at their tremendous insidiousness stand in complete awe, but do not be tempted. You are God's set apart man; break not that contract, and that fellowship. Yielding to sin will surely break it. Jesus had great temptations, but he did not yield. The next line shows a way in which temptation may be overcome. "Commune with your own heart upon your bed, and be still." Commune with God in your own heart. Learn the art of constant fellowship with God. Practice the presence of Christ. Pray without ceasing. And do not worry. "Be still." Cultivate a Christian composure, which will show you that you have anchored your soul in God.

In verse five another and further aid in overcoming temptation, and keeping from sin is suggested. "Offer the sacrifices of righteousness." Righteousness is acting good. Holiness is being good. They are two sides of the same shield. Keep busy doing good if you wish to be kept from doing evil. "An idle brain is the devil's workshop," is a very true old adage. In other places sacrifices of bulls, and goats are called for, but in this beautiful Psalm it is good deeds, good service to others, "good works" that is called for. "For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it: Thou delightest not in burnt offerings." So here it is the sacrifice of righteousness that is wanted. And there is added: "And put your trust in the Lord." Just act the part of a Christian always, show by your fruit that you are God's child, and fear no harm. "Put your trust in the Lord." In other words it is as though God is saying: "Do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly before God," and "all things will work together for good to those that love God, and keep his commandments."

Then the Psalmist says: "But Lord, there are many that say, Who will shew us any good." There are many cynics. Many who doubt the reign and goodness of God! many who are saying: "What's the use?" They are ready to give up. Lord, you know that is wrong. Lift up the light of thy countenance upon us. Let all the people see that thou art God; and that blessed are the people that put their trust in thee.

Then it is that David ends his antiphonal chorus with a sweet, simple song as a climax. It (Continued on page 15.)

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition; the book itself is smaller.
It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.
One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.
In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

is one of faith and trust. Having said that there are many full of distrust, he begins to sing forth the fact that he does not distrust God. And that his heart is full, simply full of gladness. "My cup runneth over," is a favorite figure with David.

What about these hard times? Why, "Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased." He remembers those good days, and the natural joy they brought, but this business of being God's godly, set apart man, has filled him with great, overrunning joy in times of depression.

The music of the great choir sweetens down, softens down till the people in the congregation simply hold their breath: "I will both lay me down in peace—in peace perfect, sweet peace—and sleep: for thou, Lord, only makest me to dwell in safety." Indeed, it is a most beautiful Psalm, full of instruction, and assurance; and those who sang it in the great temple must have been inspired with its majestic setting forth of the sweet fellowship between the godly and God, and the great assurance that no real and permanent harm could ever befall him.

BOOK WEEK.

The fourteenth annual Book Week was held on November 13th to 19th, with the theme of "Young America's Book Parade." In this were included books about the early days in America, the advance in science and arts, the American classics and books about all sections of our country. Franklin K. Matthews, chief librarian of the Boy Scouts of America, originated the idea of Book Week in 1919. He in turn interested librarians, publishers, teachers and parents until Children's Book Week broadened to include the older boys and girls and grown-ups. Book Week is now celebrated throughout America as the time to consider worth-while books.

Any child or any family can today rub elbows with the great thought of the world through good books. It is not enough that children learn to read or love to read, they must have opened up to them the wonderful world of literature that they may learn to reason and think for themselves, that they may learn the great fundamental truths, that they may learn to appreciate beauty in art, literature and life to acquire an adequate vocabulary. Good books will inspire and train children so as to bring out the best that is in them.

The taste for reading good books was proven one of the richest endowments any person can have. Books of biography tell us how people have succeeded in overcoming difficulties, of the hardships and privations they encountered. The newer books of travel combine adventure and color with the descriptions of places. One can sit by his own fireside and fly to the Antarctic with Byrd, walk on the ocean floor with Beebe, or hunt wild animals in Africa with a camera.

"For books are more than books; they are the life,
The very heart and core of ages past;
The reason why men lived, and worked and died,
The essence and quintessence of their lives."

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE*of theCONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST*WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

OBITUARIES

SELLARS.

Horace P. Sellars, the son of Peter L. and Sarah A. Sellars, was born January 29, 1870, and passed to his eternal reward October 17, 1932. He was a native of Burlington, N. C., and had spent his entire life there.

On December 24 1902, he was married to Miss Annie Rudd. To their home four children were given, three of whom, with the wife and mother, survive, as follows: Thomas P., Bessie May and Martha. He is also survived by his aged mother.

Mr. Sellars was converted to Christ about fifteen years ago, and immediately united with the Christian Church here, where he remained a most earnest and faithful member until he was called on. His was an unassuming faith, but a faith that held him steady in life and moved him forward toward the goal he had discovered. After he set his hand to the plow, there was no turning back on his part.

The funeral services were held from his home by his pastor, the writer, and his body was placed away in the local cemetery to await the resurrection and the last day.

The Lord abide with and comfort the bereaved family, and keep them in his peace and love.

NUMBER 50.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

No Doubt About It.—

In the recent elections Oscar L. Auf Der Heide of New Jersey was re-elected to Congress. We learn that he has just been selected as the president of a brewing company of Elizabeth, that State, which plans to start operations "as soon as as" beer is legalized. Here, at least, is one vote about which there can be little doubt.

Fifth District Leads in Retail Sales.—

The Fifth Federal Reserve District led the entire country in retail sales for the month of November. This district's sales were 16 per cent under the sales for the corresponding month one year ago, while the drop for the nation was 20 per cent. While there is small comfort in these figures, they at least show that the area covered by THE SUN is more than holding its own compared with other districts.

Water Runs Uphill.—

Patents have been issued by the United States and eighteen other countries to Torbidio Bellocq, an Argentine inventor, on a pump that makes water run uphill, in spite of the laws of nature which says it can't be done. Popular Science tells us that this is done by creating waves in a pipeful of water. It can draw water from unlimited depths, and is so extraordinary, we are told, that even its inventor admits that he is not certain of its principle of operation.

Former President of Princeton Dead.—

Dr. Francis Landley Patton, former president of Princeton University and also president of Princeton Theological Seminary, died on November 25th, at the age of 89 years. Dr. Patton was born on January 22, 1843, and was educated in Bermuda and Toronto. He became a member of the Princeton Seminary faculty in 1881, and president of the University in 1888. Fourteen years later he assumed presidency of the Seminary. Dr. Patton was one of the most brilliant leaders that the conservative school of religion ever had and was a bulwark of orthodoxy. He was also an author of note.

Flowers a Vital Need.—

Charges were dismissed against two Negroes who were arrested in Richmond, Va., for peddling without a license. The City Code specifically permits those who raise flowers themselves to peddle them on the streets without a license, but the Virginia Tax Code contains a provision that no one shall be exempt from the purchase of peddlers' license except those who sell or offer for sale ice, wood, meats, milk, poultry, vegetables, etc., "or other family supplies of a perishable nature grown or produced by them." Judge Haddon, in making his decision, said that many people "look upon flowers as a necessity, and would rather have flowers than something to eat." We are glad that the judge is a lover of flowers. It makes even a judge a better man.

Dr G. Campbell Morgan Resigns.—

The Rev. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, internationally known preacher and Bible student, who some three years ago accepted the call to Tabernacle Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, has resigned. Only recently he was called to return to Westminster Congregational Chapel, Buckingham Gate, London, where he served for many years before coming to America. Dr. Morgan carries back to England the good wishes of thousands of American admirers.

Nobel Award Presented American Chemist.—

Nobel prizes were awarded last Saturday to three Englishmen and one American at a stately ceremony attended by the royal family of Sweden and numerous scholars and diplomats. John Galsworthy was given the prize for literature, and Sir Charles Sherrington and Prof. Douglas Adrian received their prizes for work in medicine. Dr. Irving Langmuir, of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y., received the prize in chemistry, being the thirteenth American who has in recent years been so rewarded for having "conferred the greatest benefit on humanity." After the presentation of the prizes by King Gustave, the recipients were honor guests at a dinner at the Grand Hotel, Stockholm, and each was called upon for a short address. Other American winners are Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root, T. W. Richards, Woodrow Wilson, Charles G. Dawes, A. N. Compton, Frank B. Kellogg, K. Landsteiner, Sinclair Lewis, Jane Addams, Nicholas Murray Butler and R. A. Millikan.

Tung Oil Paint.—

For the past three years tests have been being made of a new paint made with tung, or China wood, oil as its vehicle, rather than the customary linseed oil. These tests indicate that the new paint has a most remarkable durability and the ability to hold its luster and real washability after exposure. The original appearance is extraordinary, with a greater depth and purity of color, we are told, and it has the ability to lose brush marks leveling and smoothing itself out as does enamel. Tung oil has been used as a preservative in China for untold centuries, and not only huts and palaces testify to its ability to thus preserve them, but the Chinese fishing junks, painted with this oil, stand the monsoons of the China Sea for generations. Tung oil trees are being successfully grown in Florida and the Gulf States, where over half a million trees are under cultivation today. It is estimated that when this industry reaches maturity, there will be a sufficient demand for tung oil in the United States to justify the planting of 500,000 acres of tung oil orchards in the Southern States.

Human Slavery Still Exists.—

In Arabia, today, there not only exists a well organized slave trade, but it is carried on quite openly, without any attempt at concealment. We are told by Eldon Rutter, well-known Arabian traveller, of the slave market at Mecca. He says: "The slave market in Mecca is a street leading to one of the gates of the Great Mosque. At certain hours of the day male and female slaves are made to sit in stone benches in front of the houses, so that passersby by may inspect them. They are dressed in the gown worn by the poorer natives of the city, and the faces of the women are veiled. They lift these veils if requested to do so. Any closer inspection of a slave by a prospective purchaser takes place inside the slave-dealer's house." In China, also, the slave trade reaches gigantic proportions, one missionary reporting over 4,000 different sales of human chattels in one town alone during the year. Slavery was abolished in the British Empire just one hundred years ago, the abolition bill having passed the House of Commons in 1833. The League of Nations has embarked upon an undertaking to secure the total abolition of slavery in all forms throughout the world.

The Nation's Crime Bill.—

According to bulletins recently issued by the National Education Association, the nation's crime bill amounts to approximately 2 billion, 150 million dollars. The annual payroll of the public schools of the United States amounts to 2 billion, 185 million dollars. Thus we pay for crime practically the same amount that we pay for public school education. On the other hand the cost of educating our youth amounts to only around $100 per year per pupil, while the cost of keeping a criminal runs between $300 and $400 per year. Legislators should ponder well these figures, before placing additional temptations before the youth of today under the guise of attempting to "balance the budget." Thirty-nine per cent of these criminals are below the age of 24, and nearly one-fifth of all persons arrested are between the ages of 19 and 22. There is one bright spot, however, in this maze of darkness: we are repeatedly told by judges that few of the youth brought before them are regular attendants at Sunday School. The Sunday School, then, with its inadequate thirty minutes a week, must be on the right track for crime prevention. The public school does not have to be sectarian, but if crime is to cease, it must teach the principles of right living; it must put first things first.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. W. J. Edwards changes his address from Ramseur, N. C., to R. 1, Jamestown, N. C.

Rev. Thomas H. Derrick, of Deland, Fla., formerly pastor of the church at Orange City, has been elected Junior Vice-Commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans of Florida. Mr. Derrick is very active in the organization and especially renders a valuable service by visiting the veterans who are in the Government hospitals of the State.

A bright spot on the horizon appears, and the Christmas Clubs, functioning through the banks, give some Christmas cheer. The banks are now distributing, through their Christmas Clubs, the neat sum of $440,000,000 to over 10,000,000 members this month. No inconsiderable sum to have been saved by the faithful in a time of depression, such as we have had the past year.

The Edison Park Church, at Fort Myers, of which Rev. O. T. Anedron is the pastor, has resumed the Sunday evening forums which have made such a valuable contribution to the thought and life of the city. The first forum had as its speaker, Mr. F. Irving Holmes, who spoke upon the subject, "When Will the Depression be Over?" Mr. Holmes is a banker and is also a former governor of the Florida District of Rotary.

Dr. Warren H. Denison, Dayton, O., was a recent visitor in some of the churches of the South, preaching at 7:30 P. M., Sunday, December 11th, at First Christian Church, Burlington, his subject being, "Putting First Things First." Dr. Denison, one of the secretaries of the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches, is well known and highly esteemed in these parts, where he labored in former years as a faithful and beloved pastor.

Dr. H. Samuel Fritsch, pastor of the Union Church, Jacksonville, Fla., is preaching an interesting series of Sunday sermons with the following topics: "The Man Who Never Lived Until the Day He Died," "How Not to Lose Money," "Hate, the Highroad to Hell," "Keep Your Soul on Top," "The Christmas Spurt vs. the Christmas Spirit," "Behold, I Make All Things New." His Sunday evening lectures are on the topic: "Human Nature As It Is."

We learn with sorrow of the passing of Bro. J. E. Johnson, of near Sanford, N. C., Monday, December 5th. Bro. Johnson was a faithful member of Antioch Christian Church, in his 78th year. The funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. M. Tally. He leaves a widow (who, before marriage, was Miss Bettie Dowdy), also three sons and four daughters, and a sister, all of whom have our sympathy in the departure of their loved one. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

Rev. J. A. Denton, pastor, writes: "On November 13th, the people of Lebanon Church, Eastern Carolina Conference, lost their place of worship by fire. This church had never had a building of its own, but had been allowed to use the schoolhouse, as it was convenient to hold their services there. The people there are a faithful church and love their church, but they have no place now in which to hold services." It would be a most timely thing, indeed, to help these good people build a house of worship. The address of the pastor is, Rev. J. A. Denton, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.

Rev. Elmer Willis Serl, D. D., returned in November to the pastorate of the Church of Wide Fellowship at Southern Pines. After fourteen years of service in this splendid church, Dr. Serl resigned in the spring, but at the urgent petition of his congregation he withdrew his resignation and has again assumed the pastorate. Under his leadership the beautiful church building was erected, and the church has assumed an important place in the life of Southern Pines. Dr. Serl is a man of unusually fine personality and pulpit ability, always interesting and strikingly original. He is widely known as a lecturer.

Under date of December 7th, Rev. J. H. Warren, pastor, Ocean View Church, writes: "Friday evening, December 2nd, our home was destroyed by fire—all my books, clothes, furniture, in fact all that we called our own. We had reduced the insurance by one-half sixty days ago. Our loss is not less than $3,000.00. I have been ill for some time, but feel that I am getting better." Our sympathies are extended to Bro. Warren, both in sustaining the irreparable loss of his home and effects, and also in his illness, praying that he may be restored and hoping that the hand of help will be extended from the heavenly Father and, through him, from many directions.

From the Annual Report, 1931-1932, Congregational Education Society, pages 16 and 17, the following is quoted: "Elon College, in North Carolina, has been one of the greatest assets brought to the united denomination through the merger. It has, however, been in troubled waters, but under the leadership of President L. E. Smith, who has now definitely accepted the presidency and who has the confidence of the churches of the Southeast, the outlook is full of promise. So great is the confidence in President Smith's leadership that the principal creditors of the college have declared a moratorium for two years on condition that he remain as president."

Rev. J. L. Neese, pastor, reports that the revival spirit still obtains in Palm Street Church in a marvelous manner. There have been confessions of faith in Christ every week since the revival conducted by Rev. H. C. Caviness, some weeks ago. There were two prayer services and a preaching service the past week, at which there were thirty confessions, and there have been additions to the church every Sunday since the meetings closed. The power of the Spirit seems most manifest and in a continuous way. The Young People's Christian Endeavor Society is holding two services a week in their homes and are also having confessions at each service, and the spirit of cooperation and activity among the young people is most encouraging.

The Western North Carolina Conference, at its recent session received into its membership a new church to be known as Flint Hill Christian Church. The location is four miles east of Biscoe on Highway No. 74, and about the same distance west of Big Oak, these two being the nearest churches. Rev. W. C. Martin, of Biscoe, leading in the work, writes: "We organized September 26th with a charter membership of eleven and have received one since, and will receive several others soon. We have a good Sunday School, with eighty-two present last Sunday, most of whom are children. We must take care of them. This is a most inviting prospect for a good, strong, Christian Church. We have our building framed, have one and one-fourth acres of land. We have material for the floors and weather-boarding, also seats, windows and doors, all of which are paid for. The roofing, which has been ordered, we hope to have on hand before the close of the year."

A congressman from New York, who has been the spokesman for the wets and the anti-prohibitionists, said, before the Ways and Means Committee, last Friday: "You brewers and distillers get out of Washington, quit harrassing and harranguing us, and go home. We don't need you here. The less we see of you and hear from you the better it will be for the cause you represent, and for the prospect of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment." A congressman said this, because the brewers and distillers had their agents about the lobby and in the committee-room urging their cause for beer and drink, all of which presents rather a pitiable spectacle, when considered in the light of this declaration from the National Christian Advocate: "In the midst of the world's worst depression, with millions of American citizens out of work, and forced to accept—or go without—the necessities of life, we have the spectacle of the Congress of the United States assembling to hear and consider such panaceas for hungry people, as 'beer before Christmas,' repeal of the prohibition law, and the sale of wines and light beverages. The press is crowded with news stories of hopeful congressmen and more hopeful brewers and distillers."

TO THE PEOPLE OF CONGREGATIONAL-CHRISTIAN CHURCHES.

When the boys and girls of your community or city are enjoying the joy that Christmas brings there will be those in the remote sections of your home mission field in Carroll County, Va., who will only dream of the joy other children have. Will you not join the good friends of Burlington, N. C., Raleigh, N. C., and Winchester, Va. Sunday Schools, in making Christmas a real joy to those who have never known the happiness your boys and girls enjoy.

We are preparing programs that will include every boy and girl who can possibly be reached in the mountains. Our desire is to teach these boys and girls the real meaning of Christmas.

We appeal to you of the Missionary Societies, Sunday Schools, or other organizations of the church, to make our dreams of a happy Christmas a reality for those here whom we are laboring with. You may wish to know how you may aid. You may send toys of any kind for a Christmas tree, or you may send confectioneries for a treat. May God move you to help in any way you possibly can. A pair of old shoes or overalls or a dress will make some poor boy or girl comfortable and happy on Christmas.

Can you get the vision of scores of little boys and girls sitting around a Christmas tree (or treat) waiting for their names to be called, that they may march up and receive their gift of sunshine for Christmas? Please help to make this vision a reality.

Ask your home merchant or grocer to help. God will bless you, and others will be made happy because you realize that Jesus still holds good his message that "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Thanking you for your prayers and contributions and hoping each of you a joyous Christmas, we are your laborers for him, in these hills of poverty, need, prospect and privilege,

THE CHRISTIAN'S MILES.

The Christian life might be divided into miles. We have heard and read of "the second mile," and also of the last mile of the way, but very little is said of the first mile. Yet the first mile is the beginning of all the miles, and as we rise to walk in heaven's own light, after confessing and forsaking our sins which have been washed away in the precious blood of Jesus Christ, the Sun of righteousness rises in radiance illuminating our pathway. It is a pathway of joy and gladness after the somber night of sin, with all its attendant fears of a day of reckoning; and we travel along with smile and song until suddenly we come to the second mile.

Three of the Gospel writers tell how Simon of Cyrene was compelled to bear the cross of Jesus as he was led to Golgotha's hill to be crucified. Simon was not the only one that must bear the cross of Christ, for every one who starts on this pathway must also bear his cross. It was a cross of ignominy and shame when Jesus was nailed upon it, but now, after the centuries of miles the saints have trod, made bloody by many martyred feet, made glorious by many victorious lives, it means just a sweet submission to his will for us.

This submission means misunderstandings and heartaches, but if we continue to travel along with smile and song, we will win many a brother who otherwise might continue to travel the road of sin; we will encourage others who travel the pathway with us. No price is too great to pay to follow the Christ who died for us; no cross too heavy to carry in his name and for his sake. Oh, may we go the second mile while letting perfect love fill our hearts, that divine love which gives blessing to ourselves and others; sanctified and meet for the Master's use.

And some day, suddenly and without any warning, we will come to the last mile of the way, and if we have walked in the pathway of duty, if we have tried all his will to obey, if we have sought for the sheep gone astray and proclaimed the glad story of Jesus and his love, he will show us his glory when we come to the end of the way, and let us share it with him. It may be after a weary day in his service, and like the opening of a western door letting in the blinding light and beauty of the setting sun, when his glory will dawn upon us. Oh, the joy that will be ours in that day. All the toils and trials of this life will be forgotten and only the joy unspeakable and full of glory will be ours. But we do not need to think that we must wait until the end of the way to have joy and peace, for "the hill of Zion yields a thousand sacred sweets, before we reach the heavenly fields, or walk the golden streets."

If we should be among those who are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord we shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air; so shall we ever be with the Lord. Paul, the Apostle, said so, and we believe God's Word, and we are comforted with these words, seeking to tell out the blessed hope of the coming of the Lord. "Yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry." (Heb. 10:37.) So may we fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, ever looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. VIRGINIA VALLEY LETTER.

I have just closed a three-months' revival campaign in some of my churches. I have kept right at it, preaching almost every night, two or three times every Sunday, and a funeral now and then through the week, and visiting folks all the time.

Even though my time and strength have been engaged I seem none the worse for wear, and have come home feeling as good as when I began. I am getting acquainted with the wife and children and things around home again, and find it a real pleasure to be in the family circle and in my study once more. It is a great pleasure to be out in the active service of the Master for a time, and then to have a good comfortable home to which to retire for rest and study when the cold winter winds begin to sweep across the hills and mountains that beautify and enrich this section of northern Virginia. In this respect many of us are blessed far more than we realize or appreciate.

Every meeting I have held has brought some real pleasure as well as some real discouragement. In some cases the spiritual force and soul-passion of the church seemed weak, in other cases the amount of raw material (unsaved people) seemed a little scarce, and in all cases my own insufficiency and weakness played an important part.

The meeting at Palmyra was very encouraging in many respects, good congregations, seven conversions, ten additions to the church, and some others reclaimed. At Bethel there were twelve conversions, and nine additions to the church. The meetings at Joppa and Timber Ridge brought forth no visible results in the way of conversions or additions to the church. At Leaksville there were four conversions and six additions to the church. In all these meetings I feel that good was accomplished far above what the actual numbers would indicate.

It seems to be the opinion of many people nowadays that the soul-passion of the church is not as great as it used to be. I fear it is too true, and as a result it becomes difficult to reach the unsaved in any large numbers. I think it is also true that the minds of the unsaved are occupied with a multitude of other things which hinder them from giving serious attention to spiritual things. Cleaner living and more prayer and consecration all the year through on the part of the church would help out greatly in this matter. This would lighten the load on many a pastor's heart, and bring the approval and power of the Holy Spirit upon the work; and without him we can do nothing, but with him there is no telling what can be done. May our highest ambition be to please him in all things.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT CHRISTIAN TEMPLE.

Special revival services beginning November 27th, and continuing each night except Saturday, were concluded Sunday night, December 11th, at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va. The minister, Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, preached each night, basing his messages on the Lord's Prayer, with such subjects as: "Who May Pray?" "Where is God?" "Blessing or Cursing;" "Bread for Body and Soul;" "Mistaking God's Will;" "Wrestling with Temptation," and "God's Great Glory."

Dr. Pierce states that the revival campaign has been a double-barreled affair. Along with the meetings visitors have gone out to the homes of the members of the church in teams of two, making a friendly call and inviting all to attend the services and to bring others with them. He hopes in this way to revive interest in church attendance and active participation in all the work of the church.

After the Christmas season probably there will be other special services during the Week of Prayer in January, to further renew the allegiance of all to the Master as we enter a New Year with its possibilities for consecrated service.

Dr. Pierce is giving a series of three lectures on the three Wednesday nights—December 14th, 21st, and 28th—on the theme: "Courtship and Marriage." Preceding these lectures at 7:30 P. M., there will be a Prayer Circle in the Sunday School auditorium. Lectures are as follows: December 14th, "The Reasons for and Problems Involved in Courtship and Marriage;" December 21st, "Courtship and Marriage of Joseph and Mary;" December 28th, "Courtship and Marriage Tomorrow."

APPLE'S CHAPEL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The Apple's Chapel Christian Endeavor held its regular semi-monthly meeting Sunday, December 4th, at 7 P. M.

The general topic for discussion was "Unity." After the opening of the meeting by the leader, Ernest Murrell, the topic was discussed by several members.

Following the regular program, the speaker for the evening, Mr. Stout, from the Gibsonville High School, was introduced.

Everyone present enjoyed the splendid speech made by Mr. Stout, and the Society cordially invites him to attend the regular meetings whenever it is convenient.

We were glad to welcome several visitors, and we hope to have them back with us again.

The next meeting will be held at the church, Sunday, December 18th, at 7 P. M.

SOUTH CAROLINA YOUNG PEOPLE.

Our Young People's Club, which has been meeting once a month only, on a week night, has added a Sunday night meeting each month, taking a topic from the new Pilgrim High Road, which we like immensely.

The attendance has been very encouraging—much more than at the other meetings, and very interesting. The last one was on "What Young People Can Do in the Church."

The Club gave a Hallowe'en Social and again took the initiative in carrying out a sunrise service Thanksgiving Day at Battery Park. Fourteen churches and five denominations cooperated.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

A unique prayer meeting was reported by a minister recently and I wish to pass the idea on to others who hold prayer meetings in their churches. He begins the meeting by asking those present to quote from memory passages from the Bible. This exercise is interesting and helpful to the people who try to remember what they have read. It encourages others to look up passages before they come and altogether promotes Bible knowledge. Songs and prayers are interspersed.

Another of his methods is that of trying to convert their pastor to the Christian religion. He assumes the character of a "heathen" and listens while different members talk to him about the Christian religion and give reasons why he should be a Christian. He objects, asks questions and answers their arguments. He says this plan has aroused a great interest and has brought out many important Christian doctrines and given a great mass of information. It has made the work of the missionary seem all the more real. It has compelled many people to think about the meaning of their own religion as they had never done before.

Such methods used in the prayer meeting give new zest and power. Try something like this and you will find it well worth your while.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

RECLAIMING CHRISTMAS.

The real spirit of Christmas should prevail this year. With the world in the throes of need, with millions out of employment, and other millions starving for the bread of life (that true Bread which cometh down from heaven) it will be folly, not to say wicked, for those who have, to waste their money in giving useless presents to folks who do not need them. If present conditions of need and unemployment can help reclaim the real spirit of Christmas, the "depression" will not have been in vain.

At Christmas we celebrate the event in which heaven and earth were brought close together by the coming of the Son of God from heaven to earth in the flesh, so that the kingdoms of this world might become the kingdom of our Lord. This was the season in which God in infinite wisdom saw fit to stoop down to man's level, that, through him and his righteousness, man might come up to his level. It was the lifting of the level of human existence, thus bringing closer together heaven and earth, God and man. "I came down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him that sent me," said the Christ. Here, indeed, was that perfect manifestation of the will and the power of God existing in the flesh, revealing in himself the very presence and power of God. Here was God giving the best he was and had, emptying himself, emptying heaven itself, that, through this unspeakable gift, the sons and daughters of men might become the sons and daughters of God. That which was furthest from the mind and thought of God in giving Christmas should be furthest from our minds in celebrating Christmas, viz: self-indulgence, self-getting, selfish pleasures. We will reclaim Christmas, when we shall lose ourselves in unselfish service, and devotion, to him who came that "we might have life, and have it more abundantly;" who suffered the humiliation and the abasement of sin and the cross, that he might take away the veil from the face of man and let man see, without the veil, the glory that comes from the very presence of God.

What shall we do at this season? First of all, we should at least do something to give the message of love and life to those who are in darkness till that light comes. What will we do during this season to make the light of the gospel shine in the faces and hearts of those who will know nothing of Christmas, nor of the Christ of Christmas, until this light, by our sending, shall come into their lives? What will we do this Christmas time to share with others that love that lifted us: that bread of life on which the soul feeds, that bread that cometh down from heaven, that bread of which, if one eat, one shall never perish?

Then what will we do to make some life, or the lives of others about us, less fortunate than we are, look up from their burdens and bewilderment, their unemployment and their hunger of body, to him who took the few loaves and fishes and fed the five thousand? We shall reclaim the spirit of Christmas only by doing some good in the world; carrying cheer to a cheerless life, hope to a heart that is despairing, comfort to a soul that is in distress, food to an individual that is hungry, joy to a soul in distress. In this way we will reclaim Christmas and give it its proper place and emphasis.

THE FIRST NEED OF MODERN EDUCATION.

That was a notable gathering that assembled in New York to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of New York University. Six hundred of the foremost educators of the world met in "A Conference of Universities." The outstanding speaker of the occasion was Alfred Noyes, the famous English poet, and, according to reports, he told this Conference of Universities something they are not likely to forget and may, with profit, think over.

"The first need of modern education," declared Noyes, "is to recover faith in God." Of the immediate effects of this declaration, the Federal Council Bulletin reports: "And his audience, eminent university leaders, showed unwonted, almost vociferous, enthusiasm over what if it had come from any minister, would have been rightly called direct and prophetic preaching of the doctrine of God." The fact is, this Conference of Universities, foremost educators of the world, invited a poet instead of a preacher to address them, but the poet, for the time being, turned preacher and said that which would hardly have been listened to with respect if any preacher from a pulpit had said it. To these modern educators, with their prevailing type of teaching, the great poet said: "Ye have taken away my Lord and I know not where ye have laid him." That is an accusation that scholars may well take under advisement and begin to inquire, "Where have we laid the Lord?"

The cold facts are, as Mr. Noyes declared, that the universities have taken the ethical code, built up from the teachings of Christ, and separated that code from the Christ, and that separation can lead to nothing except chaos and demoralization, just as a house will go to pieces without a fixed and solid foundation for the very basis of all ethics and the dynamic of character and conduct is God.

The only way out of the moral chaos, and back to the spiritual convictions of Christendom, is that road "which leads from the prophets of old to Calvary." Safe principles of ethics and of morals cannot long live without linking them with God, who is the source and creator of right moral principles, as he is the unfailing dynamic of true righteousness, and if our universities are to save us from moral chaos, "they must," as the English poet declares, "bring God back to the campus." It is refreshing to note that Professor Hocking of Harvard, outstanding American philosopher, also shared the views of Noyes, and made a plea for "a reinstatement on the campus of the sense of awe and reverence and for a primary consideration of spiritual values in the selection of faculty personnel."

If the intelligentsia of the world, the foremost educators, even six hundred, who heard him, will take seriously, as they seemed, in a measure, to have done, the words of the English poet, certainly their gathering from the four corners of the earth will not have been in vain, and the whole educational world will profit by the preaching of a poet.

BENEVOLENCE NOT ENOUGH.

If contributions to benevolence could save a world, we are now saved. If gifts to relieve physical want were sufficient, salvation is already here. If physical hunger, material shelter and clothing are all that's needed, we need have no fears, for safety is already here. If life is only meat and man's needs are only bread and clothing, then safety and security may be proclaimed from every housetop and victory is already ours. This is said advisedly. Our National Government State and County governments, and welfare officers, benevolent institutions and enterprises, are pouring out millions to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and give warmth and shelter to the shivering, and yet all of us know that relief has not come, and the call for more and more grows insistent and the demand for physical and material supplies becomes more desperate.

Jesus said a long time ago, "The poor ye have always with you," thus rebuking his disciples for their demands, that the poor be made the sole object of giving and relief.

Hon. Newton D. Baker, former and distinguished cabinet member under President Wilson, and now, by appointment of President Hoover, chairman of the Citizens Committee on Welfare and Relief Mobilization for the United States, is sounding the note that "character building agencies," as well as agencies for physical relief, are essential. "A soup line is not enough; a man's spirit must be saved as well as his body. The life is more than meat." Mr. Baker reminds the people of this country everywhere that "our ideal is far more than that we should be well fed and selfish and satisfied, like cows in long grass; and that the agencies which develop and sustain character are indispensable to any effort which confronts poverty and tries to relieve human suffering and subdue want and disease."

Mr. Baker is making a plea for a "character building agency," and that agency is not the state nor the government, nor the school even, nor the benevolent society, nor the fraternal order, but the church. We are, indeed, striking a death blow to character building, or as the great statesman, William Ewart Gladstone used to declare, "We are blasting at the 'Rock of Ages' when we thrust at the church, the one sure foundation of our human society." Many people, possibly many readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, are indifferent to their church in these days, indifferent to the call of spiritual worship, service and donations, contenting themselves with giving a dole to some needy person, making a contribution to benevolence. We agree with the declaration by the Federal Council Bulletin: "To discontinue the support given to the church because of the pressure of other claims, would be to undermine the whole structure on which all the claims of social welfare depend. It would be like dispensing with the fire department when the city is in flames!" There is no cause amongst us that suffers today as the church suffers in its support of the preachers who give their lives to preaching the Word, of missionaries in the home and foreign fields, many of whom are being called in and put out of business, thus striking a blow at the spiritual agencies and foundations; truly, "the life is more than meat." We are not closing up benevolent institutions and enterprises; we are closing up churches instead. J. O. A.

THEY CAN'T PAY, AND WHY?

The nations of Europe are heartily hating us because we loaned them money and now, as they declare, we are demanding payment when their people are groaning under burdens of distress and taxation which they are unable to bear. They advance the idea of poverty, empty treasuries, impossibility, under prevailing economic conditions, to meet their obligations to us as a creditor nation.

But when all is said, there is an inquiry left, viz: What are the nations of Europe spending their money for? A correspondent in the Boston Herald has drawn up a very enlightening list, showing the amount that the nations of Europe were due us in 1931, and the amount that the same nations paid for war and the preparation for war, their bill for armaments actually paid in 1931. The following table is quite revealing:

	Amt. due U. S.	Spent for Arm.
Great Britain	$159,520,000	$726,731,000
France	50,000,000	466,966,000
Italy	14,706,000	322,337,000
Poland	7,486,000	122,995,000
Czechoslovakia	3,000,000	51,189,000
Belgium	7,950,000	31,303,000
Austria	287,550	1,450,000

When such figures are contemplated, one begins to get an idea of why the nations of Europe cannot pay, but before too much is said, it should be remembered that over 80 per cent of our own national revenue is paid out for war and preparation for war, despite the fact that we entered with Europe in a war to end war some fourteen years ago. J. O. A.

HOW SOME PEOPLE GIVE.

There is a vast amount of money still in circulation in this country. While it is true that many people are poor, and some possess little of this world's goods, there are many others who have money to spend as they please. It is said, for example, that this year Christmas Savings Clubs will distribute $440,000,000 to 10,500,000 members. Many other figures could be cited, such as the amounts in Postal Savings and regular savings banks. It amounts to many millions and it surely belongs to somebody. Vast sums will be spent this Christmas season, and we sometimes wonder how.

There is a statistical table that purports to tell how the American dollar is spent. Doubtless many of our readers have seen it. Here it is: 24½ cents go for living costs, 22 cents for luxuries, 14 cents go to waste, 13¼ cents go for all sorts of miscellaneous things, 11 cents go for investments of some sort, 8½ cents are spent for (or on account of) crime, 4½ cents goes for government expense, 1½ cents for public and other schools, and ¾ of a cent goes to or for the church.

This table may not be absolutely accurate, and it does not give a correct measure of all people. Probably it does not give a true picture of our church people, but it does show, in a graphic way how money is spent by the average person. One does not realize how little he gives to the cause of Christianity until he sits down in front of such a graph as this and meditates upon it. Many people go to the motion picture theater every week, buy ice cream and candy and small delicacies never once thinking of the mite they put into the offering plate on Sunday. Many people give absolutely nothing to missions. How can the church prosper?

The table must not be taken as a measuring rod for all our church people, either. It does apply to some. The statistics are put together after studying the way all people, the whole population, give. If we could only have a proper proportion of the money that Christians spend there would be enough to make our churches hum with success. How can we do it if we give only three-quarters of a cent out of each dollar we have to the church budget?

We are approaching the close of the church year. Many churches have unpaid bills, and some have not paid the pastor's salary. Why not make a special effort to increase the ratio of our giving? Why not make the church a Christmas gift? E. A. K.

A hobby is a relaxation. Concentration is needed for our daily work. Just to stop work and not fill in the time with anything is to fall into a mental coma.—Anon.

THE HIGH COST OF THINKING.

Thinking is costly. Thinking costs money, costs time, costs friends often. Lack of thinking is usually thought of as costly, but real thinking comes at a high rate. In years to come it may bring its reward, but the man who thinks pays the price. The man who thinks ahead for his community is the man who is oftentimes crucified on the cross of public opinion. He places himself, for the betterment of general conditions, on a scaffold to be shot. He pays the price. He is misunderstood, this man who thinks. He is called the speeder, the risk, the chance-taker. If he succeeds, he gets the congratulations of a few; if he fails, he gets the condemnation of all. But whether he succeeds or fails he is the man on whose shoulders progressive issues rest. It is in his footprints that future generations tramp. TIMOTHY THOMAS.

There is a deep sense in which we see through serving. The best way to see Christ here is to serve him. The glorified shall serve and see. Their vision shall be purified because in heaven their service shall be perfect.—George H. Morrison.

Give The Sun for Christmas

We know of no more appropriate Christmas Gift than your church paper. Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

We will also send an announcement card stating that the paper is being sent by you, and wishing for them a whole year of happiness.

In addition to this, as a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each Christmas Gift subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference met with Newport News Congregational-Christian Church Tuesday, December 6th. Rev. R. L. House, the vice-president, presided. Rev. J. F. Morgan is secretary, and Mr. B. D. Jones, treasurer; Rev. O. D. Poythress, financial secretary. The collection of dues for the year amounted to $1,090.00. This was much less than last year.

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce delivered a very inspiring address giving emphasis to the cooperative movement in mission work.

Rev. O. D. Poythress and Rev. J. F. Morgan rendered a vocal duet during the forenoon session.

Dr. Edwin T. Wellford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, delivered the welcome address. The North End Christian Church was organized thirty-one years ago, in the First Presbyterian Church, and for several months the services were held in that church. It was a great pleasure to hear the welcome address from this loyal friend of the Christian Church in Newport News.

The vocal duets by Rev. R. L. House and Mr. W. H. Baker were very much enjoyed.

This association was organized for the purpose of doing Home Mission work. Membership fee for men, churches and other organizations, $10; for women and children, $5. The original idea was to establish new churches. The Newport News Church was founded through the work of the association. Some years ago the appeals from some of the established churches became so urgent that the association voted to assist as much as possible. On this basis the association has given $10,000 towards the building of the Christian Temple in Norfolk. This money has been wisely used, and has been a great help in establishing several churches.

There was a definite opinion that the time has come when the association should return to its original purpose of seeking to establish new churches. It is evident that such a plan is needed to give inspiration for the future. Liberal people do not look with favor upon a long period of continuous giving to establish a church. In a country such as this a church should become self-supporting after a few years. It is easy to pauperize a church by too much outside help. It is dangerous to build beyond the capacity to maintain. A modest church, well filled and paid for, is better than a great building half filled and burdened with heavy debt. Church debts are hard to pay. State debts are hard to pay. There is a tendency to wait for others to pay. Build for the future, but not for show, nor pride, nor empty pews. Every church should plan to be able to carry its own burden of building and current expenses, after twenty years of real work and sacrifice. It will be much easier to plan for the organization of new churches, when the present church debts are reduced to a point where the local church can assume entire responsibility for final payment. "Owe no man anything." Pay church debts.

ELON COLLEGE AND THE SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION.

The Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools met in its thirty-seventh annual session at New Orleans, La., November 28th to December 2nd. The Roosevelt Hotel was hostess and headquarters for the association. It is one of the finest hotels in the South and is able to afford accommodation for a large number of people. New Orleans is a most unusual city—one of the oldest cities in America and one of the most famous in the South. The old French quarter, with its picturesque buildings and partial customs brought over from the old world, and retained to this day, constitute fascinating attractions for the average visitor.

Tulane and Loyola Universities are located there. These institutions were most considerate of the visiting officials of the colleges and secondary schools.

The work of the association was most interesting. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were taken up entirely with meetings of committees and commissions, dealing with institutions that have their perplexing problems. It was my privilege and responsibility to meet with the Commission on Higher Education. I found the commission and the entire association most sympathetic and considerate. While, on account of our financial difficulties, they were unable to place us on the full membership list, they did place us on the approved list, which, so far as our students and graduates are concerned, means practically the same thing. Our graduates who wish to teach are not discriminated against in the least, but are on par with the graduates of other institutions, in their efforts to secure teaching positions.

Our graduates will not find it difficult to pass into the graduate schools of the association, bearing a diploma from Elon. This is an achievement worth while, and will mean much to Elon College, as the commission assured me it puts us on the direct line to full membership.

If the membership of the church, the alumni and friends of the college will come to our support now, they will help to make it possible for us to carry the college forward with strides that are really worth while. I found that Elon has a number of staunch friends in the association, and a very large number who are expecting things worth while of us. I have confidence in the Christian Church and the friends of Elon to believe that they will not fail their institution in a time like this.

In last week's message, I made a strong appeal for a Christmas offering. Will not the readers of this article take this, not only as an appeal, but as an opportunity to express their appreciation and their hope for the college, in a most concrete way by mailing us a check of whatever size he feels he may be able to add to our Christmas Fund, that we may be able to balance our budget. Whatever amount you may send, if you wish, may be credited to your Dollar-a-Month Club.

And, by the way, the Dollar-a-Month Club offerings are still coming in, even though a bit slowly. This week we have received seven new members and a total of $76.00. If you are in arrears with your dues, won't you please send them in at once? New members of the Dollar-a-Month Club are as follows:

	No. Memberships.

Mr. Reader, I thank you for your interest, cooperation and support, and am wishing for you many happy returns during the Christmas season.

STEWARDSHIP AND THE CHRISTIAN.

God is God, and not a Pharaoh. The children of Israel could not make bricks without straw. If God sorely punished the Egyptians for demanding of the Israelites that they themselves supply this basic ingredient—the ingredient that causes the whole combination of factors to adhere, as does money or its equivalent in Christian work, think we that this same just, considerate Father who, with such marvelous wisdom and foresight made all the beautiful world expressly for man's home before ever he brought man into it, through his Son laid upon his redeemed children the task of carrying the gospel to the ends of the world without having made full provision for the successful performance of that task?

Failure to understand and utilize the fact that God did make exactly such provision is retarding the church structurally and starving it spiritually. Numbers and numbers of earnest, sincere Christians everywhere who have seen something of what the missionary enterprise is to the coming of Christ, by having not seen that stewardship of possessions is God's appointed way of securing to the church fixed and adequate financial backing, unconsciously are invalidating one of the essential elements in the Kingdom process. This element—this property or possessions phase of stewardship—unmistakably is the God-given base upon which the whole structure of Christian economics is to be built into the church. It is so important, cleaving as it does the new birth and full spiritual fruitage, that not until it has become vitalized by finding its way through individual lives into the forever rotating "three-in-one" Kingdom process, can straightout missionary giving become spiritualized in any general way and thereby made effectual in the great "Go ye" program for world redemption. One ministers to the soul of the church only after, obediently, one has sustained the body of the church.

If money or material stewardship presents any problem, that problem is in determining what constitutes individual possession, and not in the undebatable fact that every believer is called to be a partner with God upon the plan of God's absolute all-ownership and his scripturally clear-cut property requirement for the financing of his church. We say church, not Kingdom, meaning of course the outward, physical structural organization that God requires of as many as are possessors of a definite portion of what is possessed. Kingdom or self-denial giving is additional, and it is different in that it is not divinely mandatory except as worship is divinely mandatory; it results distinctly and directly from the missionary spirit, is purely worshipful, likewise as purely volitional, and may be entered into with covenant promise only after what God claims has been honestly paid.

In the light of the creation and formation story as found in the first two chapters of Genesis, also many New Testament experiences, notably the instance and its related happenings as recorded in Acts 4:31-5:11, can it be gainsaid that money or possessions stewardship is an eternal verity established by God at the time of the formation of mankind and the assignment of man and woman to their home and work; that it was reaffirmed and emphasized by circumstances attending early Christianity, and that it is the key that must unlock the mind and mint of the church as we have the church today and as the church must be before Jesus can come to receive it unto himself?

MRS. J. J. LINCOLN.

Live for self, and you move into a wilderness! Live for others, give yourself for others, lose your life for the sake of those who need you, and in the place where you are crucified there is a garden!—George H. Morrison.

BUT CLIMBETH UP SOME OTHER WAY.

By ALBERT GODLEY.

There is but one way into the Kingdom of God. Christ, our divine, all-sufficient, gracious Saviour, says, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

To one in the darkness of sin, four things are necessary to get into the Kingdom of God:

First: To hear of Christ and to desire him as a Saviour.

Second: With deep sorrow of heart to have faith in Christ as the only Saviour; he says, "He that heareth my words, and believeth on him that sent me, hath eternal life."

Third: Obedience to Christ's call. He says, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

This requires self-denial. Jesus says, further, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me."

When Jesus called Simon Peter and Andrew, "They straightway left their nets and followed him."

Too few persons today are willing to forsake all and follow Christ, trusting him to direct as to their avocations and doings. He will direct as to what is right and safe, and most needful for every one in the duties of life. All should trust him fully.

Fourth: Love. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might, and with all thy strength." (Mark 12:30.) Does this seem to be impossible? Not if one is fully given over to Christ and has full faith in him to explain and to help. His is such a wonderful salvation, and his help and peace is beyond our full understanding.

Trust and follow him. Grow in grace and knowledge of him daily by reading his blessed Word, and having full faith in his gracious promises and blessings, as you faithfully follow him in every duty.

In the parable of the good shepherd, the fold and the sheep (John 10:7), Jesus says: "I am the door of the sheep." In verse 9, he says: "I am the door; by me, if any man enter in, he shall be saved. I am come that they might have life and have it more abundantly"—in all fulness, here on earth, and the rich and glorious life in the Kingdom of God.

In verse 1, he said: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber." They, who in genuine repentance and with strong faith, enter by the door, have the tender yet powerful care of the Great Shepherd. "Kept by the power of God through faith." Jesus says, "I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my Father's hand."

A very common false way that many persons try is to join a church organization without true repentance and without full self-denial. Christ stressed repentance as the first thing necessary: "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," was his first demand. Paul was faithful in asking that it be thorough, in asking that it be a repentance "not to be repented of"—covering everything, a deep repentance.

Christ said, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." All should feel a real sorrow for sin. That means something real, and with heart emotion, to ask in faith for forgiveness for all sin, giving up all for Christ, and willing to take up heavy crosses, if Christ requires it. To follow him with zeal and genuine determination, to do his will. Now this means much. Paul explains by writing, "This is the will of God, even your sanctification," or your dedicating all, your own desires and purposes to Christ, and to hold on in his service. Such will get Holy Spirit power and their work will tell for much good in life.

The great reason that so many churches, in most of the denominations, have so little Spirit power, sometimes a whole year passes without a single convert, or few are added, is that many of the members have been trying to climb up some other way (which is impossible) and they hinder real spiritual growth. Besides, they become as stumbling blocks to many who would gladly join a spiritual, growing church. Dear reader, what is your attitude—are you really following Christ? If not, God help you to see the reason. Do not be deceived by Satan. The scripture cannot be broken, Christ declared. When you pray, "thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," remember you should be honest. You should surrender your will fully to the will of Christ and God, as the angels in heaven do. And when you say, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us," do you hold in your hearts any envy and ill-will against any one, unwilling to forgive them fully? If so, you are really asking God not to forgive you. Oh! my friends, we should think deeply when we pray. Pray from the heart—a consecrated heart. The Bible teaches that they who continue to hold malice, envy or ill-will "have no share in the kingdom of Christ and of God." Yet some try to climb up the wrong way.

Christ, the only right way, quoting the law, said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength," as Mark has it. Oh! how deep, how complete, that commandment is. But how many there are who love the world and the things of the world, more than they love God, and who are trying to climb up that way, though John says "they have no love for God in their hearts." (I. John 2:15 R. V.)

"Repent, for the Kingdom of God is at hand." May we be wise, and remember that Christ, our only Saviour, says still, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." There is no half-way or other way that is safe. Study prayerfully the only way, and the reason Christ taught that if any are willing to follow in the right way they shall know the teaching. "If you continue in my way, then are you my disciples indeed, and you shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." There is no other way.

PRAYER.

Father, God, we bow to thee. For cause the Christian part of our nation has hanged her harps upon the willows. Give anew to the nation's captivity witness of the Spirit, and with testimony let the redeemed of the Lord exalt thy mercy, plead thy forbearance, confess thy judgments. For fear and dismay give hope and trust, and grant to the helpless deliverance from the evil grip which verily would dash our little ones against the stones. We pray in Jesus' name.—Amen.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

The Federal Council, in keeping with the custom of decades, has appointed January 1st to 7th, inclusive, to be observed as a "Week of Prayer for the Churches." This period has been observed, promoted mostly in the churches of our constituency, through our missionary societies for several years, and with helpfulness. Surely, if a Week of Prayer was ever needed, that need is now upon us, and the church, as well as the missionary society, will do well to seek to call together its entire membership in observing this event. The Federal Council has issued its program, a most timely and inviting one giving, as it does, an impressive series of Scripture studies, meditations, suggestions for prayer on each day of the seven. The Council's Commission on Evangelism, which is sponsoring the program, says:

"The bewilderment which has been visited upon so many people during these days has not failed to affect the church of Christ. The church would not be true to its noblest traditions and its highest trust if it were to be insensible of the mingled moods and deep needs of people today. To be arrogant and dogmatic is not suitable for a sensitive church, but to be timid and inconclusive is equally indefensible. The church of Christ has the true gospel, without which deliverance cannot come. It must set itself with new devotion and directness to herald that gospel with clear conviction and winsome persuasion.

"The resources of the Holy Spirit are as available, abundant and sufficient today as they ever were. They await only the obedient exercise of willing followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. A praying and witnessing church genuinely united in spirit and program the first week of the New Year might readily unlock the unsearchable riches of Christ, not alone for itself, but for our nation and the world."

The themes for each day of the week are: Sunday, January 1st, "First Things First;" Monday, January 2, "The Church's Treasure in Childhood and Youth;" Tuesday, January 3rd, "The Unity of the Faith;" Wednesday January 4th, "Facing Our Unfinished Tasks;" Thursday, January 5th, "Marshalling Our Resources;" Friday, January 6th, "A Witnessing Church;" Saturday, January 7th, "The Secret of Prevailing Power with God and Men."

Of the program, the Bulletin says: "The constant emphasis is upon prayer as the central privilege of Christian life and as the avenue to Christian prayer." The eight-page folder, attractively printed and carrying the entire program, can be had in quantities at $1.50 per hundred. They can be had of the offices of the Federal Council of Churches of New York, or from the Secretary of Missions, Elon College, N. C., on receipt of price.

THE CHURCH AND HOME LIFE; RIGHT TO AN ADEQUATE LIVING.

Prepared by NICHOLAS VAN DER PYL.

WORSHIP APPROACH.

(This is the second of a series of missionary programs appearing in the The Missionary Herald during the year 1932-33, on the general theme of "The Church.")

Hymn.

Scripture Reading: Luke 12:16-30.

(Preferably from the Revised Version. Note that Jesus takes for granted that God has provided for the physical needs of all his children, and that we, therefore, have no need to worry about our livelihood. But in an industrial age, such as the one in which we live, the question of an adequate living has become a problem for millions of our fellow human beings. These words, therefore, must be interpreted in the light of this situation.)

Prayer—Our Father and our God, thou hast called us to be brethren in Christ Jesus, and hast provided liberally for our daily needs. For this we thank thee. Move thou the hearts of thy favored people to share these bounties with the disinherited and the weak. May the church diligently teach that we are all members one of another, and that our sympathies should be quick to sense the miseries and the needs of all who are in distress. Hasten the coming of the day, our Father, when all those who are worthy shall suffer neither hunger nor needs of any kind, and that all shall have opportunity to labor and to enjoy the fruits of their labor. All this we ask in the name of thy Son, our Lord.—Amen.

Program Suggestions.

Program (These suggestions may be assigned to different individuals to open the discussion.)

1. What constitutes an adequate living? There is a great diversity in standards of living, some very much higher than others. Yet we know, differing widely as they do, that men may be equally happy and equally miserable with the higher or the lower standards. The durable satisfactions of life are not always associated with things, as we all may have learned. It may be well to outline a minimum standard of daily life with which all could be satisfied and make possible the living of a complete life.

2. The psalmist writes (Psalm 37:25): "I have been young, and now I am old; yet have I never seen the righteous forsaken or his seed begging bread." It may have been true in those far-away days when life was very much more simple. But is it true in these days when social life is much more complex? Can we say that all the poverty in our great cities today is the result of personal sin and shiftlessness? There are those who still hold that it is. Think the matter over in the light of your own experience and acquaintances.

3. What about the terrible inequalities about us? Think of Jews herded in ghettos; of negroes and foreigners in our cities living in slums, in "tombs disquieted," as one has said; of that figure, "the most tragic," said Carlyle, "the eye may fall upon—a man seeking work to provide for his wife and bairns, and unable to find it" What is the church doing about it? What ought the church to do about it? John Ruskin said that no man today could sit at his feast, with the misery of the world all about him, unless he sat blindfolded. Are we, like the old Persian king (Esther 4:2), shutting our eyes to the man in sack-cloth?

4. We have been passing, during the past three years, through the worst depression in our history. Millions are unemployed; millions of others have lost the savings of years. Yet never have our crops been so great, and never has the productive capacity of men and machines been more efficient. The sufferings of millions during the past three years in the midst of plenty has outrun imagination. Is it the result of ignorance? Have we created a monster like Frankenstein's which masters us? Is it the greed of the strong? Whatever may be the cause, can it be a matter of indifference to the church? And are we as Christians aroused to the seriousness of the situation?

5. The German people, we are told, due to the losses of the war and the exactions made of them by the victors in that war, have been reduced to pauperism. Their children are suffering from rickets. Their intellectual leaders have been reduced to a penury which has carried them to despair. The same may be said of other peoples who engaged in that war. As Christians, have we any responsibilities in the matter? How about the waste of war, the horrible burden which it lays upon the innocent? How about the post-war hates which continue the miseries of war?

6. It must be agreed that God has dealt with us bountifully, and cannot be held responsible for the present misery which we find in millions of homes. It is the result of man's stupidity, man's selfishness, man's exploitation of his fellows for his own lust of power or his own selfish desires. Is that a fair conclusion? If it is, where shall we begin to make a world in which every worthy man and woman and child shall have a fair share of the good things which God intended for all?

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

(The following letter, written September 5th, by Rev. L. E. Huber to Dr. W. W. Staley, arrived in Suffolk, Va., November 22nd. Mr. and Mrs. Huber are in Central Africa, and Mr. Huber answers a letter of Dr. Staley's written February 17th, 1932. Some will remember that Rev. and Mrs. Huber were licensed and commissioned by the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference in November, 1929 (when conference met at the Suffolk Christian Church), to go into the mission field. Perhaps it will be interesting to readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. One phase of the letter is interesting to me. Mr. Huber sends $2.00 for one year's subscription to THE SUN, and I enclose the money. If every family would subscribe for his church paper, and read it, there would be no difficulty in raising money for every enterprise of the church. They would see the need and know just where the money was to be used.—ANNIE STALEY CALHOUN):

Africa Island Mission,
French Equatorial Africa.

Dear Dr. Staley:

Received your interesting and most welcome letter of February 17th. We can fully appreciate the fact that you are busy inasmuch as we too have had to neglect our correspondence. Missionary life is most interesting, but very intensive and exacting. One's duties and responsibilities are so varied and require great wisdom and discretion dealing with problems that are new and often very difficult. It is a life of adjustment to a people and an environment that is entirely foreign to us, demanding and exacting drastic changes in our mental and physical life which are possible only by His grace and love.

We find ourselves surrounded by sin, degradation, gross ignorance, superstition, and deceit; these being a description of the human heart and the "natural man" as we find them in Central Africa. We are also surrounded by and continually confronted with walls and barriers that baffle and confound all human wisdom; for we are dealing with human hearts that can never be moved by reason or argument. Their philosophy of life and conception of God are so different from ours that our reasoning with them is folly, for our thoughts are not their thoughts, and our ways are not their ways.

In our approach to them we start with less than nothing, since their only thought about God are connected with evil spirits. At home even the most ignorant have some conception of the true God, and most people have some knowledge of the Bible. In trying to reveal the way of life to these people here, we must explain every statement in detail. Spiritual terms are especially difficult to explain, for they do not have words in their language that can even begin to express such thoughts as love, sin, righteousness, holiness, purity, eternal life, spiritual life, etc. When we do find a word to express these thoughts, then we are up against the difficulty of explaining it in such a way as to make them understand; for we are speaking in a foreign tongue in which they express their thoughts and ideas in ways that are very peculiar to us. Then their mental and spiritual capacities are very limited, and our teaching and preaching must be "line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little." None but the power of God and the love of the Lord Jesus Christ can pierce through the dense ignorance of these souls for whom Christ died on the Cross of Calvary, shedding his own precious blood for the remission of their sins as well as ours.

And so we face the high calling and great task of every missionary as found in the words of Paul in Acts 26:18: "To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith in Christ Jesus." And how can this be done except in his own glorious power as in Acts 1:8: "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me . . . unto the uttermost parts of the earth." And so we seek to do even as Paul in Col. 1:29: "Whereunto I also labor, striving according to his working, which worketh in me mightily."

Now as to a personal word concerning our own work. After spending one and a half years in Paris and Geneva studying French, we were assigned to the main station of our mission in the Belgian Congo, spending eight months at Aba, a beautiful place and an ideal location. Mrs. Huber was assisting the doctor in the large mission hospital, while my time was divided between the hospital, the carpenter shop, the printing press and customs work for the mission. We spent eight delightful months at Aba. Then the mission called for volunteers to go up to a neglected field, French Equatorial Africa. We answered this call, knowing that we were being called of the Lord. So on February 10th we left Aba, spent ten days on the 950-mile trip up to Zemio, and have been here nearly six months. The work is hard, and health conditions are not favorable: but "the field is white unto the harvest and the laborers are few." Will you not share with us the burden of this work. Our hearts' longing is that our dear friends in the South shall have part in this blessed ministry with us.

Our mission has three stations here in F. E. A.: Zemio, Djemah, and Obo. Our work is in the Azande Tribe. At present there are only three of us to care for the work and the heavy burdens of these three stations. Our work is not only spiritual but also material since the government requires that we improve our concessions with brick houses, plantations of coffee trees, palm trees, etc. These things must all be done while we are seeking to win lost souls to a knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ as their own personal Saviour. The burden is heavy, the trials are many; but our joy is in him and we know that "God is faithful by whom we were called into the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord."

Our first year on the field has been spent in language study and adjusting ourselves to a new environment. We spent our first eight months in the Belgian Congo and learned the trade language used by both whites and blacks in Northeast Congo. Since coming up to F. E. A., we are learning a very difficult tribal language, and will have to learn the trade language later. Perhaps I ought to explain that the tribes and tribal languages are so many and so varied that it is necessary to have a single language that can be used as a medium of speech between all tribes and the government and the commercial people. As a result the government has created "trade languages" for various sections which are made up of the simplest mixture of words from the various tribal languages together with French and English words with a native pronunciation. We have at least another year of language study ahead of us, but in the meantime we are crying on our work in the language we learned in the Belgian Congo. Most every native knows several languages so we are fortunate in being able to use the Congo trade language here.

Our opportunities for service have been limited. We had the privilege of preaching to groups of missionaries quite often. During the annual conference of our Congo field (about 85 missionaries and 40 children), held at Aba, Mrs. Huber and I had charge of the children's meetings during the conference, and what a joy it was to touch the lives of such a group of children! It was also our privilege to do work among the natives at the hospital and in the villages nearby, usually in song. The guitars have been a blessing to the natives. We enjoyed real personal contact with our houseboys each day in morning worship. Since coming up here we have been conducting the Sunday services, giving a message in English and having another missionary interpret in the native language. The Lord has blessed us with ten souls who have confessed the Lord Jesus as their Saviour in these services. On Thursday evenings we have a Christians' Bible Class, and are studying the wonderful book of Romans with them.

Perhaps you will be interested in one experience we had. On our way from Aba to Zemio we stopped at Buta for three days, staying at the rest-camp of a young Azande chief. The second evening there Mrs. Huber was playing her guitar and we were singing. It was not long before we had a crowd around us. The chief was one of the first to come, and then he called for his twelve wives, then he called for his old men (his counsellors and wise men), and finally sent for his Catholic teacher. We then asked whether he would permit his prisoners to be brought out of the prison close by for the meeting. He gladly consented and in a few minutes the soldiers came with the prisoners all bound together with chains about their necks. In about a half hour we had one of the most interesting congregations we have ever seen. It was a beautiful moonlight night, and a wonderful opportunity before us. They were attracted by the guitar and listened intently while we sang in their language. We then had our native boys read portions of Scripture and give their testimonies. Then we gave messages explaining the way of salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and his blood which was shed on Calvary's Cross for the remission of their sins. The Catholic teacher was one of the most attentive, and came back again the next night. The meeting lasted about two hours, and would have gone on much longer for they were eager to hear more, but we were very tired and told them that we would have another meeting the following night. This time the crowd was even larger. We sang and preached for about two hours again. How our hearts rejoiced in the liberty the Lord gave us in making his name known in a tongue that was new to us, since we had studied it only a few months and it was our first message in this language. They seemed to listen eagerly. We did not ask for a response since we find it unsatisfactory to ask for outward signs, they being much like children who follow what someone else does. The following day the chief asked us for a Bible, and we had the privilege of giving him a Bangala New Testament. Two months later we entertained a missionary from the Norwegian Mission, and he told us that this chief had asked them to come and build a Protestant Chapel. The Catholics strongly opposed, but to no avail. The Norwegian Mission has since established a regular mission station at Buta in the chief's village where the Roman Catholics formerly controlled everything and everybody. We are rejoicing with these missionaries in the one who is "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

We believe that the most important ministry of any servant of the Lord is that of prayer, for "nothing lies beyond the reach of prayer but that which is outside the will of God," and "the effectual fervent prayer of the righteous availeth much." We rejoice as we see the great love and faithfulness of God in answered prayer. Will you not continue with us in prayer in behalf of these souls that they may be brought "out of the darkness into his marvelous light?"

Mrs. Huber joins me in sending hearty greetings and best wishes to our friends of the Eastern Virginia Conference, with love and greetings to you and also to Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle.

Very sincerely yours, in him who loved us and gave himself for us,

L. E. HUBER.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

NORTH CAROLINA ISSUE

EDITED BY MISS PRISCILLA CHASE.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP MEETS.

Youth Fellowship of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference met in its second annual session Tuesday evening, November 15th, at the Mt. Zion Christian Church.

The theme of the meeting was "Kingdom Highways." The meeting was presided over by Miss Birdie Rowland, president. The congregation sang, "Lead On, O King Eternal," and Rev. W. T. Scott, of Salisbury, N. C., led in prayer.

"The Highways of Spiritual Life," was discussed by Robert Kimball; "Highways of Service," by Miss Rebecca Smith; "Highways of Stewardship," by Rev. Dale O. Sander. Each speaker did well and presented his subject so well that the home churches will be strengthened by such leadership. Appropriate music was furnished by Misses Elberta and Roberta Murray, Frances and Dorothy Truitt, Greensboro, and Miss Sallie Higgins, Guilford College, N. C.

At the business meeting key workers and delegates of the churches were recognized. Palme Street Church, of Greensboro, led all the churches in attendance with 35 young people present. Miss Birdie Rowland was elected president, Miss Clarice Gunn, vice-president, and Miss Mabel Smith, secretary and treasurer.

Miss Ruth Duke closed the meeting with a very effective worship service built around the Twenty-third Psalm.

SO DOES ANOTHER—IN PART.

On the evening of November 9th, the Youth Fellowship had charge of the inspirational program at the Western Carolina Conference. The program was outlined as follows but we know that it was not carried out exactly as given because of automobile trouble which prevented the attendance of some of those on the program.

Call to order, Carl Key, president; hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers;" devotional, Rowland Farrell; violin solo, Ramsely Swain; prayer, by Ralph Riddle; vocal solo, Barbara Chase; address, "Youth and the Challenge of Life," Dr. L. E. Smith; hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds;" benediction by the president.

HAPPY HOME PLAYS POLLYANA.

The young people of our church (Happy Home) have organized a Sunday School class with thirty members, and have regular monthly meetings at the homes of the members. At these meetings, the business matters of the class are discussed and a social hour is enjoyed. At the present time we are playing "Pollyana." We plan to have a Christmas tree at our December meeting. At that time we will learn who our "Pollyana" has been. Our membership has increased since we organized. CLARICE GUNN.

C. E. CONDUCTS CHURCH SCHOOL.

Our Christian Endeavor (Salem Chapel) is more interesting than ever before. Just now we are practicing for a Christmas pageant to be given as our part of the church entertainment.

In addition some of the Endeavorers are conducting a Church School in a nearby community where before there was no provision made for the religious training of a sizeable group of children and young people. We are planning for a Christmas service there in which these children will have a part. Incidentally we enjoy it as much as they. FRANKYE MARSHALL.

BOOKS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Some time ago a teacher of boys asked the writer to give him a list of world friendship books which boys might like to receive for Christmas.

The list given below includes some others for older young people. The writer has not read all of them, but those she has not read have been taken from authentic book lists. The list indicates the group for which they are especially suitable:

"The Young Revolutionist," Buck; "Three Arrows," Young; "Adventures of Mr. Friend," Hunting; "Treasures in the Earth," Hamlin. Published by the Missionary Extension Movement, 75c in paper, $1.00 in cloth. Intermediate boys.

"My Indian Boyhood, Standing Bear," Houghton, $1.75; "The Blue Junk," Holton (Pilgrim Press), Intermediate; "Mountain Girl," Fox (girls); "Beautiful Gold," Thurber! "Freedom," Fisher, intermediate and young people, $1.00; "Young Fu of the Upper Yangtze," Lewis (Winston), $2.50 (boys); "The Golden Sparrow," Harper (12-year-olds), 75c and $1.00; "Torchbearers in China," Matthews and Southon (intermediate and young people); "Yarns on Heroes of China," Nairne (boys); "Forest Hospital at Lamborene," Schweitzer; "The Laughing Buddha," "The Goddess of Mercy," Stewart (young people); "Black Treasure," Mathews; "Life of David Livingston," Mathews; "Red Blossoms," "The Measure of Margaret," and others, Rose (young people).

All of the above may be ordered from the Pilgrim Press. Especially would I recommend for those older young people who have read "The Good Earth," "A Portrait of a Chinese Lady," by Lady Hsioe. This book gives an entirely different picture of Chinese life and is well worth your reading.

YOUNG MAN ORDAINED TO PREACH

An event of interest to young people of the Carolinas was the ordination on November 29th of Arthur Swartz. Mr. Swartz has been a member of the Student Summer Service group for several summers. He completed his work at Vanderbilt University in June and succeeds George Penn in the pastorate of the Albemarle Church. His paper was well written and the questions from the floor thoughtfully answered.

Many of the participants in the ordination service are well known to members of the Youth Fellowship which was unofficially represented by Carl Key, Virginia Jay and Barbara Chase.

The ordination program was as follows: Piano prelude; devotional service, Rev. C. C. Hamilton; solo, "Come Unto Me," Barbara Chase; sermon, Dr. William J. Campbell; solo, "My Task," Barbara Chase; ordaining prayer, Rev. W. T. Scott; right hand of fellowship, Rev. S. M. Penn; charge to pastor, Rev. M. J. Sweet; charge to people, Priscilla Chase; hymn; benediction, Rev. Arthur Swartz.

We should not forget devotional books; the soul must be fed, or it will wither and die.—Anon.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

FOR DECEMBER 25, 1932.

Christmas in Scripture, Song and Story.

There are a number of ways in which this topic may be developed—around the Shepherd story, around the Magi story, a judicious combination of both. The first essential is early and adequate preparation. Choose your material for its worship value, leave Santa Claus and his reindeer for a week-day celebration. Use good pictures, good stories, good poetry and songs, even if you cannot use what is suggested here. Make your meeting informal, around the fireplace, if possible. Decorate with Christmas greens and candles. If you can serve coffee and Christmas cakes at the close of the meeting, so much the better for the spirit of Christian fellowship.

Piano prelude—One of the Christmas hymns: "Christmas Pastoral" (from the "Messiah"), Handel; "March of the Magi," DuBois.

Call to worship—"The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

"Unto us a child is born; unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Hero-King, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."

Hymn—"Adeste Fideles" ("O Come, All Ye Faithful"). Notes on some of the Christmas hymns may be found on page 31 of the Pilgrim Highroad for December, 1932.

Picture Study—Secure copies of Le Rolle's "Arrival of the Shepherds," or Burne-Jones' "Worship of the Magi," or use the picture and interpretation of "Christmas Night," by Fritz von Uhde, on page 5 of the Pilgrim Highroad for December, 1932. Interpretation of the first two may be found in "The Gospel of Art," by A. E. Bailey.

Scripture—If you have used Le Rolle's picture, read Luke 2:8-14; if you have used Burne-Jones', read Matt. 2:1-11.

Hymn—If you have used Le Rolle's, sing "Holy Night" (perhaps you can find some one to sing it in German), or "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." If you have used Burne-Jones, use "We Three Kings of the Orient Are." If three men can take the parts of the three kings, the whole group joining in the chorus, it will be more effective.

Story—Have someone who reads well read one of the following: "The Shepherd Who Didn't Go," Stocking; "The Other Wise Man," Van Dyke; "The Lost Star," Dorothy Clarke Wilson in the Pilgrim Highroad for December, 1932. (The last two named will need to be judiciously cut unless you have more than the usual hour at your disposal.)

Meditation and Prayer—Introduce a period of silent prayer with one or two well-chosen poems: "Before the Paling of the Stars," "Christmas Carol," "Christmas," Christina Rossetti. (You may want to use only selected verses, rather than the whole poem.) "Gates and Doors," Joyce Kilmer; "Christmas Bells," by Longfellow. Close the period of silent prayer with a spoken prayer that has been prepared in advance by some member of the group or the minister.

Offertory—"He Shall Feed His Flock" (from the "Messiah"), Handel.

Closing hymn—"Joy to the World."

Benediction.

All who have pleasure in God seek out his works.—Drury.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD'S GIFT TO MAN (Christmas Lesson).

LESSON XIII—DECEMBER 25, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

LESSON TEXT: Luke 2:8-20.

How difficult it is to capture the real spirit of Christmas! How difficult to come to the day prepared in body and mind and spirit! We are usually so rushed, so tired, so worried, so driven that we are not in a mood to enter into the deeper meaning of Christmas. What a helpful thing it would be if we could sit in the glow of a fire-place, or by candle light, on Christmas eve night, and hear Christmas carols played and sung softly, if we could have read to us the Christmas story which is so familiar to us that we know it by heart and yet so fresh that it stirs our hearts, if we could sit in quiet meditation pondering for a time over what Christmas really means, and then perchance praying that into our hearts might be born anew the spirit of the Christ Child. What a difference it would make if on Christmas Day we could keep this same high mood throughout the day. One feels that the world, and even those of us who are Christians do not have as much of Christ in Christmas as we ought to have, that we do not always keep Christmas in the heart. Why not try this year to give to this great day of the year a deeper meaning and spiritual significance.

So far as the Christmas story itself is concerned what can any one do to enhance its charm or to enrich its message? Like a great painting, it is to be enjoyed and appropriated rather than commented upon. But perhaps a few suggestions might be in order.

Shepherds in the Field.

It was not to the learned Scribes and Pharisees that the message came—they were proud of heart and blind to the spiritual facts of life; it was to shepherds, humble, unlearned men of meek spirit and of responsive heart, that the vision and the voice came. It is always thus. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him. Blessed are the meek, blessed are the child-like in mind and heart. This is no plea for ignorance. It is simply a plea for an humble and teachable mind and a responsive heart. Keep thy heart with all diligence—keep it sensitive, keep it responsive.

Angels from Glory.

The angel brought a message of courage, and hope and joy. Fear not—the words are prophetic of the Christ whose birth the angel was announcing. "Be not afraid"—thus Jesus, in substance, says again and again to his followers. The religion of Christ drives out fear and puts courage in the heart.

"I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." The gospel is not good advice; it is good news. To know that God is a Father, that man has divinity in him, that goodness shall triumph—this is good news. And it is for all people. The custom of exchanging gifts at Christmas is only a meager expression of the true Spirit of Christ, namely, the sharing with others the spiritual blessings of the gospel of Christ. It seems to the writer that the most appropriate time to receive an offering for missions is at Christmas. "To all people."

"For there is born unto you this day in the City of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." "Unto you"—personally unto you and every man who accepts him; "in the City of David"—it was the fulfilment of prophecy; "a Saviour"—one who should save his people from the penalty and the power of sin; "which is Christ the Lord"—Christ, the anointed one, the one who should come, the Messiah, the one who should fulfil in his life all the ancient prophecies which they knew so well; but more he was to be the Lord—he should rule forever and forever and of the increase of his government there should be no end.

A Babe in a Manger.

"And this shall be a sign unto you, ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger." He was a king, the king of kings, but he came as a babe and his first bed was a crude manger. God would teach us that the real value of life does not depend upon the outward trappings. How little the Christ borrowed from his surroundings, not only as a babe, but as a man! On the other hand how he lifted up by his life even the humblest things. A manger, bread, a cross—these and other things were transformed by his touch upon them.

"Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

"Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men." Peace in a man's soul, born of the spirit of reconciliation between him and his God, peace between a man and his fellowmen, peace between nations—this is the function of the Prince of Peace. The kingdom which he was to establish was the kingdom of good will toward men.

Bethlehem in Judea.

"Let us go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass." Let us follow our highest impulses, let us see for ourselves. Account for it as you will, something happened in Bethlehem that night. We date our calendar from the birth of that babe that night in that obscure village of an obscure nation.

Witnesses.

"They made known abroad the saying that was told them concerning this child." "They returned glorifying and praising God for all the things they had seen and heard." They wanted to share with others the good news. They went back to their old tasks, but they went back in a new spirit. Those who have seen Christ, those who have felt the impact of his spirit upon their lives, face life with a new spirit. Let this Christmas season put new courage and hope in us.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Psalm 119:130.

MONDAY.

THE GIFT AND THE GIVER.

"He that hath pity on the poor rendeth to the Lord."—Prov. 19:17.

And now the day draws nigh when Christ was born. Prepare to have a thought each day and make the theme that which appears for Christmas Day: "Heaven has come to us."

In the midst of our giving and exchanging greetings, let us remember that it is "Not what we give, but what we share,

For the gift without the giver is bare;
Who gives himself with his alms feeds three:
Himself, his hungering neighbor, and me."

Prayer—O Lord, our God, as we enter upon the week of Christmas with every day a thought filled with his spirit, as the crowds throng the temples, as the people turn to churchly pomp and pageant, or music such as wealth alone can buy, be thou nigh, and may every one voice the message of heaven, and every one find God. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

A RIDE TO BETHLEHEM.

(Nazareth, Autumn 1 B. C.)

"And Joseph went up from Galilee and out of the City of Nazareth, into Judea unto the City of David, which is called Bethlehem."—Luke 2:4.

The summer had passed and the work of the harvest field had been completed. Mary was fifteen years of age. She was about to be married to Joseph. Amidst festivities of rejoicing, dancing young people of her companions, dressed in white, decked with flowers, and wearing her best ornaments, down a path lit with torches, she came to the marriage altar, where, before them all they took each other for husband and wife, for better or worse, and sat down to the feast.

After the weeks' festivities (which was customary) they lived in a quiet little place they called home. About this time the country was conquered by the Romans. In assuming authority, they ordered a census and every one had to go to Bethlehem to be counted. So they began their journey to Jerusalem.

After four days' journey, we are told, they arrived. An open stall in a crowded public inn was the only place available for their entertainment. Here they tented for the night, not because they were too poor, but because they were crowded out. The village Inn was full.

Prayer—Our Father, with the coming of Christmas, breathe into the heart of humanity new life, new impulses, new courage, new hope, new consecration, more love, less hate, more unselfishness. Increase our joy in Christianity and in Christians. As his coming was salvation unto them that looked for him, so make him the salvation of the world today.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE ANGEL'S SONG.

(Bethlehem, Winter, 1 B. C.)

"And the glory of the Lord shone round about them."—Luke 2:9.

That very night Jesus was born, and simultaneously something seemed to happen. The shepherds tending sheep out on the hills, heard something. Being on guard against wild animals it naturally excited them. As they leaped to their feet to see, behold the figure of a man stood before them. It appeared to be a heavenly figure. The heavens and all about was light. He spoke, saying: "Be not afraid, for I bring you good tidings of great joy, to all people. Jesus, the Christ is born . . ." And as he spoke they heard a chorus of music somewhere like the singing of a multitude of voices, and looking up they saw a host of angels robed in spotless white approaching from the lighted skies. As they stood in silence and awe, they heard the words: "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, good-will toward men," and this chorus continued to repeat that song in one mighty crescendo.

Don't you wish you could have been there? I do. The sound of the angelic voices has never ceased to be heard. It resounds in our ears, lives, hearts and consciences today. If thou wouldst remember this scene, learn well the song:

"It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending o'er the earth,
To touch their harps of gold;
Peace on earth, good-will to men,
And glory to heaven's king,
And the world in solemn silence lay,
To hear the angels sing."

Prayer—Our Father, and our God, as we sing and hear sung the carols of Christmas this week, take our minds back to the angels' song that night, and teach us the meaning, even as they were taught, so that we too may sing on and on that chorus: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men."—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE SHEPHERD'S JOY.

"And they came in haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the child . . . and the shepherds returned glorifying and praising God."—Luke 2:16, 17, 20.

When the shepherds recovered from their astonishment, they decided that each and all had seen the same thing. They recalled that the people were expecting the Messiah about this time, surely it could not be a dream. The prophets had foretold it, and it had even been talked about recently. Was it really true? Thereupon as many as could be spared, went to look for this babe.

The gates of the city were shut and it was with difficulty that they gained admission. They looked where the angel directed and in the dim light which had been left burning they found the mother and the babe. They were almost afraid. They expected to find more angels bending over the babe. Instead they saw only a beautiful young maiden lying on the rude couch of straw. They inquired for the babe and Joseph assured them and beckoned to them to come in. They fell upon their knees and worshipped. It was awe-inspiring to them to realize that here was their Saviour, the hope of humanity.

As they departed, Joseph followed them out and in the courtyard they repeated joyfully, bubbling over, the story of the angels. Others were attracted, and they too caught the excitement and spread the news, "The Christ has come; praise be to God." While others heralded the good news abroad, Mary remembered what the angel had told her nearly a year ago, and she "pondered these things in her heart."

Prayer—Our Father, give unto humanity today the consciousness and the reality of Jesus, and make them glad. Increase the worlds' joy not only in this consciousness, but in her industries and quicken the activities of mankind toward God.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

HIS NAME.

(Jerusalem, January, A. D. 1.)

"Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sin."—Matt. 1:21.

Every child had a name and every name had a meaning. Names were given because of their meaning and their fitness for character. Names still have meanings, but people care less about their meaning than previously. For instance: Harold means a champion; Margaret means peace; Mary means bitterness.

Jesus got his name because of its meaning—that meaning is our text—Saviour.

Prayer—Our Father, may not only the meaning of the name Jesus be our heart portion in our celebrations, but we pray for words, songs and deeds that will lift us up into the highest meanings of life. Make new our souls with Christmas meanings. Give to humanity inward peace and lead them into living ways that make happy. Bear thou our burdens this year; fire thou our ambitions unto holiness. Transform us by the renewing of our minds.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

AT THE TEMPLE.

"They brought him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord."—Luke 2:22.

After Jesus was a month old, according to the rule, Mary took him to the golden temple to give thanks and present the babe to the Lord. With the little one in her arms and Joseph by her side they went up the white steps and into the Royal porch, thence out into the court of the gentiles, then into the white temple whose roof, we are told was covered with gold, where the morning sun reflected like a blaze of fire.

It was in this building, in the inner temple, before the white-robed priests where the smoke of the morning sacrifice arose, and where the place of the "Holy of Holies" was, Jesus was presented to the priest for God. Whereupon simple ceremonies were performed, Jesus was blessed and a prayer was said. The parents received the babe again and returned to the outer court.

It was in this outer court they met Simeon, who believed that he would not die until he had seen the Christ. The Spirit of God revealed to him that this was Jesus. He begged to take the child, and as he did so, with trembling voice and deep emotion, he thanked God for that day, and said that he was now willing to die.

Everyone seemed to realize that this was the Christ, the Saviour of the world. The people there were glad, and the news spread everywhere. Thus the first steps in the ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour of the world was taken. That step was taken for him by his mother. Oh, what mothers may do for children in giving them a life of spiritual power.

Prayer—Our Father, we pray thee that Jesus may be presented not only in the temples of the Lord these days, but in the temple of the lives of humanity, and that he may be accepted there as never before.—Amen.

CHRISTMAS.

December 25, 1932.

"BELIEVE AND HAVE HEAVEN."

"I am the bread of life, him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out. For I come down from heaven . . . and this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son and believeth on him, may have everlasting life."—John 6:35-40.

The author of the book, "Jesus, the Carpenter of Nazareth," translates the words, "bread of life" (Continued on page 15.)

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE NIGHTS OF JESUS.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"The day is thine; the night also is thine."

Psalms 74:16.

The night! What beauty, what blessing, what barriers! It belongs to God, just as the day belongs to him. Studded with the white lights of ten thousand stars shining through the deep midnight blue, or the moonlit silver, it is beautiful. It is also blessed in that it is a time for rest and sleep; time to rebuild the body, and to soften and sweeten the soul. And, too, the night has its barriers of darkness towering like a storm-covered impregnable wall above the path of many travelers. But whether beauty, or blessing, or barrier, the night still belongs to God, even as does the day.

Very little has been said about the nights of Jesus. We have thought of his days, and the expression, "the days of his flesh," has become quite common; but I wish to remember this morning that there were the nights of his flesh as well. We have a rather brief account of about a thousand days of Jesus—or some three years of his life. Each day had its night. Great blessings come to us when we study even a single day of Jesus' life. That day may be on Jordan's bank, or a Galilean mount, or in a Capernaum synagogue, or the temple in Jerusalem; wherever, or whatever, it is a most helpful study. But we dare not overlook the nights.

If we overlook the nights we shall miss the angelic choir, the Wise Men from the east, and the aroused shepherds on Judean hills. We shall miss the Bethlehem Babe, and the stable which he shared with his mother's beast of burden. "The day is thine; the night also is thine." In the night Jesus came; and through the night of Gethsemane—yea, even through the midnight darkness of Calvary, he went. We would not miss the nights of Jesus!

Jesus was not very old before the "nights of Jesus" took on a deeper meaning. When he was but still a tiny infant the king of the country, and his servants put up a merciless and muredous march into the nurseries of the land seeking him that they might slay him. And because during the night he had been carried away by his parents to Egypt, a phrase which he later used concerning himself, seems prophetic: "All ye shall be offended because of me this night." What suffering has gone with Jesus in this selfish, sinful old world. In his wake were hundreds of family circles bereft of their darling baby boys through no fault of his. What beautiful opportunities he would make for the babies of the whole world! Yes, from the days of his tiniest infancy, Jesus had his nights.

When we think of Jesus' temptations, and so-journ in the wilderness, we think in terms of days, as a usual thing. But the Gospel story makes a distinct mention of the nights: "forty days and nights." The historical facts would be quite as well recorded had the writer simply said: "Forty days." There was some very good reason for adding "and nights." There is comfort, and companionship in the bright, glorious sun. If you do not think so, wait and wake through the last watches of the night on a bed of sickness and pain, and you will recognize the friendliness and comfort of the daylight, and the sunlight. Jesus fasted through forty nights, having fasted through each of the preceding days. In the nights, too, moved the wild animals in search of their prey. If we but use our imagination we shall soon see that the nights in the wilderness were on account of their loneliness, hunger, starvation, danger, and darkness, sorely severe. Jesus learned of them, lived through them, overcame them for the sake of those who must endure darkness and want the world over! How he who made the very stars themselves, and the sun likewise, must have yearned to give light wherever there is darkness, and hope wherever there is despair. To that program he devoted his all, and disciplined his soul.

If we miss the nights of Jesus we shall miss that occasion on which Nicodemus came to him. That is suggestive of young men of real worth seeking to find the fullness of life by turning to Jesus in their moments of leisure. The great text of the New Testament, and the beloved text of all Christendom was uttered that night: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Then there is that night in which his disciples fight the storm while Jesus is in prayer in the cliffs above the sea. While the disciples were having their night Jesus was above them in prayer. And both they and Jesus came out victorious.

There are also the nights of the Passion Week specifically mentioned: "And in the daytime he was teaching in the temple; and at night he went out and abode in the mount that is called the Mount of Olives. And all the people came early in the morning to him in the temple, for to hear him." What meaning may lay back of that busy picture in the darkness of the night! What moral battles may have been fought in those midnight hours! In the daytime teaching in the temple; in the night time abiding in the mountain. In the daytime teaching the people; in the night time turning to God in prayer and meditation, and rest and sleep. Perhaps some of those nights he went with the disciples to Bethany, and others of those nights he must have spent alone in the mount in prayer.

Then there is the night in which Jesus gave thanks. What a night to begin with thanksgiving, for in it there was the betrayal, the hours in Gethsemane, the arrest, and the denial by Peter, and the beginning of his trial in which they all forsook him and fled. One wonders which hurt the gentle heart of Jesus more—Judas betraying him, or Peter who denied him. It was on that self-same night that Jesus established the Supper; and that night said: "I am the vine, and ye are the branches." It was during that night that he made his farewell talk in which he said: "Let not your hearts be troubled." Jesus might be about ready to sweat drops of blood for the sins of his people; or to plead with his heavenly Father to let the cup pass from him if possible; but to his disciples he speaks words of comfort, courage and peace. There is simply no way of accounting for Jesus except that he was all right, or all wrong. By no stretch of the imagination can we make him all wrong; he was all right. His words are true, and his promises are sure. "Heaven and earth may pass away, but my words will not pass away." Jesus won his own battles fighting mine: Kirby Page says, "Many a man could find the cure for his discontent and despondency by loyal devotion to a center of life outside himself." That is just what Jesus did. Quoting again from Page: "Earth's highways are crowded with individuals who are disgruntled and unhappy because they have no worthier objective than the gratifying of their own appetites." It was in Jesus' farewell speech that night that he said: "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend."

One time Jesus also said: "When ye pray enter your closet and shut the door." In the day's closed door of night, Jesus prayed in Gethsemane; and God shut the very doors of light itself when Jesus prayed for the forgiveness of the sinners of the world on Calvary's Cross.

"Tis midnight; and for others' guilt
The Man of Sorrow weeps in blood;
Yet he that hath in anguish knelt
Is not forsaken by his God."

And into the night of the tomb he went to arise with a bright new resurrection morning triumphant over the darkness of every night. Daylight followed the darkness of every night. And in the hopes of humanity a new country is set forth in which "there shall be no night there," for "the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof."

"The day is thine; and the night also is thine." Be not afraid of the night, nor its struggle. It is God's beauty set before us in disguise. We, too, in Christ Jesus shall overcome its darkness.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We want to appeal to all churches and Sunday Schools that have not sent in their Thanksgiving offering to please take it one Sunday during the month of December, and mail it in. Your Orphanage never needed your loyalty and your support as much as it needs it now. The winter season is always expensive. We know you want us to give the children wholesome food, comfortable clothing and comfortable quarters to live in. You would criticize us if we did not. It takes money to buy these things. We are dependent upon you to furnish the means to bear these expenses. You may say I have no child in the Orphanage, why should I care or give? You may have plenty today and be homeless tomorrow.

Ten years ago a family had a nice home and farm with plenty to spare—no thought of the wolf visiting their home. Nine years ago, a little boy was born in that home—no thought of him one day being in the Christian Orphanage. Misfortune did visit that home, and it was swept away. Death claimed the mother; the little boy is now in the Christian Orphanage. You cannot tell. Your child may never come to the Orphanage to live, but your grandchild may. Make some sacrifice to support your Orphanage.

The children had a good chicken Thanksgiving dinner. It was made possible by the good women of our churches. The children were happy and grateful. The Southern Dairies furnished cream.

We want to apologize to Johnson's Grove, Va., and Union Christian Church, near Franklin, for not making mention that they had a part in loading the car shipped to the Christian Orphanage from Suffolk. It was an error of the head and not of the heart. They both had a liberal share in loading the car. We are very sorry they were overlooked.

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x 3/8 inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made. The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together. The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

as "bread of heaven," because in another place Jesus calls himself the "bread of heaven." This same author interprets "everlasting life" (of the text) as "heaven," for the reason (apparently) that Jesus calls himself "the life," and "everlasting life" and this is used to represent heaven.

This does not twist the facts. It presents the facts at another angle, and it is direct and impressive to feel the impulse given us when it is said, "Whosoever believeth on me shall have heaven."

Of course Jesus meant that it was his Spirit, the Spirit of God within him, not his body, that had come down from heaven. Here he meant to teach the people that the same Spirit of God would teach them that he was from God.

This is a good Christmas day message. It is for good. Think it over:

"Christmas hath a darkness
Brighter than the blazing moon;
Christmas hath a chillness
Warmer than the heat of June.
Christmas hath a beauty
Lovelier than the world can show;
For Christmas bringeth Jesus,
Brought for us so low.
"Earth strike up your music,
Birds that sing and bells that ring;
Heaven hath answering music
For all angels soon to sing:
Earth put on your whitest
Bridal robe of spotless snow;
For Christmas bringeth Jesus,
Brought for us so low."—Rassetti.

THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

By F. P. ENSMINGER.

Forty-seven years after William E. Barton began his first pastorate at Robbins, Tenn., the State Conference was held in Barton Chapel. It is the best building in the little mountain town in northeast Tennessee, which is on the Southern Railway, and is a beautiful chapel of the English parish church style, with rooms for the pastor or for church activities attached.

In spirit young Barton might have been present at this annual meeting. Two hours were devoted to a service in memory of the mountain work of missionary and superintendent, Gilbert S. Walton, who was ordained at Robbins in 1901 and served richly in the mountains for sixteen years. His widow, Elizabeth Doughtrey Walton, who had gone from Columbus, O., to the Tennessee mountains as a teacher while yet a young girl, was the honored guest at the memorial service. Superintendent Walton had helped to organize the first Christian Endeavor Society at Grandview in 1885 and the Tennessee Christian Endeavor Union is making a permanent memorial to him.

In the year 1932, came Don Lee West, a flaming spirit and mountain athlete from the rough mountains, to this conference. He then sought ordination. Don does not separate the phases of life. He is a poet, having published two volumes, "Crab Grass," and "Deep, Deep Down in Living," in mountain dialect with a remarkable vocabulary. It was interesting to observe the quick response of the mountain people to his reading from his poems. His third volume, "Between the Plow Handles," is on the press.

Don prefers to be a mystic, but the autumnal glory of the forests on the ridges had no meaning for him apart from the life of his people of the ridges and hollows, and so when he read his paper to the examining Council he frankly and passionately pleaded for "a new social order" on the basis of the Sermon on the Mount.

President William J. Campbell of the Congregational Foundation of the Vanderbilt University School of Religion preached the ordination sermon for the alumnus of his school. Don will serve a Congregational Church while bravely adventuring with Myles Horton, another mountain man, in the foundation of the Highlander Folk School near Monteagle, Tenn.

Conference reports and discussions emphasized the value of the active programs for rounded Christian service under good leadership at the centers of larger parish work in Soddy, Daisy, Robbins, Crossville, and Pleasant Hill, which are the chief points in the Tennessee Rural Work thank-offering for the year. Such national thank-offering gifts as come to these fields will be well used. At Pleasant Hill there is a large extension work conducted in twenty outlying pastorless communities under the leadership of the Rev. Edwin E. White. In Uplands Sanatorium, Dr. May C. Wharton rebuilds souls as well as bodies. At Pleasant Hill Academy, Principal Oscar M. Fogle has an adapted Christian high school which is overflowing with picked local young people who are living beyond mountain "commuting distance" from high schools.

Dr. Blom pleased the conference by a narrative of his pastoral experiences, leading to a discussion on the part of other ministers.

A layman, Prof. William A. Harper, Ph. D., author and teacher in the Vanderbilt University School of Religion, was made conference moderator for 1932-1933, and Mrs. Marston S. Freeman, of Chattanooga, assistant moderator.

Our Foundation at Vanderbilt, of which Dr. William J. Campbell is president, is not only training Congregational and Christian students for the gospel ministry and work in religious education and making our ideals and spirit known to the entire School of Religion, but it is also engaging, with agencies of other denominations, in united movements which are bringing about ecclesiastical understanding and cooperation.

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

OBITUARIES

FRANCES SIMPSON.

Mrs. Frances Whiteheart-Simpson, relict of the late Patrick H. Simpson, departed this life November 7, 1932, lacking 19 days of being 78 years of age. Her husband preceded her to the grave about seven years ago.

She leaves to mourn their loss, two daughters, two sons, one adopted daughter, five grandchildren, one sister and two brothers.

She was a good woman, and loved her community, her church and her home. She suffered much during her latter days, but did not complain. She passed away and is awaiting the resurrection morn.

At Mt. Bethel Christian Church, near Summerfield, N. C., we laid her body near that of her husband to await the last day.

Many relatives and friends were present at these rites, and her grave was covered with beautiful flowers.

J. W. PATTON.

KING.

Mrs. Minnie King passed away at her home in Burlington, N. C., on November 18, 1932, aged 63 years, 2 months and 25 days. She is survived by two daughters and three sons. She had one son, Ernest M. King, who was killed in France in the World War, October 10, 1918. She was a member of Union Christian Church and had been for some time. She loved her church and was glad to attend its services when she could.

The funeral services were conducted from the home by the writer, assisted by Dr. G. O. Lankford, Rev. M. B. Buck, and Rev. F. W. Paschall. The interment was in the church cemetery at Union.

May the Healer of broken hearts comfort those who mourn.

P. H. FLEMING.

BALLARD.

On October 26th, Bro. Elisha Ballard passed from this life to his eternal reward. Bro. Ballard was 74 years of age, but appeared to be much younger. He was for many years an active member of Mt. Carmel Church. Always faithful in attendance, and was one of the deacons when he died. He will be greatly missed in his home, church and community. He leaves to mourn their loss, a devoted wife, two daughters, Mrs. W. D. Lowe and Mrs. Julian Carr, one son, Rev. Floyd Ballard, a gospel minister.

The funeral service was conducted by the writer at Mt. Carmel Church, in the presence of a very large congregation of friends. His body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. The floral tributes were large and beautiful.

May the Lord sustain the bereaved family and friends.

O Word made flesh, still we receive thee not;
Still in our hearts the crowds make thee no room;
Still in the panoply of spear and sword,
The armed hosts would slay of peace the Lord.

E'en though the poor may see the heavens rent,
E'en though the wise may follow still thy star,
Mammon and might still sit on Herod's throne,
Nor reck a Saviour come to claim his own.

O Infant Christ, thy throne is still to win,
Not yet triumphant is thy holy cause;
And man must rise to bring thy Kingdom down.
The cross still waits thee and the thorny crown,

Yet once again we celebrate thy birth,
Not wholly reigning, yet one born to reign,
Hope of the earth, eternal life's glad Word,
Theme of the gladdest message earth hath heard.

Humbly we open up our hearts to thee,
Welcome thee in to be our Christmas guest;
Reign thou in us that all the stricken earth,
May joyful own the God who gave them birth.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The glad Christmas season, glad only as you make someone else glad, a happy event only if we make the event happy for others.

There will be no CHRISTIAN SUN next week. This is in keeping with the custom of long standing, that the office force may, with the rest of the world, have a season for Christmas celebration.

From Rev. G. H. Veazey, Wadley, Ala.: "Our college is doing well under the circumstances. Public schools in Alabama are closing Christmas for lack of funds. Church work is gloomy, but I am truly thankful that we have Christ's eternal promise."

Rev. W. C. Martin, chairman, building committee, Flint Hill Christian Church, out from Biscoe, writes that the roofing is ready to go on the new church building, and the congregation and community are pushing the work, hoping to have the house completed for dedication at no far distant date.

A welcome visitor at Elon the past week was Dr. W. H. Denison, one of the general secretaries of the Congregational-Christian Council. Dr. Denison is a busy man in the church, being interested most deeply in the subject of Stewardship and Church Finance, a theme most vital now in the life and progress of the church.

A great audience gathered recently to hear the "Elon College Playmakers" give their first public function. The event was a most happy and successful one, pleasing the great numbers who had gathered from out of town to see and hear the performance. A permanent organization was effected and "The Elon Playmakers" begins its career, which gives promise of a real contribution to Elon life and history.

A Christmas moment meditation: "Rejoice in the Lord alway, and again I say, rejoice. Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

The list of appropriations of the Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference, as reported in the Suffolk Letter last week was inadvertently omitted from the Letter. We regret the oversight, and publish the list herewith: Christian Temple, $470.00; South Norfolk, $200.00; Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, $100.00; First, Portsmouth, $50.00; First, Richmond, $100.00; Hopewell, $50.00; Waverly, $50.00; Newport News, $150.00.

Poplar Arbor Church, Doerun, Ga., has given a unanimous call to Rev. Arnold Slater to become its pastor. Mr. Slater is at present in England, but it is hoped he will be back in January to begin work here and in Cochran, thus serving two churches. The Poplar Arbor Church is purely rural with a wealth of young people many a city church would be proud to have. A peculiar thing noticed in all our rural Georgia churches is the numbers of young people. And they all go to church.

New Light Church, Doerun, Ga., is exceedingly happy with Rev. C. W. Carpenter, pastor. His first year of service here has resulted in progress in every department. His church is full at every service, the Christian Endeavor is large and growing, the Sunday School is strong. The people are loud in praise of the leadership of the pastor. This church has very little money in cash. It is, therefore, getting the money to pay the apportionment by collecting produce from the members and turning it into cash. Not a bad thing for any rural church.

Very soon THE CHRISTIAN SUN will give us the new constitution of the Georgia Congregational and Christian Conference. It will be of great importance to every Congregational and Christian Church in Georgia. And, by the way, more of our people in Georgia should subscribe for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Not one of our

IF CHRIST HAD NOT COME.

By George Douglas.

"If I had not come," once the Saviour said—
Think what this earth had been,
If He had not been born in Bethlehem's crib,
And His star had never been seen.

If the angels bright had not thrilled the night
With the song of a better day;
Then our hopeless race had stumbled on
In its dark and blinded way.

No cross where a sinking soul might cling,
No conquered grave for the dead;
Of the wondrous news that changed a world,
No whisper had ever been said.

And the children who love to sing of Him,
Who once was a little child,
Had never heard the glad Christmas bells
Ring out in the winter wild.

But in matchless grace the Saviour came
To live and to die for men;
And to crown them kings of a golden age
He is surely coming again.

When the love of God shall enfold the earth,
And peace descend like the dew;
And the cloud of sorrow shall no more rise
In a sky of stainless blue.

We may kneel then in faith on Christmas Day.
And breathe the sweets that arise
From the gardens of life, redeemed from the thorn, churches can get on well without its publicity and the information which comes only in THE SUN. Every home should have it. The writer strongly urges all who do not now subscribe, to do so at once. Begin the new year right. Take THE SUN with you every week of the year.
In the nearing Paradise.

The present Congress seems quite anxious that the country be given the opportunity to drink its way to prosperity. The Ways and Means Committee has reported favorably a measure to make the manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer legal. It refuses, however, to sponsor, by a vote of 14 to 9, to permit the manufacture of naturally fermented wines, the chairman of the committee declaring that such wines with possible alcoholic contents of 14 per cent would be unconstitutional. Speaker Garner and other leaders had supported this provision, and the belief now is that all chance of legalizing wines at the present session has passed.

United Congregational and Christian Church, Columbus, Ga., has recently been incorporated and is now in position to own property. Accordingly the trustees of the old Georgia-Alabama Conference, in harmony with the action taken by said conference in 1927 and 1928, is deeding the old Rose Hill property to this new church. It will be remembered that this church grew out of the union of the old Congregational Church, at the beginning, under Dr. Neil McQuarrie's leadership, and later by the union of the North Highland Christian Church with the Rose Hill Christian Church. Under the leadership of Rev. David Shepherd, this United Church has developed strength unknown for several years. As soon as the property is in full possession of the United Church, steps to repair it in a general way will be taken. The prospects for genuine service are exceedingly bright. Growth is inevitable.

ELON COLLEGE DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB.

The members of the Dollar-a-Month Club have certainly been thoughtful and generous as we approach Christmas time. They have been sending in their dues in a most encouraging way, and, too, we have had a number of new members. It is always encouraging to see the number grow. In addition to individual members, we have had another Sunday School to join. A nice young lady wrote us a very beautiful letter, in which she said:

"Virgilina, Va.

"Dear Dr. Smith:

"We wish to join the Dollar-a-Month Club. Enclosed you will find check for $4.00, for the first four months.

"Very truly,

"UNION CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL,
"By B. MORNINGSTAR, Sec'y."

There are a large number of Sunday Schools in the Southern Convention who could just as easily join as the Sunday School at Virgilina. This desire to support the college seems to be increasing. I know that there are a large number of churches, Sunday Schools, organized classes and individuals who are wanting to join the Dollar-a-Month Club, and are just waiting for somebody to ask them for their memberships; but you don't have to wait until somebody calls on you—just fill out the blank which you find at the bottom of this article, pin a dollar bill to it and mail it into the office. A number of our friends have gotten so enthused about this Dollar-a-Month Club that they have paid for a full twelve months in advance. Of course, they will not feel right, letting a whole twelve months pass without sending Elon a contribution—you can just depend on that. This is good news: We received from the Dollar-a-Month Club this week a total of $230.00 which makes a total of $1,612.00 contributed by members of the Club to date. The Club was organized last spring, and we are hoping by Commencement that we may have at least a total of $10,000 contributed by the Club members.

I want to thank you on behalf of the college, the board of trustees—I want to thank everyone who has contributed to the college through the Club, and wish you a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

WE HAVE JUST BEGUN TO FIGHT.

Unmistakably the recent elections bring to the cause of national prohibition a new occasion. "New occasions teach new duties." We would be blind, and inexcusably blind, were we not to recognize the facts, facts however startling, however disheartening as of the present moment. The national administration aside, dry stalwarts of a generation have been defeated and nine states have, by overwhelming popular vote, repealed their enforcement laws, while two others have voted to petition Congress for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

But recognition of these facts has for us no bugle call of retreat. There are other facts and these other facts will more and more emerge as time passes and our opponents begin to administer their real or fancied triumph.

Now is not the time to state a detailed program for the dries, nor is it the moment to indicate the details of what we believe should be their strategy. But we may and should restate certain principles and justify the faith within us that accepts the present crisis as a challenge to go forward.

First. We are against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and we shall fight accordingly.

Second. We are against any measure for "legalizing" beer, or for liberalizing the Volstead Act, that circumvents the Constitution. Also we shall have no part in any program of mere obstruction. To illustrate: If we could at least hold the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution by thirteen states against thirty-five, the "victory" would be worse than hollow. Such a program would be repugnant to the ideals and spirit of American democracy. Nullification, direct and complete, if not revolution, would be the result.

We believe that the Eighteenth Amendment, or the cause for which it stands, can be saved and advanced without a subversive policy.

If, as claimed by the opposition, the recent elections are to be taken as a mandate from the people to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, then certainly there is a mandate equally binding to keep out the saloon and to protect dry territory. Both party platforms carried these pledges. No solution calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment can be submitted or even considered in good faith that does not make provision, definite and adequate, against the return of the saloon and for the protection of dry territory. Every dry and every dry organization should keep this basic principle constantly before the American people. Nor should we be deterred or disturbed by the charge that will be shouted from the wet housetops that such an honest fight is a filibuster.

Increasingly it is apparent that the brewers are premature in washing their kegs, in preparing their malt, and in getting steam up under their boilers. Increasingly it is apparent that repeal is more than a day's journey ahead.

As to the dry strategy, at least this may be said without prejudice to any future and more complete statement. The organizational unity that we believe is essential to the ultimate triumph of this cause, and without which we have suffered unnecessary defeats, may be still impossible. It may be inevitable that we shall disagree on important matters of the future educational, organizational and political program. But surely in the immediate crisis we can and must unite—first, to defeat both beer and repeal in the short session; second, to demand for every measure proposed specific and adequate provisions against return of the saloon and for protection of dry territory—and this without consenting to the principle of repeal or compromising our position in the final vote.

Finally, our goal remains unchanged, our destination unaltered. Ours is at last not a fight for any law or amendment. Ours is a fight to destroy the man-exploiting liquor traffic, legal and illegal. Ours is a continuing campaign to solve the liquor problem. This war does not end in, nor is it fatally affected by, reverses and defeats. This campaign does not rest its case at last with any statute or with any amendment. The Eighteenth Amendment is a means toward the great end. It never has been, and it is not now, the end in itself. We go on with the Eighteenth Amendment, or from the Eighteenth Amendment, if necessary, to reach the goal, to solve the problem, to win the war. Under the standard of this fight we would unite with all citizens of patriotism and good will who move toward the goal, who would solve the problem, who would win the war.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE.

The crew and passengers of Piedmont College have sailed into the second term without any casualties and having had good weather and a generally prosperous voyage.

The real work and play of a college give no handles for history. The events noted below were not more important than the daily routine, but they have names and are therefore convenient to mention.

The Lyceum Course brought to the college auditorium Gymn the Magician, and the Avon Players in "Hamlet."

All four classes have entertained their fellows with stage programs. Assisted by the orchestra, the Theta Zeta Phi Society gave an elaborate play, and the Glee Club and the individual pupils of Miss Keene and Mrs. Motz gave an excellent musical recital.

The speakers at the vesper services (from outside Demorets) have included Dr. Witherspoon Dodge, of Atlanta, Rev. Alton Glazare, of Cornelia, Dr. A. T. Cline, of Toccoa, and Professor Simmons of Brenau College.

No special effort was made this year to bring back the graduates for Thanksgiving Day; yet a number of them came. Two hundred sat down to a masterpiece of a banquet, and the cheering was as loud as the food was good. Professor Phillips was the toastmaster, and the speakers he presented were Dr. Shipman for the trustees, Dr. Atkinson for the faculty, Mrs. Jewell Heath Boggs, of Dawsonville, for the graduates, and Fred Hallford, Elizabeth Berryman, Lavon Osigian and Arthur Smith for the undergraduates.

The celebration was concluded next day in the Chapel, where the speaking was more informal and for that reason, perhaps, more hearty and stirring with the Piedmont spirit. Dean Rogers presided. Most of the speakers were teachers on holiday. They included Marshall O'Rear of Waycross, Mrs. Ruth Little Bonner, of Tallapoosa, Hoyt Chambers, of Homer, Geraldine Purdy, of Griffin, Roy Lawrence and Rosie Gill, of Blue Ridge, Margaret Malcolm, of Pinon Point, Alice Malcolm, of Borthwick, Mary Malcolm, of Madison, James Brooks, of Colquitt, Laurence Butcher, of Lafayette, and Eary Gardner, of Copper Hill, Tenn. WANTED—A HOME!

The Children's Bureau of the Virginia State Department of Public Welfare, 1101 Bank Street, Richmond, Va., is in great need of free foster homes in Virginia for boys and girls, colored and white, from babyhood up to twenty years of age, but especially homes for white boys of school age.

Following are some of the children awaiting placement:

Jack—Fourteen, an alert, attractive little fellow who needs the security and happiness of a permanent home. He has made many friends and should be a joy to the family taking him in.

Hazel—Six, dainty and blonde. To see her is to love her. She wants companionship of other children. It is hoped that she may find a foster mother and father and also a brother or sister or both.

Bobbie—A little three-year-old, with fair hair and blue eyes, much interested in his surroundings and with unusual capacity for gaining affection.

David—Six, but quite a man, and most appealing with his twinkling brown eyes; has a quick mind and only needs opportunity for development.

Sue—A timid little dark-eyed girl of fourteen, sensitive and affectionate, fond of school, unusually well behaved.

Dick—Thirteen, an outdoor lad, brown as a berry from sunburn, alert, full of fun.

Sam—Fourteen, courteous and gentlemanly, with a longing for affection of which he has been deprived by the breaking up of his own family.

Herbert—Fourteen, fond of play, enjoys the companionship of other boys, can also do chores nicely and can give help on a farm. He is interested in school; an all-round boy.

Jim—Fifteen, is small for his age, with a great longing to belong to some one. Around Christmas when other boys are receiving cards and packages through the mail from relatives, he feels lonely and sad because of not having interested relations. He is an appealing child, wins devoted friends. Is interested in Sunday School and the Church.

Jane—Fourteen, quiet, well behaved, fond of school, studies hard, likes household tasks, does not remember her own parents, wants a permanent home.

Anyone in the State of Virginia interested in giving a child a free home is urged to write to the State Children's Bureau. A family which will care for one of these needy boys or girls will be rendering a real and much appreciated service, the value of which cannot be overestimated.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

There are times when a church needs some extra money. During the winter in the South there are always people present who have come from the North to play or visit or do business. A little more business is thus brought into the community. Why shouldn't the church profit by all this? Probably it does through increased contributions, but there are other ways of increasing the income.

In some churches an attractive directory or introduction book could be published. A local printer would give a fair price on the printing. The little booklet could contain a picture of the church building and a picture of the minister. The name of the church, location, hours of service, and a list of societies, clubs, etc., with the names of their officers could be included. A little history of the church would be interesting.

Some pictures of groups of members and young people could be used. A cordial invitation to attend services might well occupy one page. If it were deemed advisable, a list of members could be printed with addresses. The idea is all we desire to present.

Now this can all be paid for by advertisements of merchants. By careful planning and good salesmanship a profit could be made for some church fund. The booklets should be distributed free to everybody who would be interested.

The writer of this "Corner" did this very thing in a small-town parish and called it "A Book of Introduction," and it proved a great success. Copies may be sent through the mail to newcomers and to people you wish to interest in the church.

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A GREAT LIGHT.

CHRISTMAS BEGINS.

(Isaiah 9:2-7.)

The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.

Thou hast multiplied the nation, and not increased the joy; they joy before thee according to the joy in harvest, and as men rejoice when they divide the spoil.

For thou hast broken the yoke of his burden, and the staff of his shoulder, the rod of his oppressor, as in the day of Midian.

For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood; but this shall be with burning and fuel of fire.

For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.

(Matthew 2:1-11.)

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem.

Saying, where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him.

When Herod the king heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

And they said unto him, in Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet:

"And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel."

Then Herod when he had privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child: and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

When they heard the king, they departed; and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold and frankincense and myrrh.

(Luke 2:8-21.)

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying:

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

JESUS WHO GAVE US CHRISTMAS.

The name Jesus is the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew word, Joshua, and means "Jehovah is salvation." Christ is the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew Messiah, which in Hebrew means "Anointed." Jesus, the Christ, therefore, means in Hebrew, "Jehovah is salvation, through (or by) the Anointed." In the sixth century A. D., Dionysius introduced the reckoning of dates as we now have them, but history proves that his reckoning was in error, and the exact date of the birth of Christ, the beginning of the Christian era, is still in dispute, but was most probably, at least, 5 B. C. It was not until the fourth century that the observance of December 25th is mentioned. Both the day, the month, and the year of Christ's birth are, therefore, uncertain. It is not the event in time, but the fact in history, that counts and is established. In fact, the silence of history, in the matter of so great an event, argues unmistakably for its divine appointment and origin. The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed, which, being so small in the sight of man, is hardly reckoned with, but in God's sight, and under his care, little things become large and small beginnings have most significant endings. God saw fit to make the greatest oak of the forest grow from a little acorn, which, unnoticed of man, fell one day noiselessly into the soil.

The birthplace of Jesus, both by prophecy and history, was the little town of Bethlehem. It was Augustus Caesar, a mighty ruler of Rome and the world, who declared that a world-wide census should be taken, and each individual, according to the custom of the day, went to their family city to be enrolled. Bethlehem was the family city of both Joseph and Mary. The exact spot, like the exact time, of the birth of Jesus is not known, though the most reliable tradition is that it was a cave used for a stable (as the word "manger" indicates), and was near, if not in, the confines of the town of Bethlehem. The very simplicity and humble surroundings of the birth of Jesus establishes its genuineness, since there was no place for the ingenuity of man to contrive the event and herald it with the glare of pageantry and the sounding of trumpets. It is not man but God who heralds the event and proclaims, in his own way, the glory of it.

1. Through the religious impulse of man—the shepherds and the voice of an angel. These shepherds, following the religious bent of their ancestors, minding their flocks, were visited by an angel who sang a requiem, not of an ideal afar off in the heavens, but of a blessing now come to earth: "Peace on earth, among men good-will."

2. Through the intellect and learning of man—the visit of the Magi ("seers, wise men"); and the men of learning showed their reverence and devotion, and even their worship, by their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

3. Through politics and statecraft, his coming is declared. The wise men were warned not to return to Herod, and an angel appeared to Joseph, telling him to flee from Herod, for this wicked ruler of his day, in envy and jealousy, had all the children under three years of age in and about Bethlehem brutally murdered. When Joseph later learned that Archelaus reigned, instead of his father Herod, he was afraid to return to his native town of Bethlehem, and so went to Nazareth, and there Jesus grew up. Thus God, through religion, through intellect, through politics and statecraft, declared to the world that which the world was then loath to hear, and that to which it has not yet given welcome—that Jesus, the Christ, is the way and the only way of salvation.

After nearly twenty centuries, much of the world crowds Jesus out, and "there is no room for him in the inn." The history of his career through the ages, the prophecy before his day, and undisputed facts since his day, declare him to be what his name in Hebrew means: "Jehovah is salvation through his Anointed." The world is giving him the cold shoulder and crowding him out.

But not all the world. For, while "He came unto his own and his own received him not, as many as received him to them gave he the power to become the Sons of God." The Sons of God are carrying on. In his name, they are shaping governments, remaking the destiny of nations, healing the sick, opening the eyes of the blind and preaching the gospel to the poor. At this Christmas time, millions will pay obeisance to him by the giving of gifts and showing kindness to those about them. And many of the sons and daughters of God will, somewhere in a secret place and a silent moment, acclaim him their King, their Lord, their Redeemer. "For of his government there shall be no end, and his kingdom shall never cease. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts hath done this." J. O. A.

THE WORLD'S NOBLEST CHRISTMAS CAROL.

"Silent night, holy night," words at which the heart thrills now, for they are a part of the sweetest and most inspiring Christmas carol ever written—so this editor thinks. And yet this melody that now fills the air and will be sung by millions of voices, and played by a million sweet instruments all over the world, was conceived in grief and born in sorrow. Want to know its history? It is worth knowing:

It was a stormy, rainy day in the fall; the wind rages at the windows; the leaves are falling from the trees; a young man sits in the plainly furnished room with his face buried in his hands because his beautiful wife is ill. The young man, Franz Gruber, teacher and organist, is aroused from his gloomy thoughts by the entrance of Joseph Mohr, his fatherly friend and priest.

"Good evening, Franz! See what I have here," said the priest, drawing a paper from his pocket. "You will be surprised, Franz. It's a poem; yes, a poem; a song which I have just completed; a Christmas song which we shall sing for the first time on Christmas morning in our church. I want you to compose the music for it; I know you can do it."

Franz Gruber shook his head. He took the paper and laid it on the table without looking at it.

"No, Joseph," he said with trembling voice, "I cannot do it; not a note would come from my soul, or if any should come they would be nothing but discords or tones of sorrow and pain."

Joseph Mohr, who, in his enthusiasm and happiness over his poem, had not noticed the pale and sorrowful face of his young friend, inquired in bewilderment:

"Franz, what's the matter with you; what has happened?"

Franz Gruber told his friend of his troubles. Days of anxiety followed, and soon his beautiful wife was laid away, leaving Franz and his little daughter, only four years old, alone.

It is the evening before Christmas and Franz Gruber again sits alone in his room. He cannot forget his great loss. Not even music is able to comfort him. Whenever he touches the keys of the little organ it brings out mournful melodies, and he has not been able to compose a single new song.

All at once the church bells of the town ring out in jubilant tones, reminding the people to come to church in order to celebrate the "holy night" when the Christ Child was born. Even the Christmas chimes made no impression on Franz Gruber.

Suddenly the door of the next room is thrown open and a little girl comes running to her father. She jumps upon his lap, kisses him and exclaims: "Merry Christmas, dear papa! Now you must come to see our Christmas tree."

Some of Franz Gruber's friends, under the leadership of Joseph Mohr, had arranged this surprise for him. Their kindness melted the ice from the young man's heart, despair vanished and heavenly peace took its place. With tears in his eyes he clasped his little daughter in his arms and carried her into the next room where a few intimate friends awaited him.

On a little table in one corner of the room he saw a representation of Mary and Joseph and the Christ Child in a manger, with the shepherds standing at the entrance. Above the stable, arranged in transparent letters, was the message of the angels: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, good-will toward men."

Franz Gruber's soul was filled with heavenly harmonies and beautiful melodies. He picked up the poem Joseph Mohr had brought him some time ago and read it. He sat down before the organ, touched the keys, and as if he wanted to regain in melodies what he had neglected in all the sad days and weeks, the tones rushed and roared through the house, thus relieving his soul from all gloomy thoughts.

Soon he fell into soft, beautiful fantasies, and then and there was born the melody of the beautiful song which Joseph Mohr had brought him, a song and a melody which after a hundred years is sung around the world, especially at Christmas time:

"Silent night; holy night;
All is calm, all is bright."

It is ever so. There is no joy without sorrow; no peace without pain; no victory without defeat; no smile without a tear; no day without a night; no resurrection without a cross; no bliss without a burden.

HOW IT IS DONE.

The latest reports from our missionary headquarters is both discouraging and disconcerting.

So many thousands of dollars behind in our giving and their receiving! The debts are piling up and one wonders where the end will be. What cuts will be made and how are we going to face the issue? These are questions that cannot be avoided very well, but they do not exhaust our resources. It is well enough to question, but that gets us nowhere.

One of the most encouraging thoughts that has come to the writer was suggested by reading one of Ex-President Calvin Coolidge's daily remarks taken from the Boston Post. He says in that article, that "The great fact seems to be that when a man dedicates his whole soul to his work, when he fully determines to meet the responsibilities that he incurs, in his time of need some power outside himself directs his course and gives him strength to prevail. To such men comes revelation. They do better than they know. Therein lies the hope of the world."

If that be true, and surely it is, then we should not give up. Such difficult times ought to make a strong appeal to stand by the church and its work. Perhaps the hardest burden rests upon the pastors. They have to carry a pretty heavy load not only because their salaries are so far be-

Give The Sun for Christmas

We know of no more appropriate Christmas Gift than your church paper. Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

We will also send an announcement card stating that the paper is being sent by you, and wishing for them a whole year of happiness.

In addition to this, as a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each Christmas Gift subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Damascus Christian Church, located at Sunbury, N. C., celebrated the 100th anniversary of its organization on Sunday, December 11th. The church was organized in 1836, with six members. The following program was arranged for the occasion: Doxology; invocation by Rev. E. B. White, pastor; hymn, "How Firm a Foundation"; Scripture lesson; prayer by the pastor; hymn: "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord"; historical sketch, by Mr. W. E. MacClenny; solo, "Consider the Lilies," by Mrs. W. O. Crump; address, "Measuring the Church," by Dr. I. W. Johnson; solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Miss Lidia Nixon; offering; hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds"; benediction.

The weather was inclement, but the congregation was large and attentive. The historical sketch read by Mr. MacClenny was of unusual interest. He has made a careful study of the history of all the older local churches in Tidewater Virginia and Eastern North Carolina. This work required a great deal of research, but he has rendered invaluable service by his painstaking effort. The history of Damascus should be printed in THE SUN for future reference.

Mr. Uriah Rawls was the first pastor, who served them faithfully until 1838, when Rev. Joshua Livesay was elected and served until 1840. For several years after this date the church was without a pastor. During the period from 1840 to 1850, the church was supplied by itinerant ministers. The following names appear in the list of those who preached occasionally: Williamson, Apple, Berryman, Craven, Wellons, Hobby, W. A. Jones, and others. The church did not have more than nine members until the year 1850, when Rev. W. B. Wellons was called to be pastor. In 1851 the church reported 67 members to conference; in 1854, 126 members.

From these facts it is seen that under the leadership of Rev. W. B. Wellons, the church grew rapidly in numbers and took on new life and interest. He served as pastor until 1867.

The following ministers have served as pastors: Revs. Uriah Rawls, Joshua Livesay, W. B. Wellons, P. S. P. Corbin, R. H. Holland, E. W. Beale, C. J. Ralston, M. L. Williams, H. H. Butler, R. H. Peel, B. F. Black, J. M. Roberts, W. B. Fuller, B. J. Earp, I. W. Johnson, W. W. Staley, G. A. Pearce, and E. B. White.

The following is a list of the church secretaries: James R. Doughtie, R. H. Powell, James K. Costen, James B. Costen, George J. Costen, William H. Speight, J. R. Raynor, J. R. Corbitt, and J. E. Corbitt.

The following persons have served as superintendents of the Sunday School: Joseph Costen, Joseph Morris, John R. Hinton, Joseph R. Raynor, George J. Costen and John E. Corbitt.

The present membership of the church is 169. During the year 1932, four Sunday School rooms were added to the building, and this additional equipment increases the efficiency of the Sunday School.

Two Christian ministers, Revs. L. L. Lassiter and George J. Green, received their early religious impressions in this church.

It is worth while to reflect upon the history of a church. Too little attention has been given to the history of the Christian Churches. Think of a hundred years of religious history! Think of the pastors and other preachers who have declared the glorious gospel of Jesus Christ! Think of the hundreds who have been converted and added to the church! Think of the years of labor and sacrifice rendered by those who had faith in the future! Think of those who have found peace and comfort within its sacred walls! Think of those who have been faithful unto death and have entered into that rest which remaineth for the people of God! Damascus has made a great contribution to the kingdom, and her history is worthy of recognition and record.

I. W. JOHNSON.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS.

Elon College has been the recipient of many thoughtful and generous gifts on the part of her constituency. For more than forty years, she has enjoyed the encouragement and support of the church at large. Without such cooperation, she could never have rendered the efficient service that has been her privilege to render. It is with grateful appreciation that she recognizes the liberal contributions of generous hearts, and at this Christmas season, she would like to extend her sincere appreciation and Christmas greetings to all who have had a part in her support.

First: She remembers, with increasing gratitude, the devotion, the ambition and the sacrifices of those who founded her, and who nurtured her during the tender years of her early existence.

Second: At this season of the year, she is peculiarly sensible of her dependence upon those who have been chosen to outline her course, shape her policies and determine her destiny. To her board of trustees she would re-commit her fortunes in confidence and full assurances of the future, and, at the same time, gratefully acknowledge her debt of gratitude for their guidance, wisdom and generosity.

Third: She gratefully records the many considerations, special favors and contributions of various kinds, given her by the ordained ministers of the church.

Fourth: She would extend to the Churches, Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavor Societies, Organized Bible Classes, Ladies' Aid, Missionary Societies, etc., the season's greetings and heartfelt good wishes for the new year.

Fifth: She would remember her friends, those who have been her friends during her most prosperous years and in the midst of her happiest experiences, and particularly those who have not forgotten her during her years of trials and seasons of adversity. When she needed them most, they were most ready to respond and unbelievably generous in her support.

Sixth: She would not forget those whom she has had the privilege of training, encouraging and fitting for more efficient service in life. Her sons and daughters, she remembers with profound gratitude and wishes for them the day's choicest blessings and life's sweetest victories.

In humble recognition of a divine guidance, she would bow herself in faith and devotion, expressing her gratitude to Almighty God, for his unspeakable gift and his glorious promise. May Christ rule and reign in the hearts of all, and on this occasion of the observance of the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ, Elon College extends sincere good wishes to all—ministers, officials, laymen, churches, organizations, students, families and friends and a "Merry Merry Christmas"—a "Happy and Prosperous New Year."

L. E. SMITH.

A PATRIOTIC PROPHECY.

The voice and the vote that made possible the Eighteenth Amendment came from those who knew the evils of the liquor traffic and the human destruction of the use of liquor. The tide that has seemed to turn against the prohibition law has come from a new generation—a generation that refuses to learn except by experiment. That experiment will be made to the extent of legalized beer of an alcoholic content to be determined by our national representatives. When this is done, millions who are now anti-prohibitionists will be satisfied, and with these millions will be other millions who favor repeal for purely revenue purposes. Thus two very large elements will be satisfied. In the meantime the moral forces of the nation will be keenly arrayed against any further step in the dispensing of drinks that help to bring about human waste and debauchery. The hue and cry for repeal is coming from the large cities, not from the small towns and villages and rural communities. America is a small-town and a rural nation. Voices from these parts have always ruled, and will continue to rule. When the state legislatures are called upon to aid in the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the real fight will be on. The liquor issue failed to be a major one in our recent national election, which was much to the surprise of many intelligent voters. The shrewd politician understood. The "dry" politician raised no particular protest because of the wave of what appeared to be public sentiment. It was, and is, only a wave. With a return of beer and better business conditions (but the legalizing of beer will not bring this return of better business) that wave will subside and saner judgment will prevail, the politician will speak and act according to his mind and heart and convictions, and our national law against the manufacture and sale of whiskey will be unchanged, but not unchallenged.

Churches, schools, societies and individuals working for a continuance of a law against the liquor traffic will do well to change their methods of appeal and approach to the subject. It is not enough to condemn the liquor traffic; we must teach and practice the spirit, the principle, and the doctrine of temperance. We must cease to single out one law that is broken when all laws are broken. We have murder every day, yet who would dare to make the killing of human beings a legal act? We have laws against thievery, and yet stealing goes on day after day, but who would vote to make the taking of his or his neighbor's property a lawful act? We have laws to protect society in a multitude of ways, yet society is made to suffer every day because these laws are broken. Who would lift a voice in the sanction of any law that would leave society free of legal protection? The asking of these questions is useless, but are repeated for comparison and emphasis.

America is saving herself and purging herself every day, the flaming headlines of many publications to the contrary. She will save herself from the wave of protest and discontentment and depression now sweeping over the land. Her real citizens will continue to carry out her mandates, and all the while a spirit of helpfulness toward those who would tear down the banner under which she has marched to victory and success for the moral, educational, and spiritual welfare of her people.

TIMOTHY THOMAS.

DEBTS AND DEBTORS.

You were kind enough to publish some months ago my short article on "Debts" as one of the chief barriers toward recovery and toward saving some of our best institutions. I want to renew that appeal, not in my own personal interest, but in the interest of our colleges, our churches, our farmers, our home-owners, and many business institutions. No general rule can be applied to each particular situation. In many cases refinancing and scaling down to 60 per cent would be sufficient, while in other cases the need might equal the whole amount of the debt. There are, of course, issues in each particular situation which demand the exercise of the finest Christian behavior on the part of the debtor as well as the creditor. If every creditor and every debtor in the State of North Carolina could be brought together and in the spirit of the Lord's Prayer face the problem, a solution would be found that would dispel heavy clouds that now hang over us and threaten to engulf institutions which we can ill afford to lose.

Some hope has returned, but not enough to help us all to that point of vantage where with a united spirit we can go forward to solve our problems in the light of less resources and the conditions of the new day ahead.

Every creditor in the State of North Carolina if he is fair, should realize that his part is one of the whole, and that it is to his personal interest as well as the State as a whole to discover where the line of fairness must now run. For him to imperil any business, any farmer, any college, any church, is to strike a blow where mercy and fairness are needed in an imperative manner.

And on the other hand every debtor in the State of North Carolina, if he is fair, should realize that the credit structure is imperative and if the farm, the business, the college, the church can pay, and does not, then there is guilt and lack of character.

It is a time for clearing which will bring back new courage, new hope and give us all a sense of social as well as individual justice and fairness, stabilizing our life anew and sending forward the life of our people in further reconstructive endeavors. For months now I have never repeated the Lord's Prayer without the vision of this accomplishment as the meaning of the words: "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors."

J. EDWARD KIRBYE.

GREETINGS!

Among the many who are extending the Season's Greetings to you, you have none more sincere than this humble preacher.

It is my earnest wish that this little Christmas message may convey to you, and the editorial staff, and to every SUN reader, my sincere greetings for a most joyful and blessed Christmas, my deep appreciation for your interest and support, which you have at all times given me, so as to make my labors pleasant, to stimulate, if we may, renewed effort within every member of our beloved church for bigger and better work in the New Year, and to cheer up those who may be a bit down-hearted.

Whatever your lot or station, we invoke for every member of our church sufficient grace to enable us to hear once again that blessed hymn of joy and peace and hope. May the light of its truth be your guiding star, for where we give "Glory in the Highest," there we shall find peace and good will among men.

Christmas is our way of saying that God is with us. According to custom we sing and tell the story of the wondrous birth of him over whose cradle angels sang the sweetest song ever heard by men.

It also stands out as the unquestioned time for true and generous giving. It is the anniversary of a gift of preeminent quality, that of an only Son. In celebrating the birthday of the Christ, may we not forget the Christ.

Christmas is an outstanding religious festival. We will miss the real significance of it if we confine our observance of it simply to friendly greetings and fellowship gatherings in the home. The shepherds said: "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass." There they found the Christ Child and worshipped him.

The most fitting celebration of Christmas is in worship. May we be found among the multitudes who will make their way to the church, there to join in Christmas carols and Christmas prayers and to hear again the old, old story. May the spirit that prompted you to give good gifts to your loved ones prompt you to give a gift to the One who loves you best—Jesus Christ, the Son of God—who made Christmas possible.

A wish for your Christmas:

"May the star of hope that guided
The Wise Men of their way,
Make your pathway ever brighter
With each new Christmas Day."

W. T. MEACHAM.

Roanoke, Ala.

We appreciate the words of greeting from Bro. Meacham, and believe that we can speak for every member of THE SUN's staff.—J. T. K.

LYNCHBURG REVIVAL.

Rev. B. J. Earp has just completed a series of revival services at the United Congregational-Christian Church at Lynchburg, Va. In spite of unfavorable weather during a portion of the time, the services were well attended.

Considerable interest was added by the song services, led by Mr. A. G. Jefferson.

The earnest and forceful sermons of the evangelist inspired the congregation and, we believe, will prove a spiritual uplift to the church and to the community. Four were received into membership of the church by conversion, and twenty were added as associate members. E. H.

The little I have seen of the world teaches me to look upon the errors of others in sorrow, not in anger. When I take the history of one poor heart that has sinned and suffered, and represent to myself the struggles and temptations it has passed through, the brief pulsation of joy, the feverish inquietude of hope and fear, the pressure of want, the desertion of friends, I would fain leave the erring soul of my fellowman with him from whose hand it came.—Longfellow.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Father, God, we bow to thee. For cause the Christian part of our nation has hanged her harps upon the willows. Give anew to the nation's captivity witness of the Spirit, and with testimony let the redeemed of the Lord exalt thy mercy, plead thy forbearance, confess thy judgments. For fear and dismay give hope and trust, and grant to the helpless deliverance from the evil grip which verily would dash our little ones against the stones. We pray in Jesus' name.—Amen.

THREE STAGES IN MISSIONARY ACTION.

In his general statement Mr. White reviewed briefly the three stages in the theory for missionary action which the church has held: first, the time when there was no doubt concerning the true religion and the false and when consequently the aim and work of the missionary was clear-cut and simple; second, the time when modern thought with its study of anthropology and kindred subjects, comparative religion and the like, with its appreciation of the values of religious cults other than Christianity and its critical study of our own Bible and faith tended to disintegrate the simple, decisive theory of the true and the false. The more the religions of the world, including our own, were studied and criticized, the less we felt we knew which religion was the true one. As a result, a state of uncertainty was created in our ministry and the laity found itself saying that it was an impertinence to attempt to thrust our religion upon other peoples when they had religions of their own adapted to their peculiar genius and social needs; and the third stage now reached when we are making the categorical affirmations that it is not true that the religion any people has is ipso facto the best religion for them, that it is not true that one religion is as good as another, that it is true there is in the world a best religion—immeasurably better than any other religion—and that the man who has the best religion in the best regions of his thought and life is eternally under obligation to share it, or else lose it altogether.

The questions that followed centered for the most part upon the assumption that Christianity was the "best religion." It was emphasized and re-emphasized that Christianity is transcendently better: because of the spirit and personality of Jesus, the meaning he puts into the Fatherhood of God; because of its sense of the divine significance of historic fact and the affirmation of the fundamental goodness of human nature; because of the Christian's capacity for love, the world's most irresistible dynamic in practical life. There may be many men of different race and religion who excel in what we call Christian living, yet they in their own testimony, and in accordance with history, reveal the fact that the thing that keeps this spirit moving is the fact of Jesus himself. We may be outdone by many Jews and Gentiles in this world family of ours, but we know, nevertheless, that keeping going in the spirit of love depends upon keeping before men everywhere the personality of Jesus Christ. He is God's way of bringing about the kind of life the world needs.—Missionary Herald.

Every Sunday the Indian pastor in Rahuri, India, remembers in his prayer, "The American Board, the friends in America and all the people who are sacrificing so that India may have the message of God."

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY PROGRAM.

By MRS. W. M. JAY, Editor.

The following program is based on the booklet, "Christianity in Revolutionary China," by Rowland McLean Cross, which contains four programs. This booklet costs 10c, and may be secured from the Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Since our story books are based on China, it seems only fitting that we use these programs and learn all we can concerning this country. The booklet contains all the material necessary to put on the program, and every leader should have one by all means. Every worth-while project means putting forth some effort, so be sure and send for the booklet.

PROGRAM I.

"Students and the New Nationalism."

Hymn—"Watchman, Tell Us of the Night."

Scripture—"A new heaven and a new earth." (Rev. 21:1-8.)

Leader's introduction of the subject.

Talk or Paper—"Student Patriots."

Talk or Paper—"Christian Schools."

Special music.

Talk—"Confronting the Students with Christ and His Way of Life."

Talk—"Christian Student Organizations."

Discussion.

Prayer.

Closing Hymn—"Shepherd of Eager Youth."

JANUARY PROGRAM FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

By PRISCILLA CHASE.

This program is intended for young people. Prepare for it ahead of time, don't wait until the last minute to assign parts. If you don't have a "Guest Book," get one from Dr. Atkinson. The hymns may not be familiar, don't dismiss them, but practice them a bit ahead of time and use them. If they are not in your hymn book, find a hymn book that does have them. If you must substitute others, make sure they fit and do not express ideas of superiority. Incidentally, the next time your church buys hymnals insist that it shall be one with good World Friendship hymns.

This program is the second one based on the "Guest Book," and is adapted from suggestions in the Young People's Bulletin, No. 48, Autumn, 1932:

Hymn—"When Cross the Crowded Ways of Life."

Scripture—Eph. 2:13, 14, 16-22.

Leader—In the early days missionaries went to foreign lands simply "to preach the gospel." It did not take them long to discover that there were other ways than the one traditional way of preaching. Men who were sick and hungry needed medicine and food, as well as the Word, needed education and a chance to earn an honest and adequate living. So the preacher became the teacher, the doctor, the publisher, the social worker, the friend.

Our program is based on those emphases in our missionary task.

Several speakers now tell of these phases of work as exemplified in various individuals:

1. The Medical Worker—pages 15 and 22 in the "Guest Book."
2. The Social Worker—page 20.
3. The Teacher—pages 17 and 19.
4. The Publisher—page 14.
5. The Friend—page 18.

Hymn—"In Christ There Is No East or West."

Leader—But one of the chief jobs of the missionary is to keep himself in the background and train Nationals for places of leadership among their own people.

Three people now tell of three such Nationals:

1. Chinese—page 16 in the "Guest Book."
2. Zulu—page 21.
3. Mexican—page 13.

(Bring out that Mr. Soto is an excellent link between foreign and home missions.)

Prayer—For those workers and the great host they represent. For all who are in need and suffering. For children denied the right to play, and grown people denied the chance to work. For those in the famine regions and those in the slums of great cities. For our own church that its members may share with the rest of the world the message and the abundant life of Christ.

Hymn—"Christ for the World We Sing."

Benediction—May the love of Christ, the Great Friend, his peace, his joy in people, his touch with God the Father, be in our lives always, and touch the lives of those who meet us. Amen.

THE CHURCH AND HOME LIFE.
FAMILY RELATIONSHIPS.

A program outline prepared by Herbert W. Gates, in the American Missionary.

I. An Invocation. Seeking guidance of the spirit of God in this consideration of the home as an agency for religious education, that, with open minds and clear vision, the members of the group may be helped to make their homes true dwelling places of God's spirit and effective agencies in the building of his kingdom on earth.

II. Scripture Reading. Selection may be made from such as the following:

Ephesians 5:25-33: Advice on the relations of parents and children.

I. Corinthians 13:1-8: Paul's classic utterance on Love, which should guide every home.

Galatians 5:16-25: The fruits of the Spirit which should be manifest in family life.

Proverbs 4:1-9; 10:31: Wise counsel for the young.

III. Hymns. Two or three may be used at various points in the program. The following are appropriate: "O Thou Whose Gracious Presence Blest the Home at Bethany," "O Happy Home Where Thou Art Loved," O Father, Thou Who Givest All."

IV. Short Talks. These may be given by the members of the group upon topics assigned far enough in advance to allow time for preparation. A few topics are suggested as stimulating to constructive thought and action. References are given to various books in the hope that one or the other may be accessible. To save space, reference is made by letter (a), (b), etc., to the corresponding title in the list below.

1. The influence of the family upon the formation of standards of life and conduct and the building of character.

"The family exists to give society developed, efficient children. It fails if it does not have a religious, a spiritual product. It cannot succeed except by the willing self-devotion of adult lives to this spiritual, personal purpose." Cope, "Religious Education in the Family." References: (a) chaps. 1-4, 8; (d) chaps. 1, 10, 11; (j) chap. 4; (k) chaps. 1, 3.

2. The Modern Home: Contrast with that of earlier times; advantages and disadvantages of the changes that have come.

"There are three kinds of American homes, the good, bad, and bewildered. There have always been good and bad homes. The difference is that now our good homes are better than they have ever been in the past, and our bad homes are more of a menace than they have ever been. This is because the conditions of social life today give the good home more opportunity for its wholesome service, while intensifying the failure of the bad home." Groves, "The Drifting Home." References: (a) chaps. 2, 3; (d) chaps. 2, 5, 8; (k) chap. 2; (l) chap. 7.

3. Relations of Parents and Children. How may guidance be given without arbitrary and autocratic methods? How many children share in an experience of democratic social living?

"In an age like ours the Christian home must be a true democracy . . . the child, after all, is a person and has personal rights which must be respected. The superior wisdom of parents, based on their wider experience, must, of course, be recognized. So long as their decisions are fair, they deserve and win the respect of the children, but individuality must not be crushed out by forced obedience." Fiske, "The Christian Family."

4. The Christian Home. What makes a home religious and Christian? How may home and church cooperate more effectively?

Some characteristics of a Christian home: "Its atmosphere is that of whole-hearted, joyous love of God, finding expression in simple trust, sincere reverence and unaffected worship. The mutual relations of its members will be governed by principles of justice, kindness, helpfulness and love. Its attitude toward all other people will be that of brotherly kindness in the spirit of Christ. Its standard of values will be that of Jesus, setting the spiritual above the material, regarding service as a privilege and injury to character as the greatest calamity." "Principles and Methods of Religious Education in the Church," Congregational Education Society. References: (b) Chap. 18; (d) chaps. 4, 10-13, 16.

V. Questions, Discussion, Reports of Experience. Time should be reserved following these talks for questions on practical problems, discussion of points raised, and reports of personal experience in home and family life.

MISSIONS IN JAPAN.

The advance news which has come to us from America concerning the findings of the committee which has been visiting the Far East, has awakened a good deal of surprise among the missionaries.

One point deals with the personnel of the missionaries as if they are an inferior lot of men in whose places some supermen should be sent out. I have met missionaries by the hundreds at our summer resorts at Karnizawa. Taking them as a whole, they will in my judgment average up with the preachers in the great religious conventions of the homeland. The mission boards in all the missions have sometimes sent out misfits. Probably if the committee which makes the criticism, had the responsibility of sending out men, they would make just as many mistakes as any other board has made.

Another point is in regard to the inferiority of the schools as compared with the government schools. The government schools, like the State universities in the homeland, have access by taxation to the pockets of all the taxpayers in the land, and generally get what they want. But the mission boards have access to the pocketbooks of only a few generous and spiritually minded people in the church. If the results are not large and the gifts meager for building up great, well-equipped schools in foreign lands, it is because of the failure of the Christian laymen to provide the money. If the tale of bricks is not so great as one would desire, it has been due largely to a lack of straw.

But for ten years I have been connected with one of the great mission schools with its three thousand students, and I am sure the work which is being done is something to be proud of.

The committee seems to think that the churches of Japan should send to America a description of the kind of man they want and have the mission boards send out that type of man. I wonder if the committee would hope to find the famous men to be picked from American institutions of learning and get them for the salaries such as missionaries receive—salaries ranging from $1,100 to $2,500. Such men, coming to Japan at a mature age, would be too old to learn the language and their probable stay in a foreign land would not make it worth while to try to learn the language, even if they should care to do so.

The committee seems to think that since the peoples of mission lands can read newspapers and books, they can find out all about the Christian religion, and let the missionaries go home or stay at home. The situation is exactly what it is in America where the personal element enters into the success of the Christian movement. There are a few who have become Christians by simply reading the Bible, but they are not many. The students who come to me for the study of the Bible in English would seldom become Christians by their private study, but in the Bible Class it is rare when the student does not become a Christian. The work I do is with a class of young men whom the native pastors do not touch.

Again it has been said that the whole work of missions should be reorganized—and immediately the question arises: How should it be done? Shall school work be stopped? Shall preaching be stopped? Shall Sunday Schools and kindergartens be stopped? Shall personal work be stopped? Shall the religious papers, magazines and tracts be stopped? When one talks about the reorganization of the work he needs to remember that all the means for advancing the kingdom of God are exactly what is being done in the homeland.

But the committee seems to feel that the missionary is too orthodox, too conservative. I have known Dr. Guy who was at the head of the committee for thirty-five years, knew him when he first came to Japan when he told me he was not a higher critic, knew him later when he seemed to glory in his non-orthodoxy. We have been good friends always, but in our ideas of what one should teach and preach we are almost as far apart as the poles. I am still foolish enough to believe that "all scripture inspired of God is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness that the man of God may be perfect and thoroughly furnished unto all good works." I am still foolish enough to believe that He is the way, the truth and the life, and that no one comes to the Father except through Him. No human philosophy from whatever source or connected with whatsoever great names, can shake my faith in the ipsi disit of our Lord, the Son of God, supreme and glorious above all the world.

Personally, I wonder if the fact-finding committee found enough to make it worth while to come to Japan. Anyhow I am not greatly impressed by what has so far come to us in Japan.

A. D. WOODWORTH.

WHAT ONE PASTOR SAID.

In a time like this laymen responsible for local church support and faced with decreasing income are questioning whether contributions to missions and other denominational work should not be stopped until the local budget is balanced. This question comes directly to the minister. What shall he say? He appreciates the pressure upon conscientious trustees to have the church live within its means. Yet he feels the basic need to the church of loyalty to its wider relationships and responsibilities. Following are, in substance, three things that one pastor said to his church in a frank and friendly discussion of this pressing issue:

1. We are trying to be a Christian Church. We fall short in many ways but we cannot afford at any point to give up the Christian ideal. It is as true of a church as of an individual that to live a self-centered life is to cease to be a Christian. "Christianity ceases to be true to itself unless it is in every way and all the time actively outgoing." We may have to reduce our giving to Christian missions but we cannot lose our desire to give. The most important thing just now is that we shall want to give.

2. The work that is being carried on through our home and foreign missionary societies is not "outside." It is our work. It is a part of our own program of Christian service. It constitutes the practical fact of our fellowship with other Congregational-Christian Churches and people throughout the country. While it is work done at a distance so that we do not see it; and through agencies which are not local, it is still ours. We are not giving to the support of agencies whose major responsibility rests upon somebody else. Our will to have this work done uniting with the wills of many others is the authority for it. Our giving together with the giving of those others makes it possible. We need to make it more really our own than weaken the sense of our part in it by ceasing to make the best contribution we can.

3. We are not really free to give or not to give. We have entered into a partnership with other churches and with the missionary workers. We cannot go beyond our ability, to be sure, but so far as we are able we are under obligation to sustain and further the work. This is the great common enterprise of the church. We are pledged to it, not by formal contract, nor even by moral obligation alone, but by the love for men which makes us Christian and through which God seeks not only to bless us but to bring fullness of life to all mankind.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR.

This familiar greeting will soon pass between millions of friends, and for many it will be a sincere wish, akin to prayer. Such it is for the writer of these lines who is thinking at the Christmastide of hundreds of friends here in Virginia, over in my native heath of North Carolina, up in Connecticut, where happy student days were passed, over in New York where pastoring a country church brought happiness of heart, and scattered throughout this fair land of ours. The wish, sincere and true, is winged with prayer as well as sent on the printed page.

But nothing just happens. If we are to have a merry heart on the birthday of the Christ, and be happy throughout the New Year, we must plan for it. Happiness comes as a reward for Christian living.

In recent years poverty has replaced plenty in many homes. Hunger, suffering, and want stalk abroad and strike terror to many who have never been companions of such fear. Multitudes who have been accustomed to plenty will have little or no Christmas cheer unless some friend brings the necessities to their firesides. They need food, clothes, comfort, courage, hope, love, and Christian comradeship. These you may give, and in the giving you will get the happiness of heart which is my wish for you.

The New Year promises to bring greater prosperity than the past. Let us hope that it will, for there is great need in the world. The glimmering daystar of prosperity brings courage and hope as we look to the future.

But whether prosperity returns or poverty crowns our every effort, it is possible for us who know the Babe of Bethlehem to keep the song of the angels ringing in our hearts. They sang not of prosperity, but of peace. They told not of gains, but of a Gift. They pointed the path not to wealth, but to a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord.

In the midst of our poverty, it is a Saviour we need more than prosperity. Our heart-hunger is more deadly than the hunger for food. Friendship is more precious than diamonds. Courage is worth more than comforts. Love lasts when all else is gone. These are qualities of the soul and are not dependent upon external surroundings.

Joseph and Mary tarried in a stable, and Jesus' first bed was a manger. Shepherds guarding sheep at night had few of the comforts of earth. But to these lowly ones came something of "peace and good-will" that first Christmas night that filled their hearts with cheer. It is that "peace and good-will" which I am wishing for you, and seeking for myself both for Christmas and the New Year.

"THE HIDDEN YEARS."

"The Hidden Years," by John Oxenham, is another delightful book which young people should enjoy. After one has read from the field of modern fiction until the soul seems smirched, it is a delight to turn to something beautiful and wholesome like this novel of Oxenham's. I can think of nothing more delightful to read during the Christmas holidays than this $2.00 book published by Longman's, Green and Co., New York. According to the New York Sun:

"This extraordinary book is much more than fiction. It is inferential biography . . . more human, more gripping, more tremendous in its emotional power than any other life of Christ ever written. It becomes an epic. Nothing in any previous book about Christ is so overwhelming. There are consummate works of art that appear just to have happened. This is one of them. One suspects that what seems to have been skill was sheer inspiration."

If you want to give something very fine to a special friend, you will have to look a long time before finding something better to give than this excellent book.

CHRISTMAS PRAYER.

By ZACHARIUS TOPELIUS.

Translated from the Swedish by E. Gustav Johnson.

Give me not splendor, gold, nor fame
In blessed Christmas time;
Give me God's glory; and proclaim
His peace in every clime!
Give me a day
In which I may Receive as guest the King, I pray!
Give me not splendor, gold, nor fame!
Give me peace, in Jesus' name!

Give me a home on native sod,
A tree, and children's play,
An evening bright with light from God,
That sends all gloom away!
Give me a place
Where I, through grace,
May courage, hope and trust embrace;
Give me a home on native sod,
And light divine from God!

To rich and poor, to high and low,
Come holy Christmas peace;
Come joyously, with heavenly glow
Earth's frozen heart to ease!
O, holy guest,
Of all the best,
My Lord, my king, my hope, my rest!
To rich and poor, to high and low,
Come with thy heavenly glow!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

JANUARY 1, 1933.

"Facing Life Gallantly."—I. Cor. 16:13, 14.

No one can tell what the New Year will bring to any of us. This first Christian Endeavor meeting on the first day of the year should give a boost to ideals and increase courage to meet whatever may come gallantly. "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. Let all that ye do be done in love." This is the way Paul said to face life, and it made him triumph over more difficulties than multitudes of us together will ever have.

Program.

Instrumental prelude—"O Worship the King."
Call to worship—Appropriate quotation from the Psalms, like the 100th.

Hymn—"O Worship the King."

Prayer of thanksgiving for the past year, and of hope for the new.

Hymn—"Marching With the Heroes."

Talks and discussions.

Hymn—"To Knights in Days of Old."

Reading—"Facing the New Year."

Benediction—

"Lord . . . be with us yet,

Lest we forget, lest we forget."

Amen.

Other appropriate hymns are, "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "The Banner of the Cross," and "I Would Be True." The following on "Facing the New Year," might well be presented to each member and be read in concert, slowly:

"We pledge ourselves

To follow through the coming year

The light which God gives us:

The light of Truth, wherever it may lead;

The light of Freedom, revealing new opportunities for individual development and social service;

The light of Faith, opening new visions of the world to be;

The light of Love, daily binding brother to brother and man to God in ever closer bonds of friendship and affection.

Guided by this light,

We shall go forward to the work of another year with steadfastness and confidence."

The leader should be prepared to make clear the meaning of living gallantly. Stories of the Knights of the Round Table, poems of early France and the songs of troubadours should be familiar. "When Knighthood Was In Flower," is a good book to read, and will thrill the leader with the idea of facing life gallantly.

Others than the leader should be prepared to speak on some phase of the subject, such as: (a) Meeting personal problems gallantly; (b) Doing my share of the world's work gallantly; (c) Supporting my church gallantly; (d) Sharing life's joys gallantly. Many other topics will suggest themselves to leaders who take the time to think through the subject.

There are numerous poems, prose selections, and short sayings that can be brought to the meeting and used to good advantage. The main thing is for the leader to feel the importance of starting the New Year with high aims and hard work.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

JANUARY 8, 1933.

"How may we know God's will?"—Ps. 119:105.

Be sure that the leader for this meeting is one who is interested in doing the will of God. Those who have sought to know the divine will have discovered that gradually they learn more and more of that will. The door is opened to those who knock, and those who seek, find.

Appropriate hymns for this meeting include: "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," "Holy Spirit, Truth Divine," "Open Mine Eyes That I May See," "Take Time to Be Holy," "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee," "Holy Bible, Book Divine," and "Wonderful Words of Life."

Several people should speak on topics like: (a) Finding God's will by studying the Bible; (b) Finding God's will in history; (c) Finding God's will through prayer; (d) Finding God's will through unselfish service. Many examples should be given of people who did God's will. Among them may be Abraham, Moses, David, Isaiah, Paul, and best of all, Jesus. It is profitable to think of others than Biblical characters who have seemingly done God's will, and some who say they have when to others it seems that they did not. Both the Kaiser of Germany and the Allies said they were on the side of God during the last war, but evidently both were not correct in their thinking, and some are inclined to believe that both were wrong in their statements.

The purpose of this meeting is to increase the desire to search always for God's will in daily living. Think of illustrations in which it may be difficult for your group to know, and to do, the will of God in the near future. Be sure that the attitude dominant is that all present want to follow wherever that will may lead.

JOHN PREPARES THE WAY FOR JESUS.

JANUARY 1, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Make ye ready the way of the Lord. Make his paths straight."—Mark 1:3.

LESSON TEXT: Mark 1:1-11.

The Beginning of the Gospel.

The story of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is unfinished. The final chapter will not be written until the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ. Mark knew that. Therefore, in his gospel, he simply tells of the "beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God." It is the story of how the "good news"—the gospel is just that—of Jesus—that emphasizes the human side; Christ—the one who should come, God's anointed—that emphasizes the fulfillment of prophecy; "the Son of God"—that emphasizes his divinity. Mark placed a great deal of meaning into these few words.

The Fulfilment of Prophecy.

"Even as it is written." Some may call it coincidence that words spoken by a prophet about four hundred years before found literal fulfilment. Those who believe that the scriptures "came not by the will of man, but that holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit," will see in all this evidence of the fact that God is not slack concerning his promises. One of the amazing things in history is the way that prophecies uttered hundreds of years before found fulfilment. Here was the messenger, here was the voice of one crying in the wilderness, here was the message—here it all is, fitting in in every detail.

John the "Baptizer."

His name was just that, the "one who baptized." He was a cousin of Jesus, he had come from good stock, he had been trained in the school of life under stern and simple conditions, he had disciplined himself, he had communed with God, he had received his divine commission, and now he comes forth with his message of repentance and baptism. He demanded repentance. And he insisted upon baptism as an evidence of repentance and of the will to live a new life. He preached with such fervor and with fearlessness and power that crowds came out to hear him. He was no respecter of persons—he demanded of the religious leaders of his day the same that he demanded of the common people. Dressed in his simple garb of camel's hair with a leathern girdle about his loins, and living on the simplest fare, he presented a striking figure.

The man was great in humility. He recognized that he was only the voice of one crying in the wilderness. He was only preparing the way for the one who should baptize not with water, but with the Holy Spirit. Success did not turn his head. In sincere humility he called attention to the one who should come after him, the latchet of whose shoes he was unworthy to unloose. John is a rebuke to many today who would represent Christ. His simple living, his self-discipline, his self-renunciation, his humility, his willingness to take second place, his refusal to court favor, his fearlessness in preaching the truth, his absolute devotion to the one whom he recognized as his master, are qualities that those of us seeking to be useful in God's service may well emulate. Jesus himself put a high estimate on John when he said that among those that had been born of woman there had not arisen one greater than John the Baptists.

Jesus.

"The-One-Who-Should-Come" had come. As Paul said, "When the fullness of time was come, God sent forth his Son." And strange as it may seem, he came to John to be baptized of him in the Jordan. He would thus give his approval to the work of John—it was a gracious thing to do. He would thus publicly enter upon his ministry. He would thus identify himself with humanity. He had no sins to confess. He had no need for repentance. But because it becometh him to fulfill all righteousness he was baptized of John in the Jordan. He would not destroy, he would fulfill, that is, he would fill full with new meaning the things that were good in the religious heritage of his people.

A Dove and a Voice.

"And straightway coming up out of the water he saw the heavens rent asunder, and the Spirit as a dove descending upon him." It would appear that at his baptism Jesus gave himself definitely to his public work as the Messiah, he became fully conscious of his mission and gave himself wholeheartedly to his ministry. There was a visible symbol of a spiritual experience. However else it might be interpreted it finds confirmation in the lives of those who give themselves fully to do God's will. There is visible evidence when God's spirit comes into a man's heart—the fruitage of his life tells.

"And a voice came out of the heavens, Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased." It was not the voice of man, it had divine authority. It was the Father's way of telling his Son that he was well pleased with him, and it was the Father's way of telling us that Jesus is the Son of God, that his life and ministry fulfilled the Father's expectations and pleased him. This is all the more impressive when we remember that toward the close of his ministry, when Jesus had accepted the way of the Cross, that again the Father told him that he was well pleased with him.

The Unfinished Task.

As the Son well pleasing to the Father, it was his task to reveal the character and love of God and declare the "good news" to men. But this task is not finished. We, too, are to make ready the way of the Lord, to prepare his paths. The gospels and the Acts of the Apostles tell of the beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. It is for us and for coming generations to carry it to completion.

JESUS BEGINS HIS WORK.

LESSON II—JANUARY 8, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT—"The time is fulfilled, the kingdom of heaven is at hand; repent and believe the gospel."—Mark 1:15.

LESSON TEXT: Mark 1:12-20.

The Temptation of Jesus.

Jesus, the Son of God, was tempted. It was a real experience. He was tempted in all points like as we are—he was subject to every temptation that we are. He could have sinned. To say that he could not have sinned is to make the temptation unreal, and to take from Jesus' victory any meaning for us. It is because he has been tempted, because he could have sinned, because he was victorious, that he can be of such help to us when we are tempted. Several things need to be said about the temptation of Jesus. It followed immediately after a great spiritual experience. He had just been baptized, the Holy Spirit had come upon him. But this did not make him immune to temptation. In fact, it made him liable to temptation. Spiritual experience involves temptation. Furthermore Jesus did not deliberately put him-

SOME NEW YEAR THOUGHTS.

MONDAY.

"Old things are passed away; behold all things are become new."—II. Cor. 5:17.

We are told that these words do not represent accurately the original passage; that the words as written by St. Paul are, "Behold they have become new." He is talking about the new birth of a soul in Jesus Christ, and he is not speaking of an obliteration of the past, but a renewal of the past. The old things themselves have become new. The old is not blotted out but appears under purer, nobler and more excellent form.

At the threshold of the new year we look back over a vanishing road of long travel, tired feet, aching hearts, failures, successes, joys, and many more experiences mingled in our memories; and ahead of us we are looking to a new year of hope. It is an unbeaten path. Every day will bring new and unguessed opportunities or perhaps unheralded storms and sunshine.

Let us go out with joy, and be led forth with peace. If there are ways of pleasantness and profit, let us find them. The one, only, and great condition is take Christ in the heart, walk with God and no road will be too rough.

Prayer—O Lord, God, we pray that the failures and successes of the past may so impress us that the true way for the new year is with thee. Speak Lord, and whatsoever thou sayest, we will do.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

"Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others."—Phil. 2:4.

The outstanding cause for world hope in 1933 is brotherhood, and history reveals that transformation is the way of God in bringing it to pass. The first creation fell into wasteness and crumbled into ruin; but out of the ruin came the world order of beauty which we now inhabit—old things passed away; behold they become new. This is the law of all science, nothing is lost.

This eternal law is seen in the great economical, moral and spiritual life of man. As we look backward we see much of the efforts of the past lying in corruption, but the possibilities ahead offer hope of a new creation, not by destruction, but by transformed inhabitants.

The new year challenge lies in building anew and building on a solid foundation. That foundation is made of sincerity in wishing others "a happy new year." To say that and mean it, means to have our text in mind and heart. We bear our own burdens by carrying one another's burdens and doing what we can to make them happy.

Prayer—Our Father, may we hear thy voice this new year, saying: "Follow after things that make for peace and edify." Every day, help us to weed out the old and bring in the new. Make life fresher and freer, and fuller of promise. Give us new discoveries of thy love, new revelations of Christ's grace, new experiences by Christ's comfort. Make life interesting and good beyond belief—make History, Time and Eternity the purpose, the progress and the achievement which should be. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE NEW YEAR WATCHWORD.

"One thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and stretching forward to those things which are before, I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling in God, in Christ Jesus."—Phil. 3:13.

"Old things," is the watchword of the past. "New things," is the watchword of the future. If Paul is right, "Press on," is a good watchword for 1933.

The principle laid down by the apostle's example is the belief that old things only resuscitates the past, cherishes it, fossilizes it and galvanizes it; it dislikes change, it hugs the shore or keeps to the harbor, there is too much that is bad in it to be so treated. All that is wrong or a failure, should be forgotten. We must forget it if we would more nearly reach our ideals in the future.

Paul also believed that new ideals and inspirations, new things of the future, would sweep away the bad past, or leave it for the curious; would send us out into life's problems and tumult if only a new world may be given to its eager and dauntless courage. Change is God's law; progress is God's law. We must not only forget the things of the past, but we must be determined to press on and never give up till we reach the goal.

Prayer—Dear Father, we confess that we are slow to see. We would not trample upon thy holy blessings of the past, nor would we spurn the inspiration of these Godly souls whom thou hast taken away, but we crave for something fixed, something to stand upon, a rock upon which the storms of Time shall beat in vain. Give us the fervor of heaven in this new day. Make the new year a new day and help us to live now, truly thy child.—Amen.

WHY TURN OVER A NEW LEAF?

"Man looketh on the outward appearance but God looketh on the heart."—I. Sam. 16:7.

As we have lived to see another year slip into eternity, we are reminded of the fact, that "time moves on with rapid pace." Some one has said, "We are not creatures of time, but of eternity." How true it is, we have no lease on life, therefore it pays to be ready to meet Jesus any time he should call us.

"We have only one life to live,
'Twill soon be past.
Only what is done for Jesus,
Will last."

No doubt, many people have turned over a new leaf, as they say, and have resolved to live better during the coming year than they have in the past. Why turn over a new leaf, and try to cover up sins of the past which are unconfessed and unforgiven? There is only one covering for sin, that is the precious blood of the Lord Jesus that was shed on Calvary for the remission of sin.

Start the new year right; have the old slate made clean, instead of turning a new leaf or asking the Great Potter to patch up the old vessel, plunge into the fountain that was made for sin, and be made new creatures in Christ Jesus.

"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart." We need not be so much concerned about what the world thinks of us, but it is very necessary that we be deeply concerned as to whether or not our lives please God. God's ways are not our ways, and if we would have his approval on our lives, we must be willing to say:

Prayer—

"Have thine own way, Lord, have thine own way, Thou art the Potter! I am the clay; Mould me and make me after thy will While I am waiting yielded and still."

FRIDAY.

A WISE CHOICE.

"But one thing is needful; and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."—Luke 10:42.

To press on to ideals still ahead of us means choosing each day what we will do, what we will say, and what we will be. It is all well and good to make those resolutions, but Jesus laid down certain fundamental principles which must be adopted and adhered to, not because he said them, nor for the sake of making a rule, but because it is a natural fact, which is: "He that would come after me let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me. He that saveth his life shall lose it and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

Another principle of successful living—true discipleship is, "One thing is needful." It is very needful, indeed, to have Jesus in our hearts. It is very needful to spend much time, like Mary, with him alone. Will we?

Prayer—Dear Lord Jesus, we certainly desire to do better this year than we have done in the past. We confess that we have failed in our own thoughts, of will, but thou wilt help us. If Paul could do what he did through thee who didst strengthen him, so can we. Make us willing to be taught of thee. If we do not like it, give us the truth, for afterwards it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness. Amen.

SATURDAY.

"THINK."

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."—Phil. 4:8.

By our thinking we can make of ourselves just what we wish. The Apostle Paul realized this and gave us a prescription—a tonic for us to take in our efforts for the new year. Our text is it. Take it. Repeat it, and then repeat it over and over until you will never forget it. With the beginning of each new day, say it to God for thine own soul's sake.

After this think of the grace that God has given to you, the knowledge of Jesus, his saving power, his light to guide us, and "Press on."

Prayer—Our Father, we believe that with thee and hope, and tomorrow we may mock the counsels of despair. May the bitter of the past sting us into nobler action, and the weakness we have suffered urge us to supplication for more divine strength. Out of the past does come a fuller knowledge of ourselves. Our self-confidence has been rebuked, and we have learned where the perils are; besetting sins against which we need to guard. Whatever trials come to us, may it be to triumph. May the wrestling be only to win the crown. In Jesus' name, we ask it.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE END OF LIFE'S ROAD.

"Finally brethren, farewell."—II. Cor. 13:11.

There must be something sad and solemn in partings. They remind us that there is nothing in this world which we can call our own; that all

STANDING BY THE CROSS.

By W. T. MEACHAM.

"Now there stood by the Cross of Jesus his mother and his mother's sister Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene."—John 19:25.

The beauty and tenderness of our text stands out all the better when thrown into contrast with the text. The text describes a most touching incident in the most touching way of the centuries. Round the Cross of Jesus Christ hatred, venom, anger were tossing themselves in almost uncontrollable violence, and in that spirit of delight that said, "At last this disturber of Israel has been destroyed."

But in the midst of this riot of ill, this reek of hell, comes the incident of our text, dealing with the loving companionship of these three Marys around the Cross on which Christ hung. What a heavenly touch it is; what a spirit of benediction is here; what a delightful contrast to all that was so fierce and cruel.

Let us detach this little scene around Christ's cruel Cross, and think especially of these three women watchers as they seek to soothe the sufferings of Christ for the redemption of the world. What may we learn from these women, especially from their stand at the Cross watching Jesus?

1st. How noble and heroic womanly love can be. What a heroism displayed, what loving devotion, what an utter disregard for self in their sincere desire to be near the one they loved. But says one, it is all natural. What mother would not stand by her dying child! What friend or kin would not face danger to be near the one they loved! Exactly that is true, but it is heroism all the same. That is where the danger comes in.

We are apt to overlook the devotion of our womanhood because we take that devotion too much for granted. We expect it and by so doing neglect to give proper credit for it. We need to keep an estimate that we may sustain a true appreciation of it. A mother would give her life for her child, simply because it is mother-like to do so, but that does not detract from the heroism of the deed.

Affection may be altruistic, but it is altruism after all, and we must not forget to credit the one because of the outcome of the other.

For the affectionate heroism of these Marys we give them the honor their heroic love should attain. Then their kindly attentions show how loyal womanly love can be.

Let us admit that it was not safe for these women to be around the Cross. The question is, would it be safe. Let's notice that hissing, howling mob, with passions set on fire of hell, and we see that there was no knowing what harm this mob would do, or to whom it would do it, if only impulse so moved it. Yet, with all the fury of a howling mob and an angry hour, we read this gracious truth: "Now there stood by the Cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene." Yet how natural this loyalty. How true to womanhood, to motherhood. That is the beautiful thing about womanly affection: It can stand by to the very end, and this despite the unkind forces that unite against it. It shall never be said that the mother of Jesus forsook him to suffer alone. It shall never be recorded that he was allowed to die on that bitter cross with no mother to cheer, no heart to sympathize, no gracious presence to befriend. If mother-love could not deliver him, it could at least suffer with him. And this is the love of a mother through and throughout. Peter may forsake, disciples may quit him, but the mother of Jesus never failed him—mother will brave anything to stand by his side for any ministry that might be hers to render.

But what a delightful bit of solicitation there is in this touching Calvary story! There is no doubt that its horror and sin were getting too much for Mary; Jesus had noticed it, despite her effort to conceal it. Courageous, mother-like, anxious to face the scene to the end, Jesus nevertheless felt it would be so much better if she were carried away from the scene, and taken to the care of home. So he calls John's attention to her, and next we see John leading a broken-hearted woman to a place where there were no horrors, but the peace of home. It would be better for her to shed tears there than in the presence of an infuriated mob.

We can permit love to be too loyal, too solicitous. We can let it express itself too far. It isn't always best to let motherly love stand out to the last hour of waiting and to spend her last ounce of strength to face the bitterest of all scenes. A tender leading away is sometimes better than permitting her to remain. We have a mother's love and strength to remember, a woman's sense of delicacy, an dloyal as love may be, it is only right sometimes to lead a mother away, lest the last scene be too much.

The last thing we may learn from these vigilant Marys is how devoted womanly love can be. It wasn't as if any of them could do anything for Jesus on the Cross. Even if Christ would have permitted it, they could not have plucked one thorn from that piercing crown, nor interfere in the least with the cruelties and suffering of that terrible act. They could not stop a pang, quiet a nerve, nor ease a quivering pulse. The cup must be drunk to the dregs, while the mob stood by to see that Christ, then their victim, drank it.

The only thing these women could do was to stand by the Cross, and having stood, still stand. And that was exactly what they did, as our text tells us. What devoted womanly love could do, though it could only stand, it would do for the one they loved dearest of all.

Love will always stand, however impotent and thwarted it may be otherwise. Love stands—yes, and stands by life's crosses, however maligned, or mistreated the victim may be. And if we love Jesus Christ, if we truly adore him, we shall challenge for him, however scorned and mobbed we may be. And what Jesus wants is not merely songs about the Cross, or talks about it, but those who will stand by it. It is the Cross that tests our love. As you love your Lord will you be able to stand by His Cross.

HOW IT IS DONE.

hind and their bills are running up, but because they are expected to provide the spiritual encouragement for their discouraged congregations. This is not easy to do, but many a pastor has submerged his own troubles for the sake of cheering up the people of his church and congregation. These times reveal the mettle they are made of. And so it is with the laymen of the church. Many are giving out of small funds and some have not cut their subscriptions, God bless them! Somehow churches where these conditions prevail will pull through.

But there are the benevolences! Missionary headquarters are looking to the churches for their full quota on the apportionments. Unless we send in all we can to the central offices, missionary work will suffer. But the way out is through devotion and service. It is right here that God guides and, as Mr. Coolidge says: "Some power outside" comes in to help solve the problem. Pastors may feel like "giving up" or relaxing, or resigning, or getting out from under and people, perhaps the trustees, feel that the best way is to cut salaries or close up and wait for better times! No, that is not the way to meet the issue. We keep the following exhortation constantly before us on our desk. It was written by a person who knew exactly what every word meant. Here it is: "When you get into a tight place, and everything goes against you, till it seems as though you could not hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that is just the place and time that the tide will turn."

This is the time for every pastor to use all the powers and ingenuity he has. Undivided attention and concentrated service counts for more these times than any other times. If everybody will work faithfully satisfying results will come.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our Thanksgiving offering has been disappointing up to this writing. The offerings have been small and are not making it possible for us to overcome the deficit we have had this year. The second Sunday was a very cold and rainy day, few people got out to our country churches, and the special Thanksgiving offerings were small for the week following.

On this Saturday, the 17th, with snow ten inches deep and cold, it looks very much like the congregations will be small at our churches on Sunday the 18th, and of course we will naturally expect small offerings for next week.

We still have the fourth Sunday, which is Christmas Day. We trust we will have a pretty day, and everybody will open their hearts, and swell the offerings. May we suggest that if you do not get to take your special Thanksgiving offering before Christmas, please take it soon after Christmas. We are too much in need of funds to let the offering pass by. If your church has already taken the offering, and you were not present, mail it direct to us.

The Orphanage is so much in need of funds, we wonder if all who read this letter could not mail us one dollar for an extra personal contribution. If each reader of THE SUN would do this, it would bring us in by the first of the year three thousand dollars. When you read this letter won't you enclose one dollar in a letter and with an earnest little prayer ask God to use it to bless his little ones? Then you will have the happiest Christmas you ever had. You may not have many dollars, but just spare the Orphanage one. Mail it on Saturday, December 24th. Let three thousand do this, and you will encourage your superintendent and make his Christmas happier. Don't wait for some one else—mail yours on the 24th. Let's see who will be the first one to mail their dollar. If you do not mail it on the 24th, mail it so it will reach us by the 31st—but be sure to mail it.

self in the way of temptation. He was led into temptation. Many who pray, "Lead us not into temptation," deliberately put themselves in the way of temptation. Again it should be noted that Jesus was tempted of Satan. His temptation came from without. Satan is the "adversary," as the name implies. He is just that—the Great Adversary of mankind. Furthermore, Jesus was tempted under the most adverse circumstances. He was alone, he was among the "wild beasts," he was hungry. But in spite of all these things he was victorious. The reason—"and the angels ministered unto him." He received divine help. God will not suffer us to be tempted above that which we are able to bear. It will help to read Matthew's and Luke's account of the temptation story, too. We find that the devil appeals to appetite, pride, passion for power. He uses, but misuses Scripture. Jesus vanquishes him by the Scriptures. Jesus was a real man—flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone. He met real temptations; he overcame them by the Spirit and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God.

there was nothing wishy-washy about his message. "Jesus came into Galilee"—he had been in Judea, but prudence and common sense made it clear that he should go elsewhere for the present. He did not deliberately court trouble. His time had not yet come for an open break with the civil and religious authorities.

Jesus came "preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God." There is a great deal of meaning packed into that sentence. He came preaching—it was the communication of truth through personality. Nothing will ever displace that method. Paul says God hath chosen the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. Ministers and Sunday School teachers are in a great fellowship reaching back to and including Jesus himself.

He came preaching the gospel—that is, good news. It was not good advice; it was good news, good news about God, about life, about the ultimate triumph of righteousness, about life everlasting. It was, indeed, then, as it is indeed, now, "good news" to those who heard it and accepted it.

He came preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God. Jesus said but little about heaven as we think of heaven. He said much about the kingdom of heaven or the kingdom of God. He was referring to something here on earth, among men, even as it is done in heaven. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Jesus was concerned about saving individuals. He stressed the worth and the importance of the individual. But he also was extremely concerned with saving society.

"The kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye and believe the gospel." Repent—change your minds, your way of thinking, change it so radically that it will go to the very roots of your being and change your actions—that was the message of Jesus. Believe the gospel—not merely give intellectual assent to it, but act as if it were true, apply it practically to your own lives—that was the message of Jesus.

"Follow Me and I Will Make You to Become."

"Simon and Andrew"—Jesus would take the human relationships of life and make them more sacred because of his influence upon them. They were casting a net into the sea, James and John were mending their nets—Jesus calls busy men, men who are alert, men who are doing things. "For they were fishers"—rough, out-of-door men, strong, forceful. But here was the voice of their Master. We call him that well, for such he is.

"Come ye after me and I will make you to become fishers of men." Fishers—fishers of men—do you get the significance of that? "I will make you to become"—being a Christian is not a finished thing, it is a process of becoming.

"And straightway they forsook their nets and followed him . . . and they left their father, Zebedee, in the ship with the hired servants and went after him." There is a scale of values which those who really hear the Master's voice, see. Business pursuits, family relationships, these and other things equally as important and sacred, must be judged in terms of their respective position to the claims of the King and the Kingdom. This does not mean that man will necessarily have to give up his present business or break his family ties if he follows Christ. It does mean that he must do this if it keeps him from following Christ.

"And they went after him"—and because they did they became immortal. These humble fishermen had a large part in the great movement which has steadily grown and which shall continue to grow until the Kingdom of God shall have come in fullness.

FAMILY ALTAR.

which God gives us is his, not ours; lent, not given. . . At best, we, like our fathers, are only dwellers in tents. Here and there—by some sweet well, under some spreading tree, on some green spots—we linger for a time; but the evening comes at last, the stars come out, the encampment is broken up, and we must move away. And very soon we shall have made our last stay of all; the sky will flush with the crimson of its last sunset; the last long shadows of the twilight will lengthen round us; the last farewell will be sighed forth from weary lips. After that our tent will be moved no longer; for then we hope that it will be pitched, for the last time, under the walls of the Heavenly City, which has "no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it; for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." (Rev. 21:23.)

"Farewell, Old Year, the rustle of whose garment,
Fragrant with memory, I still can hear;
For all thy tender kindness and thy bounty
I drop my thankful tribute on thy bier.

"What is in store for me, brave New Year, hidden Beneath thy glistening robe of ice and snows?
Are there sweet songs of birds, and breath of lilacs,
And blushing blooms of June's scent-laden rose.

"To me no pain or fear or crushing sorrow
Hast thou the power without his will to bring;
And so I fear thee not, O untried morrow!
For well I know my Father is thy King."

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, our heavenly Father hath seen fit in his infinite wisdom to call from time into eternity, our friend, H. P. Sellers, who was a faithful member of the Loyal Men's Bible Class of the First Christian Church; and,

Whereas, we know that God, in removing him from us, was too wise to be mistaken and too good to be unkind; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him that doeth all things well.

2. That we extend our sincerest sympathy to the bereaved and point them to Him who said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

NETTIE J. SIMPSON.

Miss Nettie Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Simpson, of near Burlington, N. C., passed away Tuesday, November 15, 1932, after an illness of five weeks. She was the second daughter of a family of six and this is the first broken link in the tie of the family circle.

She was talented, affable, and cultured.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

She was a church member, manifested the Christ-life, and fought the good fight of faith. Her days were spent to bless humanity.

She is not dead but sleepeth, and the mound in Bethlehem Christian Church cemetery under which her body lies, was covered with lovely flowers attesting the high esteem of that immense audience attending the last rites for this member of Bethlehem Church.

The services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. G. O. Lankford, pastor of the First Christian Church, Burlington, N. C.

May heaven's richest blessings attend the father and mother, sisters and brothers to the end of the journey. Then, up there, may the family circle be reunited and spend eternity in the city of God.

J. W. PATTON.
